Honoring 146 Years of Service: Retirement of Four Biology Faculty
The Department of Biology invites you to attend a retirement celebration for four of our outstanding faculty members:

- Bill Chobotar
- David Steen
- John Stout
- Dennis Woodland

on Monday evening, Sept. 10, 4–6 p.m., in the "backyard" of the Science Complex. They've touched the lives of thousands of alumni and we invite you to honor their service to Andrews University. You may send your memories, photos and tributes to alumni.andrews.edu/biology for inclusion in memory books being prepared for Bill, David, John and Dennis.

In case of inclement weather, the celebration will be held in the Department of Biology.

Planning a Campus for the Next Generation of Seventh-day Adventist Education

The planning and design for the future of the Andrews University campus begins now. This fall semester, the School of Architecture, Art & Design is taking the lead to chart a course for the next 10 years of campus development. Everyone is invited to participate!

You are invited to participate in the first Campus Planning Workshop

Sunday, September 9
Hoosier/Lincoln Room, Dining Services from 4–6 p.m.

This project is being led by the Campus Design Studio from the School of Architecture, Art & Design.

This is an unprecedented campus-wide planning process where students, faculty, staff, alumni and community members will be considering ideas and actions to help shape the next generation of buildings and spaces for a distinctive Seventh-day Adventist Christian education at Andrews University.

The goal is to shape an updated and revised Campus Master Plan and supporting design guidelines by January 2013. The Campus Design Studio was created for this purpose and will work with the campus community through a series of interactive meetings and workshops. This effort plugs into Strategic Initiative #6 of the new Andrews University 2012–17 Strategic Plan. This project is intended to help shape the environment and facilities that support the operation of a quality academic and student life program here at Andrews University.

A detailed schedule of events and information about the project and its interdisciplinary team is available online at www.andrews.edu/campusplan.
Andrews University Press Releases Book on Homosexuality and the Church

The first major book from an Adventist publishing house addressing the complex issues surrounding homosexuality and Adventist life and faith has just been released by Andrews University Press.

Niels-Erik Andreasen, president of Andrews University and chair of the University Press board, said the topic of this book is timely and needed. "Recent developments in our faith community, religious organizations, American politics and secular society require careful thought on this sensitive subject. Andrews University is pleased to help sort out some of these issues by bringing together a range of perspectives on this subject within our church."

Titled Homosexuality, Marriage, and the Church: Biblical, Counseling, and Religious Liberty Issues, the nearly 600-page book was released in early August. It is a collection of 14 major essays on a range of topics, and an additional six personal testimonies from individuals who have struggled with homosexuality in their personal lives. The content of the book, including the testimonies, is material largely based on presentations at a conference on the same subject held at Andrews University and sponsored by various entities of the Adventist Church in October 2009.

"Much as it might like to, the church can no longer evade questions about homosexuality and same-sex marriage," says Nicholas P. Miller, lead editor of the work, along with Roy E. Gane and H. Peter Swanson, all of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews. "Society, with increasing stridency, is forcing Christians to confront these topics," Miller says.

Miller points to the several states whose legislatures have enacted same sex marriage provisions, sometimes against the convictions of their own citizens. He notes that this fall, at least two states, Maryland and Washington, will have referendums on election ballots, initiated by citizens seeking to overturn the same-sex marriage laws recently enacted.

"Consider the strange controversy and apparent outrage that erupted when the owner of a national fast-food chain recently expressed his support for traditional marriage," Miller said. "It was the same position held very recently by the president of the United States. And the media-driven reaction is an indication of how efforts are being made to shift public sentiment on this issue. Meanwhile, a film documentary affirming the gay lifestyle among Adventists is being heavily promoted by some within the church. Through all of this, Adventists must have a clear understanding of all the issues at stake, and they are significant."

Ronald Knott, director of Andrews University Press, notes that along with the biblical and religious liberty issues, the book makes a passionate case for the highest level of pastoral love and support for those Christians who, he said, "may have been lured down a dangerous spiritual path by charming but false arguments from scripture and political history, coming from outside and inside the church."

