Photo of the Week: On Thursday, Nov. 15, President Niels-Erik Andreasen made good on his promise to jump into the Beaty Pool in his suit if Andrews employees met the United Way Employee Campaign challenge. In early November, President Andreasen challenged Andrews employees to meet a $10,000 pledge goal with a minimum of 114 employees participating. To date, contributions total $13,815.80 with 132 employees participating. Read more.

Year-End Tax Strategies Seminar for Andrews Employees

Tuesday, Nov. 27
11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 12:20-1:20 p.m., Dining Services, Lincoln Room

Scott Shalk of Ameriprise Financial presents "Year-End Tax Strategies."

With the year-end rapidly approaching, it's time to consider some tax strategies to lower your overall income tax before it's too late. These include bunching itemized deductions, IRA contributions, Roth IRA conversions, maxing out your Health Savings Account, taking advantage of the American Opportunity tax credit and structuring capital gains and losses just to name a few.

Bring your lunch and learn a few strategies that might save you thousands in tax savings.

University Vespers and Impact Feature Bill Knott

Friday, Nov. 16
7:30 p.m., Pioneer Memorial Church
This Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Pioneer Memorial Church sanctuary University Vespers partners with BSCF's Impact Vespers. We are excited to come together for a worshipful experience and inspiring message from Bill Knott, the current editor of the Adventist Review.

Knott has served as editor and executive publisher of the Adventist Review and Adventist World since January of 2007. "These two journals highlight the great depth and breadth of Adventism around the world," Knott says. "It's an amazing privilege to serve an international fellowship of believers eagerly living toward the Second Coming of Jesus."

Before his appointment, Bill served as an associate editor for nine years. A pastor for 18 years in both small and large parishes, he ministered in New England, New York, Michigan, and Washington. He earned a Master of Divinity from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University and a PhD in American Religious History from George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

Knott is an elder and Sabbath School teacher in his Spencerville, Maryland congregation, and a frequent speaker at conventions, conferences, retreats and campmeetings worldwide. He and his wife, Debbi, a specialist in the General Conference Human Relations Department, have two sons in college, Evan and Brady.

The Big Splash for United Way

On Thursday, Nov. 15, President Niels-Erik Andreasen made good on his promise to jump into the Beaty Pool in his suit if Andrews employees met the United Way Employee Campaign challenge. In early November, President Andreasen challenged Andrews employees to meet a $10,000 pledge goal with a minimum of 114 employees participating. To date, contributions total $13,815.80 with 132 employees participating.

President Andreasen wasn’t the only one who took a dive. Several others, including Stephen Payne, vice-president for Integrated Marketing & Communication, and Anna Murphy, president of the United Way of Southwest Michigan, made a splash to show their support. Several other Andrews employees, including Dr. Andreasen’s executive assistant, Dalry Payne, donned Live United shirts and also jumped into the pool in a show of support for the campaign.

New Issue of Envision Now Available

The latest issue of Envision, Andrews University’s Christian collegiate magazine, was formally launched on Thursday, Nov. 8, in the Campus Center. This is the fourth annual issue of the collegiate magazine produced by the collaborative effort of Andrews’ students from multiple academic disciplines.

“The students have once again outdone themselves providing top-notch writing, photography and design,” says Debbie Michel, associate professor of communication and editor-in-chief of Envision.
This year's issue features articles on many topics of special interest to students, including ways to stay energized, how to get a great internship, and how to erase student loan debt. The new issue also includes several feature articles on Andrews' students. "We feature some students who've tackled some pretty daunting challenges head-on, which, of course, would not be possible without the power of God in their lives," says Michel. Among these inspirational stories is the cover story for this issue, featuring "G.I. Joe Rivera." "I believe there's something in that story that will encourage and revitalize anyone who reads it," says Michel.

Envision is created entirely by students in the classes Publication Production, Advanced Media Writing, Publication Design, and Studio Photography. Students were able to apply the skills they were learning in class to produce a finished, real-world product.

"It's a great portfolio piece for them to show what they can do, in settings as close to the real world as a college environment allows," says Michel. Students receive firsthand experience in every step of the process of writing, editing, designing and photographing a magazine.

"It was a great experience and I learned a lot about how a magazine works," says Tacyana Behrmann, one of the magazine's student editors. After her first year working on the magazine, Tacyana feels that she learned a lot about the business. "It gave me a look into the magazine publishing world—what it takes and the work that goes into it," she says, describing how she used the campus "grapevine" to find stories for the magazine. Tacyana was one of about 50 students who were involved in producing this issue of Envision.

