World budget funds mission, administrative support outside North America
Highlights from the 2012 headquarters budget of $167 million; full budget upon request

In Ecuador, ADRA assisting indigenous families living near volcano
Agency distributing masks, responding to Ministry of Health’s appeal

Thank-you for reading Adventist News Network. Look for the next ANN news bulletin the first week of January, 2012. We wish you a safe and happy holiday season. -- ANN staff

World budget funds mission, administrative support outside North America
The budget of the Seventh-day Adventist Church’s world headquarters this year will fund mission work and administrative support outside of North America, as well as the operation of the headquarters building.

The denomination’s nearly US$167 million world budget for 2012 allocates $38.7 million in appropriations to the 12 world divisions other than North America, with an additional $27.4 million for missionaries and employees serving in other divisions.

Operating costs for the denomination’s headquarters in Silver Spring, Maryland, United States, is limited to 2 percent of world tithe, which is set this year for $40.9 million. Finance officers said headquarters consistently operates more than $2 million under that cap.

The world budget only includes items relating to the denomination’s world headquarters and does not include the reported incomes or budgets for its 13 world divisions or their respective local administrative units and congregations. The world budget includes headquarters operations, Inter-Divisional Employees, departmental work worldwide, and appropriations to world divisions.

“It’s the faithfulness of the members who provide support all of these programs,” Juan R. Prestol, undertreasurer for the Adventist world church. “Most of the givers are not wealthy but live with other heavy financial obligations. The church is being rewarded by their faithfulness.”

Receiving divisions are allocated appropriations between $1.7 million and $4.6 million. The 2012 budget also includes a 3 percent increase over 2010 appropriations levels. In previous years, that amount was given at the end of the year with supplemental budget funds. This year the 3 percent is offered at the beginning of the year as a budgeted item.

“Though the economy hasn’t normalized yet, it seems to now be functioning with a certain degree of predictability, more than it did three years ago,” Prestol said.

Prestol said about 65 percent of the denomination’s funding is paid in the U.S. dollar, Brazilian real, Euro, Canadian dollar, Australian dollar, Mexican peso and the Korean won.

Tithe income from North America has remained steady, with an upswing in tithe and mission offerings from overseas divisions. It’s estimated that 30 to 40 percent of that is affected by currency exchange rates, Prestol said.

North America remains the largest giver of mission offerings. In 2010, North America gave about $23.6 million in mission offerings, or about one-third of the total $70.9 million in mission offerings.

Other significant appropriations from the 2012 General Conference world budget include:
$9.1 million for Loma Linda University
$5.5 million for Adventist World magazine
$4.1 million for Hope Channel
$2.3 million for Ellen G. White Estate
$2.2 million for Adventist World Radio
$2 million for Andrews University
$1.4 million for the 2015 General Conference Session
$1.2 million for Oakwood University
$1.1 million for Adventist International Institute of Advanced Studies
$1 million for the Geoscience Research Institute

To see a complete copy of the 2012 General Conference world budget as an Excel spreadsheet, please send a request to the ANN editor at adventistnews@gc.adventist.org.

In Ecuador, ADRA assisting indigenous families living near volcano

Jan. 03, 2012
Silver Spring, Maryland, United States
ADRA staff

The Adventist Development and Relief Agency last month distributed disposable facemasks and eye solution to an estimated 4,500 families living near an active volcano in Ecuador.

Local officials declared the region a health hazard and asked residents to evacuate, but many indigenous families living nearby have chosen not to leave their family land. Ecuador’s Ministry of Health appealed to ADRA for support.

The facemasks serve to reduce inhalation of volcanic ash particles from the Tungurahua volcano, which again became active in late November. Eye drops will help alleviate severe redness and burning caused by ash.

Tungurahua is located roughly 90 miles south of the capital city of Quito. It has been steadily active since 1999, with only a few eruptions.

ADRA is working in the affected zones of Cantón Baños de Agua Santa, Cantón Pelileo and Oriental del Cantón Guano.

Prior to this latest volcanic eruption, ADRA has been present in the region, training community leaders.

Local indigenous families near the Tungurahua volcano in Ecuador are receiving masks and eye solution courtesy of ADRA at the request of the nation’s Ministry of Health. Many local residents have chosen not to leave their family’s land despite the government’s request to evacuate. techniques of evacuation and hazard preparation, in efforts to save lives. In addition, ADRA is training families how to prevent diseases caused by volcanic ash.

ADRA Ecuador, the ADRA Inter-American Regional Office, and ADRA International funded this initial $20,000 emergency response.

The ANN news bulletin is a weekly recap of news and information from the Communication department of the Seventh-day Adventist world church headquarters and is distributed by Adventist News Network.

Reproduction requirements: ANN encourages the republication of its news stories and accompanying editorial photos. Stories may be reproduced in full, in shortened form, or as one of several sources used to construct a news story. Please note that ANN's material is copyrighted. When reproducing ANN stories, the words "Adventist News Network" must appear either under the headline or immediately following the article. When reproducing photos that appear on ANN, please credit the photographer and ANN.

ANN staff: Williams Costa Jr., director; Ansel Oliver, assistant director; Elizabeth Lechleitner, editorial coordinator. Portuguese translations by Azenilto Brito, Spanish translations by Marcos Paseggi and French translations by Wenda Ozone-Mourandee.