International Student Services
Dear AU and community family:

Greetings to you from the Office of International Student Services & Programs at Andrews University. We have numerous international students that are here from a more pleasantly warmer climate and find these early fall mornings to be chillier than they desire. Therefore, they are requesting gently used coats, jackets, boots, scarves, hats and gloves. I am writing on their behalf to ask for donations of these items. If you were already planning on giving the items away, we would love to have them be given to us so we can make them available to our students in need.

As for sizes and gender, we will take any sizes and for either gender. We would also appreciate receiving the same items for children (ages 0-12). If you happen to be on campus, you may drop donations off at our office on the main floor of the Campus Center building or if you prefer for us to pick them up, please call 269-471-3310 or email us at: iss@andrews.edu.

Thank you all and God bless you for your ministry to the needy.

AICER Symposium with Karl Bailey

Andrews International Center for Educational Research (AICER) invites students and faculty to attend a research symposium on Tuesday, Oct. 15, at 5:30 p.m.

Presenter: Dr. Karl Bailey, Behavioral Neuroscience program coordinator and associate professor of psychology.

Title: Beyond the IRB: Who is Responsible for Ethical Research?

In the United States, responsibility for ethical treatment of review subjects is ensured by the federally mandated Institutional Review Board structure. However, ethical research requires ethical commitments beyond the narrow definition of 45 CFR 46 (the law describing Institutional Review Boards). We will examine three case studies in order to better understand the implications of research ethics being solely defined by the Institutional Review Board process, and will discuss the role that researchers play in ethical research.

Online participants may login as "Guest" at https://andrews.adobeconnect.com/_a877709416/research/ or http://www.andrews.edu/sed/aicer/researchwebinars/ whether or not they are registered Andrews students.

Ellen White: Daring Liberal & Immovable Conservative

Adventist Forum presents "Ellen White: Daring Liberal and Immovable Conservative," presented by Alden Thompson, professor of biblical studies at Walla Walla University in College Place, Wash.

The presentation will be held in Garber Auditorium in Chan Shun Hall at Andrews University on Saturday, Oct. 19, 2013, at 3:30 p.m.

After serving as a pastor in southeastern California from 1967 to 1970, Thompson became a faculty member of Walla Walla University in 1970. From 1972 to 1974 he studied at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland and was awarded a doctorate in Old Testament and Judaic Studies. His dissertation was published in 1977 by Scholars Press. He taught for two years in Germany, and from 1986 to 1990 he served as the academic vice president of Walla Walla University, returning to full-time teaching in the School of Theology in 1990.

Thompson is much concerned with church unity, and has described his 2009 book, "Beyond Common Ground: Why Liberals and Conservatives Need Each Other," as "a kind of capstone to my teaching career." He has discussed differing personality types and how they relate to God and the church.

He supports the process of change and has argued that during her life Ellen White, one of the founders of the Seventh-day Adventist church, made significant changes in her views of God. His series "From Sinai to Golgotha," a five-part sequence published in the Adventist Review, discusses a change from a more fear-based picture of God in the Bible at Mt. Sinai, to a more grace-based image of God at the cross. He also claims Ellen White personally moved from fear to joy. His article, "The Scary Lady of Adventism Learns to Have Fun" and his book, "Escape from the Flames: How Ellen White Grew from Fear to Joy—and Helped Me to Do It Too" (2005), have a similar theme.

Thompson's speaking engagements and writings cover many topics, including the Old Testament, Ellen White studies, inspiration, and Seventh-day Adventist history.
Adventist Forum is open to the public. All are welcome. For information, contact Art Robertson at robertsa2@earthlink.net or call 269-471-7150.

GROW Group Leaders for Spring 2014
We are now recruiting GROW Group Leaders for the spring semester! The deadline for registrations is December 2, 2013.

Many students and faculty missed out on the opportunity to lead this fall because they were away for the summer when group leaders were signing their group up. Don’t miss out for the Spring semester! Get thinking about what you would like to do in your group, and then make a commitment by signing your group up. It often times helps to have a co-leader. That is what our seasoned leaders tell us.

Go to pmchurch.org/newgrowgroup to see what information you need to provide. We will help you with a location, or you may make your own arrangement. Be the 1st to register a Spring group! This is a call to Discipleship, Fellowship, and a lot of fun!

