Introducing AU Alert: An Emergency Notification System
Andrews University has partnered with Rave Mobile Safety, the leader in mobile safety, to offer an emergency alert notification system called AU Alert. AU Alert delivers reliable emergency text and email messages to students, staff and faculty any time an emergency notification is needed on campus.

AU Alert notices are intended only for situations involving imminent danger to health or human safety. These may include severe weather alerts, winter weather class cancellations, hostile threats, utility failure, major road closings or fire, among others.

Every Andrews’ student, staff and faculty has a self-service account in the University’s AU Alert system. You can configure your account to sign up for our AU Alert service. Then, when Andrews University issues an AU Alert notice, it will be sent to you via the phone (text) and/or email contact information you have provided.

While AU Alert is intended to enhance safety for the campus community, it does not represent a guarantee. Reliability depends on human factors such as accuracy and timeliness of information, and on technical factors such as cell phone network coverage, in-bound traffic on telephone landlines, and availability of power to the University server and your computer. Students, faculty and staff are encouraged to take advantage of the AU Alert service as a prudent measure while continuing to exercise normal attention to personal and community safety.

AU Alert sends notices at no charge; however, your provider’s standard charges will apply for carrying text messages sent by AU Alert. AU Alert is supported on all U.S. mobile carriers. If you switch carriers, you will...
Aviation Receives Airplane Donation

It was a windy afternoon on March 27 when a Cessna Sky Master 337C flew into its new home at the Andrews Airpark. Arriving from Goshen, Ind., it was greeted by a group of very excited students, faculty and staff. The high-performance plane was a donation from John Hull, co-owner of Emergency Radio Service, Inc., in Ligonier, Ind.

Weeks ago, James Doran, assistant professor of aviation and chief flight instructor, received a call from a friend associated with Emergency Radio Service, Inc. Ted Selman of Goshen Airport had completed some advanced flight training at Andrews University and became acquainted with Doran. He also knew of Emergency Radio Service’s interest in selling their plane and contacted Doran to see if Andrews University might be interested in the donation. The answer was a resounding “yes.” Selman then suggested to Hull that the company should consider donating the plane to the University and Hull agreed.

The six-person plane, recently appraised for more than $150,000, is currently being used to train students in the aviation maintenance program. The students will be helping restore the plane’s interior and complete the required inspection to return it to approved flight status.

In recent years, the Department of Aviation has received several aircraft donations from generous friends and supporters. "The Department of Aviation has a real need to update the airplanes used within our growing program’s flight training fleet, as well as the aviation maintenance program," says Dina Simmons, chair of the Department of Aviation and Airpark manager. “Since these aircraft are costly training aids and our budget is limited for upgrades, we have gone more and more to seeking donations to meet our needs whenever possible.”

Some of the planes the department has received over the past few years have gone straight into the air as flight trainers; others are being used in the aviation maintenance program or being restored by students and staff.

Andrews University offers produce subscription
By DEBRA HIGHT - H-P Correspondent
Published: Monday, April 23, 2012 1:05 PM EDT

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Mail and newspapers will get fruitful company at select Southwest Michigan front doors this year.

Andrews University students will deliver fresh produce through a subscription service within 10 miles of campus.

The new program is an extension of the student gardens and produce stand next to the Neighbor-to-Neighbor building on Michigan 139.

Andrews agriculture professor Garth Woodruff said the program benefits students by providing summer employment. Community members get to buy locally-grown food. He said a number of students have worked in the gardens and other venues to pay their way through college.

The program has been recognized by the Community Supported Agriculture organization, which supports local agriculture.

"Right now, the CSA movement is hugely popular," he said. "There seems to be a fairly active trend toward people wanting to support local agricultural efforts. There's a huge interest in local agriculture."

The subscriptions let people buy the same food Andrews has been supplying to area restaurants for the last several years, he said. The Andrews gardens supply Andrews food service through the growing season.

