University Vespers: Here Am I Send Me

Friday, Sept. 28, 2012
7:30 p.m., Pioneer Memorial Church

Join us this Friday at 7:30pm in PMC for as the Student Missions Emphasis week continues into University Vespers.

We will have an opportunity to hear and interact with Student Missionaries that have prayer, "Here am I send Me." Also joining us from the Hope Channel, David Franklin.

Pastor David B. Franklin is co-host for Let’s Pray! and the Assistant Pastor of the Berea Temple Seventh-day Adventist Church in Baltimore, Maryland. Born and raised in Northern California, Pastor Franklin is the youngest of three boys born to Donald (deceased) and Paulette Franklin.

Pastor Franklin has attended church as long as he can remember but it was late in high school when he surrendered his life to Jesus. From that time until now God has led Pastor Franklin from Corporate America to full-time pastoral ministry.

Pastor Franklin holds a B.A. in Business Administration with an emphasis in Marketing from Oakwood University and a Masters of Divinity from the Andrews University Theological Seminary. Pastor Franklin is happily married to the former Cynthia Ichoya. They enjoy their life and ministry together.

Pastor Franklin’s life’s desire is to respond to the words of Jesus in John 21:19, “And when he had spoken this, He said to him, 'Follow Me.'"

Campus Wide Tornado Drill on Friday, Oct. 5

Friday, Oct. 5
12:25 p.m., Campus Wide

The Office of Campus Safety be conducting a campus wide tornado drill on Friday, Oct. 5. The drill will be signaled by the use of AU Alert (to the entire campus) and the sounding of the severe weather siren. Once notified, the campus is directed to respond to the tornado drill by taking shelter for three minutes. After three minutes has elapsed, the campus may resume regular activities. An “All Clear” message will not be sent.

Seek shelter by:

- Moving to interior hallways or small rooms on the lowest floor.
- Avoid areas with glass and wide, free span roofs (gymnasium or amphitheater).
- If you notice other occupants in the building, please direct them to take shelter as well.
- Remain sheltered for a total of 3 minutes and then resume regular activities.

To make sure that your contact information is configured for AU Alert, please go to the website: www.getrave.com/login/andrews

For additional information on tornados please refer to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration website:  www.noaa.gov/themes/severe.php

For further information, please contact the Office of Campus Safety at 269-471-3321 or via email at safety@andrews.edu.

Revive Vespers, "Isaiah 58: Radical Christianity"
Friday, Sept. 28, 2012
7:30 p.m., Andrews Biology Amphitheater

Theme: Medical Missionary Outreach
Speaker: Dojcin Zivadinovic

Ellen White, the prophet to the Remnant Church, stated that our evangelistic work for the end-times is charted in the prophecy of Isaiah 58. According to her, understanding of this end-time message will be instrumental in bringing the gospel of Jesus Christ to all nations, tongues and people. This presentation is a true eye-opener of what should the Church be focusing to hasten the Second Coming of Christ. Join us this Friday for an exciting study on history, Bible prophecy and contemporary events followed by Q&A!

WHAT’S NEW IN THE DEPARTMENT OF NURSING?

Facility Changes

The Department of Nursing is buzzing with excitement. The reason? This is the year of changes. The biggest change, being part of the new School of Health Professions, which now aligns us with other future inter-professional team members such as Dietitians, Physical Therapists, Speech Pathologists and Audiologists and Medical Laboratory Scientists.

If you were to visit the Department of Nursing, you would find out what the faculty, staff and students are smiling about; beginning with a new entrance to the building, to our newly renovated Skills Labs.

This year our incoming students and returning students entered skills labs equipped with new hospital beds, a new nurse’s station, a new observation room set up for simulation, as well as a new 3G Sim Man. This 3G Sim Man comes with a long list of advanced features, to ensure that the students have the opportunity to run a wide range of scenarios and patient case studies.

Our largest skills lab provides a setting for our beginning and intermediate students to learn and become proficient in the skills they will utilize in clinical practice at the hospital. Here the students are exposed to the most basic skills set; from learning to make the beds, to more complex skills such as health assessment of the patient.

Our second skills lab provides our seniors with exposure and practice in a critical care situation. The observation room allows the instructor to set up different case different scenarios for the students to actively participate in. These scenarios teach the student how to correctly respond to the changing condition of the critically ill patient. This laboratory is also outfitted with a birthing bed and birthing equipment which will allow our students to learn how to provide cared to an expectant mother during Labor & Delivery, as well as the newborn.
The Department of Nursing is overjoyed with the new changes and grateful to Plant Service and all the endless hours that were put in this summer to give us a great Skills Lab.

