United Way Campaign at 56% of Goal
The program is now at $5,600 of a $10,000 goal, and is in need of more support.

Dear Colleagues:

We are in the midst of our annual support of United Way. The money we and other local institutions provide stays in the area and helps local agencies, schools and support systems meet needs involving families, single parents, children and others who have run into hard times. Some members of our own University family have over the years benefitted from United Way programs. For more information on United Way of Southwest Michigan, please visit http://www.uwsm.org/.

While your participation is completely voluntary, I do encourage you to participate again this year. Pledge forms were sent out three weeks ago and can be remitted to Dalry Payne in the Office of the President (0670). If you would like another form or have a question, feel free to contact Dalry, who has volunteered again this year to coordinate our United Way campaign.

Sincerely,

Niels-Erik Andreasen
President

VGPS Awarded AUSA Spirit Grant
The Village Green Preservation Society (VGPS) has been awarded an AUSA Spirit Grant for the 2011-2012 school year! The grant, totaling $1,200, will be used to purchase recycling bins for the Undergraduate Learning Center, which consists of Buller and Nethery Hall.

The AUSA Spirit Grant is an initiative spearheaded by AUSA President Andrew Moll to encourage clubs to create projects that will positively affect campus. The new recycling bins are anticipated to arrive before the end of the semester. Students, staff and faculty can expect to see posters and bulletins to raise awareness on proper recycling and trash disposal methods.

VGPS is a student-led group that has existed on campus since it was founded in 2007 by then-student Benjamin Oliver.

VGPS has procured recycling bins for various buildings on campus, including residence halls, the Administration Building, Bell Hall, Ruth Murdoch Elementary School, and the Center for Adventist Research.

The AUSA Spirit grant is the first grant awarded to VGPS that originates from the university. In previous years, VGPS has secured grant monies from other off-campus entities and organizations.

Athletes strengthen their faith at gymnastics event

Members of the Aerokhanas gym team practice in the Johnson Gymnasium at Andrews University in Berrien Springs Thursday getting ready for Acrofest. The Aerokhanas are from the Great Lakes Adventist Academy near Mt. Pleasant. John Madill / H-P staff

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Hundreds of gymnasts are gathered this week on the Andrews University campus for Acrofest, which brings together the top gymnasts from Seventh-day Adventist colleges, universities, high schools and middle schools in the United States and Canada.

For the athletes the event is not just about the jumps and moves they can practice and learn. It's more about working together and deepening their faith.

Andrews Gymnastics team member Bryan Mattson and former Andrews student Daphne Knecht can attest to that. Both have relied on the support of friends and gymnastic team members in their recent battles with cancer and a brain tumor, respectively.

Knecht is being treated for a brain tumor and is at Acrofest to be with her friends from Andrews and Southern University in Tennessee.
"I love Acrofest and wanted to be part of it," she said. "This is a blast. I love seeing everybody."

She said that while she's always loved gymnastics, it's the ministry side of the Acrofest program that keeps drawing her back.

Mattson is in his second year on the Andrews Gymnastics team, although he's attending Lake Michigan College now. He left Andrews last semester after being diagnosed with testicular cancer, but has been able to stay on the team.

"Having the team behind me really helped me get through," he said.

Like Knecht, he loves gymnastics and Acrofest lets him do all the flips and tumbling while learning what other teams are doing.

He describes the annual gathering as a "family reunion of all the teams."

This is the 20th year for the Acrofest celebration. The first Acrofest was held at Andrews University in 1991 and this is the fourth time it's been held there.

Andrews Gymnastics coach Christian Lighthall said the Acrofest gathering combines both the spiritual and the physical. Gymnastics teams practice together and learn from each other as well as have daily devotional and worship times.

"We want to maintain the spiritual focus in our sport but also become more skilled and be better athletes," he said.

Israel Falcon is the coach of the Akro-Elite team of high school students from Fajardo, Puerto Rico, many of whom got their first-ever glimpse of snow Thursday. He sees his team, as well as the overall Acrofest event, as being primarily motivational.

"I see it as a ministry to help out youth," he said. "Events like this show them what knowing Christ can do for them, how goals can be achieved if they work hard and how great it feels to achieve something. It's an awesome experience to see them smile."

He said being involved in gymnastics has helped his students who have issues ranging from Attention Deficit Disorder to obesity.

"We're not affiliated with any particular institution but offer a motivational program where we teach moral and Christian values and give them an organized structure in their lives," he said.

Victor Perez, 16, has been a member of that team for the last three months.

"This has a great opportunity to do things I don't normally do," he said. "It's helped me set goals and go beyond what I think I can do and go way farther than I think I can."