The subscription program will run for 20 weeks during the growing season and harvest. It has 60 slots for the community. Free delivery is available for people within a 10-mile radius of campus, or people can pick up produce at the stand.

He said information about the subscription program was first distributed to people last week, and some have already signed up. People interested in being part of the subscription program can visit the website www.augardens.com/csa-registration, call 471-6006 or email info@augardens.com.

The cost is $600 for a full share of produce, which amounts to about a half a bushel each week for 20 weeks or $400 for a half-share, which amounts to about a third of a bushel each week. Each basket includes at least six types of fresh produce.

The Andrews gardens include peach and apple orchards, 5 acres of vegetables, thousands of feet of raspberries and blackberries and three greenhouses. Most of the gardens are around the Andrews Airpark.

Woodruff said produce is grown by natural methods, and the university is working to receive organic certification.

Andrews already has a successful dairy operation and has hundreds of acres in grain production.
Andrews University Student Gardens Starting Home Produce Delivery

Mike Arney Reporting
Imagine getting a shipment at your house every week during the summer filled with fresh produce. Andrews University is making that a reality for 60 households this summer under their Community Supported Agriculture program. Garth Woodruff says they will continue to operate the stand at the Berrien Springs university but have decided to branch out with the home delivery.

Listen:

The farm is in its first year of working toward USDA organic certification. A farm has to operate for three years organically to earn that label. Two options are available for the produce delivery - a half-bushel a week for a total of 600-dollars and a third-bushel a week for 400-dollars. Woodruff says every delivery will contain at least six different varieties of produce that are fresh and in-season. To sign up, visit www.augardens.com/csa-registration or call 269-471-6006. You can also email them at info@augardens.com to get signed up.
Banish bureaucracy, leadership strategist says
By DEBRA HAIGHT - H-P Correspondent
Published: Sunday, April 15, 2012 1:04 PM EDT

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Gary Hamel, a world-renowned business management and strategy expert, said companies and organizations need to take a different approach when it comes to management and leadership, discarding bureaucracy for innovation, creativity and a respect for values and principles.

"I've never found anyone who is a booster of bureaucracy, but no one has had an alternative," Hamel said Friday at Andrews University, his alma mater. "Bureaucracy is universal. You find it in a Chinese prison or a nonprofit organization. Most of the attacks on bureaucracy over the years have been on the margins. Now is the time to dethrone bureaucracy."

Hamel is a Berrien Springs native and was back for a number of presentations sponsored by Andrews University, Lakeland HealthCare and Whirlpool Corp. He is a frequent contributor to the Wall Street Journal, CNBC and CNN.

His father, Paul, was the longtime chairman of the Andrews University music department, and his brothers, identical twins Loren and Lowell, are area doctors. Loren Hamel is the chief executive officer of Lakeland HealthCare.

In introducing his brother, Loren Hamel described him as both the "sweetest brother" and one of the "world's most influential thinkers."

Hamel's latest book is "What Matters Now: How to Win in a World of Relentless Change, Ferocious Competition and Unstoppable Innovation." His premise is that people and businesses have gotten away from stewardship values like fealty, charity, prudence, accountability and equity.

Hamel covered several management topics Friday morning at the Howard Performing Arts Center before hundreds of Andrews, Lakeland and Whirlpool employees.

A central focus through the talk was the need to get away from traditional ideas about control.

"What is the ideology of management?" Hamel asked. "The number one synonym for management is control. ... The organizational chart was invented as a means of control. Bureaucracy was once said to be the most rational means of carrying out control over people, but today the people who are successful are those who favor innovation."

Hamel said too many companies end up being run like a Third World country where only a coup will bring about change.

"Most companies and organizations are not very adaptable," he said. "In the last few decades, it has been the newcomers like Amazon, Google and Skype who have won. No more than one of 100 companies have made innovation a key core principle."

Companies he singled out for praise included W.L. Gore & Associates, which makes Gore-Tex products, and Morning Star Co., the world's leading tomato processor.
He said those two companies and others like them encourage employee creativity and innovation and are open to adapting.