Curricular Changes

The Department of Nursing has offered a BS-Completion degree for decades. This program will now be online, which will allow nurses with associate degrees to complete their Bachelor’s Degree in the environment of their choice, at a time that is convenient. Additionally, the Department of Nursing will be implementing a Doctorate of Nursing Practice (DNP) with a focus on the Nurse Practitioner role in 2015.

Personnel Changes

We are pleased to welcome Grace Chi, PhD, RN who comes to us from Texas Women’s University, Shylene Toscano, MS, RN who comes from Rush University, and we also would like to make welcome Mary Ngugi, MS in Nursing Education from our own Andrews University as our new Skills Lab instructor.

Open House Celebrating SPLAD's New Suite

Andrews University will celebrate the Department of Speech-Language Pathology & Audiology's move to new quarters in Bell Hall with an open house and ribbon cutting ceremony on Thursday, Sept. 27, 2012. The open house, which includes complimentary hearing screenings, will be held from 3:30–7 p.m. with the ribbon cutting ceremony taking place at 4 p.m. Students, clients, faculty and members of any professional and referral healthcare organizations are invited to attend. This is also the first official event for the new Andrews University School of Health Professions.

The expanded and renovated location in Bell Hall provides the growing department with room to expand their educational vision, programs and Speech & Hearing Clinic. The remodeled suite features new state-of-the-art sound booths for complete hearing evaluations, and a new lab monitoring room for the Speech & Hearing Clinic. The clinic is open to the public, offering hearing and speech evaluations, and speech therapy. It is the only clinic in a 60-mile radius offering central auditory processing testing, which evaluates how the ear and brain are working together to use auditory information.

"Our former space was cramped at 700 sq. ft., but the new area is a spacious 2,800 sq. ft. There is room to grow and we have taken initial steps toward a master's degree in speech-language pathology," says Darah Regal, chair. "Over the last five years our enrollment has increased steadily from 25 to 65 majors in 2012. We're delighted and impressed as we meet this year's freshmen, with their animated curiosity to start learning and growing in their chosen field."

With their new facilities, the department is beginning to expand. The current program offers a bachelor's and a minor in speech-language pathology and audiology. The department's proposal for a master's program has received approval from the Andrews University Program Development Review Committee (PDRC) and the Graduate Council, and is being reviewed by Provost Andrea Luxton. The department is working on a proposal for master's program accreditation from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

The department will also be open for tours on Saturday, Sept. 29, from 3–5 p.m., as part of the annual Andrews University Alumni Homecoming Weekend. For more information, visit www.andrews.edu/shp/speech/.
Alumni Homecoming Weekend is Sept. 27-30, 2012

Andrews University’s annual Alumni Homecoming Weekend will be held Sept. 27–30, 2012, with a variety of events that are open to the community, alumni, staff, faculty and students. A full schedule and description of events, including RSVP forms for select events, is available at alumni.andrews.edu/homecoming.

Ribbon cutting ceremony and open house for Department of Speech-Language Pathology & Audiology
The weekend begins with a ribbon cutting ceremony and open house for the newly renovated and expanded Department of Speech-Language Pathology & Audiology in Bell Hall on Thursday, Sept. 27, at 4 p.m. It’s the first event for the recently organized School of Health Professions, which includes all the health-related academic departments at Andrews University. The event is free and open to the public, and free hearing screenings will be offered.

Wes Christiansen Memorial Golf Outing
On Friday, Sept. 28, all are invited to participate in the Wes Christiansen Memorial Golf outing at Blackthorn Golf Club in South Bend, Ind. Registration begins at 8 a.m. with the shotgun start at 9 a.m. The regular entry fee is $80 ($60 for Andrews University students), which includes 18 holes of scramble golf with a cart, continental breakfast, lunch, duffle bag and other prizes. Proceeds will go to the Alumni Scholarship fund. RSVP is required.

Reception, Academic Tributes for Retiring Biology Professors
Friday’s events also include an alumni reception in the foyer of Buller Hall from 12:30–1:30 p.m. to honor the retirements of biology professors Bill Chobotar, John Stout, Dennis Woodland and David Steen. Following the reception, all are invited to attend the Administrative Appreciation for Biology Faculty Retirements and Academic Tribute Presentations beginning at 1:30 p.m. in Newbold Auditorium of Buller Hall. RSVP for the alumni reception and submit tributes, memories and best wishes to the retiring professors at alumni.andrews.edu/biology.

25th Annual Homecoming Parade, International Flag Raising Ceremony
The 25th annual homecoming parade begins at 5 p.m. starting on West Campus Circle Drive in front of the Seminary. Guests can enjoy free elephant ears, popcorn and cotton candy while watching the parade of floats, marching bands and fire trucks. All are invited to attend. Immediately following the parade, join us in celebrating diversity at the International Flag Raising Ceremony on the flag mall at 6:30 p.m. All are encouraged to wear native dress and participate in both the parade and flagraising. Call 269-471-3345 to sign up and reserve your flag.

