Photo of the Week: It was Kittenpalooza in Buller Hall on Monday! Organized by Ashley Boyko, an animal science major, the event brought 11 kittens from the Berrien Springs Animal Shelter to the study lounge in Buller Hall. In her Facebook event invite, Boyko said, "Everyone needs some stress relief during finals and kittens are a great way to relax for a few minutes." Andrews an "Overperforming School" According to U.S. News & World Report

Andrews University was recently ranked #11 on U.S. News & World Report's Overperforming Schools in the Nation list, with an overall score of +75. This concept measures the degree to which a university's overall position in the rankings exceeds or falls short of its undergraduate academic reputation rank.

This was the magazine's first-ever analysis of colleges in the national universities ranking category that are overperforming or underperforming their undergraduate academic reputations in terms of their overall Best Colleges 2013 rankings.

"This report appears to support the reality that small private/Christian institutions can—and often do—offer an environment of excellence and nurturing where students thrive and succeed, often beyond what might be expected," says Andrea Luxton, provost of Andrews University. "However, it is also difficult for smaller institutions to find the resources to communicate that value widely, which inevitably leads to an underestimation of value. As far as Andrews is concerned, this report recognizes that our quality programs are very competitive with some of the best institutions in the nation."

In the study, the schools that were ranked, which include Andrews University, performed well in key academic metrics such as selective admissions, financial and faculty resources, alumni giving, and graduation and retention rates. Andrews University was the only institution in the Seventh-day Adventist educational system to be recognized as an overperforming university.

"With the additional value of the element of our Christian community, we have a winning combination!" says Luxton.

Earlier this year, Andrews University made a few other U.S. News & World Report college ranking lists too. With a diversity index of .73, the University tied for 4th in Campus Ethnic Diversity and with 13% of our student body composed of international students, Andrews tied for 9th in Most International Students.

Other overperforming universities include: Adelphi University, N.Y. (#1); Ashland University, Ohio (#2); University of St. Thomas, Minn. (#3); Stevens Institute of Technology, N.J. (#4); St. Mary's University of Minnesota, Minn. (#5); Azusa Pacific University, Calif. (#6); Edgewood College, Wis. (#7); University of Tulsa, Okla. (#8); Yeshiva University, N.Y. (#9); Biola University, Calif. (#10); St. John Fisher College, N.Y. (#12); South Carolina State University, S.C. (#13); University of La Verne, Calif. (#14) and Maryville University of St. Louis, Mo. (#15).

For more information on the rankings, visit http://www.usnews.com/education/blogs/college-rankings-blog/2012/11/29/which-ranked-universities-are-doing-better-than-their-academic-reputations.

Monday, Dec. 17, 2012 to Friday, Jan. 4, 2013

Bluegrass juggernaut

By JEREMY D. BONFIGLIO - H-P Features Writer | Posted: Thursday, December 6, 2012 5:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Darrin Vincent first heard musical partner Jamie Dailey sing at the 2001 International Bluegrass Music Association awards ceremony in Louisville, Ky.

Vincent, who was the guitar and mandolin player for Ricky Skaggs' band Kentucky Thunder, was sitting with Skaggs in the audience when Dailey, who was the lead singer and guitarist for Doyle Lawson & Quicksilver, began to sing "Be Living," the opening track from "Gospel Parade."

"When he hit that 'Be Living' thing, Ricky and I looked at each other and couldn't believe how great it sounded," Vincent says by telephone from Nashville, Tenn. "I was just smitten. I jumped up and beelined it backstage. And by the time he walked off stage I had my hand out and said, 'I'm Darrin Vincent and I want to be your friend.'"

The two musicians exchanged phone numbers backstage, and when they discovered they lived just 25 minutes from each other they decided to meet for breakfast at the Cracker Barrel in Cookeville, Tenn.

"We talked about songs and records," Vincent says. "We found out that we both loved the Lord and bluegrass music and just sort of hit it off."

It's that friendship that still guides Dailey & Vincent, the duo's bluegrass band that performs "A Bluegrass Christmas" on Saturday at Andrews University's Howard Performing Arts Center. Since officially forming in 2007, the band featuring Dailey (guitar, bass, vocals), Vincent (mandolin, guitar, bass, vocals), Christian Davis (guitar, vocals), Jeff Parker (mandolin, guitar, vocals) B.J. Cherryholmes (fiddle) and Jessie Baker (banjo, guitar), has become a bluegrass juggernaut. They are the first act in the history of the IBMA awards to be named Entertainer of the Year and Emerging Artist in the same year. Now with five albums to their credit, including this year's "The Gospel Side of Dailey & Vincent," the reigning three-time IBMA Entertainers of the Year show no signs of slowing down.

"First of all, we're not normal people," Vincent says about the band's chemistry. "So our personalities just really work together. We take that bond and the ignorance we both have to the stage. And somehow, the talents the Lord has given us - our harmonies that blend so well, and a group of musicians around us who adds to everything we do - and the whole thing becomes really special. People like the genuineness of what we bring because it's just us. What you see on stage is how we are off stage."

Vincent started singing when he was 3 years old and by age 6 he became a member of his family band, The Sally Mountain Show, along with his well-known sister Rhonda Vincent.

"It's like growing up in the circus," Darrin Vincent says. "When your family's in the circus you want to be in the circus, too. The Sally Mountain Show was my mom and dad, Rhonda and our brother Brian. It was the five of us and we went worldwide. I did that all my life until Rhonda moved to Nashville and started her country career."

Vincent soon followed and for more than 10 years was a member of Skaggs' Kentucky Thunder.