Following a preface and general introduction, various essays and articles are divided into four sections. The first addresses the Old and New Testament biblical material on homosexuality, with articles by Gane, Richard Davidson, and Miroslav Kis, all of Andrews, and Robert A. J. Gagnon of Wheaton College. The second section addresses legal and religious liberty issues, with essays by Miller, Alan J. Reinach from the Pacific Union Conference, Gerald Chipuer, a partner with the Canadian law firm Miller Thompson LLP, Scot Zentner from Cal State, San Bernardino, and Gary Wood from Andrews University. The counseling section features articles by Stanton Jones of Wheaton College, Mark Yearhouse of Regent University, Carlos Fayard of Loma Linda University, and Inga Anderson, founder of a ministry to homosexuals. The fourth section includes the personal testimonies from several Christians who have lived and struggled with homosexuality. An appendix reproduces the various official statements relevant to homosexuality issued through the years by the Adventist Church.

In addition to his teaching responsibility as associate professor of church history at Andrews, Miller is also director of the university's International Religious Liberty Institute. On October 6, the Institute will sponsor a day-long forum on the political, religious and social issues regarding same-sex marriage. The event will be held at the Spencerville Seventh-day Adventist Church in Spencerville, Md. The forum, planned in the context of Maryland's ballot referendum to overturn the state's same-sex marriage law, will draw attention to the issues, to the new book, and will feature panel discussions and a sermon on Adventists and social action by Bill Knott, editor and executive publisher of Adventist Review/Adventist World.

Homosexuality, Marriage, and the Church is available through Adventist Book Centers, and online at Amazon.com and Andrews University Press (universitypress.andrews.edu). Andrews University Press is the only regularly established academic publishing house to serve the Seventh-day Adventist Church.
Andrews Computing Program is now ABET Accredited

The Andrews University Department of Engineering & Computer Science’s computing program is now accredited through the Computing Accreditation Commission of ABET (Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology). The computing program offers a Bachelor of Science in Computing with emphases in computer science and software systems. The engineering program has been ABET accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET since 2006.

“The Department of Engineering & Computer Science is a family and through a team effort, including the support of Verlyn Benson, immediate past dean of the College of Technology, and Keith Mattingly, dean of the College of Arts & Sciences, ABET accreditation of the computing program has affirmed the strength of our program,” says George Agoki, chair. “We plan to use the processes of accreditation, which includes assessment, to keep our computing and engineering programs on the cutting edge. ABET accreditation is valuable to Andrews University, but more importantly to our students as they continue their academic or professional journeys.”

ABET is the nationally recognized accrediting body for college and university programs in applied science, computing, engineering and technology. ABET is a federation of 31 professional and technical societies that contribute funds and volunteers to set policy, develop strategy and conduct ABET accreditation activities worldwide on behalf of their professions. There are more than 3,100 ABET-accredited programs at over 660 colleges and universities in 23 countries. ABET is recognized by the Council for Higher Education Accreditation.

Farming without chemicals
Andrews University starts long process to certify that what is grows will be truly organic

By DEBRA HAIGHT - H-P Correspondent | 0 comments

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Besides giving people the chance to get some of the area's best produce with its new fresh food subscription program, Andrews University is also providing an example that organic farming is doable and makes both economic and environmental sense.

This year Andrews has started what could be up to a three-year process to get organic certification for the fruits and vegetables being grown on university-owned farmland around Berrien Springs.

Andrews agriculture professor Garth Woodruff is leading the effort to gain organic certification. He said he sees the effort as making sense not only environmentally, but economically, with the promotion of locally grown foods.

"It's about a whole life philosophy of having a low carbon footprint and being environmentally friendly," he said. "Being organic is an important component of the bigger picture of being local and sustainable. What we do are based on tangible results too, such as that the food tastes better and is healthier for people and the environment."

He said certification can take between nine months and three years to achieve, mainly because it can take that long to make sure the soil the produce is being grown in is free of chemicals. People can be assured that organic items found in the grocery store have been certified by some government or other organization, he said.

