The tour will take place right after the end of Spring semester; pre-tour classes from May 2-4 and then the tour leaves on May 5. Employees to Sponsor Bibles for Freshmen

Andrews University employees will help make the Andrews Study Bible central in the life of Andrews University freshmen at the beginning of the 2010/2011 school year, according to Ron Whitehead, assistant to the president for spiritual life.

Whitehead says the Fall Fellowship Committee, with the support of University administration, has set a goal of giving every incoming freshman a copy of the new Andrews Study Bible. "We're asking our University family to share in the cost of putting this outstanding resource in the hands of our new students. We want to make it clear that the Bible is an absolute essential in the Andrews experience and the Andrews Study Bible is the ideal gift to accomplish that."

The University will assume the first $20 of the cost of the Bible, Whitehead said. "After that, for every $25 employee donation to the Fall Fellowship Bible fund, a new freshman will receive the Bible."

The Andrews Study Bible, published by Andrews University Press, was released in June, with the official launch at the General Conference Session in Atlanta, Ga. Funded by Andrews University and the General Conference, with oversight from church leaders and the Biblical Research Institute, its publication marks the first time an Adventist publishing house has released a formal, full-featured study Bible.

Whitehead said pledges and donations will be received throughout the summer, with the goal of having pledges in hand for all new students by the opening of Fall Fellowship on Friday, August 13. The sponsored Bibles will be featured during the Friday and Sabbath meetings of Fall Fellowship, with a special dedication during the church service at Pioneer Memorial Church.

"We need to sponsor 400 Bibles to be ready for our freshman this fall. We'll keep a running count over the summer, as pledges and donations come in, with reminders to employees of how they can help."

- To make a pledge now and pay by September 30, send an e-mail to development@andrews.edu, or call Mary Nell Rosenboom at ext. 3124. She'll record your pledge and you'll get a payment reminder by September 30.
- To make a donation now by cash or check, give it in person, or send inter-campus mail, to Mary Nell in the Office of Development.
- To make a donation by credit card on the University website, click here.
- To make a donation to be paid over time by payroll deduction, call Mary Nell at ext. 3124. Please reserve this option for larger donations.

Follow the progress of the Bibles for Freshman fundraising campaign! (One Bible spine represents 20 Bibles for incoming freshmen.)

As of August 16, 2010, $9,325 has been raised toward the Bibles for Freshmen campaign. This represents 373 Bibles.

Take a Guided Nature Walk on the New Trickett's Thicket
Andrews University's Arboretum has recently groomed some new walking trails, dubbed "Trickett's Thicket," through the mature woods behind Garland Apartments. The trails will be formally opened and dedicated on Thursday evening, May 20, from 5:30–6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend the ribbon-cutting and then take an inaugural walk with Dennis Woodland, professor of botany and chair of the Arboretum Council.
Trickett’s Thicket is dedicated to the memory of Andrews University alumni Wilson and Verda Trickett. They previously owned the property and dreamed of making it available to the campus community for the enjoyment of Michigan woodlands. In their retirement years, Wilson and Verda were beloved for their care and assistance to international students struggling to make ends meet. The Tricketts ran a food pantry, known as Project P, which continues to assist families in need today. Wilson served Andrews University in business management beginning in the 1940s. Verda was a school teacher in the Niles school system. They both passed away in 2002.

Guests to the ribbon-cutting and inaugural walk are asked to park behind Garland Apartments and follow the signs to the trail opening.

A marker stands at the opening of Trickett’s Thicket, reading, "These trails have been developed and dedicated for the enjoyment and education of the community in memory and appreciation of Dr. Wilson L. and Verda Buller Trickett." (Photo by IMC student photographer Darren Heslop)

Nursing’s Accreditation Visit

The Department of Nursing’s eight-year accreditation site visit was slated for 2010. This week, Feb. 22–24, five site visitors from the National League for Nursing Accreditation Commission (NLNAC) spent time with the master’s and baccalaureate degree nursing programs at Andrews University to determine if they would continue to be accredited.

Upon completion, the NLNAC site visitors reported they will be recommending the full eight years of continuing accreditation for the master's in Nursing Education and the baccalaureate degree. They spoke very highly of many aspects of the department and affirmed that their reputation was outstanding both locally and afar.

The Department of Nursing would like to acknowledge that this would not have been possible without God answering prayers and the help of the Andrews University campus family. To that end, the Andrews University Department of Nursing students, faculty and staff wish to thank Niels-Erik Andreasen, Bill Richardson, Frances Faehner, Larry Schalk, Keith Mattingly, Emilio Garcia-Marenko, Aimee Vitangcol, Gary Williams, Elynda Bedney, Kris Knutson, Larry Onsager, Becky May, Don May, Najeeb Nakhle, Judith Fisher, Tim Nixon, Bill Chobotar, Joseph Warren, Bob Moore, Marsha Beal, the Office of Guest & Convention Services, Natalie Johnson, Ben Regoso, Pat Spangler, Barb Friesen, Andre Morgan, Keri Suarez, Marge Gadway and all others on campus who worked with us to make this a success. God bless you all for your support and contribution to this endeavor.

