Study Tour
May 2012

Sponsored by the School of Business Administration
Weekend Excursions

The Three Sisters is a rock formation located in the Blue Mountains. An Aboriginal legend claims that 3 sisters were turned into stone in order to stop a forbidden inter-tribal marriage.

Sunnyside is the home of Ellen White when she lived in Australia. The Desire of Ages book was completed here as Ms. White witnessed and gave guidance to several new Christians. Next door is the South Sea Islands Museum which houses several artifacts recording the progress of Christianity in the South Pacific Islands.

Enjoy walking 15 meters above the forest floor at the TreeTop Adventure Park. Several exciting tree top challenges, including sliding down the Zipline or moving from tree to tree on suspension bridges!

Experience and learn about the life and times in an authentic rainforest at the Australian Rainforest Sanctuary. Discover the beauty of the forest with its almost 200 different species of rainforest flora and more than 126 species of native birds.

A submerged natural wonder of unparalleled beauty, the Great Barrier Reef is the world’s biggest coral reef system. The reef is home to an incredible array of life forms including coral, colorful fishes, giant turtles, humpback whales, dolphins, manta rays, sea birds, and more!

Life in Sydney

An architectural masterpiece, the Sydney Opera House is one of the world’s busiest performing arts centers. Stroll the outdoor terraces, then join a guided tour for a look inside. The opera house is located in the Sydney Harbor.

A breathtaking view of Sydney can be seen from the top of Sydney Tower. Standing 1,014 ft tall, the Sydney Tower is the tallest building in Sydney and the 2nd tallest in Australia.

At the Taronga Zoo observe a large collection of animals in near-natural enclosures. An exciting feature is having your picture taken with a koala bear!

The Sydney Aquarium features over 11,000 marine animals. The highlight is the underwater tunnels where you can “walk on the ocean floor.”

United Way Campaign at 52% of Goal
The program is now at $5,200 of a $10,000 goal, and is in need of more support.

Dear Colleagues:

We are in the midst of our annual support of United Way. The money we and other local institutions provide stays in the area and helps local agencies, schools and support systems meet needs involving families, single parents, children and others who have run into hard times. Some members of our own University family have over the years benefitted from United Way programs. For more information on United Way of Southwest Michigan, please visit http://www.uwsm.org/.

While your participation is completely voluntary, I do encourage you to participate again this year. Pledge forms were sent out three weeks ago and can be remitted to Dalry Payne in the Office of the President (0670). If you would like another form or have a question, feel free to contact Dalry, who has volunteered again this year to coordinate our United Way campaign.

Sincerely,

Niels-Erik Andreasen
President

VGPS Awarded AUSA Spirit Grant

The Village Green Preservation Society (VGPS) has been awarded an AUSA Spirit Grant for the 2011-2012 school year! The grant, totaling $1,200, will be used to purchase recycling bins for the Undergraduate Learning Center, which consists of Buller and Nethery Hall.

The AUSA Spirit Grant is an initiative spearheaded by AUSA President Andrew Moll to encourage clubs to create projects that will positively affect campus. The new recycling bins are anticipated to arrive before the end of the semester. Students, staff and faculty can expect to see posters and bulletins to raise awareness on proper recycling and trash disposal methods.

VGPS is a student-led group that has existed on campus since it was founded in 2007 by then-student Benjamin Oliver.

VGPS has procured recycling bins for various buildings on campus, including residence halls, the Administration Building, Bell Hall, Ruth Murdoch Elementary School, and the Center for Adventist Research.
New Manager of Howard Center

Date: November 3, 2011
Contact: hpac@andrews.edu
Website: http://www.howard.andrews.edu/
Phone: 269-471-3560

A familiar face is taking over leadership at the Howard Performing Arts Center. Erica Slikkers, who has served as assistant manager at the Howard since January of 2008, is the new manager. She assumes the role following the departure of Debbie Weithers, who is now serving as a senior development officer in the Andrews University Office of Development.

"Erica is highly qualified to be the new manager for the Howard Center, and we are thrilled that she has accepted this challenge," says Dave Faehner, vice president for University Advancement at Andrews University.