Open Houses Across Campus
On Saturday, Sept. 29, explore the campus of Andrews University through a variety of open houses across campus all occurring from 3–5 p.m. These include the Architecture Resource Center in the Architecture Building, the Art and Design Gallery in Smith Hall, the Center for Adventist Research in the lower level of James White Library, the Department of Biology in Price Hall of the Science Complex, the Department of Speech-Language Pathology & Audiology in Bell Hall, James White Library’s 75th Anniversary tours, the Natural History Museum in Price Hall of the Science Complex, the Institute of Archaeology and Siegfried H. Horn Museum, Ruth Murdoch Elementary School, and the Undergraduate Learning Center: Buller & Nethery Halls.

Aviation Breakfast and Fly-In
Among the notable events on Sunday, Sept. 30, is the Aviation Breakfast and Fly-In from 8 a.m.-noon at the Andrews University Airpark. Guests can enjoy a pancake breakfast before touring the airpark to see the fleet of planes and visit the Flight Simulation Center. The price is $7 for adults, $3 for children ages 10 and under.

5K Run/Walk & 10K Run/Fitness Expo
For those who enjoy some morning exercise, a 5K Run/Walk & 10K Run will begin at 9 a.m. at Johnson Gym. Titled “Race to End the Status Quo,” proceeds from the event will go to AU Student Missions. The registration fee is $15 or free for Andrews University students. T-shirts will also be available for $5.

Ride for AU
The weekend’s events will conclude Sunday with the 5th annual Ride for AU at 1 p.m. when motorcyclists can enjoy a scenic trip through Southwest Michigan. If the 25-bike minimum is met, the ride will be escorted by the Berrien County Sheriff’s Department Motorcycle Team. RSVP now at alumni.andrews.edu/homecoming.

Campus Ministries Goes Mobile

The Office of Campus Ministries has gone mobile! Their mobile offices are a new initiative to bring their ministry directly to the students of Andrews University.

From Monday-Thursday of the weeks of September 10-20, the chaplains and their support staff wheeled a cart loaded with an electric teapot and an array of tea, apple cider, and hot chocolate and set up camp in one of the campus lobbies. Beside their cart they placed a large sign announcing their motto, "Keep Calm and Put the Kettle On,"—a phrase history students will recognize from its similarity to the World War II British catchphrase, "Keep Calm and Carry On."

"It's an easy way of saying, pull up a seat and let's talk about something serious and wonderful– Jesus in your life," says Japhet De Oliveira, University chaplain. Each day, Campus Ministries set-up in a new area, traveling to Buller Hall, Nethery Hall, Architecture North Studio, Physical Therapy Building, Harrigan Hall Main Lobby, Bell Hall, Chan Shun Hall and the Seminary. By going to the students, they have the opportunity to meet and talk with students who may not normally spend much time in the Campus Center where Campus Ministries is located.

"We want to be where the people are," says Jose Bourget, chaplain. "We get quite a bit of faculty, staff and students who come to our offices, but there are so many more that we will now be able to make connections with by being where they are."

De Oliveira became impressed with the importance of going into the community under the influence of one of his mentors. He realized that in order to connect with members, he needed to see them outside of church. "I can't preach, teach or connect unless I have a pulse for the community," he says.

So far the outreach has been well received. Some students who had never heard of the Office of Campus Ministries or never had an opportunity to meet the chaplains were able to interact with them. Many people expressed their appreciation for the chaplains' efforts. One department chair even called the office to ensure they would be coming to her department. "We have had some great conversations with students we would have never met," says De Oliveira. "Insight into their journey. Clarity on their needs."

The chaplains intend to repeat the mobile office tour again later in the semester, as well in selected other locations on individual days. They hope those they meet will be encouraged by their encounter to come to the Office of Campus Ministries for longer discussions.

"I think it's a really good idea," says Christina Dunn, a junior animal science major. "I was blessed."

The mobile offices are one implementation of the new Faith Development program, which includes three elements: Program to Presence, Theory to Tangible, and Control to Creative. The mobile office is an initiative of the first element, Program to Presence. With this initiative, the chaplains hope to make Campus Ministries a more palpable presence on campus and in the lives of students, faculty and staff.

Some other initiatives the Office of Campus Ministries is undertaking include submitting regular articles to the Student Movement, using live texting during Chapels and promoting the availability of the chaplains for discussion, as well as regularly walking around campus to connect with students.

Andrews University were challenged to Eat Local Tuesday for the third year in a row.