Sincerely,
Karen Allen, chair

Students Serve with Sunday Projects
The Andrews University Office of Campus Ministries has created a new outreach program for students this school year. Inspired by Jesus' words, "The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve..." Sunday Projects provides both community service and evangelistic opportunities in the local community and neighboring towns. The ministry focuses on practical needs and participates in hands-on activities, ranging from children's ministries to providing food baskets and even an occasional painting job, every other Sunday. First MSA Cohort in South Africa

Website: www.andrews.edu/grad>IDP
Phone:

In the fall of 2010, the Andrews University International Development Program (IDP) began a new cohort group of 38 graduate students in South Africa. Master of Science in Administration (MSA) students working in diverse non-governmental organizations such as ADRA, UNICEF and Save the Children are among those enrolled to study on the campus of Helderberg College. This is the first time the course has been offered in South Africa, allowing professionals from the African continent to study part-time without leaving their jobs.

"The program has a balance of theory and practice with each course having a focus to strengthen project cycle management skills in planning, assessment, implementation and evaluation," explains Dawn Dulhunty, director of the IDP. More importantly, students know that this master’s gives them a competitive advantage in the humanitarian assistance job marketplace due to the unique teaching model of evidence-based practice, she says.

The MSA program encourages global humanitarian leadership development through intensive sessions, work-related learning, networking skill development and field-based location. As development practitioners in training, it asks students to address extremely complex societal issues. For example, topics from the 38 different research projects being planned by new students include: "What are the factors impacting premature marriage among Sudanese girls?"; "Exploring cultural and community integration of Congolese refugees around Johannesburg"; "Improved access to HIV/AIDS Antiretroviral treatment in Zambia"; and "What church leadership dynamics influence the dedication of SDA members in the Pacific Islands?"

The program is doing more than meeting students where they are; it’s also filling a need in South Africa. Clifford Nhlapo, an IDP student and one of the organizers behind the South Africa cohort, says, "Following the demise of Apartheid and the birth of a new socio-political dispensation in South Africa, it has become urgent that the country adopt a development paradigm which is designed to enable especially the previously disadvantaged communities to develop themselves. The International Development Program is a unique platform which government and civil society can and should utilize in order to make the Reconstruction and Development Program (RDP) a reality."

Students may join the program in any given year and are required to attend four three-week intensives over a three-year period. The MSA is the second largest graduate program at Andrews (the Master of Divinity program has a few more students) and is also offered in Chile, Japan, Italy, Ghana, Kenya and Canada (pending approval).

The International Development Program began in 1996 and offers full-time professionals the opportunity to earn their MSA by taking coursework... on a part-time basis. The program is open to all non-governmental organizations, pastors, educators and health professionals. It aims to build staff capacity in humanitarian leadership through field-based graduate education.

Andrews University students to develop county campus plan
Berrien officials expect project to be completed in June.
By TOM MOOR Tribune Staff Writer
ST. JOSEPH -- It is a perfect match.

Berrien County needed a master plan for its proposed 48-acre county campus in Benton Township, and Andrews University architecture students needed the experience.

Those two factors blended together this week when County Administrator Bill Wolf announced The School of Architecture at Andrews University and Berrien County will enter into a memorandum of understanding, which will allow the students to begin developing a plan this month with a target completion date of June.

Wolf, who discussed the details Thursday at a Berrien County Board of Commissioners' administrative committee meeting, described the agreement as a win-win. The resolution will go before the whole board for vote next week.

"It seems like a cost-effective way to get this done," he said. "It's a nice collaboration with the local university." The county voted 9-2 in August to purchase the land for $759,000.

The property, on Napier and South Euclid avenues across from Lake Michigan College, could be home to the county's animal control facility, jail, health department and juvenile center. Some of the individual projects are still up to 20 years away and may include the future administrative building, court-house and Sheriff's Department.

Andrews will assist the county in the following areas:

Develop a written program identifying the facilities, approximate sizes and parking/site requirements.

Conduct a site analysis consisting of environmental, physical and cultural attributes. Identify the location of all the proposed facilities, external points of entry, internal vehicular and pedestrian circulation, parking and open/green space.

Conduct a preliminary description of infrastructure, drainage and a centralized power plant.

Create an illustration of architectural visual quality and patterns for the form and appearance of the facilities, and develop a plan for phased implementation.

The students will present sufficient detail to allow the county to solicit architectural proposal for a new animal shelter, which is being proposed as the first building at the site. It could break ground later this year.

"They need practical learning experience, and this will do it," District 7 Commissioner Debra Panozzo said. Berrien County, in turn, will organize meetings with department leaders to gather information about the facility and provide periodic reviews and feedback of the project's progress. The county would provide maps or site documents that could prove helpful.

The county will also pay Andrews $3,600 to offset the costs of the community service and student internship programs. Because the master plan is being conducted as part of an academic program, a professional fee is not being charged.

Wolf said Andrews is not out to compete with the private sector, and added the county will pass the project off to private engineers once the master plan is complete.

Also on Thursday, the board unanimously approved a 1 percent raise for Wolf, effective Jan. 1. The resolution states the raise is consistent with the increase the board of commissioners afforded the non-union employees and other appointed officials of the county in 2011. The board in December approved Wolf's contract one year, through 2013.

Wolf became administrator in January 2005.