While a student at Andrews University, Slikkers worked at the Howard Performing Arts Center first as a marketing and communication assistant from August 2003 to May 2006 and later as a contract writer during the 2006–07 season. Upon graduation in 2006 with a Bachelor of Arts in public relations with a minor in music from Andrews University, she took a job in finance and freight claims for USF Holland. When the assistant manager position at the Howard Performing Arts Center opened up in late 2007, Slikkers applied and was hired as assistant manager in January 2008.

As the assistant manager for the past three years, Slikkers has held a wide range of responsibilities in the areas of event coordination, marketing, promotions and management. She also directly oversaw management of the 70-person volunteer team that serves as ushers for Howard Center events.

"I'm very excited about this next step in my career," says Slikkers. "I've worked so closely with Debbie Weithers for the past three and a half years and feel well-prepared to continue the excellence she has created and nurtured at the Howard. It's such a privilege to bring high profile artists and great music to Andrews University and Berrien Springs."

Her passion for music extends beyond her role at the Howard. Slikkers is a classically trained violinist of 17 years who loves to teach. In 2008, she worked as a violin instructor for the Dance & Music Asylum in Saugatuck, Mich., where she instructed students from beginner to intermediate. The southwest Michigan commute, particularly during the inclement winter months, proved challenging so in May 2008, Slikkers opened a private violin studio based out of Berrien Springs. She currently instructs eight students from intermediate to beginner.

Originally from Holland, Mich., Slikkers currently resides in Baroda, Mich. A true southwest Michigander, she counts Lake Michigan as one of her favorite things. She also loves biking, running and reading.

Andrews University took home several awards from annual Society of Adventist of Adventist Communicators convention held in Lombard, Ill., Oct. 19-22. At the closing banquet, held Oct. 22, an awards ceremony honored individuals for their contributions to the field of communication and recognized marketing and communication related projects and products that exhibit a standard of excellence.

Kimberly Maran, president of the Society of Adventist Communicators, says, “With 35 categories, this is our first foray into the expansion of the awards and the presentation of them. We previously handed out five awards so this is a hefty increase.”

Student Award
Kristina Penny, a senior Andrews University journalism major, received the Student Award. This award is designed to recognize students who have demonstrated excellence not only in the classroom, but on-the-job as well. At the award ceremony, many of Kristina’s accomplishments were noted: editor of the Student Movement; lead editor of Scriptural Pursuit and Sabbath School U.; completed internships with WDIV, an NBC affiliate and WDET, an NPR station, both in Detroit, Mich.; and she is currently working on production of a documentary on the country of Jordan.

Reger Smith Jr. Cutting Edge Award
Envision, a student-produced magazine, received the Reger Smith Jr. Cutting Edge Award. This award is named in honor of the late Reger Cutting Smith Jr., who served the Seventh-day Adventist Church for 27 years in public relations, graphic design, photography, and other areas of communication. Special acknowledgment was given to Department of Communication; Debbie Michel, editor-in-chief and associate professor of communication; layout editor Daniel Campbell, a senior visual communication major; layout editor, Victor Mills, a senior visual communication major; managing editor Glenn Roper II, a master’s student in communication; and copy editor Michele Joseph, adjunct faculty in the Department of Communication.

“ar to receive an award in honor of Reger Smith Jr. is very special to us,” said Delyse Steyn, chair of the Andrews University Department of Communication. “His influence and interest in our department was profound and meaningful.”
Steve Vistaunet (left), out-going president of the Society of Adventist Communicators, presented the Reger Smith Jr. Cutting Edge Award to the team behind Envision Magazine. Delyse Steyn (center), chair of the Department of Communication and Glenn Roper II, an Andrews student and managing editor of Envision, accepted the award on behalf of the team.

Andrews to Host 20th Annual Acrofest

Andrews University is gearing up to host the 20th annual Acrofest, an event that brings Seventh-day Adventist gymnasts together from institutions across the country and around the world, from Nov. 10–12, 2011. Each year, a different Seventh-day Adventist institution hosts Acrofest, offering gymnasts an opportunity for spiritual renewal and a chance to collaborate with other gymnasts, including a live final performance on Saturday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Johnson Gymnasium. Tickets are required, but it is open to the public.

