Photo of the Week: This year, summertime visitors to St. Joseph, Mich., will discover a treasure trove of art dotting the streets of the downtown area as part of this year’s public art display: Beached Pirates Arrt in St. Joseph. Located on Broad Street in between State Street and Lake Boulevard stands a dolphin, titled, ‘Swimming in a Sea of Diversity’ by artist Nicholas J. Jones and sponsored by Andrews University. Jones is an Andrews alum and a current staff member in the Andrews University Bookstore. Jones chose flags as a theme and collage was his method. It took him approximately 75-80 hours and about 3,500 flag stickers to collage the dolphin. ‘Beached Pirates Arrt in St. Joseph’ will remain on display through Oct. 1, 2012. For more information about the display, as well as a map of where the sculptures are located, visit www.stjosephpublicart.com. (Photo by IMC photographer Darren Heslop)

Berrien Springs woman crosses item off milking bucket list for 104th birthday

Luella Allen wanted to milk a cow to celebrate

By LOU MUMFORD

South Bend Tribune

4:02 PM EDT, May 15, 2012

BERRIEN SPRINGS -- Once a farm girl, always a farm girl.

Yes, Luella Jensen, known as Luella Allen when she entered the world in 1908 -- Theodore Roosevelt occupied the White House -- grew up on a farm in central New York. She took a liking to life on a farm, or so it seems to those who look after her in her current home at Berrien Center's Lakeland Continuing Care Center.

Officials at the center pointed out Jensen's sole wish for her 104th birthday this week -- technically, it's Friday -- was to milk a cow just as she had in her younger days. It was a desire she seemingly couldn't let go of, said Kristina Palmisano, a nurse's aide at the center.

"She's wanted to do it for a long time. When she gets up in the morning, she says, 'I've got to go milk the cows,'" Palmisano said.

So, on Tuesday, she did. Well, actually she didn't, but at least she came close. Pushed in her wheelchair into the dairy barn at Andrews University -- yes, the university has a dairy barn -- Jensen rose to her feet and, with assistance, received an up close view of one of the barn's many occupants.

Milking it, however, was a little beyond her reach.

"I'm falling," she said, moments before her daughter, Lou Ellis, of Perrysburg, Ohio, and grandson, St. Joseph resident Jim Ellis, lowered her back into her chair.

Still, it's conceivable that, in her mind, she indeed managed to extract a few squirts. Perhaps she might have had the trip to the university's dairy operation taken place, say, 10 or 20 years ago.

After all, Lou Ellis said, Jensen was still performing somersaults "for the old folks" when she lived at Timberridge Manor in Berrien Springs. She was in her 80s at the time. And Ellis' husband, Gary, said she was so full of energy in her 70s when she lived with him and his wife in Berrien Springs that he was forced to reduce the size of her 150-foot garden to 12 feet.

"She'd go out there and run. She wouldn't stop," he said.

Clutching a white toy cat -- "She loves cats," Palmisano said -- Jensen's trip to Andrews didn't end at the dairy barn. In a separate facility a short distance away, she also was put in contact with a one-day old calf and seemed to enjoy stroking its nose.

A mother of two, grandmother of nine and great-grandmother of 22, Jensen has out-lived three husbands, Lou Ellis said. Asked if there are other goals on her bucket list besides cow milking, Ellis couldn't think of any but said a favorite phrase is that she intends to die with her boots on.

"She's 104. I'm just happy she made it this long," she said. "She's a tough old bird."
