Part 1: Course Information

Course Description
Described by the Andrews University course catalog as “a survey of recent global literary texts with a focus on issues of diversity,” ENGL 404 will challenge your perceptions of literature and literary tradition by asking you to step outside the Western Hemisphere and consider perspectives that may not be your own. You will spend the semester considering how literature and culture have shifted after 9/11/2001. While the September 11 tragedy in the United States transformed American literature, culture, and diplomacy, it also changed international relationships between unrelated countries. The rise of technology related to the internet has shrunk the world in that more communication is readily available between nations—if resources are available and allowed. Therefore, in this course, we will consider the ways in which globalization has impacted inter- and intra-national affiliations, and the factors that have influenced globalism, whether capitalism, political events, environmental crises, natural disasters, major cultural events, or digital technology. We will grapple with literature as a representation of globalism, and how global cultures impact our spiritual journeys. Questions we will ponder include, but are not limited to:
• How does a global society change the way we relate to one another, whether we are part of the same country, language family, or religion, or whether we have no common demographic?
• As Seventh-day Adventist Christians, how do we relate the Great Commission to the shifts in global relations, communication, and sharing of ideas?
• What is “globalism,” and how has it become integral to literary and cultural study? How does it correspond to and differ from “globalization?” Why do we make this distinction?
• How do events, such as 9/11 in the United States or the Thailand tsunami, change the global landscape?
• Why do we study non-Western literature and how does it impact us?
• What is significant about literary and cultural analysis in my education?

Credit Hour and Commitment
This course is offered for 3 semester credits. In a face-to-face 15-week semester course, this commitment typically requires 3 hours of classroom time per week, and 6 hours of homework per week for a total of about 135 hours. This class is delivered online in 6 months; so you should plan to spend about 3 hours/day on this class, including reading the texts and supplemental materials, accessing instructional materials, interacting with your instructor, completing homework, and constructing original projects. Suggested schedule(s) to accomplish this work are included in this syllabus.

Student Learning Outcomes
The central goal of ENGL 404 is to deepen your understanding of global literature written after 2001 through analysis, interpretation, and synthesis of ideas. After successfully completing the course, students will be able to do the following:

1. Replicate basic elements of academic writing, documentation, and research.
2. Discuss core concepts of globalism, globalization, and transnationalism via literary and cultural texts.
3. Interpret texts from a variety of theoretical, cultural, textual, and spiritual perspectives in order to generate meaning and personal worldviews.
4. Criticize each writer’s ideas, style, and cultural interpretations in order to develop your sense of global literature and its reflections and impact upon our world.
5. Appraise interpretations and arguments for authenticity, style, and connections to global and national themes.
6. Construct original arguments through discussions, analysis, scholarly texts, projects, and a variety of textual genres.
7. Engage with globalism and global themes after September 11, 2001, particularly as they relate to individual and state identities.
Part 2: Course Methods and Delivery

Methods of Instruction
Methods of instruction include assigned readings from our texts; video journal posts; mini-lectures on video, PowerPoint, Prezi, or other multi-media; timed reading quizzes; interactions with the instructor via Zoom conference and email; original research for paper-writing; and a final exam. Regular participation in the course is essential to good performance.

Your Schedule
In LearningHub, you will access online lessons, course materials, and resources. This course is self-paced. You must complete the course within 180 days. This is the Consortium policy. You may have a stricter deadline imposed by graduation, financial aid, or other restrictions.

Start by creating a schedule for completion of the course.
- Determine your deadline. Do you need a transcript sent to your home institution?
- Working from your deadline, count backwards. Allow 2 weeks after you take your final exam for your final grade to be calculated. Allow another 2 weeks for the transcript to be processed and sent.
- Now use the suggested schedules to create a schedule for yourself that ensures completion 4 weeks before your deadline.
Submit your course plan to your instructor within LearningHub AND discipline yourself to make regular progress.
Assessment Descriptions

Assigned readings: You will be required to read a portion of our texts throughout the semester. Reading assignments are paced by module to accommodate your coursework or personal schedule. Maintaining a steady pace will ensure your best success. Please note: due to the nature of course and the time spent developing materials around the selected texts, requests for reading substitutions cannot be granted. If you find yourself experiencing discomfort with an idea, plot point, or character in the book, ask yourself why that is. Take time to reflect on why your values and the author’s might not agree. There is wisdom to be gained from prayerful reflection and exercising empathy towards views or ideas that you might not espouse.

Timed reading quizzes: After each reading assignment, you will take a short quiz that tests your reading comprehension and analysis. Quizzes will demonstrate your ability to keep up with the reading and ensure that you have processed the materials you have digested in order to evaluate authors’ arguments and construct your own.

Reading journals: You will create a video blog (vlog) that shows a real-time response and analysis to the materials you have read. Here, you can piece apart elements that you found interesting or puzzling, or ask questions that you have been pondering as you have read. The media platform you choose is up to you—please consult with the instructor to make sure your technology resources are compatible with each other!

