At the suggestion of our president, the events of this year’s Fall Fellowship are planned to highlight Buller Hall, a facility designed to inspire Andrews faculty, staff and students with a sense of community—A Place to Belong. When Nethery Hall renovations are completed near the end of August, the two buildings will comprise the Undergraduate Learning Center—new spaces to further build that community among our faculty, staff and students. The addition of Damazo Hall on our campus landscape provides a new kind of living space for graduate women—A place for them to belong. Ten beautiful new guestrooms better equip us to welcome guests to our campus and help them feel like they have also found a place to belong while they’re visiting.

Friday evening and Sabbath School programming will take place in the foyer and Newbold Auditorium of Buller Hall. A dedication for all employees will occur at the second PMC worship service on Sabbath. Fun and interesting Sabbath afternoon activities are also planned and you won’t want to miss the corn roast on Sunday!

Fall Fellowship always includes good food and a fun time to reconnect with our campus family. Thank you for joining together as the Andrews family for Fall Fellowship 2011.

From the Office of Campus Safety
Penalties Enhanced for Moving Violations in School Bus Zones

There has been an addition to the vehicle code regarding moving violations in school bus zones. Public Act 60 amended MCL 257.601b added moving violations occurring in a "school bus zone" to an existed listing of offenses where enhanced penalties apply. A "school bus zone" is defined as the area within 20 feet of a stopped school bus displaying alternately flashing lights. The Office of Campus Safety is currently identifying the on-campus bus route and is in discussion with the Andrews University Transportation to develop signage for school area traffic control. Watch for school bus and school zone signage, for crosswalks, and also watch your speed limit when you observe a school bus. Please make a complete stop when you are within range of a stopped school bus displaying alternately flashing lights (red). The safety and security of our campus depends on everyone's participation.

Andrews Welcomes Griggs Grads

The summer 2011 graduating class at Andrews University celebrated Commencement Weekend, July 28-31. Despite the warm temperatures, graduates donned their caps and gowns several times throughout the weekend for a variety of events to celebrate this milestone. This summer's Commencement acknowledged the academic accomplishments of 745 graduates, which included nearly 500 from affiliate and extension campuses who graduated in absentia. This weekend was also witness to two Andrews University firsts: degrees were conferred for the first graduating class of Griggs University students on the Andrews campus and the first Outstanding Dissertation Award recipients from the School of Graduate Studies & Research were announced. "I have been dreaming of this day for a good many years. And here it is," said President Niels-Erik Andreasen on Friday, July 29, while standing in front of the newest building at Andrews University. It was a long-awaited day—the grand opening of the 42,000 square foot, $9 million Buller Hall. This building project, which began more than 17 years ago, completes half of the new Undergraduate Learning Center located in the heart of campus.

More than 300 Andrews University faculty, staff, Board members, donors and neighbors from the southwest Michigan community came to be one of the first to walk the new hallways of Buller Hall. Guests were welcomed by President Niels-Erik Andreasen. Then David Faehner, vice president for University Advancement, expressed deep appreciation to numerous individuals for their support, specifically Allan and Mickey Buller, the lead donors for Buller Hall. Faehner also noted the 500+ donors who made this building project a reality. "I want to also give special recognition to the 20 faculty and staff who stepped up to give $5,000 each, which was led by the president and Keith Mattingly." Faehner also acknowledged The Troyer Group of Mishawaka, Ind., architects for Buller Hall, and CSM Group of Kalamazoo, Mich., for their project management.

When Allan Buller stepped behind the podium, his words cast his vision for Buller Hall. "To the students who come here—I'd like to suggest that they keep their hearts open to the relationships that can be established here. The building was designed to encourage social, spiritual and academic relationships," said Allan Buller. President Andreasen then presented the President’s Medallion to Allan Buller. This special honor is reserved for special friends of Andrews who have built bridges between the University and the community.

Andreasen shared that this building represents a promise. Some time ago during a conversation between Andreasen and Buller about the then-proposed building project, Allan Buller asked Andreasen, “Can you promise me,” he asked, “that in future years there will still be a good Christian college up north in Michigan where young adults can receive a first-class Christian college education?” Andreasen committed to the promise, asking for Allan Buller’s help in return.