Hundreds were served lunch made entirely from ingredients sourced within 150 miles of Berrien Springs.

An all-vegetarian menu was served during Tuesday's Eat Local Challenge. But this year was a bit different. The meal was affected by a Michigan freeze and drought.

“This is the third year we've done this,” says Mark Daniels the General Manager. “We went back to our growers and said we need to buy your product, but they didn't have it because of the freeze or the drought and it forced us to source new growers that are also local.”

Andrews University President Niels-Erik Andreasen is on a quest to make Andrews the healthiest university in the United States.
They set out to feed hundreds a vegetarian meal made of only locally grown food. They called it challenge but it turned out it wasn't that difficult for them.

Andrews University was able to supply a large amount of produce themselves because they have a very large student-run garden on campus including 80 acres of grapes and 7-10 acres of fruits and vegetables.

It was all part of Bon Appetit Management Company's "Eat Local Challenge." All of the ingredients came from within 150 miles of Berrien Springs.

This is the third year Andrews is doing this as a way to get students to start thinking about eating local. The university's garden is a way for agriculture students and other students to practice out in the field.

"I think it's very eye opening. Not a lot of people even realize we have a farm here. But the trend toward locally grown, the trend toward low carb and the trend toward organic and sustainable, all of those things, I think, are becoming more aware in the community as well as on campus. And because of that, there's demand for that and drive for that," said Student Garden Manager Garth Woodruff.

Any money made by the gardens go back into the student's education.

Andrews University challenges public to 'eat local'

WSBT-TV Report

6:43 PM EDT, September 25, 2012

BERRIEN SPRINGS, Mich. – Have you ever tried to make your entire lunch or dinner with foods only grown by local farmers?

On Tuesday, Andrews University Dining Hall in Berrien Springs proved that it's possible.

It's part of their 3rd annual "Eat Local Challenge."

On the average day, 20% of the food they serve in the café comes from local farmers, but on Tuesday, everything on the menu was made entirely from ingredients sourced within 150 miles of campus.

Andrew's Dining Service Manager Mark Daniels says the goal of the "Eat Local Challenge" was to make students and the public aware of the healthy alternatives to store bought items that are packed full of preservatives.

“It’s amazing to see the things you can get,” said Daniels. “Rice, for example. People don’t think you can get rice in Michigan. You can. It’s a wild rice, and it’s harvested by an Indian tribe in the northern lake area. You find these very unique places and sources, and it’s exciting and fun for us.”

One of the most popular items people chose Tuesday was yellow watermelon. It was grown in Andrew's Gardens and is said to be sweeter than the usual red watermelon.

Andrews takes part in 'Eat Local Challenge'

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Andrews University on Tuesday will serve a vegetarian lunch made only from local food. The university's "Eat Local Challenge" lunch will be made entirely from ingredients within 150 miles of Berrien Springs. Most of the ingredients will actually come from the Andrews University Farm.

The Eat Local Challenge lunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and is open to the public. The lunch will cost $7.75 plus tax, and will be an all-you-care-to-eat affair.

This is the third year Andrews has taken part in the challenge. Tuesday's lunch will be at the Campus Center, which is adjacent to Pioneer Memorial Church.

"Eating local has become a mainstream of our culture," Jonathan Mark Daniels, general manager of Dining Services at Andrews, was quoted as saying in a university news release about the event. "It's more popular than it used to be. But having an opportunity to eat a locally sourced meal is a different story. We want everyone to come and experience not just a component piece of a meal that is local, but an entire meal. We are taking 'eating local' from a conversation to a reality."

This is the first year Gil Bell, owner of Total Health Inc. in Buchanan, has supplied produce for the event.

"Eating local actually helps produce a much higher quality nutrient value in our food," Bell said. "The produce doesn't have to travel across the county, losing nutrients with age, or be sprayed with preservatives in order to extend shelf life."

Local farms and suppliers involved in the event include: Andrews University Farm; Leduc Blueberries, Paw Paw; Michigan Sugar Co., Bay City; Total Health Inc., Buchanan; Todd Grienier Farms, Hart; Windmill Island, Holland; Guggisberg, Middlebury, Ind.; Rosewood Acres, Lansing; Zeeland Foods, Zeeland; Country Life, Paw Paw; Carlson-Arbogast Farms, Lansing; and Dave Pagel Farm, Berrien Springs. Additionally, the breads were all locally baked by Apple Valley Bakery in Berrien Springs.

Bon Appétit Management, the on-site restaurant company that has managed
Andrews’ Office of Dining Services since 2010, has more than 400 Bon Appétit restaurants and cafés across the country participating in the Eat Local Challenge.