National Depression Screening Day

The Counseling & Testing Center is celebrating the National Depression Screening Day (NDSD) on Thursday, October 10, 2013.

Depression, anxiety, and related mood disorders cannot be seen on an x-ray. Yet mental illness is painful, and the stigma associated with it often prevents many from seeking help. We want to bring down the barriers of stigma through education and community involvement. We know that there is hope and that connectedness is a powerful medicine.

Whether for depression or another mental health issue, a screening will help you to better understand your state of mind and whether it might be in your interest to seek further help. We'll be offering free and confidential screenings from 12:30-2:30pm at the Leadership Lab, next to Student Life @ the Campus Center. Also, you can take a free, anonymous, self-assessment for depression, anxiety, and more, without even leaving your dorm room or apartment, 24/7, by visiting our online screening portal: http://www.mentalhealthscreening.org/screening/andrews

In addition, you can become involved in these activities we have planned from 12:30-2:30 in front of the Campus Center:

- Hope. Share a message of hope with others. Let others know how you keep yourself healthy or the benefits of seeking help. We'll display a collage at the Campus Center. Also, if you want to, we'll take your picture and share your inspiration through Instagram (#AUStandsForHope).

- Get a hug. Look for one of our volunteers with a "Free Hugs" signs and open your arms and get some love.

- Create. Stop by our T-shirt station and design your own t-shirts with messages of hope that encourage others to seek help. You can also get creative with sidewalk chalk to raise awareness about depression, share your inspiration, and motivate others to seek help.

- Reflect. Suicide is the second leading cause of death for college students. Most of us can think of someone that has been impacted by the loss of a friend or a loved one due to depression and suicide. We'll offer a space to reflect and honor their memory. You'll be able to plant a flag in memoriam.

- Pray. Do you have a prayer request for yourself or for a friend? You'll be able to write them down and we'll have volunteers who will be praying for these requests. You are welcomed to join in prayer for others for as long as you want.

There will be many ways to become involved. Come, show your support, and raise awareness about depression. There is hope.

To learn more about depression and how to prevent suicide, visit http://www.helpguide.org/topics/depression If you are concerned about yourself or about someone else, we're here to help. Give us a call 269-471-3470.

SSF October Prayer Mission
The Power of Prayer goes beyond walls, prison bars and even physical, spiritual and political borders.
Places like North Korea, China and Iraq have a strong hold against religious freedom but the Power of the Holy Spirit is not frail nor is He under any jurisdiction, therefore we are praying all through October for the pouring down of the Holy Spirit through visions and dreams in North Korea. Will you join us in this and future prayer missions.
"And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come". Matthew 24:14

A Change in the Dining Service's Sabbath Policy
Guests of Dining Services,

As a result of a partnership between the Administration of Andrews University and the Dining Services Management Team seeking to more properly honor the Sabbath Day, cash transactions on the Sabbath will no longer be an option in Dining Services after October 26, 2013.

As always, we offer the option to purchase pre-paid Café Cards to all of our guests to allow them to prepare ahead for dining in the café on Sabbath. These cards are available in any amount and can be purchased through the Dining Services Office or the Cashier station during the week.

The Sabbath is a special and holy day, set apart from all other days of the week, and this partnership seeks to not only honor the day, but to provide the ability to prepare in advance. We know that our guests view the Sabbath as a treasured time of the week and a central component of their faith. These choices strengthen and bond us together as a faith community. We will continue to accept credit and debit cards for our guests who have traveled to visit our campus, but their use is discouraged.

When you decide to acquire your Café Card, please visit the Dining Services Office Monday - Thursday 9:00 AM to 5:30 PM or on Friday from 9:00 AM to 12:00 PM. You may also call us at 269-471-3161.

We appreciate your understanding and your support and look forward to continuing to serve you for all your dining needs. Your questions or concerns are welcomed and can be answered by contacting the number above.