"This is where students will become Christian college men and women. This is where the idea of a university is realized. Andrews University will never be better than the quality of education offered here in English 101, Communication 101, Religion 101, etc.,” said Andreasen. “That is what I promised all these years ago—to establish such a center, to revive the heart of the university right here in the oldest part of campus where everything begins. I made this promise to myself, but of course I cannot keep it by myself. So now I ask the faculty, staff and students to help carry out that promise. It will take a while, but it is well worth pursuing.”

“This building is built for students,” said Keith Mattingly, dean of the College of Arts & Sciences. “It’s a building that invites one to stay and study.” After thanking numerous individuals for their contributions to making this dream become reality, Mattingly, whose voice started to break with emotion, said, “In the end, there is one person who really gets a lot of credit for today...that person is Dick Scott.” Dick Scott is director of facilities management and oversaw the myriad of details that accompanied the 15-month building project.

Clay McCausland, who attended on behalf of Congressman Fred Upton, offered these words: “Yet again, Andrews University stands as a leader in our community, and for that, I am deeply grateful. Thank you for your vision and dedication to providing high caliber education in southwest Michigan.”

After a special prayer of dedication offered by Andrews University’s Board of Trustees Chair Benjamin D. Schoun, Allan and Mickey Buller, joined by several other University officials, officially cut a large blue ribbon hanging in front of the main entrance to Buller Hall. Then, all were invited indoors for building tours and refreshments.

The first day of classes in Buller Hall and the newly renovated Nethery Hall will be on Monday, August 22. On Friday, Sept. 30, during Alumni Homecoming Weekend, a grand opening for the Undergraduate Learning Center will be held. It will be open to students, staff, faculty and the public. Details will be announced at a later date.

About Buller Hall

Buller Hall is home to three academic departments, the Red Rose Chapel, a Student Lounge and the Newbold Auditorium, which is one of eight classrooms. It was built in a collegiate gothic architecture style that mirrors the style of its companion building, Nethery Hall. An indoor bridge walkway connects Buller and Nethery Halls, allowing students easy access between the two buildings, particularly in times of inclement weather.

The three academic departments housed in Buller are the Department of Behavioral Sciences, the Department of History & Political Science, and the Department of Religion & Biblical Languages. Each of these departments’ suites is designed with a reception desk, a workroom, faculty offices and a common area with a lounge area surrounding a fireplace. Each department has a Gothic arch-shaped display case located in the main hallway where they can showcase their discipline.

An Andrews University floor mosaic on the main level, designed by Sarah Mitchell of The Troyer Group, mimics the mosaic compass in the Nethery Hall Four Points Lobby.

Occupancy sensors controlling the lighting throughout the building promote energy savings, safety and ambiance. The ample seating provided by the benches located throughout the main hallways will encourage students to stick around awhile after class.
Newbold Auditorium
Although unable to attend the ribbon cutting ceremony, Robson and Isabel Newbold are the donors for Newbold Auditorium. Robson attended Andrews, where he became close friends of Allan and Mickey Buller. It was that friendship that led Robson and Isabel to be part of the Buller Hall project.

With a seating capacity of 260, the auditorium will primarily be used for larger general education classes. Each seat in the auditorium has its own power outlet and the large screen, projection capabilities and voice acoustics make it an ideal space for lectures. The auditorium also includes a green room, temporary curtains and side rooms to facilitate drama productions.

Randall Student Lounge
Numerous individuals gave gifts for specific rooms or areas in Buller Hall, including Charles and Barbara Randall. Much to Barbara’s surprise, her husband Charles had given a special gift toward the Buller Hall project in honor of his wife. The plaque by the entrance to the Student Lounge reads, “This student lounge made possible through the generosity of The Charles Randall Family in honor of Barbara Randall.”

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony, a small gathering was held in the Student Lounge, announcing this gift to Barbara. Charles said, “I asked Barbara out on our first date about 75 feet away from where we are standing today. Andrews has been wonderful to us and it’s a big part of our lives.”

Red Rose Chapel
A unique feature of Buller Hall is the Red Rose Chapel, a tiny, intimate prayer chapel to facilitate prayer and meditation located on the northwest end of the building. Keith Mattingly, dean of the College of Arts & Sciences, says, “The only purpose for this chapel is prayer and meditation.”

