

Employability Skills

Collaborative learning helps students develop the ability to work cooperatively with a group. They develop skills in organizing, planning, listening, sharing, flexibility, and leadership.

Today, employers want people who:

- ! Actively participate in a team
- ! Take responsibility for team goals
- ! Listen to other group members
- ! Express ideas to other group members
- ! Are sensitive to the group members' ideas and views
- ! Are willing to compromise to best accomplish the goal
- ! Act as a leader or follower to best accomplish the goal
- ! Work in changing settings and with people of different backgrounds
- ! Rely more on the team than management for daily direction
- ! Participate in decision- making and problem-solving