ArtPrize is back
Local artists among the 1,517 entries for ArtPrize 2012

By JEREMY D. BONFIGLIO - H-P Features Writer | 0 comments
GRAND RAPIDS — It's ArtPrize time again.

The public art competition in Grand Rapids that first captivated the art world three years ago opened again Wednesday and continues through Oct. 7.

Founded by Rick DeVos, this year's ArtPrize features 1,517 artists from 56 countries and 45 states displaying work at 161 venues throughout a 3-square-mile area of downtown Grand Rapids.

The top prize winners are picked not by a typical jury of experts but by popular vote, with a combined $560,000 in total prize money at stake. Voters have to register in person, and ballots are cast via text message and social media.

As in years past, several Southwest Michigan artists have entered into the fray.

Here's a sampling of local artists who are competing at this year's event, and where you can see their work.

Harry Ahn
FROM: Berrien Springs
ABOUT: Ahn, who was a teen when the Korean War left his family home less, escaped to Canada and eventually the United States. He has been an art instructor at Andrews University and resident of Berrien Springs since 1990, and his lifelong study of his craft has led to international acclaim, including the William F. Draper Grand Prize winner in the Portrait Society of America's 2010 International Competition for his painting of Benton Harbor sculptor Richard Hunt.
ENTRY: "One Mind One Purpose"
DESCRIPTION: Ahn's 71-by-105 inch oil painting features 20 individual snapshots of individuals in the process of taking a photograph on devices from a cellphone to professional equipment.
LOCATION: First (Park) Congregational Church, 10 East Park Place NE, Grand Rapids

William Anderson
ABOUT: Anderson, who grew up in Stevensville and now lives in Sawyer, has an associate's degree in art from Lake Michigan College and a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from The School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

ENTRY: “Wheel In The Sky Kaleidoscope”

DESCRIPTION: This interactive mixed alloy sculpture is a kinetic industrial rendition of a working kaleidoscope designed to be hand turned.

LOCATION: Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum, 303 Pearl St. NW, Grand Rapids

Harry Borgman

FROM: Sawyer

ABOUT: Borgman, represented by the Craig Smith Gallery in Union Pier, works in painting, digital art and sculpture. He was a graphic designer and illustrator, and lead art director on the Chevrolet account at the Campbell-Ewald advertising agency in Detroit. In addition to Detroit, he has lived and exhibited his works in New York City and Paris, France. He has written several art technique books published by Watson-Guptill Publication.

ENTRY: “The Dream”

DESCRIPTION: This 48-by-96-inch acrylic on canvas diptych is part of a new series of paintings from the Sawyer artist that uses abstract figures based on computer generated studies.

LOCATION: The B.O.B., 20 Monroe Ave. NW, Grand Rapids

Martha Carés

FROM: Sawyer

ABOUT: Better known as a singer than a sculptor, Carés spent three years playing Confidante in the Broadway production of “Phantom of the Opera” before taking a break to work with husband, sculptor Fritz Olson, at their Olson Gallery in Sawyer. She’s most recently starred in “La Vie En Rose: Martha Carés sings Edith Piaf” at The Acorn Theater in Three Oaks.

ENTRY: “My Rescue”

DESCRIPTION: There’s a deeper message behind the whimsical 4-foot tall red, orange, yellow, blue and green steel sculptures of dogs. Carés created the work to spark awareness of the animals taken in by rescue organizations and shelters each year.

LOCATION: Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum, 303 Pearl St. NW, Grand Rapids

Greg Constantine

FROM: Berrien Center

ABOUT: Originally from Windsor, Canada, Constantine became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1976. He received his BA from Andrews University and taught drawing and art history there for 43 years. He retired from teaching in 2006. He’s had numerous one-man shows with 22 in New York.

ENTRY: “USA Poetic Licenses”

DESCRIPTION: Oil and acrylic on styrene and wood featuring the shape of the United States of America with license plates of the 50 states with the lyrics of the national anthem.

LOCATION: Waters Building, 161 Ottawa Ave. NW, Grand Rapids

Scott Covert

FROM: New Buffalo

ABOUT: Covert, who uses grave rubbings to create art, first began the practice in 1985 when he made a pilgrimage to the Detroit cemetery where Florence Ballard Chapman (1943-1976) of The Supremes is buried. A forgotten camera that day has led to a career making complex paintings that have been shown in galleries in Michigan, Chicago, New York and Los Angeles.