The Red Rose Chapel is a gift from Hans and Herta von Stiegel, who met when they were students at Andrews University. The chapel is dedicated to their parents, Georg and Johanna Ludwig and Jack and Ruth von Stiegel, and named “Red Rose Chapel” in honor of Hans’ ancestor Henry William Stiegel. A seventeenth century ironsmith, famed glassmaker and philanthropist, Henry William Stiegel “commonly used a Red Rose as decoration in things which were special to him,” says Hans.

About Allan and Mickey Buller
Allan and Mickey Buller met and began courting in the spring of 1939, while attending Emmanuel Missionary College (EMC). They both studied business administration and Allan exhibited a spirit of service and leadership as president of the student body and president of his senior class. After graduation and military duty the couple married and established their individual careers. Mickey earned a teaching certificate and was a Title I reading specialist for elementary students. Allan had a successful career at Worthington Foods, culminating as president and chairman of the board. The Bullers made their home in Worthington, Ohio, where they raised their four children, and are active members at the Worthington Seventh-day Adventist Church. Buller Hall now stands on the campus location where Allan proposed to Mickey.

A Griggs Welcome Reception

Date: July 28, 2011

Nine months from the day ownership was transferred to Andrews University, Griggs University & International Academy arrived at its new home. During the months of June and July, every piece of Griggs University & International Academy—from student records and textbooks, to office décor and historical archives dating back to 1909—were packed up in Maryland, loaded onto moving trucks and delivered to the new Griggs Hall on the campus of Andrews University.

On July 15, a welcome reception was held for employees of Griggs University & International Academy, who joined the Andrews University community as part of a newly established School of Distance Education. Their new headquarters will operate out of the Lake Union Conference building, which Andrews recently purchased but will continue to share with the Union until they build a new facility for their operations. The wing where Griggs is located will be named Griggs Hall, in honor of Frederick Griggs, a leading Adventist educator at Andrews and elsewhere, and the namesake for Griggs University & International Academy. In addition to housing Griggs, the new Griggs Hall is also the new home for the Office of Development, the Office of Planned Giving & Trust Services and the Office of Affiliation & Extension Programs. These offices relocated to Griggs to help ease congestion in the Administration Building.

Building tours of the new Griggs Hall revealed a reconfigured building that includes office suites, a reception area, two distance education classrooms, a testing area, a mailroom and the Griggs bookstore and warehouse.

Many of the new employees of Griggs and the School of Distance Education were present at the welcome reception, while others are still in the process of relocating to the area.

Near the end of the welcome reception for Griggs, President Niels-Erik Andreasen gathered attendees and he, along with Provost Andrea Luxton, gave special thanks and recognition to a few key individuals. Among those recognized was Alayne Thorpe, the dean of the School of Distance Education and interim president of Griggs University/International Academy. Thorpe introduced her team and gave special thanks to Pat Mutch, a former academic vice-president who came out of retirement to oversee the transition of Griggs from Maryland to Michigan.

Andreasen also expressed appreciation to the previous occupants of the building, the Lake Union Conference staff. "I hope that in the midst of the discomfort of moving twice—you will also have some satisfaction of seeing this house full of people once again. It was built by the Church to serve the Church, and then it became too big for the services provided. But now, it’s going to be full of service once again," said Andreasen. He then gave a prayer of thanks to God for His blessings and dedicated “the people and this place to His service.”

Andrews University, including Griggs and the new School of Distance Education, now has more than 10,000 students around the world.

Andrews opens new classroom building

By DEBRA HAITGHT - H-P Correspondent

BERRIEN SPRINGS - A new classroom building awaits Andrews University undergraduates this fall with the opening of the $9 million Buller Hall. Together with the newly renovated Nethery Hall next door, the buildings form the core of the university's undergraduate learning center.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony followed by tours of the building were held Friday morning on campus. Speakers included Andrews officials and donor Allan Buller. Buller and his wife, Mickey, both Andrews graduates, donated $7 million toward the construction.

While the concept had been in the plans for more than a decade, actual construction work didn't begin until late April 2010 when the Griggs Hall classroom building was demolished to make way for the new structure. Griggs had four classrooms, while the 42,000-square-foot Buller Hall has seven classrooms and a 263-person auditorium.
Dick Scott, Andrews' director of plant administration, said the new building has been constructed to take advantage of technological advances, including smart lighting that turns off lights when rooms aren't in use. The building is adapted to wireless communications, but there is hardware in the auditorium to handle plugging in computers.

