

E-JOURNALS MAKE DEBUT IN JWJL

Beginning October 1 this year, James White Library is providing campus-wide access to the complete contents of 190 electronic journals. Most of them are published by Academic Press, though there are several from Blackwell Publishers, two from Carfax, and one each produced by Kluwer and MIT Press. The majority are not currently subscribed journals at Andrews.

These Electronic Journal (E-Journal) subscriptions are the result of a special offer negotiated this summer by Michigan Library Consortium for academic libraries in the state of Michigan. An important feature of these deals is that the new e-journal subscriptions represent text ownership by James White Library. In other words, we have purchased the content of these electronic subscriptions and are therefore guaranteed permanent access to them.

This arrangement contrasts with the library's other full-text database services, such as Ebsco Academic Search and UMI ABI/Inform, which provide us with access to the electronic content of nearly 2,000 journals but do not give us ownership of the journals themselves. But like those services, the e-journal option does give campus-wide access at any hour of the day, any day of the week. This means that faculty or students may search current issues of any of 190 e-journals from their offices or rooms, or from homes with a PPP connection.

An added major advantage to the e-journal option is that topical searching of their content is possible through a powerful search engine supplied by OCLC. Not only can individual e-journal titles be searched, but the interface allows a single topical search through the entire issues of all 190 e-journals to which the library subscribes. To undertake this type of search, choose the ELECTRONIC COLLECTIONS ONLINE entry in the library's alphabetical list of databases.

The specific steps in an e-journal search are as follows:

1. At the library's home page, click on "Connect to Web Databases"
2. From the list of databases, click on "Electronic Collections Online"
3. At the ECO site, click on "Use Service"
4. From the options on the left panel of the screen, choose whether you wish to search a single journal, a topic, or a search of all journals.

We would appreciate your help in evaluating this new service. As you try out the feature, please take a moment to e-mail your comments, whether positive or negative, to Cynthia Helms (helmsc) or Keith Clouten (clouten).

Following is a complete listing of all 190 e-journal titles. Those titles to which we also have a current print subscription are identified with a "P". In addition, at least a dozen journals were on our library's print subscription list prior to the last (1997) cancellation program.
