Memorandum to Graduating Students

MEMORANDUM

Date: 25 April 2012
To: Graduates and Faculty
From: AU Grand Marshal
Re: Important Announcements

We're pleased to announce this year's senior class has the largest number of graduates in years with 324 seniors and we are proud to celebrate their accomplishments. However, this larger number has put additional strain on the limited seating in Pioneer Memorial Church for the 11:30 a.m. undergraduate commencement service. In a proactive attempt to ensure four (4) tickets for as many seniors as possible, the decision has been made to utilize the platform seating area for graduates. Faculty will march as usual, but when they reach the front they will be ushered to reserved seating in the PMC Youth Chapel. At the end of Commencement, faculty will rejoin the recessional in the normal line of march.

Note to ALL Graduates: Please place a high priority on attending the graduation rehearsal beginning precisely at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 4, 2012, in PMC. Following the graduation rehearsal we will take a group photo around the J.N. Andrews sculpture and then be treated to gelato and biscotti thanks to the Office of Integrated Marketing & Communication and the Office of the President.

Note to Undergraduate Students: Commencement seating tickets will be available for pickup beginning Monday, April 30, in the Office of Academic Records. Please take only the tickets you need up to the maximum of four (4).

Note to Graduate Students: We are not anticipating any additional limitations to seating for the 8:30 a.m. graduate commencement service. Those participating in the graduate commencement service can pick up their tickets, up to six (6), beginning Monday, April 30, in the Office of Academic Records.

In addition, both the graduate and undergraduate services will be streamed live for those unable to attend. The streaming link is http://www.andrews.edu/graduation. For those without tickets, overflow seating with large screen video and audio is available for both services in the PMC Youth Chapel, Seminary Chapel and Newbold Auditorium in Buller Hall.

It appears undergraduate senior classes in upcoming years will pose the same seating challenges. Discussions have begun with members of the President's Cabinet as to how the University would divide up the schools and move to three commencement services each spring. Your input on how that would best be accomplished is welcomed.

Waldensian Class Promo

Travel to the ancient home of the Waldenses in the Piedmonts of Northern Italy in June! Persons who wish to take this 3 credit class will need to contact Professor Kathleen Demsky, Director Architecture Resource Center at 269-471-2418 or demskyk@andrews.edu. All costs for the trip are covered by registration for RELG 360-041 (the same cost as a 3 credit class on AU campus plus a $250.00 travel fee).

Held on site in the Piedmonts of Italy. The purpose for the study of this topic is to bring to the student not only the historical and spiritual perspective, but also a personal experience of faith. Throughout this journey, the student is challenged to assess his or her own spiritual development and courage throughout life. In the Piedmonts we journey through time, walking the sacred sites–gaining deeper insights into the historical aspects and applying them to personal spiritual growth along with a love of Biblical truth, and an unflinching courage to stand–whatever the cost.

There are a few places still open for the Waldensian Class and they will be awarded on a first-come basis.

Featured Speakers

Don Jernigan, president of Adventist Health System, will speak at both the graduate and undergraduate commencement services at 8:30 and 11:30 a.m., respectively. Jernigan's address to the graduates is titled, "The Life Worthy."

Jernigan is president and chief executive officer of Adventist Health System, the largest Protestant not-for-profit healthcare system in the United States. Prior to his 2006 appointment to his current position, Jernigan served as president/CEO of Florida Hospital in Orlando since 1999 and had served Adventist Health System as its executive vice president since 1992. He has also served as president of two other Adventist Health System hospitals, including Tennessee Christian Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn. (1987–1992), and Metroplex Hospital in Killeen, Texas (1983–1985). Jernigan holds a Bachelor of Science in chemistry from the University of Texas-Arlington and a PhD in physical chemistry from Baylor University. He has served in higher education in the positions of professor, chemistry department chairman, vice president for academic affairs and executive vice president. Jernigan also served on active duty as an officer in the United States Navy.

