Melba Joyce Boyd, editor

Roses and Revolutions: The Selected Writings of Dudley Randall

Thursday, April 15, 2010, 7 p.m.
James White Library Gallery

Melba Joyce Boyd is distinguished professor and chair of Africana Studies at Wayne State University. She is the author of 13 books.

“Dudley Randall was one of the foremost voices in African-American literature during the 20th century and was the founder of Broadside Press in Detroit, which published many well-known black poets. His poems and short stories show the changes in civil rights and historical events during the 80 years of his life.” Boyd’s presentation will include video interviews with Randall.

Michigan Notable Books Program

SPONSORED BY:
James White Library,
Phi Kappa Phi, Nu Sigma
(English Honors Chapter),
Library of Michigan,
Library of Michigan
Foundation, Michigan
Humanities Council,
ProQuest, Cooley Law
School, The Michigan
Center for the Book, Auto
Owners Insurance, NA
Publishing, Inc.

*Co-curricular credit available.