He said there has been and always will be tension between freedom and control, but they don't have to cancel each other out.

"We have to embrace the fact of this paradox that there will always be tension but that doesn't mean that they're mutually exclusive," he said. "In scripture, Psalm 7:11 states that God is a righteous judge while Psalm 103:8 says He is merciful and slow to anger.

"Is God bipolar? No, He is both merciful and just, that's what makes the Judeo-Christian tradition different. Having one side of God by itself is like the Taliban versus Las Vegas."

He also spoke about democracy, freedom and the role the Internet plays.

"The biggest area of freedom today is the Web," he said. "People have the freedom to communicate, create, connect, get more information and challenge those in power. The Web is the ideal medium for creating markets outperform hierarchies."

He concluded his talk by challenging those in attendance to think outside of the box.

"If you're willing to think radically, you can be part of leading," he said. "This is the first time since the start of the industrial age that we have the ability to build organizations as human as people."
Canadian Brass polishes up a diverse mix

By Jeremy D. Bonfiglio

April 15--BERRIEN SPRINGS -- There may be a whole host of reasons why Canadian Brass doesn't fit the mold of the typical classical quintet, but trumpet player and Kalamazoo native Brandon Ridenour hones in on his personal favorite.

Near the end of their current live program, which they'll perform tonight at Andrews University's Howard Performing Arts Center, Canadian Brass has been playing a piece titled "Tribute to the Ballet."

"We play all the greatest hits of ballet, but we don't just play these hits, we try to dance the greatest dances as we play them," Ridenour says by telephone from his home in Brooklyn, N.Y. "So that's very..."

Obituary for Elly Helen Economou

Elly Helen Economou, 83, died Thursday, Feb. 9, at Lakeland Regional Medical Center in St. Joseph, Mich. A private burial service was held on Thursday, Feb. 16, at Rose Hill Cemetery in Berrien Springs, Mich. A memorial service in celebration of her life is scheduled for Saturday, March 24, at 4 p.m. in Pioneer Memorial Church on the campus of Andrews University.

She devoted her entire life to serving the Seventh-day Adventist Church and provided exceptional teaching at Andrews University full-time for 31 years and part-time for an additional two years after her retirement.

Elly Economou was born May 6, 1928, in Thessalonica, Greece, to George and Helen (Vrettopoulou) Economou. Most of her primary and secondary level studies were acquired at home under the guidance of private tutors. She spent six years in the Greek-French "Ecole d'Etudes Secondaires et Supérieures" of her native Thessalonica, where she graduated with special awards. She began higher education at the Anatolia Greek-American College and finished with honors. She came to the United States in 1962 and earned a BA in 1966 from Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif., majoring in biblical and modern languages.

For graduate studies she came to Andrews University, where she earned a master's degree in biblical languages in 1967. In 1972, she began post-graduate studies at the University of Strasbourg, France, where she deciphered a number of papyri dating back to approximately 300 B.C. for the National Library of Strasbourg. Before completing her PhD in December 1975, she also did research at the Ecumenical Institute of Bossey, Switzerland, and the archives of the World Council of Churches in Geneva. The title of her dissertation was "The Greek-Orthodox Church and her Relations with the Heterodox Churches." It was characterized as a monumental work by the jury, which unanimously voted for its publication as a valuable contribution to the Ecumenical Movement.

Elly was fluent in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish as well as modern Greek. She also had knowledge of 10 other modern and ancient languages. She began her teaching duties at Andrews as an instructor in the University’s modern languages department and joined the Department of Religion & Biblical Languages in 1976.

She was a member of many professional organizations, including the Society of Biblical Literature, the Adventist Language Teachers Association, the American Association of University Professors, the American Academy of Religion and the International Religious Liberty Association. Economou was listed in a number of publications including the Dictionary of International Biographies, World Who’s Who of Women in Education, World Wide Academy of Scholars, Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans, and Who’s Who of Women.