Blessings to you,

Title: How to Write a Theoretical Framework

Presenter: Dr. Raymond Ostrander

Whether you are writing a thesis, dissertation, or an article, the ability to craft a cogent and coherent theoretical framework is crucial to the process. Dr. Ostrander will present a practical, four-step process for writing a theoretical framework. These four steps include (1) looking at the larger theoretical base of your study topic, (2) presenting a brief historical overview of theoretical thinking related to your topic, (3) describing the current context of theoretical thinking, and (4) presenting a series of logic statements specific to your study that identify the variables your study addresses.

Online participants to login as “Guest” at https://andrews.adobeconnect.com/_a877709416/research/ or http://www.andrews.edu/sed/aicer/researchwebinars/ whether or not they are registered Andrews students.

Bahamian artist and illustrator Jace Mckinney began a new chapter in his career this year; he returned to the classroom to pursue studies in Theology at Andrews University in Michigan. Over the past few months, this experience has not merely enriched his spiritual life, but also informed his creative practice.

Jace was the 2012 winner of the prestigious Central Bank of The Bahamas Art Competition's open category under the theme "Redefining the Landscape". He is currently preparing for his upcoming show 'Decoding Salvation' at the bank's gallery this September.

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Most of us don't think about food as being political and having social justice implications, but maybe we should.

That was the message brought to Andrews University by author, nutritionist and consumer activist Marion Nestle.

Nestle, a public health and sociology professor at New York University, said despite problems such as obesity and food insecurity, she's hopeful that people's attitudes and actions are changing for the better.

"I'd be depressed if I didn't think that we're in the midst of a food revolution," she told an audience of about 75 Thursday night at the opening speech of Andrews' McElmurry Ethics & Society Lectureship.

This year's McElmurry Lectureship ends today with three presentations - the biblical perspective on a plant-based diet at 9:30 a.m., the ethics of caring for animals at 11 a.m. and agriculture's effect on spirituality at 3:30 p.m. All presentations are free and open to the public in the Garber Auditorium at Chan Shun Hall.

"It's not the typical social movement like we saw with the civil rights, women's and environmental movements. This is a movement that is very diverse and fragmented. Whether people are interested in eating organic, local or being herbivores, they all want to eat healthier. It's happening everywhere."

Nestle said the revolution is starting because people have witnessed what has happened over the last several decades with the rise of obesity and food insecurity at the same time.

Worldwide, 842 million people suffer from chronic hunger and have no reliable source of food, she said. The situation is more complicated in the United States, where people in poverty deal with the seemingly contradictory problems of not having enough food and obesity.

She reported that the percentage of Americans who are obese has risen from 15 percent in 1980 to 34 percent in 2008 and that obesity costs the economy between $150 and $190 billion a year in lost productivity and health care expenses. It's not just an American problem; other countries around the world also are seeing increases in obesity and its associated health problems, such as heart disease, stroke and diabetes.

Nestle traced the rise in obesity rates to the simple fact that people are eating more, coupled with the fact they don't realize they are. Food intake has risen from an average of 3,200 calories a day in the 1980s to 3,900 calories now.

Their knowledge is no match for their actual consumption. In the 1980s they thought they were eating 1,900 calories a day, and now they think they're eating 2,100 calories a day.
She blamed part of Americans' overeating on the deregulation of agriculture, Wall Street and food marketing. The first resulted in farmers growing more food, and the second in companies looking for more ways to sell and market food. The third deregulation - in marketing - has meant more food marketing to kids.

"It changed the way people ate. Food was cheaper and people ate out more, much of it at fast food restaurants," Nestle said. "Food in restaurants usually has more calories and bigger portion sizes. Lower prices, such as the dollar menus at McDonald's, is an incentive to eat more."

She noted that corporations spend millions to market food projects and in recent years have realized the value of putting health claims on packaging even when they don't mean a lot. "Any kind of health claim makes people think it's low calorie," she said. "It's really, really difficult to eat less and eat better."

Nestle also spoke about the clash between personal and social responsibility. A company might be doing what it needs to do to make money and build its business, but what it's doing might have harmful consequences to public health.

One recent example of the clash came with New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg's efforts to get rid of trans fats and to require restaurants to give calorie information, and with his campaign to ban large-size sodas, she said. While the trans-fat ban went through and the restaurant labeling requirement is part of the Affordable Care Act, Bloomberg has received pushback on the soda ban from people saying he's infringing on their personal rights.

