Lear Jet 23 Donated to the Department of Aviation

The Andrews University Department of Aviation recently added a 1966 Lear Jet 23 to its fleet of training planes. Randall J. Latona of the AJM Airline Company in Smyrna, Tenn., donated the plane after receiving a request from Verlyn Benson, assistant to the president.

In need of an aircraft that would provide students with practical training on the more complex twin turbine engine-powered jet, the department used the FAA registry of business jets to send queries to see if any owners would be willing to donate an aircraft that would potentially fit their needs. Deborah Weithers Named Associate Dean of Student Life

Following an extensive search of both internal and external candidates, Deborah Weithers has been named as the new associate dean for Student Life. She is replacing Paul Buckley, who left Andrews in October 2011 to accept a position at Dartmouth College. Weithers’ first day in her new position was July 2, 2012.

“I am thrilled Debbie has accepted our invitation to join the Student Life Team. She has extraordinary experience and service in higher education, and already has strong established relationships at Andrews. In addition to her exceptional management and programming skills, Debbie has a deep passion for Andrews University and the students we serve,” says Frances Faehner, vice president for the Division of Student Life.

Most recently, Weithers was a senior development officer for the Office of Development. Prior to that, she served for eight years as manager of the Howard Performing Arts Center on the campus of Andrews University. At the Howard, Weithers was responsible for programming and frequently interfaced with various entities of Student Life and student clubs hosting events. “These skills will serve Debbie quite well in her role as associate dean as the position has major programming responsibilities, including University Forum,” says Faehner. As associate dean, Weithers will also serve as chair of the Black History Committee and the Martin Luther King Jr. Planning Committee. Weithers has served on the Black History Committee for three years.

Weithers has worked as an associate financial advisor for American Express Financial Advisors in St. Joseph, Mich. She is also an alum of both Andrews University and Andrews Academy.

“I am confident my previous experience, especially my work at the Howard Center, along with my personal desire to make a difference in the lives of my colleagues and the students at Andrews University, will enable me to have an immediate and positive impact in the Division of Student Life and at Andrews University,” says Weithers. “I am passionate about Andrews and the influence it has not only on graduates, but through them, our wider global community. What a wonderful opportunity in Student Life to help shape the student experience.”

Student Life is also pleased to welcome several additional team members.

Lamson Hall has added A’Lisa Lashley to their team as an assistant dean of women. After serving Blue Mountain Academy as the dean of girls, Lashley returns to Lamson Hall, where she previously served as a student dean.

Lashley will be working with Teela Ruehle, assistant dean of women; June Madrigal, associate dean of women; and Jennifer Burrill, dean of women.

At Meier Hall, Zachary Juniper, who has served as assistant dean of men for five years, is leaving Andrews. Donnie Keele, who has been working as a student dean at University Towers, has accepted the invitation to join the team at Meier Hall. Keele will be working with James Price, assistant dean of men, and Spencer Carter, dean of men.

Andrews' subscription program trumps expectation

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Subscription produce is proving a hot commodity for Andrews University's farms.

The university launched the home delivery program this year, and organizer Garth Woodruff said the response has been beyond his expectations.

"The response ... has been crazy good," he said. "We have over 40 subscriptions, and we were hoping for 10 to 20."

He said families from the north side of Niles and Buchanan to the south side of Stevensville and St. Joseph have signed up to get Andrews farm produce every week. Andrews students pick the produce every Wednesday and deliver it the next day.

Woodruff, an Andrews landscape design professor, said he's been at meetings where he's mentioned the program and saw people whip out their cell phones to show him pictures they had taken of their baskets of vegetables and fruit.

"Local food and low-carbon footprints are big buzzwords," Woodruff said. "We're all about local foods and encouraging people to support and shop locally. It's a healthy thing for our economy, and people get a lot better food."

The Andrews program is a boon to some Andrews students.

Woodruff said Andrews has an arrangement with a Russian university in which students can come here for their last two years of study and work in the gardens to cover the cost of their education.

"They work hard, but walk out of here without owing any money on a loan," he said, adding there's a side benefit because students can eat whatever they want of the produce they pick.

The Andrews farm further supplies the university cafeteria, which is the largest vegetarian restaurant in the U.S.

"All of our produce stays within a 10-to-15-mile radius," he said.

Andrews senior Arthur Mulyono helps guide the program and often makes deliveries.

"People are always glad to see me," he said.

Mulyono, a Californian of Indonesian descent, said he plans to start a similar program as mission work after he graduates and goes back home.

What Andrews is doing is part of the community-supported agriculture movement, which supports local agriculture in communities throughout the country.

Woodruff said it's not too late to sign up. People can visit www.augardens.com/csa-registration website or call 471-6006 or email info@augardens.com.

The 20-week season is partially over, but the $600 rate for a full share and $400 rate for a half share will be pro-rated for people signing up now.

People interested in the produce but not the subscription can buy Andrews produce at a stand along M-139, next to the Neighbor-to-Neighbor outside Berrien Springs.

Andrews has 900 acres devoted to farming around the campus and along Shawnee Road. The acreage includes apple, grape and peach orchards.

Learning from their piers

At this summer's Renaissance Kids camp, the project is building piers to connect two schools at Andrews University.

Learning from their piers

By DEBRA Haight - H-P Correspondent

The combination of art and architecture piqued the interest of at least one of the day camp students this year. River School seventh-grader Aiden Schnell has been coming to the camp since 2007 and this year came after a family trip to Europe in June.

He and his family saw historical and architectural landmarks across Italy, France and England, including the Arc de Triomphe and the Eiffel Tower. "It was really amazing to see everything," he said.

Aiden said he likes both art and architecture and has had his interest in the latter strengthened by coming to the camp. "I'm thinking a lot about being an architect. I would like to build houses as a career.

"I like building stuff but also learning the principles. This year I learned that bridges are much more complicated than I thought. I learn something every year," Aiden.
While not everyone attending the camp wants to be an architect, many like the idea of building things and want to pursue a career in something such as engineering, if not architecture.

Like Aiden, Upton Middle School seventh-grader Haley Rich wants to be an architect. She's one of three girls in the camp session that ends today. "I like designing things on my computer," she said. "Being in the camp has confirmed my interest. I learned more this year about perspective and wheelchair accessibility. I want to design homes."

Berrien Springs High School junior Santez Simmons said he learned how to use tools and draft blueprints. He said he wants to go into engineering as a career.

The camp is the brainchild of Andrews architecture professor Mark Moreno. He works every year to find a project that will not only interest the young students but also serve a useful purpose. Past camps have helped build a paved sitting area and a Whisper Dish permanent exhibit at the Curious Kids' Museum in St. Joseph, as well as an arbor outside the school of architecture.

This summer's project includes the series of piers or columns, each housing a sculpture, as well as benches and a fire pit where students from the combined art and architecture school can come together for social gatherings and worship. "It symbolically ties the two together," he said.

As always, Moreno said a number of volunteers from the university and local businesses people, including Berrien Springs architect and contractor Jim Hippler, lend their help to make the camp and the annual project a reality.

GMAT testing preparation materials

Bag of GMAT testing materials!

I have a bag full of GMAT testing materials from when I studied for the GMAT Business School Entrance Test back in 2002 or so.

The bag has:
- books, including a Kaplan book from the Kaplan class. The class was about $2000, but we just went through this book plus a practice test.
- CDs with a few thousand practice questions on PDF's. Practice questions are what give you the leading edge you need.
- and some printed material from these CDs.

It's all very good preparation material.

I'm asking $40 for everything.