This year’s Acrofest attendees will come from as far away as Antillean Adventist University in Puerto Rico and Canadian University College in Lacombe, Alberta. Acrofest will take place in the Johnson Gymnasium on the campus of Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich. This year’s theme, “He Could Have Said No, But He Said Yes,” will emphasize the ultimate sacrifice Christ made for mankind.

“This isn’t just a Gymnics event; it’s an Andrews University event. We’ve got volunteers from across campus—students, faculty and staff—who are helping in so many ways, including just simply serving food to our nearly 1,000 Acrofest guests,” says Christian Lighthall, coach for the Andrews University Gymnics.

The first Acrofest was held in 1991 at Andrews University. Under the leadership of Coach Robert Kalua, that first Acrofest drew 600 gymnasts and their coaches. By creating a non-competitive atmosphere, Coach Kalua helped establish opportunities for quality instruction and aimed for education and team development within the Seventh-day Adventist educational system.

During the three-day event, gymnasts have several opportunities to hone their skills. Workshops, such as Learning Pyramids and Human Video (using gymnastic skills to portray Biblical themes) are complemented by clinic stations, such as tumbling, which will offer gymnasts a chance to test-tumble on various types of tumbling floors. A unique opportunity this year is a circus station run by a circus fraternity from Illinois State University.

During Acrofest, the Seventh-day Adventist Gymnastics Association will convene with approximately 60 coaches expected to attend. Coach Lighthall is currently serving as president of the association. He was elected in July for a four-year term. Lighthall says, “We will be discussing and finalizing the mission, guidelines and bylaws of the Seventh-day Adventist Gymnastics Association.

On Saturday, Nov. 12, Matt Gamble, speaker for the self-supporting ministry Vagabond Servant, and an Andrews alum, will be giving the Sabbath sermon in Johnson Gym at 10 a.m.

The public is invited to attend the closing ceremony for Acrofest on Saturday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Johnson Gymnasium. All the teams will be participating in this visually captivating finale. Tickets are $10 each and children on laps are free. Tickets are available at the Pool Desk in Beaty Gym, the desk at Fitness & Exercise Studies located in the lower level of Johnson Gym or at the door. “Tickets will sell out so advance purchase is highly recommended,” says Lighthall.

The Andrews University Gymnics is a 30-member team of sports acrobats. They combine difficult balancing stunts, complex pyramid building involving multiple transitions, progressive ground tumbling, teeterboard routines, handstand pressing on block stands and mini-tramp routines in a one-hour program. In addition to their visually fantastic performances, they take pride in their anti-drug assemblies and religious programming.

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Dominique Wakefield has a passion for fitness. It's not only how she lives, but also how she works as she teaches others about the importance of being fit and healthy.

While she's always had an interest in sports and staying fit herself, her interest in helping others began a few years ago when she was a personal trainer and wellness consultant in Tennessee.

"When I started working with those who are obese and overweight, I developed a real passion for helping people make lifestyle changes," she said. "I felt it was really my calling."

Although she's now working primarily with students, she's also concerned about obesity and inactivity trends throughout society.

"We as a country have a real problem with poor lifestyle habits," she said. "We're sedentary and have poor diets. The obesity rates have tripled since the 1980s.

"Years ago, people grew their own food and were outside a lot. Now, many jobs involve sitting - as does all the studying students do."

She traces her own interest in fitness to her childhood and youth growing up in Germany. Her family was into sports and physical activity, whether it was tennis, swimming, biking, hiking or other sports. She took up tennis seriously when she was 12 or 13 and continued playing when she came to the United States as a foreign exchange student at age 17.

Wakefield ended up staying in the states, earning undergraduate and graduate degrees and getting married. She has been at Andrews as the director of fitness and exercise studies in the Department of Nutrition & Wellness since 2008, and was recently named one of 11 "Personal Trainers to Watch" nationally by the American Council on Exercise and Life Fitness.