Nestle's advice to people is to "vote with your fork" and do things like choosing to eat foods that are grown locally and encourage schools to have fresher food for students rather than junk food.

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Chanticleer is beginning its 36th season by expanding their musical horizon. Known mostly for interpretations of Renaissance music, the male classical vocal ensemble has begun exploring more modern sounds on their new album, "Someone New," which will be available later this month.

"Someone New" features songs from jazz artists (Antônio Carlos Jobim and Dave Brubeck) and rock and country legends (Tom Waits, Freddie Mercury and Johnny Cash), as well as songs from newer bands like M83, Elbow and Keane.

Chanticleer has explored contemporary music idioms in the past, most notably in jazz, gospel, folk and pop music genres, but never to this extent.

"Chanticleer, for a long time, has considered it part of our mission to commission new choral works and expand the greater choral repertoire," Chanticleer interim music director Jace Wittig says by telephone from the choral ensemble's office in San Francisco. "We have commissioned composers to write forward-thinking works for us. We have certainly commissioned plenty of gospel arrangements from our former music director, Joseph Jennings. But we haven't commissioned a lot of jazz and pop arrangements."

Chanticleer selected several songs that they wanted to perform and commissioned new arrangements from composers they hadn't worked with before, like New York-based composer and conductor Steve Hackman and a couple of members from the vocal ensemble New York Voices.

"Certainly, this isn't something new for us," Wittig says. "It's an area of renewed focus. That was one of the ideas behind the album, to expand that part of our repertoire. We got together a song list, everything from jazz standards to Johnny Cash to Peter Gabriel to indie-pop bands from England."

Fans of the Grammy Award-winning 12-man vocal group need not worry that they have abandoned their "orchestra of voices" sound.

"We have commissioned arrangements that still sound like Chanticleer," Wittig says. "They're still interesting and intelligent, but they're a bit on the lighter side. We chose the songs for the album that had lyrical content or melodic content, or both. It had to hold its own against a piece by Eric Whitacre or a gospel arrangement that our audiences have heard before."

Chanticleer, dubbed "the world's reigning male chorus" by The New Yorker magazine, will bring their new show "She Said/He Said" on Tuesday to Andrews University's Howard Performing Arts Center.

"In some ways, it's a typical tour program for us," Wittig says. "We cover a lot of musical territory - everything from Hildegard von Bingen, who is one of the earliest known female composers, writing music way back in the 11th century, all the way up through things that were written for us just this past spring. We do the tour de force in terms of musical history, starting with the Renaissance, working our way through romantic lieder from Germany and some early 20th century French pieces by Ravel, who is one of my very favorite composers. American works, modern works, folk songs, jazz, a little bit of everything."

The title of the program, Wittig says, is a reference to the male and female perspectives of romantic love.

"We begin the program with a bunch of really special Marian motets by composers from Italy and Spain and the Renaissance," he says. "We go from there through the Romantic era, where we feature a pairing from Fanny and Felix Mendelssohn. We actually have a bit of a literal feminine perspective mixed in, as well."

The first half of the program ends with a composition from modern composer Samuel Barber and an arrangement from Hackman of "Wait" from the French band M83.

"Both settings are Emily Dickinson texts that deal with time and eternity and death and life's impermanence," Wittig says.

The M83 song is a good example of how easily contemporary music can blend in with the classical standards.

"That is definitely the most classical piece on the album, which is why it's on the first half of this program," Wittig says. "It's very orchestral and very expansive."

"She Said/He Said" also premieres "Give Me Hunger" by Chicago-based composer Stacy Garrop and Vince Peterson's arrangement of Joni Mitchell's "Both Sides Now."

"She is considered by some to be one of the most important songwriters, male or female, of the entire 20th century," Wittig says of Mitchell.

In the past, classical music audiences may have looked down their noses at the "low art" of rock music, but Wittig says times have changed.

"We do have a big 'early music' audience, but just as much nowadays, we have people that know us through gospel albums or through folk albums, the things that Chanticleer has released in the last 10 or 15 years," he says. "... I don't think we differentiate the way we approach any sort of music. If we are going to perform it, we are going to dig in and find what makes it interesting, and what makes it special for the audience."