As a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church of her native Thessalonica, Elly served as an interpreter, youth leader, secretary, treasurer and writer. During her lifetime, Elly translated into Greek several religious books, including the Conflict of the Ages Series, and a number of other publications. She also wrote Beloved Enemy, her life story, published in 1968.

Elly was known for her exemplary generosity, evidenced by her legendary hospitality to thousands of students, community members and international guests over the years. She was an inspiring combination of the biblical Mary and Martha, known for both her love of learning and her joy of feeding guests in her home. She traveled extensively around the world, visiting 80 countries; observing and studying the cultural and historical backgrounds of other peoples, as well as their languages. She also enjoyed reading, writing, embroidery, photography and music.

Elly was predeceased by both of her parents. Her father George was an officer of the Greek Army and her mother Helen lived with her for many years at their home in Berrien Springs until her death in April 1994. Her brother Andreas, who still resided in Greece, died in October 2011. She is survived by her cousin Vasileios Papageorgiou, his wife Charikleia (Stergiou), and their son Dan Paris and daughter Evdoxia. A large host of former students, faculty and staff colleagues, and friends will miss her. “Rest well, until the resurrection morning.”

Berrien Springs Camera Club

Wednesday, May 2
7 p.m., Berrien Springs Public Library

The monthly meeting of the Berrien Springs Camera Club will be on Wednesday, May 2, at 7 p.m. in the Berrien Springs Public Library at Cass (Old 31) and Union. May is the month for the final competition of the year, when prints and digital submissions that were judged acceptable in competition during the current season will be reviewed again by three judges, who will select the top five projected images and prints, in the categories of Nature and Open (everything else).

The club's season runs from September to June, with four competitions each year. Besides two special topics for each competition, three other categories are always acceptable: Nature, Portraits, and Open. The special topics for this season were as follows: for October: On the Farm, and Railroading; for December: Storms, and Silhouettes; for February: Doors/Entryways, and Self-portraits; and for April: Flower Close-ups, and Fences.

Anyone is welcome to come and enjoy viewing the images, seeing how the club operates, and learning from the judging process. Refreshments will be served.

Treadmill for Grabs

I have a treadmill which I would like to give away for those who are interested in taking it. It works quite fine and still is very useful for exercising.

If you are interested, please contact me at waynemorris75@gmail.com or 269-471-6918.

CHOOSE FROM THE FOLLOWING TRACKS:

Basic Guitar  (3 Modules) A modern approach ideal for all beginning guitarists. Technique and reading skills are developed through solo and duet arrangements carefully graduated assignments. Also includes an introduction to chord playing. If all three modules are completed the student will have acquired a solid foundation for more advanced studies in the guitar. An entry-level classical or nylon-string guitar is needed.

Classical  (Basic Guitar II required) Designed for students that already have some experience playing the guitar. It delves directly into traditional classical guitar music which requires a long-term commitment of time and effort. Upon completion of all modules students will have acquired intermediate skills. An entry-level classical or nylon-string guitar is needed.

Flamenco  (Basic Guitar II required) Designed for students that already have some experience playing the guitar. Flamenco music requires much time, effort and long-term commitment. Flamenco introduces the student to the art of improvisation. An entry-level flamenco or nylon-string guitar is needed.

Jazz  (Basic Guitar II required) Born and developed in the United States, learning Jazz guitar is quite different from Flamenco and Classical. Students are required to memorize hundreds of altered chords, develop soloing techniques playing single line melodies and chords up to five inversions. An entry-level hollow or solid body guitar with amplification is needed. Steel-string acoustics are also suitable.

Electric  (Basic Guitar II required) A contemporary approach ideal for learning to play the electric guitar. Student must have a good grasp of basic guitar technique and sight-reading ability. The course focuses on the distinctive challenges the electric guitar presents to the modern musician. An entry-level hollow or solid body guitar with amplification is needed.