In her view, fitness is not only about starting an exercise regimen but also about making lifestyle changes that help people deal with a variety of chronic health problems ranging from high blood pressure and high cholesterol to arthritis and diabetes.

Being just a little bit active improves quality of life and allows people to reap a variety of benefits, such as reducing risk of heart disease and certain types of cancer, as well as increasing bone density and strengthening the heart and lungs.

Working to become physically fit also helps relieve symptoms of depression and anxiety, reduces stress, helps with weight loss, boosts mood, improves sleep, increases energy levels and helps prevent lower back pain, she said.

She said most people don't understand that there are five components of fitness: cardio-respiratory endurance, muscular strength, muscular endurance, flexibility, and body composition that's a balance of fat and muscle.

"All five areas must be addressed in order to become physically fit," she said.

"In general, being fit means your body can meet the demands of daily life without feeling exhausted and being able to meet emergency situations.

"Physical fitness is acquired through regular exercise and physical activity. The two terms differ in that exercise is a planned, structured, intentional and repetitive movement to improve physical fitness. Physical activity is any bodily movement that you perform on a daily basis. Increasing both elements intentionally can contribute to physical fitness."

Wakefield said her motto has always been that doing something is better than doing nothing. She also stresses that there's no pill or quick fix that will make people fit, and that the idea of "no pain, no gain" is a myth.

"The bottom line is that people should not experience pain," she said. "There may be an initial uncomfortable feeling as the body accustoms itself to new movements."

She said other exercise and fitness myths are that women who lift weight will get bulky muscles, that spot reducing is possible, that exercise requires a hefty time commitment and that people who exercise can eat whatever they want.

Wakefield also isn't fond of most fitness trends.

"Personally, I am not a supporter of all new programs," she said. "Some are good, and some are not so good. As a fitness professional, I am always concerned with the effectiveness, appropriateness and safety of all exercises and programs, which is why I am typically quite critical with new programs.

"But overall, I am happy to hear if people find an enjoyable program that helps them to move."
BERRIEN SPRINGS - How do you go from being a couch potato to being fit? Andrews University fitness expert Dominique Wakefield has some ideas.

Unfortunately, she said, some people think they're getting enough exercise and are fit if they can walk from the parking lot to the store. For them, it's necessary to begin with baby steps.

Most people don't need to see a doctor before starting mild to moderate physical activity. But it's a good idea if they've been sedentary for a long time, are older than 35 to 40, and have one or more risk factors such as obesity, high blood pressure and diabetes.

Wakefield does recommend seeing a personal trainer for a comprehensive fitness program. Trainers can do initial assessments, set goals, design a program and provide encouragement and motivation.

But she said there are plenty of activities people can do without joining a gym.

"The first thing I would recommend is to start walking," she said. "If you have done nothing but usually sitting at work and at home, walking is the bottom-line activity that I would recommend."

She suggests people start walking outside for 10 to 30 minutes and then try to increase the intensity by walking faster and longer.

Bicycling is another option.

"Many people actually have bikes, but don't use them," she said. "It is also actually quite cheap to acquire a stand for the winter that you can set your bike into and train at home during the winter months."

Besides walking, jogging or biking, people should also incorporate other areas of fitness, including basic stretching and muscular endurance training. Even if people don't have weights, they can do simple calisthenics, using cans and water bottles to add resistance.

"Swimming is another great form of exercise, and many public pools are accessible for a minimal charge," she said.

Wakefield said a good source of information online is the American Council on Exercise and Life Fitness (ACE) webpage, www.acefitness.org. It has an exercise library, video tutorials, articles, research and more.

Whether it's exercise balls and resistance bands or elliptical machines, the lab offers Andrews students not only the opportunity to get fit, but also to learn how to teach fitness to others and become certified personal trainers and fitness instructors.

Dominique Wakefield, who is in charge of the lab, is the director of fitness and exercise studies at Andrews and assistant chair in the Department of Nutrition & Wellness.

Since her arrival in 2008, she has been given the task of revitalizing Andrews' physical education program. There is now a fitness and wellness concentration within the Department of Nutrition & Wellness. Students can minor in fitness education, as well as earn bachelor of science degrees in health and fitness or bachelor of health science degrees in wellness.