"There are always concerns about the soil and giving it time for the contamination to go away," he said. "These fields have been sprayed in the past, so it will take time to get certification. We can say that this year's produce was grown with no chemicals. It's an ongoing process, it can't be fixed in one day."

At Andrews, going organic has involved a number of steps, including changing how the plants are grown in the fields, with cover crops growing between rows, to trying out different kinds of nonchemical fertilizers.

He said one misconception people have is that manure is the only kind of natural fertilizer available and is applied regularly to a garden throughout the year. The opposite is true at Andrews. The manure from the Andrews dairy farm is spread on the fields only once a year - in the fall.

This year they've been using a number of natural fertilizers on the Andrews fields, such as kelp and algae. In addition, the white clover and rye... planted between the rows serve not only as a way to keep weeds down but also add nutrients. Straw is also used as a mulch.

They’ve also used natural, organic measures to prevent insect infestations and disease, such as using something call neem oil to discourager insects from attacking plants and produce. They also do other preventive measures, such as clearing away dead and rotting plants and keeping the weeds down.

At your home

While the Andrews operation is large, Woodruff said there are a lot of things individuals can do in their home gardens. To start off, he said there are many more organic resources available than there used to be. For example, people can buy organic seeds at local hardware stores, garden shops and places like the Eau Claire Fruit Exchange.

"It's a lot easier than people think it is to grow organically," Woodruff said. "The two biggest things are keeping a very clean garden, which means clearing out old plants and vegetation, and keeping an eye on the garden so that you find insects and fungus right away and clear it out.

"The homeowner can stop in at any garden store and tell them about what the problem is and they'll be shown an organic product to fix it," he said.

Woodruff said organic gardening and organic farming in some respects hearken back to earlier times before chemicals became such a big part of gardening and farming. "A lot of the things we do could be considered old school and doing stuff by the sweat of the brow," he said.

ABC 57 News: Drought stressing irrigation systems

Two irrigation pumps turned themselves on and off Monday afternoon at the Andrews University Campus. Each pump is taking out about 150,000 gallons of water each day from a shallow Saint Joseph River. The monthly meeting of the Berrien Springs Camera Club will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 7 p.m., in the Berrien Springs Public Library at Cass (Old 31) and Union in Berrien Springs. This month’s program consists of a competition of slides and digital images, either projected or printed, submitted by members, the first competition of the current season.

As usual, there will be two select topics for the month. In addition, Nature is always an acceptable category, as are Open (any subject) and Portraits. The two select categories for the October competition are: Dawn/Sunset & Now and Then: which could include side-by-side comparative collages or individual images showing a contrast between the past and present.

Nature photos are to show nothing from human hands (no wires, fences, cultivated flowers, etc.). Thus a member can submit images in any of five categories or a combination thereof. Prints, at least 5”x7” in size, should be mounted, with the title and photographer’s name on the back. Digital submissions, however, need to be sent in a week ahead, with instructions for submitting them on the Club’s website: http://photoclub.berrienspringsmi.us/.

Any member may submit up to 10 projected images and/or 10 prints for the competition, but no one is obligated to do so. Pictures are shown one at a time, and three judges score them by machine. The total points determine whether a photo is rated “honor,” “acceptance,” or “out.” From the honors selections a Slide-of-the-Month and a Print-of-the-Month are selected. Photographers names are not revealed for the “out” category. No one need feel embarrassment; this is a group of friends sharing experiences and tips for better photography.

All are welcome, either to observe or to join. Refreshments will be served.

Washer and Dryer
Correction of previous Washer and Dryer post. The washer and dryer were both purchased new from Whirlpool on 11/18/11, so longer than six months ago, but they were used for only six months. The model numbers are LCE4332PQ and LDR3822PQ. If you don't have a washer hookup or 220-volt outlet this set is perfect for you since the dryer is 120-volt and the washer hooks up to the kitchen sink. I am selling both for $400 which is a nice discount since I paid $856 for them new. Please take notice that these are apartment size.