Students make stop in Harbor Springs to study town's architecture

Last week 17 graduate architecture students visited Harbor Springs, taking measurements, sketching, and photographing various buildings throughout the downtown area. The students, who were from Andrew's University in Berrien Springs (located in southwest Michigan), were conducting research for a school project, part of an actual corridor plan that would revise zoning and incorporate more pedestrian friendly development usage for an area within their community. The trip to Harbor Springs was part of an eight day tour of studying architecture in communities across the state in order to gather ideas and resources for their project in Berrien Springs, which is slated for completion in December.

"Essentially, we're on an extended field trip so the students can research development and town building trends throughout Michigan," said Andrew von Maur, associate professor of architecture at Andrews University. "All of the students are part of the Urban Design Studio at Andrews University and part of this involves doing real work for clients in actual communities."

The trip stretched across the state and up the western coast of Michigan. Students visited towns such as Birmingham, Grand Rapids, Holland, Traverse City, Harbor Springs, and Petoskey. In order to get a better idea of what works in regard to urban development, students spoke with local developers and architects throughout the course of the trip. While here, students met up and chatted with Rob Mossburg, owner of the Cottage Company in Harbor Springs.

"Harbor Springs has many new exciting things happening here, many of them very progressive," von Maur said. "It's been great for the students to speak with Rob and see all the projects this company has contributed to throughout town. Our students are here to learn from this and to take back any information and ideas that will help us pursue the project we're working on in our own town."

When asked why Harbor Springs was one stop on their trip across the state, von Maur said he had visited the area before, back when he was a student.

"I came here in 1998 as an architecture student and my professor pointed to Harbor Springs as a great historic town model," he said. "Now, it's beneficial to bring my students here to see the town as a historic model, but also to look at all the new things that are being
One of the city's potential upcoming projects that von Maur is excited about is the proposed waterfront design plan.

"Looking at the waterfront plan, I was very impressed by what they're hoping to do here," von Maur noted. "It seems like it would be a right thing to do for the town, and the value of the improved waterfront area will be of tremendous value to homeowners and the town as a whole. In my opinion, it's a no-brainer. There are a lot of good things happening in this community, and this is one of them."

Students spent three nights in northern Michigan, including looking at architecture models in Petoskey and Bay View before moving on to their next destination in the state.

"Every place is a little different," von Maur said. "It's interesting to learn how communities deal with things and what is successful and what is not. We hope that our students can take some of these ideas and incorporate them into their own community in the future."
Here is The Post’s review of major movement on the U.S. News national universities list since the 2010-11 edition, released three years ago. The analysis encompasses schools that were on the top 200 lists this year and three years ago. (Yes, we know there is a national liberal arts list too. We’ll try to look at that soon.)

First, the gainers.

- San Diego State University had the largest jump, 31 places, to 152.

- Up 25 were the Polytechnic Institute of New York University (to 128) and the University of Massachusetts at Lowell (to 158).

- Up 21 was the University of Cincinnati (to 135). Up 20 was Northeastern University (to 49), which was notable because big gains are rarer at the high end of the scale.

- Up 17 each were Stony Brook-State University of New York (to 82) and Texas Christian University (to 82).

- Up 16: Loyola University Chicago (to 101).

- Up 15: University of Rhode Island (to 152); University of Louisville (to 161); University at Albany-SUNY (to 128); Boston University (to 41, another notable case); DePaul University (to 121); University of Illinois-Chicago (to 128).

- Up 13: Brigham Young University-Provo (to 62); Florida State University (to 91); and University of South Florida (to 170).

- Up 12: University of St. Thomas (to 112); University of Connecticut (to 57); University of Vermont (to 82).

- Up 11: University at Buffalo-SUNY (to 109); Temple University (to 121); Clark University (to 75).

- Up 10: University of Oklahoma (to 101); St. Mary's University of Minnesota (to 173); North Carolina State University-Raleigh (to 101); University of Kentucky (to 119); Andrews University (to 181); University of Nevada-Reno (to 181) and Penn State University (notably, to 37).