Students also can become certified through the American Council on Exercise (ACE) and Life Fitness as personal trainers and fitness instructors.

Wakefield's efforts also have included increasing the number of fitness opportunities for students and the community. Those opportunities include an annual fitness expo and fun run to inspire people to be fit, a Let's Move Day and working with Pioneer Memorial Church, which has its own health wellness ministry.

For her, being fit dovetails with her religious beliefs.

"I truly believe that helping others through lifestyle change and fitness is my calling and that our bodies have been wonderfully created by God," she said.

She's also proud of her recent honor as one of the top 11 "Personal Trainers to Watch" by ACE. Her husband, Keith, recently graduated from the seminary at Andrews. He is the university's women's soccer coach, and she is his assistant.

She received her undergraduate and master's degrees from California State University, Chico, and is working on her doctorate in health through the University of Bath in England.
Musician and singer Elisabeth von Trapp will be in line at an airport when she mentions her famous surname. The second party in the conversation will recognize that name, von Trapp, from the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical and movie "The Sound of Music."

Von Trapp, who performs her "Bach to Broadway, Schubert to Sting" concert Nov. 13 at Andrews University, is the granddaughter of Georg von Trapp and the step-granddaughter of Maria von Trapp.

"The Sound of Music" tells the story of the von Trapp family and the international fame that they received for singing.

The musical also tells the story of how Maria von Trapp came into the family's life, and why Georg von Trapp decided to leave Austria with his family rather than join the Nazi party.

The songs from "The Sound of Music" became pop music standards that have been covered by many artists.

The von Trapp saga is true, and forms part of Elisabeth von Trapp's musical legacy.

"A journalist who interviewed me said that it's impossible to hear the name von Trapp without thinking of 'The Sound of Music,' " she says. "(The reporter) wanted to know if I saw it as a blessing or a curse."

Von Trapp says she can't think of the musical legacy that she received from her grandparents, her father and his siblings as a curse. But the story made popular by "The Sound of Music" contains more than its share of myth, she notes.

The guitarist and singer says that the Broadway and Hollywood writers used their creative license even as they adhered to the facts of the von Trapp saga.
"There are a number of things that are quite different," she says. "The music that is used in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is one thing that (her family members) always responded to."

She notes that the von Trapp family's concert set list included choral numbers by composers such as Mozart and Bach.

Von Trapp also says that the musical and film condensed the timeline. The von Trapps left Austria in 1938 -- 11 years after Georg and Maria von Trapp got married.

Still, von Trapp says that she appreciates "The Sound of Music," books such as Maria von Trapp's "The Story of the Trapp Family Singers" and the German movies "The Trapp Family" and "The Trapp Family in America" for sharing the story of the family's courageous decision to leave Austria and eventually settle in America.

Georg von Trapp died in 1947, but the family continued touring and singing until 1957 -- when Elisabeth von Trapp was 3 years old.

Von Trapp says that she has been influenced by her family's music, and although von Trapp's own musical career might be overshadowed by her family, as well as the musical and film, she says that her response is not to run from her family's history. Instead, she finds ways to fuse that history with her own musical style.

"I grew up in the 1960s and 1970s, and my family stopped performing in the 1950s, when the music really started to change," she says.

Von Trapp is a classically trained musician, but she is also a guitar player who came of age musically in the 1960s, when artists such as Bob Dylan and Joni Mitchell were bringing folk and other forms of acoustic music to the forefront.

She says that some of her musical influences included those artists.

That didn't always go over well in the von Trapp family home in Vermont. Her father, Werner, was not a fan of "modern" music, von Trapp says.

"My father had a rule that whenever he walked into the house, there had to be classical music playing," she says.

Still, he took an interest in his daughter's musical pursuits. Von Trapp says that she showed her father her compositions, and he was always encouraging.

"He was thrilled that I was writing my own music," she says. "Because he really loved composing."