All 26 teams participating in Acrofest will gather together for one last performance in Andrews University's Johnson Gymnasium on Saturday at 8 p.m. It is open to the public. Tickets are $10 and children sitting on laps are admitted free.

Fitness is her calling

Andrews fitness director earning a national reputation

By DEBRA HAIT - H-P Correspondent
Published: Tuesday, November 8, 2011 1:06 PM EST

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Dominique Wakefield has a passion for fitness. It's not only how she lives, but also how she works as she teaches others about the importance of being fit and healthy.

While she's always had an interest in sports and staying fit herself, her interest in helping others began a few years ago when she was a personal trainer and wellness consultant in Tennessee.

"When I started working with those who are obese and overweight, I developed a real passion for helping people make lifestyle changes," she said. "I felt it was really my calling."

Although she's now working primarily with students, she's also concerned about obesity and inactivity trends throughout society.

"We as a country have a real problem with poor lifestyle habits," she said. "We're sedentary and have poor..."
diets. The obesity rates have tripled since the 1980s.

"Years ago, people grew their own food and were outside a lot. Now, many jobs involve sitting - as does all the studying students do."

She traces her own interest in fitness to her childhood and youth growing up in Germany. Her family was into sports and physical activity, whether it was tennis, swimming, biking, hiking or other sports. She took up tennis seriously when she was 12 or 13 and continued playing when she came to the United States as a foreign exchange student at age 17.

Wakefield ended up staying in the states, earning undergraduate and graduate degrees and getting married. She has been at Andrews as the director of fitness and exercise studies in the Department of Nutrition & Wellness since 2008, and was recently named one of 11 "Personal Trainers to Watch" nationally by the American Council on Exercise and Life Fitness.

In her view, fitness is not only about starting an exercise regimen but also about making lifestyle changes that help people deal with a variety of chronic health problems ranging from high blood pressure and high cholesterol to arthritis and diabetes.

Being just a little bit active improves quality of life and allows people to reap a variety of benefits, such as reducing risk of heart disease and certain types of cancer, as well as increasing bone density and strengthening the heart and lungs.

Working to become physically fit also helps relieve symptoms of depression and anxiety, reduces stress, helps with weight loss, boosts mood, improves sleep, increases energy levels and helps prevent lower back pain, she said.

She said most people don't understand that there are five components of fitness: cardio-respiratory endurance, muscular strength, muscular endurance, flexibility, and body composition that's a balance of fat and muscle.

"All five areas must be addressed in order to become physically fit," she said.

"In general, being fit means your body can meet the demands of daily life without feeling exhausted and being able to meet emergency situations.

"Physical fitness is acquired through regular exercise and physical activity. The two terms differ in that exercise is a planned, structured, intentional and repetitive movement to improve physical fitness. Physical activity is any bodily movement that you perform on a daily basis. Increasing both elements intentionally can contribute to physical fitness."

Wakefield said her motto has always been that doing something is better than doing nothing. She also stresses that there's no pill or quick fix that will make people fit, and that the idea of "no pain, no gain" is a myth.

"The bottom line is that people should not experience pain," she said. "There may be an initial uncomfortable feeling as the body accustoms itself to new movements."

She said other exercise and fitness myths are that women who lift weight will get bulky muscles, that spot reducing is possible, that exercise requires a hefty time commitment and that people who exercise can eat whatever they want.

Wakefield also isn't fond of most fitness trends.

"Personally, I am not a supporter of all new programs," she said. "Some are good, and some are not so good. As a fitness professional, I am always concerned with the effectiveness, appropriateness and safety of all exercises and programs, which is why I am typically quite critical with new programs.

"But overall, I am happy to hear if people find an enjoyable program that helps them to move."
Advice for couch potatoes

By DEBRA HIGHT - H-P Correspondent

Published: Tuesday, November 8, 2011 1:06 PM EST

BERRIEN SPRINGS - How do you go from being a couch potato to being fit? Andrews University fitness expert Dominique Wakefield has some ideas.

Unfortunately, she said, some people think they're getting enough exercise and are fit if they can walk from the parking lot to the store. For them, it's necessary to begin with baby steps.

Most people don't need to see a doctor before starting mild to moderate physical activity. But it's a good idea if they've been sedentary for a long time, are older than 35 to 40, and have one or more risk factors such as obesity, high blood pressure and diabetes.

Wakefield does recommend seeing a personal trainer for a comprehensive fitness program. Trainers can do initial assessments, set goals, design a program and provide encouragement and motivation.

But she said there are plenty of activities people can do without joining a gym.

"The first thing I would recommend is to start walking," she said. "If you have done nothing but usually sitting at work and at home, walking is the bottom-line activity that I would recommend."

