- Science Direct

In this page you will also find a list of Internet resources links in alphabetical order.

How to search databases from:

- (1) EBSCO - <http://www.andrews.edu/library/RefDesk/Searchguides/EBSCO.pdf>
- (2) Wilson/OCLC - <http://www.andrews.edu/library/RefDesk/Searchguides/oclc.pdf>

To search for a specific article when you have the complete reference, use “Periodicals A-Z”.

1. Search & Find, then...
2. Articles/Databases, then...
3. Periodicals A-Z, then...
4. Write the title of the Journal in the search box and click the small square box on the right of it.
5. The system will find the databases which indexes (carries) that specific Journal
6. Making sure that the year is covered (looking at the left side of the database title), click the most appropriate one. It will also show if the library has that Journal in print
7. Some databases will take you to their interface, but others will take you directly to the Journal, where you will have the opportunity to look and search for the year and issue that you are looking for.