Dailey, meanwhile, had a similar upbringing singing and playing with family and regional groups all over middle Tennessee and Kentucky. He gained national attention when he joined Lawson & Quicksilver in 1998 as lead, baritone and tenor singer. During his tenure, the band won 13 IBMA Awards - including seven Vocal Group of the Year awards - and earned four Grammy and five Dove Award nominations.

After that initial meeting, it wasn't until 2004 that Dailey and Vincent recorded their first song together. Vincent was producing "Christmas Grass: Vol. 2" when he got the go ahead to add any track he wanted. He called Dailey and the two partnered to sing "Beautiful Star of Bethlehem." After the song spent six months atop bluegrass charts, they began to talk about forming a band of their own.

"Jamie had wanted to do his own thing for awhile, but it was really hard for me," Vincent says. "I love Ricky (Skaggs) and leaving a secure job and a prestigious position was difficult for me to do. Jamie finally said, 'Look, if we're going to do this we've got to make a decision.' I said, 'Let me pray about it.' The next morning I woke up and my wife said, 'If you want to do this thing with Jamie you've got my 100 percent support.' When she said that I immediately got on the phone and called Jamie and said, 'OK, let's give our notice.'"

They released the eponymous debut "Dailey & Vincent" in 2008 on Rounder Records, followed by "Brothers from Different Mothers" (2009), "Singing from the Heart" (2009), "Dailey & Vincent Sing the Statler Brothers" (2010) and "The Gospel Side of Dailey & Vincent" (2012). Their past two records have been sold exclusively at Cracker Barrel's Old Country Store.

"Ever since we started we've had a number of people say to us, 'I wish you'd record this song or record that song' and they're mostly gospel tunes," Vincent says. "So we set the table and found songs and then presented it to Cracker Barrel and Rounder and they liked the idea. Since it was released in January it was No. 1 on Billboard for six or seven weeks and in the Top 10 ever since."

On Saturday, the band will play several songs off the album as well as traditional Christmas carols such as "Silver Bells," "Rockin' Around The Christmas Tree" and "Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer." The annual Christmas tour also features "A Dailey and Vincent Christmas Medley" of "The First Noel," "Silent Night" and "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing," Dailey's rendition of the Ray Charles song "Spirit of Christmas," and covers of Keith Whitely's "There's A New Kid In Town" and Skaggs' "Go Thee Down."

"We only did a four-date tour last year just to see if anybody would be interested in this Christmas show and this year we're already doing nine shows," Vincent says. "I think it's just going to continue to grow. We've got some surprises that I think people really enjoy and get a kick out of. If they come out, I think they'll laugh and have a good time."

Which Ranked Universities Are Doing Better Than Their Academic Reputations?

By ROBERT MORSE

November 29, 2012

U.S. News is publishing a first-ever analysis of colleges in our National Universities ranking category that are overperforming or underperforming their undergraduate academic reputations in terms of their overall Best Colleges 2013 rankings. This concept measures the degree to which a university's overall position in the rankings exceeds or falls short of its undergraduate academic reputation rank.

How should these results be interpreted?

If a school is doing better in the overall rankings than in its undergraduate academic reputation, it means the school is performing relatively well in the other key academic indicators used in the rankings: admissions selectivity, financial and faculty resources, alumni giving, and graduation and retention rates. It also means that a school's undergraduate reputation among its academic peers is lagging behind the progress the school has achieved in the underlying academic indicators.

On the other hand, if a school's academic reputation ranking is better than its overall ranking, it means that the school's performance in the key academic indicators used by U.S. News is not keeping pace with its academic reputation. This could mean that the school's undergraduate academic reputation is benefiting from a much higher reputation held by its various graduate schools. Or, it could mean that the school's reputation has yet to fully reflect negative trends that are taking place in the underlying academic indicators.

All the top overperforming universities except South Carolina State University are private schools. Many of the overperformers are relatively small research universities that grant fewer doctorates and conduct less research than others schools in their category. All the underperformers are large public universities—in some cases the top "flagship" public in their state—whose academic reputation rank exceeds the performance in the academic indicators.

For National Universities, the U.S. News ranking formula gives the academic reputation peer score a weight of 15 percent in the overall ranking model. Peer assessments are subjective, but they are also important because a diploma from a distinguished college helps graduates get good jobs or gain admission to top-notch graduate programs.

Only schools that were numerically ranked National Universities in the Best Colleges 2013 rankings were included in this analysis.

Big Problem Bigger Solution by Jerry Horton

Jerry G. Horton, a graduate of Andrews Theological Seminary, recently published his first book titled, Big Problem Bigger Solution. This book is a 12-step journey that will assist the reader in overcoming whatever sin is causing destruction or conflict in their life. It includes: several important quotes from the Bible and Ellen White on sin, a prayer of surrender and consecration at the end of steps three through twelve, information on how to restore broken relationships, short thought moments called "truth moments", story breaks and story takeaways. It also includes how to deal with life after the twelve steps, such as during a "relapse" or "withdrawal". This book is an excellent resource for personal study and/or small groups.

The book is now available at the Andrews University campus bookstore and online at www.lulu.com.

Parakeets Care

I will be home for two weeks starting Wednesday, Dec. 12, and was hoping to find someone to take care of my two parakeets while I am away. They are very sweet (though not tame) and would just need someone to supply them with water and food every few days, and clean the cage once a week (it's very easy and only takes a few minutes). I would provide the food for them. If anyone can help, please email me at alexe@andrews.edu, or call 269-313-3122.