Scott said the building is in the "collegiate Gothic" architectural style so as to match the adjoining Nethery Hall. Nethery Hall is also getting a face lift, including new windows that match Buller Hall and other interior and exterior work. Work on Nethery Hall is scheduled to be done Aug. 22.

Andrews Vice President David Faehner said the project has come to a successful conclusion because people worked together as a team. "Specifically, Allan Buller was like a player-coach. He gave us advice and continues to donate money," Faehner said.

"Over 500 people made this possible as they donated nearly $9 million, including 20 faculty members who gave $5,000 each. People started giving for this 20 to 30 years ago before we had a name or a plan."

Faehner described the Bullers as "people of unusual character" who showed patience, humbleness and generosity. "This effort began 15 years ago and then was put on hold when we expanded the seminary," he said. "The Bullers said do that first, and then it was the Howard Performing Arts Center and another interruption."

Allan Buller said, "It is a source of great pride and pleasure" to have the building named after him and his wife. He said Andrews holds a special place in his heart as it was where he met God or, as he put it, "He met me." It was also where he met his future wife, with whom he has shared 70 years of happy marriage, and where he met many lifelong friends and business partners.

"This building is designed to encourage social, spiritual and academic relationships," he said. "It's a beautiful building and one any college would be proud to claim."

College of Arts and Sciences Dean Keith Mattingly said that while he had fond memories of Griggs Hall, the new building have exceeded all his expectations. "It keeps with our philosophy of 'class is over, please stay,'" he said.

University President Niels-Erik Andreasen was the last to speak before the ribbon cutting.

"I have been looking forward to this event since I arrived on campus," he said. "I'm glad this day has arrived. The Undergraduate Learning Center is very important.

"This facility represents the promise I made to myself, Andrews and the Adventist community that one day we would invest funds in what the university is all about. ... When I first approached Allan Buller, he asked if in future years whether this would still be a good Christian college, and I said I promise and asked him to help."

He said the construction of Buller Hall and the establishment of the Undergraduate Learning Center fulfills what a college and university should be about. "It's not only to prepare people for a profession, but even more importantly to think clearly, communicate truthfully and effectively and to learn to be faithful to God and act morally and responsibly."

Dear Becky, Sorry for the loss of your Dad. I remember when he stood with your Mom at the AU entrance to wish us safe travel to the GC session in Atlanta last year. I pray that the same Angels who watched over us for the trip and brought us back safely; guard his mortal remains until the resurrection morning. Please be assured that my family and I will keep you and your family in our prayers.

Becky-May, so sorry for your loss. May the comfort of the Holy Spirit sustain you and your family during this time of sadness. May your heart find peace in the assurance of the blessed hope. Timothy P. Nixon & Family

Funded minority scholarships at Ohio State, served as Oakwood president in 1960s

28 Jul 2011, Silver Spring, Maryland, United States
Ansel Oliver/ANN

Frank W. Hale Jr. mentored thousands of students as a professor, and his promotion of scholarships for minorities helped The Ohio State University become the top producer of black Ph.D.s in the 1970s.

Hale, who died yesterday at age 84, was also the first black dean at the Ohio State Graduate School and the first non-clergy to serve as president of Oakwood University, an historically black college directly affiliated with the Seventh-day Adventist Church’s world headquarters and located in Huntsville, Alabama.

“He brought to leadership a broader base for Christian education, not simply religion, but also religion and pure education,” said Mervyn Warren, Oakwood provost, professor of religion and former interim president.

Hale taught a class each year he served as Oakwood president, and he established the school’s department of public relations. Under his tenure, Oakwood joined the United Negro College Fund. He served as president from 1966 to 1971, before accepting the position at Ohio State as associate dean of the graduate school, chair of the fellowship committee and professor of communication.

As the fellowship committee chair, Hale helped grant nearly $15 million to some 1,200 minority graduate students. He also initiated a minority scholars program for high school graduating seniors.