Zoom discussion meetings and conferences: You will meet with the instructor periodically to discuss the novels via the Zoom platform. Be prepared to discuss both intricate details and broad themes from the texts and bring up questions, frustrations, or observations! Further, you and the instructor will discuss your progress on essays and projects with scheduled conferences.

Literary analysis essay: You will write a short essay (5-6 pages in length, plus a Works Cited page) which explores literary elements of one of the texts read in the class and also provides an interpretation of the meaning or ideas that the author posits.

Literary research essay: You will engage with original literary research to write a 10-12 page essay that builds on the skills of literary analysis but focuses on a different text and includes secondary research. Included in this project are an abstract of your argument and an annotated bibliography of your sources, with ten entries required.

Independent film project: Drawing on the list of optional texts above (or one approved by the instructor), you will choose a film and create an original project that draws on ideas of the film, its engagement with themes in our course, and presentation to an audience of your choosing. Projects may include, but are not limited to, the following:

Unit plan for a high school or college class, in which the film is included as a text to supplement learning objectives (lesson plans are required as part of the unit plan).

TED Talk, in which you engage with ideas related to the film and use the film as a springboard for your argument. Minimum of 7 minutes required for your taping.
5-7 page Analysis essay (plus Works Cited), in which you analyze components of the film from a technical, cultural, and literary perspective and provide an original interpretation.

Series of devotional posts, in which the film is a springboard and example. A minimum of 5 posts are required of 500 words each.

Creative writing portfolio (including poetry, recipes, eulogies, short stories, resumes, letters, diary entries, infographics, etc.) of a character from the film. 7-10 pages’ worth of material and clean/colorful formatting and design required.

A podcast with at least three episodes’ worth of material regarding ideas related to the film. Each episode should be about 10-20 minutes each and neatly edited, with transitions and quality recording.

Final Exam: You will create an infographic that answers these questions: “Why should I take a global literature course?” “Why is it important to understand non-Western literature and culture?” and/or “What have I learned from this course?” Infographic must be at least one page and cleanly formatted, with clear balance between text and graphics. You will submit your infographic by the final day of the course and since it is a project, you do not need to arrange an exam time with a proctor.

Rubrics
Assessment rubrics for each major essay or assignment can be found on the LearningHub modules. Please download each, so that you know how your essay will be graded and can understand the specific requirements for individual assignments.

Style and Citations
For this course, we will be using MLA 8th edition style and citations. If you do not have an MLA style guide, you may consult Purdue OWL, a resource for formatting of your in-text citations, bibliography, and essays. Part 5: Course Policies

Withdrawal and Incomplete Policies
The current withdrawal policy can be found online at https://www.andrews.edu/distance/students/gradplus/withdrawal.html. The incomplete policy is found online at http://www.andrews.edu/weblmsc/moodle/public/incompletes.html.

Maintain Professional Conduct Both in the Classroom and Online
The classroom is a professional environment where academic debate and learning take place. Your instructor will make every effort to make this environment safe for you to share your opinions, ideas, and beliefs. In return, you are expected to respect the opinions, ideas, and beliefs of other students—both in the face-to-face classroom and online communication.

Students have the right and privilege to learn in the class, free from harassment and disruption.

Academic Accommodations
Students who require accommodations may request an academic adjustment as follows:
1. Read the Andrews University Disability Accommodation information at https://www.andrews.edu/services/sscenter/disability/
2. Download and fill in the disability form at http://www.andrews.edu/services/sscenter/disability/accommodationsreqform.pdf. Preferably type answers. To save a digital copy, 1) print to file and save or 2) print and scan. Email the completed form and disability documentation (if any) to success@andrews.edu or fax it to (269) 471-8407.
3. Email sdestudents@andrews.edu to inform the School of Distance Education that a disability has been reported to Student Success.

Commitment to Integrity
As a student in this course, and at the university, you are expected to maintain high degrees of professionalism, commitment to active learning, participation in this course, and integrity in your behavior in and out of this online classroom.
Commit to Excellence
You deserve a standing ovation based on your decision to enroll in, and effectively complete this course. Along with your pledge of “commitment to Integrity” you are expected to adhere to a “commitment to excellence.” Andrews University has established high academic standards that will truly enhance your writing and communication skills across the disciplines and in diverse milieu with many discourse communities in the workplace.

Honesty
Using the work of another student or allowing work to be used by another student jeopardizes not only the teacher-student relationship but also the student’s academic standing. Lessons may be discussed with other students, tutors may help to guide a student’s work, and textbooks, encyclopedias and other resource materials may be used for additional assistance, but the actual response must be the student’s own work.

Exams must be completed in the presence of an approved supervisor without the assistance of books, notes, devices or outside help unless otherwise specified in the exam directions. The student should have no access to the exam either before or after it is taken. A student who gives information to another student to be used in a dishonest way is equally guilty of dishonesty.

Any violation of this policy will be taken before the Higher Education Academic and Curriculum Committee for appropriate punitive action.
Part 6: Bibliography

These primary texts have been considered for course reading and model precepts of global literature, particularly after 9/11/01:

For a historical glimpse of many global texts, check out the Norton Anthology of World Literature, volumes 1-6.

A good theory primer can be found in World Literature in Theory, edited by David Damrosch.