Envision is available for purchase for $2.50 at the Gazebo, the Andrews Bookstore, Apple Valley, Harding's and the ABC. For more information on Envision or to get involved in the next issue, contact Debbie Michel at dmichel@andrews.edu.

Renaissance Kids Builds at Andrews
On Sunday, Nov. 4, the Renaissance Kids Architecture Day Camp students and their families gathered for roasted marshmallows around a newly built fire pit nestled along a row of decorative piers to celebrate the completion of another successful year and finished project. Renaissance Kids is an architecture day camp for kids ages 5–16, held each summer at the Andrews University School of Architecture, Art & Design.

Andrews University United Way Goal Reached!

Thanks to the enthusiasm of our campus employees, we have surpassed our participation goal and our campaign dollar goal in record time. To date, 114 individual employees have donated $11,500. Both of these numbers exceed the previous five years of Andrews United Way Employee Campaigns. I am deeply grateful for the campus spirit of generosity and support. I believe the United Way Campaign is a very visible and powerful way to provide stewardship and support to our community. All locally donated funds are distributed locally. Andrews University can become the light and salt our neighbors need, right here in Southwest Michigan.

As promised, I will now, literally, "Jump into the United Way Campaign." You are invited to come to the Beaty Pool on Thursday, Nov. 15, at 3:30 p.m. to witness my plunge. (Live streaming will be available at andrews.edu/president.) Representatives from United Way will also be on hand. Their staff has been encouraged by our increased support, and the accompanying fun, and they want to join in celebrating the successful conclusion of our Andrews United Way Employee Campaign.

Thank you, as well, to those who will be impressed to give in our final days of this campaign, which formally closes on November 14. If you haven't given to this year's campaign, we still welcome your pledge forms. Pledge forms may be returned to the Office of the President. The four-digit on-campus zip code is 0670.

Important Information on Moodle Downtime

In order to upgrade Moodle to provide new features requested by faculty, Moodle will be down on January 3, 2013 and maybe January 4, 2013. To make this upgrade successful and ensure minimum disruption to your planning, please be mindful of the dates listed below:

November–December: Watch for news items from the DLIT and in the Andrews Agenda. These items will focus on new features and looks in Moodle.

On or before Thursday, Dec. 20, 2012: Quick reference guides will be available at www.andrews.edu/services/dlit/instructional_tech/moodle.html.

January 3 (and possibly Jan. 4, only if needed), 2013—Moodle will not be available.

January 2013 Moodle Training Schedule

Bell Hall: 1/7, 1–4 p.m.
Marsh Hall: 1/8, 8:30–11:30 a.m.
Buller/Nethery Halls: 1/8, 2–5 p.m.
Architecture: 1/9, 8:30–11:30 a.m.
Chan Shun Hall: 1/10, 9:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.
Seminary: 1/10, 2–5 p.m.

If you want to get your courses ready for spring 2013, those are already in Moodle. The new content you put
On Sunday, Nov. 4, the Renaissance Kids Architecture Day Camp students and their families gathered for roasted marshmallows around a newly built fire pit nestled along a row of decorative piers to celebrate the completion of another successful year and finished project. Renaissance Kids is an architecture day camp for kids ages 5–16, held each summer at the Andrews University School of Architecture, Art & Design.

Every year during the final session of the Andrews University Renaissance Kids Architecture Day Camp, children participate in a hands-on, real-world project that benefits their community. This year, campers turned their attention to building something right on the Andrews campus: a social gathering area featuring seven masonry 7-foot piers lining a sidewalk that leads to a fire pit. It’s located between the Art & Design Center and the Architecture Building. Past projects have included a whisper dish at the Curious Discovery Zone Museum and piers in front of the Curious Kids Museum, both in St. Joseph, Mich.

The Renaissance Kids project design is intended to symbolize and celebrate the recent union of the School of Architecture with the Department of Visual Art & Design into the newly created School of Architecture, Art & Design.

"We aimed to create a place for students to socialize," says Mark Moreno, associate professor of architecture and director of Renaissance Kids. Since the art students and architecture students only have a couple of classes together, Moreno and Steve Hansen, professor of art, wanted to create a place where the two groups could meet and interact. "It’s a literal but also figurative representation of the merging of art and architecture," says Moreno. "We’ve actually enmeshed art into those piers in two ways. The front recess in the piers is filled with clay art made by the Renaissance kids and then Andrews University art students are designing sculptures for the tops of the piers.”