Hale served as a professor at Ohio State from 1971 to 1988, before his appointment as vice provost. A campus building is named after him -- Hale Hall, which also houses the Frank W. Hale, Jr. Black Cultural Center.

"Dr. Hale was a pioneer in the educational field for this nation and for the Seventh-day Adventist Church," said Ella Simmons, a vice president of the Adventist world church, who also served in executive posts at Oakwood, La Sierra University and the University of Louisville in Kentucky.

"He made the right connections to bridge the divide between public and private schools. I have learned a lot from him," Simmons said.

A native of Kansas City, Missouri, Hale attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, earning bachelor’s and master’s degrees in communication and political science in 1950 and 1951. He earned a Ph.D. in communication and political science from Ohio State in 1955.

Hale was also awarded a post-doctoral fellowship in English Literature from the University of London in 1960.

Hale served as a professor at Oakwood from 1951 to 1959 and chaired the department of English at Central State University from 1959 to 1966. He lectured at more than 300 colleges and universities.

He later received honorary doctoral degrees from Wilberforce University, Shaw University, University of Nebraska, Capital University, La Sierra and Andrews University.

The first two of his three retirement attempts were unsuccessful. Hale served as executive assistant for the president at Kenyon College from 1989 to 1992 and as distinguished university representative and consultant in the office of the president at Ohio State from 1999-2005.

"We have lost one of the true giants of the Ohio State community," Ohio State President E. Gordon Gee said in a statement yesterday.

"Dr. Frank Hale was a scholar, teacher, researcher, administrator, a civil rights pioneer. More than that, he was a force to be reckoned with who opened the doors of opportunity to underserved students through sheer force of his intellect and determination," Gee said.

Hale was inducted in the Ohio Civil Rights Hall of Fame in October.

He is survived by his wife Mignon Scott-Hale, a retired school teacher. His first wife, Ruth, preceded him in Ifeoma Kwesi, one of his three children, is an assistant professor at Oakwood.

I had never heard of Dr. Hale before today. Reading this profile, about all his wonderful accomplishments, make me feel like I have known him forever.

As an Adventist, I thank God for allowing him to be among us and to help as many people as he did, to create the family he did, leave a lasting memory, and leave those he interacted with, better than he found them. May God bless his soul and grant him everlasting life.

I wish his dear close and extended families, strength, acceptance and a happy celebration of his life; not mourning of his death. Amen.

I send my utmost condolences to Dr. Hale's sorrowing family. Dr. Hale's death is a sad milestone marking the death of one more of the church's remarkable and brilliant leaders. Dr. Hale's daughter, Ifeoma Kwesi, was once our pastor in Palo Alto, CA and we once had the memorable opportunity of hearing this great man deliver an inspirational message at the 11 o'clock church service. I know Dr. Hale will be greatly missed by thousands of those for whom he helped to open doors and inspire.

I have very pleasant memories of spending time at the Hale home as a little girl with Dr. Hales' youngest daughter Shari. He was always such an encouraging, supportive and friendly man to me. Even when I saw Dr. Hale last spring at the Oakwood graduation he immediately knew who I was though I hadn't seen him in many years and we shared special memories about our families' friendship over the years. I know his family will miss his strength and humor. My prayers go out to each of them.

Upon meeting Dr. Frank Hale, Jr. as a Freshman at Oakwood University, I was immediately impressed with his friendliness and warmth. To a first year college student this was a defining moment to have the president of the university take the time to put a student at ease. His scholarly manner and demeanor made a lasting impression on me.

Years later, I had the privilege of being the pastor of the Ephesus Seventh-day Adventist Church in Columbus, Ohio, where Dr. Hale and his family were members. For nearly 8 years I had the distinct opportunity of serving with and ministering the Hale family. Dr. Hale was one of the Elders of the church and the founder of one of its most profound organizations, the Frank Loris Peterson Society of Adventist Men. Through that organization many African American children, boys and girls alike, received scholarship funds to further their education. It also served as a bridge between the Ephesus church and the Columbus community.

Dr. Frank Hale, Jr. was a scholar, author, and spiritual leader in his home and community and a good friend to me and my family. He will be greatly missed. Our prayers are with the entire Hale family during this time. Be faithful in all that you do. The Lord is coming soon and the reunion with loved ones will be reality.