ENTRY: “Compilation CSG No 105”

DESCRIPTION: Traveling to cemeteries and mausoleums all over Europe and the U.S. Covert uses loose canvases and an oil crayon to create paintings with the names or inscriptions of various grave markers. “Compilation CSG No. 5,” which took 10 years to complete, has more than 100 names, including Nikita Khrushchev, Harriet Tubman and “The Wizard of Oz” cast.
LOCATION: Fifth Third Bank/Warner Norcross & Judd LLP, 111 Lyon NW, Grand Rapids

Tom Fuller

FROM: St. Joseph

ABOUT: Fuller, a native of Wichita, Kan., was given his first pair of cowboy boots by a grandfather. He's been consumed by the tools, legends and cowboys of the American West ever since.

ENTRY: “Hand Tooled”

DESCRIPTION: Like most of his work, “Hand Tooled” features a distinctly cowboy theme. The oil painting depicts an intricate hand-crafted horse saddle that is so realistic it can be mistaken for a photograph.

LOCATION: Oppenheimer & Co. Inc., 250 Pearl St. NW, Grand Rapids

Zan Knecht

FROM: St. Joseph

ABOUT: By day, Knecht may be a health care provider, but she says she’s “always an artist.” The St. Joseph resident has shown her work at the Chartreuse Art Co-op, the Box Factory for the Arts and participated in the annual members’ show at the Krasl Art Center for the past four years.

ENTRY: “Caged Heart”

DESCRIPTION: The 4-by-5-foot wire heart sculpture features black paper and pencils next to it with the invitation to add any thoughts one would like to get rid of. Once it fills up, the caged heart will be moved to an outdoor location, mounted on a pole and burned to let those “bad feelings” be released in the fire.

LOCATION: Blue Bridge, 65 Front St. NW, Grand Rapids

Fritz Olsen

FROM: Sawyer

ABOUT: The well-known sculptor and gallery owner has his work featured in four permanent museum collections, including the Krast Art Center and the Fernwood Botanical Garden & Nature Preserve. His public commissions include “Lake Michigan Bench” and “Phoenix” at Lakeland Hospitals.

ENTRY: “Ring”

DESCRIPTION: This circular, 16-by-18-inch marble sculpture is designed to represent the transition and coexistence of linear time and the circular cycle of life.

LOCATION: Cathedral Square, 360 Division Ave. S, Grand Rapids

Charles Spreitzer

FROM: South Haven

ABOUT: Spreitzer studied art and sculpture at Illinois Wesleyan University and Illinois State University, where he received his master’s degree. He says his work often explores his interest “in machine art that performs a real or imagined function.”

ENTRY: “Wind Power”

DESCRIPTION: The mixed media sculpture features a full-sized motorcycle on a metal frame bolted to the ground. Positioned in front of the bike is a blower motor, which can create a wind stream of 50 mph. When a viewer sits on the stationary bike and turns the throttle it activates the motor, creating the impression of motion.

LOCATION: The B.O.B., 20 Monroe Ave. NW, Grand Rapids,

Lynne Tan

FROM: Stevensville

ABOUT: Tan, who grew up in Singapore and received a doctorate in experimental psychology at the University of Oxford, England, discovered clay while teaching psychology. She is now a potter and clay artist with a studio in the Box Factory for the Arts in St. Joseph.
ENTRY: "Offering in Celebration of Mostly Grey"

DESCRIPTION: An installation of 88 wheel-thrown stoneware bowls arranged on the gallery floor in a 8-by-11 foot grid. Each bowl contains uncooked rice. White rice in the first row, black rice in the last row, and a combination of white and black rice in the other bowls so that the grid is a graduated white-to-black.

LOCATION: High Five, Riverfront Plaza Building, 55 Campau, Grand Rapids

Adam Thomas

FROM: Buchanan

ABOUT: Thomas, a Battle Creek native, attended the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. He transitioned from pastel pet drawings to painting nature scenes in oil, including animals with whimsical themes. He has shown in more than 20 venues from California to North Carolina.

ENTRY: "Bye Bye, Blackbird"

DESCRIPTION: This 48-feet-by-60-feet oil on canvas depicts a lone blackbird in flight.

LOCATION: City Art Gallery, 1168 Ionia NW Grand Rapids, MI 49503

James Wilcox

FROM: Dowagiac

ABOUT: Wilcox, who received his MFA in sculpture from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, has built a coral reef reproduction for the United Technology’s Seas Pavilion Tank at Epcot Center; worked in exhibit design and construction at the Brookfield Zoo in Illinois, and has designed sculptures of gargoyles for the Chicago Architecture Foundation.

ENTRY: "Julie Grooves On Her Spartan Life-style"; "Dad’s In Heaven Now"; "Herbert As Dr. Gachet"; “Breakfast Ballerinas - Morning Class with the Joffrey Ballet”; “Slice of the Spice”; and “Barge Nocturne”

DESCRIPTION: Wilcox’s series of relief sculptures in polymerized Gypsum vary in size from 11-by-13 inches to 4-by-2 feet, each depicting a slice of life scene.