She suggests people start walking outside for 10 to 30 minutes and then try to increase the intensity by walking faster and longer.

Bicycling is another option.

"Many people actually have bikes, but don't use them," she said. "It is also actually quite cheap to acquire a stand for the winter that you can set your bike into and train at home during the winter months."

Besides walking, jogging or biking, people should also incorporate other areas of fitness, including basic stretching and muscular endurance training. Even if people don't have weights, they can do simple calisthenics, using cans and water bottles to add resistance.

"Swimming is another great form of exercise, and many public pools are accessible for a minimal charge," she said.

Wakefield said a good source of information online is the American Council on Exercise and Life Fitness (ACE) webpage, www.acefitness.org. It has an exercise library, video tutorials, articles, research and more.
BERRIEN SPRINGS - Walk inside the FitZone fitness lab in a small building next to Marsh Hall on the Andrews University campus and you'll see a compact area outfitted with some of the latest fitness equipment.

Whether it's exercise balls and resistance bands or elliptical machines, the lab offers Andrews students not only the opportunity to get fit, but also to learn how to teach fitness to others and become certified personal trainers and fitness instructors.

Dominique Wakefield, who is in charge of the lab, is the director of fitness and exercise studies at Andrews and assistant chair in the Department of Nutrition & Wellness.

Since her arrival in 2008, she has been given the task of revitalizing Andrews' physical education program. There is now a fitness and wellness concentration within the Department of Nutrition & Wellness. Students can minor in fitness education, as well as earn bachelor of science degrees in health and fitness or bachelor of health science degrees in wellness.

Students also can become certified through the American Council on Exercise (ACE) and Life Fitness as personal trainers and fitness instructors.

Wakefield's efforts also have included increasing the number of fitness opportunities for students and the community. Those opportunities include an annual fitness expo and fun run to inspire people to be fit, a Let's Move Day and working with Pioneer Memorial Church, which has its own health wellness ministry.

For her, being fit dovetails with her religious beliefs.

"I truly believe that helping others through lifestyle change and fitness is my calling and that our bodies have been wonderfully created by God," she said.

She's also proud of her recent honor as one of the top 11 "Personal Trainers to Watch" by ACE. Her husband, Keith, recently graduated from the seminary at Andrews. He is the university's women's soccer coach, and she is his assistant.

She received her undergraduate and master's degrees from California State University, Chico, and is working on her doctorate in health through the University of Bath in England.

Berrien County Diaper Drive

Please join the University Medical Center and the Berrien County Great Start Parent Coalition (and others, including the Village Church) in helping out with a county-wide Diaper Drive being held from October 30–November 30. The goal is to collect at least 15,000 diapers for children ages 0-5. Donations will go to local food banks, shelters and home visiting programs throughout Berrien County. Drop off your diaper donations to the University Medical Center, Lakeland Physical Therapy or South County ENT (both in the University Medical Center building) during office hours.

Here is a snapshot of the need:
- More than 1 in 4 children in Berrien County ages 0-5 lives in poverty
- Cost for diapers range from $75-100/month
- 36% of mothers living in poverty regularly run out of diapers for their child
- Food assistance programs (e.g., WIC, Food Stamps) do not cover diapers. About 20.9% of residents in Berrien County receive food assistance.
- Babies who remain in dirty diapers for prolonged periods are susceptible to diaper rash, infections and other health problems
- Babies who experience severe diaper rashes often cry more than babies without diaper rashes. Excessive crying coupled with the stress of living in need can lead to child abuse
- Babies who cry excessively are most likely to be victims of shaken baby syndrome

Please help in donating diapers throughout this month!

Harbor Habitat in Urgent Need of Volunteers!

There is an urgent need for volunteers, ages 16 and older, at Harbor Habitat! Harbor Habitat is a local division of Habitat for Humanity in Benton Harbor, helping families to get started on their new lives. Volunteers do not need to have any special skills – they only need to be willing, mobile and able to follow directions.

This particular project consists of helping a young family in a very uncomfortable living situation. They have been waiting over a year as Harbor Habitat secured the funds to build their home. Although the funds have been raised and met, there is a shortage of volunteers to help build the house at this time of the year. Fortunately, there is a dedicated group of retirees that go out every Thursday to build, but alone, it would take them until late spring to finish. In order to get the family into their home by Christmas, 8-10 volunteers are needed to come out on Tuesdays, Wednesday and Fridays for the next 6 weeks. The build days begin at 8 a.m. with devotions and end at 3 p.m.

If you feel the urge to make this project a priority, please share it with those around you and offer your services by contacting Jody at 269-925-9635.