In the club competitions there will be an A section and a B section, allowing the less experienced to compete with a slightly different judging system. The first competition will be the October meeting.

The September meeting will feature a program by club treasurer Rob Shellhamer, "Exposure Basics and Camera Control," which will focus on what makes a correct exposure for various conditions and how to set the camera to make that exposure.

Annual membership fees are $5 for students, $15 for other individuals, or $20 per family. Refreshments are served at each meeting.

In times of disaster, children have lost their toys and stuffed animals and feel very vulnerable. They often wait long hours with mom or dad filling out forms, stay in shelters with strangers, and have feelings they may not know how to express. The Adventist Community Services provides kits to help these displaced children which contain: a coloring book, a box of crayons, a story book about feelings and 2 small toy emergency vehicles. These kits help children express their feelings and give their family members opportunities to talk with them about their fears and concerns. We are collecting and assembling the above items to donate to the ACS department for their disaster response initiatives. Please bring these items to the retreat as part of your offerings. We will be assembling the kits together!

This is a program developed by General Conference Women’s Ministries to advance the work of sharing the gospel using the methods that Christ used. There are three areas of focus when it comes to equipping, training, and inspiring women to serve: Nurture, Empower, and Outreach.

NURTURE: Reach up - To help women in their devotional time and personal growth, enabling them to be nurturers in the church and community.

EMPOWER: Reach across - To equip women for their activities and projects for the church and community.

OUTREACH: Reach out - To help women use small group fellowship to reach others in their community.

GC Women’s Ministries provides guidelines, ideas, and resources for each of these three areas of ministry. You can find more information at: www.adventistwomensministries.org.

Camp Meeting with DeeAnn Bragaw

Hey, Girlfriend! It was a treat to spend time together with you digging deeper into God’s word at Camp Meeting! We brushed shoulders with four Biblical gals who struggled with some issues just like us! In Ruth, we explored rest from bitterness, in Esther, superficial surrender. Through Salome’s story we sought rest from a striving heart, and in Tamar’s story, rest from guilt. Ahh….rest!

Coming up in April, we’ll have a BLAST taking a ‘cruise’ at Women’s retreat! I can’t wait to see what amazing treasures Jesus has in store for us as we bask in the warmth of His love together! See you then!

DecAnn will be our presenter for the 2012 Women’s Retreat at Camp Au Sable. If you didn’t get a chance to see her at Camp Meeting this year, mark your calendars for April 2012! The DVDs of DecAnn’s seminars are available by calling the Adventist Book Center at 1.800.976.9222.

Ellen White on Leadership: Guidance for Those Who Influence Others

Although Ellen White on Leadership: Guidance for Those Who Influence Others was not written specifically for women, it certainly applies to women. Ellen White, both as a woman and as an early church leader understood the challenges of women in Christian leadership—and so does Cindy Tutsch, the author of this useful volume.

Tutsch wrote this book as her doctoral dissertation at Andrews University. She did a review of the current literature on leadership and researched to see what Ellen White had to say on the same topics. Her discoveries are encouraging. As she says in her conclusion, “Ellen White makes a significant contribution to the discovery and understanding of leadership principles. It does not appear that her leadership principles will ever become outdated, even in the face of accelerating world change, because they have universal application.” (page 147).

Each chapter in the book looks at ideas from current leadership writers and then shares related leadership principles from Ellen White, including quotes from her writings to illustrate those principles. Then each chapter has a “practicing what she preached” section. This book is instructive and encouraging and available online or at your local Adventist Book Center.

Forgiveness: A Journey Ends in Joy

We have had some wonderful feedback regarding the forgiveness seminar at the most recent WM retreat! Women are still sharing their thanks to God for using the testimonies of Lisa Sawvel & Renee Grove to help them. The Holy Spirit is working! Women have shared with Lisa that they have hope now, where before they only saw a dead end with regards to their marriage. They realize that their burdens need to go to Jesus at the cross! Christ is the answer to all our hurts, rejections and longings.

Renee and Lisa have given the forgiveness seminar at the Edwardsburg church and have begun to travel around to other churches on Sabbath afternoons to share the importance of forgiveness to others. We do not need to carry our burdens or hurts around anymore! We need to look ahead to the future and what God has for us. The first step is forgiveness—and from there, there is no looking back! Joy awaits!