LOCATION: The B.O.B., 20 Monroe Ave NW, Grand Rapids

American Piano Quintet slated to perform Saturday at Andrews University

BERRIEN SPRINGS - With four different institutions represented, the logistics of rehearsing can get a little bit complicated for members of the American Piano Quintet.

However, for musicians used to performing at a high level, the solution is simpler than it might seem, in violinist Carla Trynchuk’s perspective.

"Obviously, when we prepare for this, there’s a lot of individual work that goes on, there’s a lot of core study, so when we get together things are just ready to fall in place," Trynchuk says by telephone from her Berrien Springs home. "Then we work on the interpretive details - what we want to bring out in the music, (and) the types of conservations we have between the instruments. That’s the kind of thing we look to do when we get together."

For pianist Chi Yong Yun, everything’s about refining the individual nuances of each piece as the actual concert date draws closer.

"The word that comes to mind is, ‘a lot of discipline’ - I started playing at an early age, when I heard my sister practicing, and I started playing what I heard," Yun says. "I was around 3 or 4."

Trynchuk and Yun both teach at Andrews University, where they’ll also perform Saturday as part of the American Piano Quintet, whose other members are Rudolf Haken (violin), Jeffrey Lastrapes (cello) and Renee Skerik (viola).

Haken is on the University of Illinois’s music faculty, while Skerik is a viola professor at Texas Tech University and a violist for the Botticelli String Quartet.

Lastrapes is a former Oklahoma State University faculty member who recently released a CD of sonatas by Rachmaninoff and Chopin. Since 1996, he’s also served on the cello and chamber music faculty at Interlochen Center for the Arts and is an assistant professor of cello at Texas Tech.

"I’m looking forward to performing with these wonderful colleagues. We have lots of different backgrounds represented, and yet we all do very much the same thing," Trynchuk says. "We all perform a lot and we all teach a lot. These are our dual passions."

The program will consist of three works, including "Piano Quintet in F Minor, Op. 34," by Johannes Brahms, and Haken’s composition, "Tao Suite," a piece based on the writings of 6th-century philosopher Lao Tsu. After a brief intermission, the quintet will close its performance with Antonin Dvorak’s "Piano Quintet in A Major, Op. 81."

Trynchuk expects the Haken piece to represent a musical peak of the program, even though she won’t be playing on it herself.

"We went through a number of ideas (for the program). We wanted a couple of piano quintets that would be contrasting," Trynchuk says.
"Brahms, of course, is rich and dark in color and the Czech composer (Dvorak) is an audience pleaser. The most unusual work (of the night) will be Rudolf's - it's a very cool work."

"The pieces that we're going to perform cover a wide range of emotion, between the instruments," Yun agrees. "With classical music, it's something that takes a lot of discipline and a lot of training. It's not something you're going pick up in the period of a week or a month."

While she's looking forward to playing all the pieces, Yun is especially excited about the Brahms selection. "His writing for piano is very complex - it's challenging, but it's musically fulfilling," she says.

The quintet's members also will give a master class to Andrews' string instrument students at 3:30 p.m. Friday, in Buller Hall's Newbold Auditorium. Haken, Skerik and Lastrapes are expected to lead this endeavor, which is open to the public as well, Trynchuk says.

"A master class is when you have students perform, and have the master teacher work with the student," she says. "It's basically like a public lesson."

Andrews University Press has just released the first major book from a Seventh-day Adventist publishing house addressing the complex issues surrounding homosexuality and Adventist life and faith.

Niels-Erik Andreasen, president of Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Michigan, and chair of the Andrews University Press board, said the topic of this book is timely and needed. “Recent developments in our faith community, religious organizations, American politics, and secular society require careful thought on this sensitive subject. Andrews University is pleased to help sort out some of these issues by bringing together a range of perspectives on this subject within our church.”

Titled Homosexuality, Marriage, and the Church: Biblical, Counseling, and Religious Liberty Issues, the nearly 600-page book was released in early August. It is a collection of 14 major essays on a range of topics, and an additional six personal testimonies from individuals who have struggled with homosexuality in their personal lives. The content of the book, including the testimonies, is material largely based on presentations at a conference on the same subject held at Andrews University and sponsored by various entities of the Adventist Church in October 2009.

“Much as it might like to, the church can no longer evade questions about homosexuality and same-sex marriage,” says Nicholas P. Miller, lead editor of the work, along with Roy E. Gane and H. Peter Swanson, all of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews. “Society, with increasing stridency, is forcing Christians to confront these topics,” Miller says.

Miller points to the several states whose legislatures have enacted same-sex marriage provisions, sometimes against the convictions of their own citizens. He notes that this fall at least two states, Maryland and Washington, will have referendums on election ballots, initiated by citizens seeking to overturn the same-sex marriage laws recently enacted.