Renaissance Kids is a program that includes five weeklong sessions and one two-weeklong session during June and July for children ages 5–15. Children learn about design, drafting and building skills by participating in projects that also teach them lessons in history, community, culture and citizenship.
This year’s project required the collaboration with the School of Architecture, Art & Design, the Offices of Plant Administration, Plant Service, Grounds/Arboretum, Transportation and numerous volunteers from the campus and community. Moreno says, “Special mentions belong to Dave Wilber, retired Plant Administration director, who tirelessly donated three weeks of his time to help form and pour the concrete foundations for the pit and piers, and Jim Hippler of Exquisite Homes who voluntarily generated design drawings and helped the kids during the construction week.” Moreno says about 20 architecture students volunteered many hours to help finish the construction. Additionally, Siena Moreno and Jessica Snively, both highschool students, volunteered their service throughout the summer camp experience.

South Bend Tribune: Christian author in Andrews series

Noted Christian researcher and author George Barna will present a three-part series on raising children from Nov. 14-15 on the campus of Andrews University. The series is composed of three sessions: two on Nov. 14
MICHIGAN CITY — Andrew von Maur, an associate professor of design and urbanism at Andrews University, returned to Michigan City to give a presentation discussing the impact of The North End Plan, which was completed by students of the University five years ago.

"I know a lot of people have worried that this was going to be a plan that sort of sat on a shelf, but I think it's fair to say that hasn't happened," von Maur said. "Just from the perspective of building a consensus and rallying the public behind a vision, not necessarily in a literal sense..., but a recognition that there is potential... has been a huge accomplishment for what was really a cheap, student-conducted project."

Von Maur pointed out that although the city may not have come as far as it would have liked in five years, it had made significant improvements in certain areas, like its efforts to modify its zoning codes to reflect a long-term vision for the design of future structures in the city.

Von Maur also said the city's investment in the Elston Grove project, its plans to increase the number of small parks in the city's north end and its push to bring Artspace, a housing development for artists, into the city's downtown, are all significant improvements for the city.

The professor added that the way the downtown district had embraced an art's movement was another important boost for the city ---just as important, in some respects, as what he called the "hardware" improvements needed in the city - that is, modifications of streets, buildings and public spaces.

Von Maur said "software" changes, or changes in the mentality and vision of the community, were equally important to the city's goal of maintaining a vision for the future of its north end.

"One smart way to explore things the city can do - even if there maybe isn't any money for things like improvements to the Trail Creek (corridor) or NICTD (Northwest Indiana Commuter Transportation District) tracks, is to invest in things like the arts movement, which is a way to keep interest and life in the town, and that's something that not highlighted enough by professionals like me." von Maur said.

Von Maur's presentation was also significant in that it omitted going into detail about several key elements of the city's north end. Von Maur omitted to offer a formal opinion about the city's choice about where to relocate its NICTD tracks; however he did feel the city should keep them in its north end.

"We felt, even if we didn't accomplish anything else, that if we could convince the city to keep the tracks in the north end, that would be an accomplishment," von Maur said. "...If the tracks were to move out of the north end... that would be like the final nail on the coffin."

That said, von Maur said he did not know the best way for the city to keep the tracks in the north end without cutting off access by some commuters to the beach.

Von Maur also did not address NIPSO's power plant in his presentation, even though the Andrews University plan urged the city to "seize every opportunity it can to ensure the removal of the cooling tower as soon as possible."

Von Maur said when the project was conducted, he was advised to focus his plan on "low-hanging fruit" --- or things the city could more easily accomplish than moving the power plant because the cost of such a venture might have distracted from other, more readily accomplished, improvements.

Overall, von Maur said the city should feel positive about the accomplishments it has managed in the past five years, which in light of the recession, he saw as remarkable.

"People are realizing there is potential here, and they are supporting a vision for its future," von Maur said.
Retirement Reception for Judy Nelson

Please join us as we honor Judy Nelson for her 25 years of service to Andrews University.

Celebrating the Life of Gerald (Jerry) Metzger

Friday, Nov. 9
4 p.m., 1401 Deer Trail in Roca, Nebraska

In celebration of the life of Gerald (Jerry) Metzger, his family invites you to join them on Friday, November 9, 2012 at 4 p.m. as they bury his ashes under a newly planted memorial tree at 1401 Deer Trail in Roca, Nebraska. This will be an informal celebration, held outside, so casual attire is entirely appropriate. All friends and extended family are welcome to join us as we remember and celebrate Jerry's life on this day.

If you are unable to attend the memorial service, in lieu of flowers, the family would appreciate donations made to the Jerry Metzger Memorial Fund via United Federal Credit Union in Berrien Springs, Mich. After the first of the year, these memorial funds will be used to purchase an item for the Berrien Springs/Oronoko Township Fire Department in Jerry's memory.