Berrien Springs, Mich.—On Friday, Oct. 14, 2011, at the 26th annual Club Industry Show in Chicago, Dominique Wakefield, director of fitness and exercise studies at Andrews University, assistant chair of the Department of Nutrition & Wellness and assistant professor in that department, was named one of ten “Personal Trainers to Watch” by the American Council on Exercise (ACE) and Life Fitness.

After a six-month nationwide competition, ACE and Life Fitness, the leading manufacturer of commercial fitness equipment, named ten finalists along with the one “Top Personal Trainer to Watch” from a pool of 300 nominees, taken from over 260,000 fitness professionals in the U.S. Wakefield, one of the finalists, was recognized for her “significant commitment to fitness and in helping their clients achieve a lasting lifestyle change,” said Chris Clawson, president of Life Fitness. A video of all the finalists is on YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=C81jJlyw3VU.

Wakefield has initiated a number of fitness initiatives on campus since arriving in 2008, including the FitZone fitness lab, a Bachelor of Science in Health & Fitness, a Bachelor of Health Science in Wellness and a minor in Fitness Education; programs to certify students as personal trainers or group fitness instructors, the annual Fitness Expo, and has helped to encourage an atmosphere of fitness across campus. She is also instrumental in Pioneer Memorial Church’s Health and Wellness Ministries, and assisted with the organization of the first Let’s Move Day. She holds a leadership role in the faculty fitness initiative AHealthyU, is an ACE-certified personal trainer, and is assistant coach for the Lady Cardinals soccer team.

Wakefield was nominated for her dedication to physical fitness and motivating the Andrews campus to achievetheir God-given goal. She says, “God has created us so wonderfully and He has created our bodies to be active and to move! Caring for the body is an essential part of our beliefs in the Seventh-day Adventist Church, but physical fitness has not received nearly as much focus and attention as have other parts of the health message. Our community is struggling with the same issues and diseases that the rest of America is dealing with and physical fitness will provide many solutions to these problems!”

Berrien County Diaper Drive
Please join the University Medical Center and the Berrien County Great Start Parent Coalition (and others, including the Village Church) in helping out with a county-wide Diaper Drive being held from October 30–November 30. The goal is to collect at least 15,000 diapers for children ages 0-5. Donations will go to local food banks, shelters and home visiting programs throughout Berrien County. Drop off your diaper donations to the University Medical Center, Lakeland Physical Therapy or South County ENT (both in the University Medical Center building) during office hours.

Here is a snapshot of the need:
- More than 1 in 4 children in Berrien County ages 0-5 lives in poverty
- Cost for diapers range from $75-100/month
- 36% of mothers living in poverty regularly run out of diapers for their child
- Food assistance programs (e.g. WIC, Food Stamps) do not cover diapers. About 20.9% of residents in Berrien County receive food assistance.
- Babies who remain in dirty diapers for prolonged periods are susceptible to diaper rash, infections and other health problems
- Babies who experience severe diaper rashes often cry more than babies without diaper rashes. Excessive crying coupled with the stress of living in need can lead to child abuse
- Babies who cry excessively are most likely to be victims of shaken baby syndrome

Please help in donating diapers throughout this month!

Harbor Habitat in Urgent Need of Volunteers!
There is an urgent need for volunteers, ages 16 and older, at Harbor Habitat! Harbor Habitat is a local division of Habitat for Humanity in Benton Harbor, helping families to get started on their new lives. Volunteers do not need to have any special skills – they only need to be willing, mobile and able to follow directions.

This particular project consists of helping a young family in a very uncomfortable living situation. They have been waiting over a year as Harbor Habitat secured the funds to build their home. Although the funds have been raised and met, there is a shortage of volunteers to help build the house at this time of the year. Fortunately, there is a dedicated group of retirees that go out every Thursday to build, but alone, it would take them until late spring to finish. In order to get the family into their home by Christmas, 8-10 volunteers are needed to come out on Tuesdays, Wednesday and Fridays for the next 6 weeks. The build days begin at 8 a.m. with devotions and end at 3 p.m.

If you feel the urge to make this project a priority, please share it with those around you and offer your services by contacting Jody at 269-925-9635.