“Consider the strange controversy and apparent outrage that erupted when the owner of a national fast-food chain recently expressed his support for traditional marriage,” Miller said. “It was the same position held until very recently by the president of the United States. And the media-driven reaction is an indication of how efforts are being made to shift public sentiment on this issue. Meanwhile, a film documentary affirming the gay lifestyle among Adventists is being heavily promoted by some within the church. Through all of this Adventists must have a clear understanding of all the issues at stake, and they are significant.”

Ronald Knott, director of Andrews University Press, notes that along with the biblical and religious liberty issues, the book makes a passionate case for the highest level of pastoral love and support for those Christians who, he said, “may have been lured down a dangerous spiritual path by charming but false arguments from Scripture and political history, coming from outside and inside the church.”

Following a preface and general introduction, various essays and articles are divided into four sections. The first addresses the Old and New Testament biblical material on homosexuality, with articles by Gane, Richard Davidson, and Miroslav Kis, all of Andrews, and Robert A. J. Gagnon of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. The second section addresses legal and religious liberty issues, with essays by Miller, Alan J. Reinach from the Pacific Union Conference, Gerald Chipeur, a partner with the Canadian law firm Miller Thompson LLP, Scot Zentner from Cal State, San Bernardino, and Gary Wood from Andrews University. The counseling section features articles by Stanton Jones of Wheaton College, Mark Yarhouse of Regent University, Carlos Fayard of Loma Linda University, and Inge Anderson, founder of a ministry to homosexuals. The fourth section includes personal testimonies from several Christians who have lived and struggled with homosexuality. An appendix reproduces the various official statements relevant to homosexuality issued through the years by the Adventist Church.
In addition to his teaching responsibility as associate professor of church history at Andrews, Miller is also director of the university’s International Religious Liberty Institute. On October 6 the institute will sponsor a daylong forum on the political, religious, and social issues regarding same-sex marriage. The event will be held at the Spencerville Seventh-day Adventist Church in Spencerville, Maryland. The forum, planned in the context of Maryland’s ballot referendum to overturn the state’s same-sex marriage law, will draw attention to the issues and to the new book, and will feature panel discussions and a sermon on Adventists and social issues by Bill Knott, editor and executive publisher of Adventist Review and Adventist World magazines.

_Homosexuality, Marriage, and the Church_ is available through Adventist Book Centers, and online at Amazon.com and Andrews University Press.

Andrews University Press is the only regularly established academic publishing house to serve the Seventh-day Adventist Church worldwide.

Next week will be the Eat Local Challenge at Andrews University in Berrien Springs. On Tuesday, the university's Dining Services will serve up a lunch made up of only locally grown produce. Nothing in the meal will come from farther away than 150 miles, and providers include farms and bakeries from Berrien Springs, Buchanan, Paw Paw, and Holland. The meal will be offered at Andrews U from eleven AM to two-30, and the public is welcome to try it. The cost is seven dollars and 75 cents. The idea of the Eat Local Challenge is to promote healthy food choices.
Passing of David Knott, Father to Ron Knott

Ronald (Andrews University Press) and Esther (Pioneer Memorial Church) Knott announce the death of Ron's father, David W. Knott, on Friday, September 21, at his residence in Berrien Springs. David was a long-time English professor at Atlantic Union College.

A time to visit with the Knott family members who live in the local Berrien Springs area (Ron, Esther, Livvy, Evan and Brady) will be held on Monday, October 1, 5:30-7 p.m. at Sutherland House on the Andrews campus (8360 W. Campus Circle Drive).

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, October 20 at 4 p.m. at the College Church of Seventh-day Adventists, 337 Main Street, South Lancaster, Mass.

Funding and Grant Opportunities

Support for Creative Community Partnerships

ArtPlace

ArtPlace is a collaboration of major foundations, federal agencies, and financial institutions dedicated to accelerating creative placemaking across the United States. ArtPlace believes that art, culture, and creativity expressed powerfully through place can create vibrant communities, thus increasing the desire and the economic opportunity for people to thrive in place. Grants and loans are provided to collaborations involving arts organizations, artists, and designers working with local and national partners to produce a transformative impact on community vibrancy. Priority is given to projects that enjoy strong local buy-in and will occur at places already showing signs of momentum, integrate with a community’s economic development and community revitalization strategy, and have the potential to attract additional private and public support to the community. ArtPlace gives some emphasis to applications from selected localities; however, applications are encouraged from urban and rural regions all across the U.S. Letters of inquiry will be accepted from September 17 through November 1, 2012. Visit the ArtPlace website to download the application guidelines.