If you’d like Lisa & Renee to come to your church, please call us at: 517-316-1565 or email: jharris@misda.org.

The General Conference Launches the Great Controversy Project

The Great Controversy Project is an initiative of General Conference President, Pastor Ted Wilson. The challenge to the world field is to distribute massive quantities of a shortened version of The Great Controversy as part of the Church’s worldwide “Tell the World” emphasis. Divisions are making plans for this mass distribution. Each leader and member, young and old, is asked to join in this global initiative.

The project has two phases:

- Read it! Each woman is encouraged to read or reread The Great Controversy sometime during 2011.
- Distribute! During 2012 and 2013 it will be the Missionary Book of the Year. We can include it in our Women’s Ministries plans.

The Project Partners

Each one of us is invited to be a partner in this bold plan. Every woman can be involved. If you have not yet heard of the plans for your region, please call your conference or union and ask how you can get involved. As a Women’s Ministries leader, share your ideas with your church, your family and everyone you know.

The Project’s Prayer Need

This project needs your prayers. We are moving forward with prayer, humbly seeking God’s guidance each step of the way. Invite the women in your church to form prayer circles to pray for this special outreach. Our prayer is that the Great Controversy Project will spread truth, transform lives, and bring us closer together as a Church family as we spread the word of Christ’s soon coming.

See www.thegreathope.org for more information.

Summer Opportunities: Looking at Things in a New Light

Often our churches are a little less full than normal on Sabbath mornings during the summer months as many of us travel on vacations and visit distant relatives and friends. However, rather than being discouraged by the number of people in the pews, think how the Lord is joyful at the great evangelistic opportunities afforded to His traveling saints!

Leaders and church members in Michigan are taking full advantage of these unique summer opportunities by providing church potlucks, picnics and childcare, by sending children to summer camp, by inviting, driving and teaching children in the many VBS programs, and often setting up booths at fairs and festivals around the state to pass out literature or hold medical screenings.

Many members are making contacts with people they would have never met had they not had the time to leave the routines of life behind and hit the road! We love hearing from those who are always on the lookout for new, and yes!, even old tried and true ways, to reach out to others with the Good News! We hope you will look for every opportunity this summer because the harvest is near and there is not much time left in which to work!
Let us introduce our speakers...

Shrinky Dinks (Craft Toy for Girls)

Brand new and still sealed in the box.

This was a gift for my daughter, but it’s just been “collecting dust” in her closet for two years.

This is the product description online: The Shrinky Dinks Fairy World Kit includes 5 printed sheets of Shrinky Dinks film of fairies, flowers and more to turn into charm jewelry, felt bracelets, hair clips, and a tiny trinket purse. To help the magical process of making these fantastic fairy trinkets, the Shrinky Dinks Fairy World Kit also includes a heart-shaped glow wand (batteries included) to add that special fairy touch! In addition to the Shrinky Dink film, the Shrinky Dinks Fairy World Kit from Creativity for Kids also includes 8 colored pencils, a hole punch, jump rings, a trinket purse, 2 felt bracelets, 2 hair clips, mini bells, a lobster clasp, hook and loop fasteners, and special glitter “fairy dust.”

Retails new for $15-$20 (Just Google “Shrinky Dinks Fairy World”)

Desk/Drafting Table and Chair for Sale

This desk/drafting table is versatile. You can raise the top surface to an angle and there is a small ledge that will prevent papers from sliding off. You can also lay it flat for a more conventional desk configuration. The top is white and the legs/frame is black metal. It's very sturdy and in great shape. The top has a couple of small pen marks, but those may come off with a bit of work. The desk/drafting table comes with a matching black chair on wheels. It's used, but doesn't have a mark or tear on it.

Asking $40 for the set.

The tires are not holding pressure so it probably needs new tubes
Epiphone SG electric guitar
Used electric guitar about 10 years old, I'm asking $225 or best offer.
Comes with case, strap and 1 pack of Ernie Ball Power Slinky strings.
I have had the guitar repaired twice, once to fix the power plug, and once to fix the treble humbucker pickup selector switch.
Out of the 4 guitars I have owned in the past this has been my main rocker.
The guitar has good action on the strings and the humbucker pickups sound great.
This is a great beginning/intermediate guitar.