G.T. Ng is the executive secretary of the General Conference, a position he has held since the 2010 General Conference Session. Previously, Ng worked as an associate secretary for the world church, where he oversaw the church’s Northern Asia-Pacific, Southern Asia and Trans-European divisions. Ng’s denominational service began in the 1970s in Cambodia, where ministry in the war-torn country first kindled his enthusiasm for mission. Shortly before Phnom Penh fell to Khmer Rouge forces, Ng and his wife, Ivy, were evacuated from Cambodia. Later, Ng served in Thailand, Malaysia and his native Singapore, where he held several positions, including pastor, health educator and regional department director. For much of the 1990s, Ng served as professor and dean of the Theological Seminary in the Adventist International Institute of Advanced Studies (AIIS) in the Philippines. In 2000, Ng became the executive secretary of the church’s Southern Asia-Pacific Division, a position he held until 2006. The following year Ng moved to the Washington, D.C. area to serve as a world church associate secretary at the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Ng holds a bachelor’s degree from Southeast Asia Union College in Singapore; a master’s degree from the Adventist Theological Seminary in the Philippines and a PhD from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich.

Honorary Degree Recipients
Leona Running and Ismael Castillo Osuna will be receiving honorary degrees at the commencement services. Leona Running, professor of Biblical languages, emeritus, will receive the Doctor of Humane Letters for her work promoting women in academia and in the ministry. Running graduated from Emmanuel Missionary College in 1937 with a bachelor’s degree. She went on to earn a Master’s in Greek and Hebrew from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in 1955, and a PhD in Semitic languages from Johns Hopkins University in 1964. When the Seminary was moved from Washington, D.C., to Berrien Springs in 1960, Running came with it, continuing on as a valuable and dedicated professor of biblical languages. At the time, the president of the Seminary was skeptical about a woman’s ability to teach male students, and male students’ willingness to be taught by a woman. She began teaching on a trial basis, but in 1956 she was granted regular status with tenure. Not content to sit on the sidelines and watch her students, Running was actively involved in their professional and personal development, and her guidance helped countless souls find their voice. Running’s strength and determination during a time when women were not always treated as equals with men, even within the church, were an inspiration to many.

Ismael Castillo Osuna, president of Montemorelos University in Nuevo Leon, Mexico, will receive the Doctor of Pedagogy for his influence on developing Adventist education. Castillo grew up in the Adventist educational system and earned a teacher education degree from Montemorelos Normal School, a Bachelor of Theology from Montemorelos University, and a Master of Arts in Religion from Andrews University. He worked as a district pastor in Mexico City in 1973, but soon recognized the importance of Adventist education and chose to commit his life to it. He became principal of Linda Vista Academy (now Linda Vista University) in Chiapas, Mexico, in 1978, and vice president for Student Services at Montemorelos University in 1985, before becoming president of the university in 1987. Under Castillo’s guidance, Montemorelos University has grown from offering only bachelors’ degrees to providing doctoral programs in a variety of subjects. Castillo has worked to internationalize Montemorelos University and has played a major role in accreditation efforts for the Adventist educational system. He has served as a member of numerous national accreditation groups. More significantly, Castillo has promoted programs to help students in financial need complete their education without loans or debt through the means of self-financing models.

Live streaming of Commencement is available via www.andrews.edu/graduation. The graduate Commencement service begins at 8:30 a.m. (EST) followed by the undergraduate service at 11:30 a.m. (EST).

Andrews University will host its first Health & Fitness Symposium: Connect & Inspire to Share, from May 10–13, 2012. The symposium will feature a variety of presentations and seminars as well as practical workshops and poster presentations.

"The symposium is a fantastic and unique opportunity for students, faculty and professionals to come together from all over the world to learn, share and inspire each other," says Dominique Wakefield, assistant professor and director of Fitness & Exercise Studies in the Department of Nutrition & Wellness.

Fittingly, the theme for the symposium is "Connect & Inspire to Share." "Many people in our society and community are facing many difficult situations because of their health and lifestyle," says Wakefield. "Many of the answers to the problems we face today can be found within health, fitness and wellness." The goal of the symposium is to educate people on key topics in health and fitness so they can spread those same concepts to those around them.

The symposium will feature an impressive lineup of keynote presenters, including Katia Reinert, RN, MSN, who will present, "The Epidemic of Obesity and Inactivity: What You Can Do" and Don Morgan, PhD, who will give a presentation titled, "Change Your Mind, Change Your Body, Change Your Life." Other keynote speakers include Monica Reed, MD; Ernie Medina Jr., DrPH; Fred Hardinge, DrPH, RD; and Erika Whitman, sport dietician for the University of Notre. Several seminars will also be available on a variety of important health and fitness topics ranging from "New Approaches to Strength Training" to "Physical Fitness and Aging: Keep on Moving."