Help Verlyn Benson
Verlyn Benson (former Dean of College of Technology and now Assistant to Provost and President) has been stricken with a rare and very serious form of liver cancer. The tumor is large and invasive. He is going to Mayo Clinic weekly for chemo treatments and blood work. This is expensive and there have been a number of requests from those who would like to help with his heavy travel costs. On a website for donations, “Give Forward”, a page has been set up for contributing to Verlyn’s expenses: http://gfwd.at/1d8Cy9e. He also is blogging at: http://www.caringbridge.org/visit/verlynbenson. (You may make donations to the Caring Bridge but they are to support that website and not Verlyn’s medical travel expenses.)

Funeral Arrangements for Judy Chittick
Judy Chittick, wife of Tom Chittick (recently retired chair of the Department of Agriculture), passed to her rest Sunday evening, Sept. 1, after a brief battle with brain cancer.

Visitation will take place at Allred Funeral Home in Berrien Springs on Wednesday, Sept. 4, between 6-8 p.m. The funeral service will be held at Pioneer Memorial Church on Thursday, Sept. 5, at 2 p.m., followed by interment at Rose Hill Cemetery.

Neil and Tina Carruthers married in 2010, and nine months later, her cancer returned.

When Neil Carruthers married Tina Nedelcu three years ago, he knew her funeral might arrive sooner than either wanted. She had already been treated for brain cancer, and had learned anew to talk and walk and coax her lovely voice to sing again in church.

For some, illness puts love on hold. Not Neil. “He said, ‘Mom, you don’t marry someone for their pedigree and you don’t marry them for their health history,’ ” his mother, Rosanne, recalled. “He told me, ‘Mom, whatever time we have, I want to spend with her.’ ”

Nine months after they married in 2010, the cancer returned. Early this year they moved in with Neil’s parents in Stoneham, and he stopped working so he could tend to all Tina’s needs.
When she could no longer speak, he sat by the bed and read from a Bible whose passages she had highlighted so brightly and frequently it was as if Scripture glowed from every page.

“I know he was helping to prepare her,” Rosanne said, “but for me as a mother, as a Christian, it was as if she was preparing him as well.”

No one, however, could anticipate what would unfold the morning of Aug. 11 when Neil walked out of Tina’s room and collapsed. Rosanne, a nurse at Winchester Hospital, performed CPR, but two hours of efforts by medical workers failed to revive Neil at home and at the hospital, where he died. As it happens, he had gone for a physical a few days earlier and his physician saw nothing amiss. His family is awaiting autopsy results.

Before leaving for the hospital, Rosanne had broken the news to Tina that something happened to Neil, “and I know she understood. When I came home, I went in and I held her hand and I told her, ‘Tina, he didn’t make it, he’s going to have to be there waiting for you,’ and tears ran right down her cheeks.”

Forty six hours later, Tina died in hospice care. She was 29, he was 34, and their joint funeral will be held in Stoneham Saturday.

“God knew they were going to go at the same time,” Neil’s mother said.

The convergence of their lives and love that began when they met in 2008 was in many ways as improbable as their final two days.

Neil grew up in Stoneham, but Florentina Nedelcu, the youngest of four children, was born in Constanta, Romania, on the Black Sea, and was a toddler when the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear disaster occurred some 650 miles to the north. “We were told to stay indoors,” said her oldest brother, Dave Sorin Wilson of Georgia. “As kids, we didn’t know how harmful it was.”

Tina and her siblings helped out with the family business selling flowers. Drawn to the beauty of blossoms, young Tina could be found walking the aisles, plucking tops off flowers, said her sister, Larisa Nedelcu of Florida.
She was 7 when her family immigrated to the United States, and she lived in places such as New York City and Missouri before settling in the Atlanta area. “She loved to laugh and she loved to make other people laugh,” her sister said. “Not only that, but she had a way of making people feel comfortable around her.”

A couple of years out of high school, Tina started experiencing seizures. Initially misdiagnosed, a brain tumor showed up on an MRI, and she underwent surgery in 2006, her sister said. Having been temporarily paralyzed, Tina had relearned how to make her way in the world in her mid-20s. She was living in Georgia when she met Neil Mason Carruthers via an online Christian Adventist dating website.

The younger of two children, Neil “was always caring as a kid,” said his sister, Jill Hodson of Sterling. “He didn’t like confrontation, but he knew what he believed in. He wouldn’t give in to peer pressure.”

Inspired by visits to his grandparents in Maine, he became enamored of the outdoors, and would ask to be dropped off at the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary for hikes.

“Nature was part of who he really was,” his mother said. “Material things weren’t important to him.”

Tall and healthy, he also played basketball and “always looked young,” said his father, Bob. “He never aged.”

“He had cute dimples,” Neil’s sister said. “He was very handsome, and he was very health conscious.”

Neil graduated from Greater Boston Academy, a Christian school in Stoneham, and at a Seventh-day Adventist camp, he met Matthew Hiscock, who was a year behind him at school. They remained close and Hiscock was a groomsman in Neil’s wedding.

“In a nutshell, Neil was one of those guys you want as a friend,” said Hiscock, who now lives in Fall River. “And if you don’t have someone like that as a friend, you miss out on something great.”

At Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich., Neil studied environmental science and spent a couple of summers working in the Alzheimer’s unit of a nearby facility.

After graduating, he did landscaping and construction on Cape Cod, then returned to Stoneham. He took a job at Winchester Hospital as a patient safety associate and sat through nights with confused, elderly patients, or those at risk of falling, to keep them safe.
“You have to have the patience of a saint. Neil did,” said his supervisor, Mary Beth Strauss. “And he loved what he did. He worked overnight so he could take care of Tina during the day. When he talked about his wife, you could feel the love between them. There was something really remarkable with those two.”

When Tina and Neil first began talking online in 2008, their conversations about faith and friendship soon led them to meet in person and meet each other’s families. They married Sept. 5, 2010, in the Seventh-day Adventist church in Lawrenceville, Ga.

“Tina believed that a miracle had happened, that the tumor was taken away and she was going on with her life,” Neil’s mother said. “She just started living her life, and it amazed me how little she dwelled on that. Both of them they had such a strong faith about heaven and the hereafter, and that was going to be a better place.”

Faith faces few tests bigger than a terminal illness, but Tina and Neil kept living their lives in Stoneham, traveling when possible, or going to the Museum of Fine Arts and plays, whale watches, and sporting events.

“There’s a whole bucket here of tickets for all the places they went,” Neil’s father said.

In addition to his mother, father, and sister, Neil leaves his maternal grandmother, Virginia Mason of South Woodstock, Maine. In addition to her brother and sister, Tina leaves her father and mother, Aurel and Aurica Nedelcu of Missouri; and another brother, Adrian Nedelcu of Georgia.

A celebration of their lives will begin at 3 p.m. Saturday, in Stoneham Memorial Seventh-day Adventist Church, with a half-hour of music followed by a service.

During Tina’s final months, taking care of her filled all of Neil’s hours.

“He never, never gave up,” his mother said. “When she lost her speech, I would have been so frustrated. He’d say, ‘Mom, she can tell me so much with her eyes.’ He’d say, ‘Mom, she can tell me more than most people can tell me with words.’”