Besides lectures, attendees can participate in practical workshops dealing with topics such as circuit training, eating vegan, the use of kettlebells, and running at your best. Poster presentations will be given on May 10–11 and there will be a vespers concert on Friday, May 11, from 8–9:30 p.m.

The symposium is open to the community, but registration is required. The registration fee for the full conference is $125 or $55 per day, $35 on Sunday. The student rate for the full conference is $50 or $25 per day, $15 on Sunday. To register for the symposium or see a complete program overview including specific locations, visit www.andrews.edu/shp/nutrition/symposium/. For more information, contact Dominique Wakefield at wakefield@andrews.edu.

Door-to-door fruit
Andrews University offers produce subscription
By DEBRA HIGHT - H-P Correspondent
Published: Monday, April 23, 2012 1:05 PM EDT

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Mail and newspapers will get fruitful company at select Southwest Michigan front doors this year.

Andrews University students will deliver fresh produce through a subscription service within 10 miles of campus.

The new program is an extension of the student gardens and produce stand next to the Neighbor-to-Neighbor building on Michigan 139.

Andrews agriculture professor Garth Woodruff said the program benefits students by providing summer employment. Community members get to buy locally-grown food. He said a number of students have worked in the gardens and other venues to pay their way through college.

The program has been recognized by the Community Supported Agriculture organization, which supports local agriculture.

"Right now, the CSA movement is hugely popular," he said. "There seems to be a fairly active trend toward people wanting to support local agricultural efforts. There's a huge interest in local agriculture."

The subscriptions let people buy the same food Andrews has been supplying to area restaurants for the last several years, he said. The Andrews gardens supply Andrews food service through the growing season.

The subscription program will run for 20 weeks during the growing season and harvest. It has 60 slots for the community. Free delivery is available for people within a 10-mile radius of campus, or people can pick up produce at the stand.

He said information about the subscription program was first distributed to people last week, and some have already signed up. People interested in being part of the subscription program can visit the website www.augardens.com/csa-registration, call 471-6006 or email info@augardens.com.

The cost is $600 for a full share of produce, which amounts to about a half a bushel each week for 20 weeks or $400 for a half-share, which amounts to about a third of a bushel each week. Each basket includes at least six types of fresh produce.

The Andrews gardens include peach and apple orchards, 5 acres of vegetables, thousands of feet of raspberries and blackberries and three greenhouses. Most of the gardens are around the Andrews Airpark.

Woodruff said produce is grown by natural methods, and the university is working to receive organic certification.

Andrews already has a successful dairy operation and has hundreds of acres in grain production.
Andrews University Student Gardens Starting Home Produce Delivery

Mike Arney Reporting

Imagine getting a shipment at your house every week during the summer filled with fresh produce. Andrews University is making that a reality for 60 households this summer under their Community Supported Agriculture program. Garth Woodruff says they will continue to operate the stand at the Berrien Springs university but have decided to branch out with the home delivery.

The farm is in its first year of working toward USDA organic certification. A farm has to operate for three years organically to earn that label. Two options are available for the produce delivery - a half-bushel a week for a total of 600-dollars and a third-bushel a week for 400-dollars. Woodruff says every delivery will contain at least six different varieties of produce that are fresh and in-season. To sign up, visit www.augardens.com/csa-registration or call 269-471-6006. You can also email them at info@augardens.com to get signed up.

She devoted her entire life to serving the Seventh-day Adventist Church and provided exceptional teaching at Andrews University full-time for 31 years and part-time for an additional two years after her retirement.

Elly Economou was born May 6, 1928, in Thessalonica, Greece, to George and Helen (Vrettopoulou) Economou. Seminary student for hire

I am new to the Berrien area and will be starting classes as a seminary student May 14th. Sadly, the job I have been able to acquire does not start until May 13th, so I am sort of dead in the water financially between now and the 13th!

As such, I would like to make myself available to anyone who needs any help with any of the following:

- moving
- babysitting
- troubleshooting with computers
- grocery shopping/personal caretaking
- dogwatching/walking
- yard work
- heavy lifting
- general repair work

If I can be of help to you in any way, I’d be happy to do what I can if you can pay me at least enough for lunch for my wife and me.

Thanks for your consideration, and I look forward to meeting you.

God bless,

David