Roger Steven Vitrano

Obituary

Roger Steven Vitrano, a beloved son, husband, father and brother, was born on November 4, 1959 in St. Joseph, Michigan and died on September 2, 2013 in Auburn, California of complications related to Multiple Sclerosis, which he faced with courage and dignity. Growing up in Berrien Springs, Michigan, Roger was an excellent scholar and athlete. He graduated from Andrews Academy in 1978 after starring in varsity sports, particularly as the quarterback, and as a member and officer of the National Honor Society. He loved being involved in extra-curricular activities during high school and delighted one summer in touring Europe with his parents, who preceded him in death. Besides performing well scholastically and athletically during college at Andrews University (AU), Roger served as Vice-President of the Student Body Association and was Chairman of the Student Senate. While attending AU, he also traveled to Australia on a University sponsored tour and graduated in 1982 with a degree in Business. After college, Roger contemplated becoming a lawyer and applied to several schools, including Harvard, to which he was accepted. However, before continuing his education, he moved to Washington DC and worked as an intern in the Office of Management and Budget during the Reagan administration. Ultimately, he elected to enroll at Indiana University in the School of Business in pursuit of his MBA. While attending the Indianapolis campus he once again excelled and was awarded the Outstanding Student Award in the MBA Career Integrated Program of the graduating class of 1986. He was also given recognition for distinguished service a member of the Student Advisory Board. In 1984, while attending IU, he married Jennifer (Ginger) Duff, his college sweetheart. Upon graduating from IU, Roger and Ginger moved to Gaithersburg, Maryland, where Roger was employed as Vice President of Planning and Development at Shady Grove Adventist Hospital and where he first worked with Michel Augsburger. While in Gaithersburg, his two beautiful and talented daughters, Alle and Amy, were born. In 1991, while still at Shady Grove, Roger was invited by Michel to join him in Santa Rosa, California to work for Breckinridge Healthcare, where they worked together for 18 months. While there, Roger was approached about founding Chancellor Health Care with Michel and two other partners. Roger's professional dream was realized and life was good. He was involved in the local school board, church activities, social events and settled in to raise a family with Ginger. 1993 brought difficult news when Roger was diagnosed with MS. In spite of that, Roger performed his responsibilities admirably but had to quit the job he loved so much in 1998 after suffering a head injury resulting from a fall. Shortly after, in 1999, he moved again to be closer to Ginger's family in Tennessee but ultimately returned to Northern California in 2001. He moved into Auburn Oaks Care Center, in Auburn California and was cared for during the next 12 years by his wife, parents, brother and sister. Roger is survived by his wife of 29 years, his two daughters and a sister, Joyce Dirnberger, and brother, Ed. A Memorial will be held on October 19 at 4 p.m. in Orrison Chapel of Andrews Academy in Berrien Springs, Michigan. Interment will occur at Rose Hill Cemetery in Berrien Springs where Roger will be buried next to his parents. Online messages may be left at www.allredfuneralhome.com. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests a donation in his name be made to the Multiple Sclerosis Society. More than that, the family encourages you to pause for a moment when you see a disabled person in a wheel chair and take pause for empathy and thankfulness.

Volunteers Needed for Senior Day of Action
The United Way of Southwest Michigan is in need of at least 100 volunteers for Senior Day of Action on Thursday, November 7.

On that day, teams of volunteers will go to the homes of senior citizens throughout Berrien and Cass counties to rake leaves, clean gutters, and apply plastic to windows in preparation for winter. United Way has partnered with Area Agency on Aging to identify some of our community’s most vulnerable seniors who truly need this kind of assistance. We especially need teams in St. Joseph, Dowagiac, and Cassopolis, but could also use one more team in Marcellus and one more in Coloma.

To sign up and volunteer, please visit United Way’s website: www.uwsm.org Click on the “Days of Action” tab at the top and click on “Senior Day of Action”.

The deadline for volunteer sign-up is Oct 18th.

Monthly Camera Club Meeting
Berrien Springs Camera Club Monthly Meeting
Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 7 p.m.
Berrien Springs Public Library

As usual, there will be two select topics for the month. In addition, "Nature" is always an acceptable category, as are "Open" (any subject) and "Portraits." The two select categories for the October competition are "Action" and "Cracks and Crevices." "Nature" photos are to show nothing from human hands (no wires, fences, cultivated flowers, etc.). Thus a member can submit images in any of five categories or a combination thereof, though extra points are given for acceptances in the two select categories.

Prints, at least 5" x 7" in size, should be mounted, with the title and photographer's name on the back. Digital submissions, however, need to be sent in ahead, with instructions for submitting them on the club's blog site: http://berrienspringscameraclub.blogspot.com/

Any member may submit up to 10 projected images and/or 10 prints for the competition. Pictures are shown one at a time, and three judges score them by machine. The total points determine whether a photo is rated "honor," "acceptance," or "out." From the "honors," a Slide-of-the-Month and a Print-of-the-Month are selected. All are welcome, either to observe or to join. Refreshments will be served.

Lost Fountain pen
Dear friends, colleagues....
I have lost my black, aluminum fountain pen on Wednesday, 10/2/2013 most likely in or around buildings of the Seminary, Library or Nethery Hall. This very precious pen was given to me as a gift by one of my dear professors (he also baptized me back in 1995) when I completed my undergraduate studies in Theology. The cap of it is still with me since only the body fell of as the pen was pinned onto my t-shirt. Please take a look at the attached photo of the pen and if you came across of it and picked it up while walking in or around of these buildings please let me know. Thanks for all your efforts in advance.
