Friday Night Lights
Friday Night Lights, 9:30pm
Howard Performing Arts Center
AICER Symposium - College Accreditation

Andrews International Center for Educational Research (AICER) invites students and faculty to attend a symposium on college accreditation on Thursday November 14, at 5:30 p.m.

Title: What Accreditation Means and What Accreditors Are Looking for

Presenter: Dr. James Jeffrey, Dean of the School of Education, Andrews University

The School of Education (SED) offers the most accredited programs of any school or college at Andrews University. Why does the SED hold so many accreditations? Because earning a degree is a significant achievement and an important investment for our students and their futures. Since so much of their future success depends on their educational foundation, the quality of the education a student receives, makes a huge difference.

Earning a degree from a highly accredited program, verifies that the quality of the educational experience students have received meets the standards of the profession. It also increases and enhances employment opportunities and permits entry to a profession through licensure, registration, and certification.

The SED holds accreditation from NCATE, NASP, CACREP, the State of Michigan, and the NAD Office of Education. We are currently pursuing APA (American Psychological Association) accreditation for our PhD program in Counseling Psychology. Accreditation informs the public that the SED operates at the highest levels of educational quality and integrity.

Dr. Jim Jeffery, Dean, has led the SED through three highly successful NCATE accreditation visits. As well, he is only one of very few Adventist educators who are NCATE Board of Examiner members. In this capacity, he has been a member of visiting teams for the past 5 year and has visited 3 Catholic universities, an historically black Baptist college, the Teacher's College at Columbia University and several other private denominational colleges across the US.

Because of his experiences, Dr. Jeffrey is in a unique position to explain why accreditation is so important - and what accreditors look for when they arrive on a campus.

Face-to-face participants meet in Bell Hall 013.

Online participants to login as "Guest" at https://andrews.adobeconnect.com/p877709416/research/ or http://www.andrews.edu/sed/aicer/researchwebinars/ whether or not they are registered Andrews
Andrews University SciFEST

Nov 14-17 will be the first annual SciFEST weekend hosted by the STEM Division (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics) in the College of Arts & Sciences. This year we have invited Lake Union Academies to visit Andrews and participate in the science related events and activities.

The purpose of the weekend is to celebrate science and give the (high school) students a taste of what goes on at Andrews. Also, we want to show students that careers in the sciences fulfill God’s purpose for people’s lives – and that God has designed each of us in a special way; it is up to us to discover His design for our lives.

Students will attend a science show (put on by our faculty), participate in an egg drop and a quiz bowl. There will also be spiritual fellowship during a special Sabbath School and church service put on by our faculty and students.

We would like to invite the AU community to join for the following events:

Thurs, Nov 14, 7:30 pm: Science Show - Julian Thompson Amphitheater, Science Complex
Fri, Nov 15, 4:15 pm: Egg Drop - Outside Science Complex
Fri, Nov 15, 6:30 pm: Vespers & Afterglow - Chan Shun Hall
Sat, Nov 16, 9:30 / 10:45 am: STEM SS & Church - Chemistry Amphitheater, Science Complex
Sat, Nov 16, 7:30 pm: Quiz Bowl - Newbold Auditorium, Buller Hall

PCI Compliance Training

This training is mandatory for anyone who processes, stores, or transmits cardholder data here on the Andrews University campus. In order to protect payment cardholders' data the Payment Card Industry has established Data Security Standards for merchants processing credit card transactions. Compliance with these standards is required of ALL merchants that processes, store, or transmit cardholder data.

All Departments of the University which accept payment (credit) cards for payment of goods or services must comply with the policies and procedures of the standards that have been created by PCI. Failure to comply with this policy could result in the loss of the University's ability to accept credit card transactions for payment.

During the PCI Compliance Training, the Data Security standards will be discussed, including the importance of compliance for ALL merchants, and the consequences for failing to comply.

Please plan to attend PCI training during one of the following dates:

- Tuesday, November 5, 12:00-1:00pm: Lincoln Room at the Campus Center
- Wednesday, November 6, 2:30-4:30pm: Whirlpool Room at Chan Shun Hall

Time to Take Course Surveys

It is once again time for students to rate their courses through course surveys. Course surveys provide the opportunity to give important (and anonymous) feedback to instructors on the effectiveness of the course.

Most courses will be surveyed electronically through our automated system, Class Climate. Email invitations for each course survey will be sent Tuesday afternoon, November 5. If the survey is not taken, reminders will be sent automatically every three days until November 19. A Certificate of Completion will be generated after each survey is submitted. This may be saved or emailed, and used as proof of completion if the instructor offers any type of incentive.

Thank you in advance for your participation. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Institutional Effectiveness at ext. 3308 (assessment@andrews.edu)

Film Class Attends Film Festival

As part of his "Directing the Documentary" class at Andrews University, Paul Kim, associate professor of Documentary Film, debuted a program to take his students to the Toronto International Film Festival this past summer and is considering opening up this opportunity to the entire Documentary Film program.

The Toronto International Film Festival is one of the two most prominent film festivals in the world, the other being the Cannes Film Festival in France. Because of worldwide exposure of the Toronto festival, Kim feels that this opportunity is important to get his students involved with film in a big urban area.

Teacher Prep Program Rated Excellent

The Andrews University Teacher Preparation Program has once again been declared an exemplary program by the State of Michigan. With a score of 68/70, the program has ranked Exemplary for the last seven years. This ranking is a result of evaluation based on a set of criteria from the Michigan Department of Education for the 2011-2012 school year.

Film Grad Makes Personal Documentary

At the age of 10, Pieter Damsteegt, a 2013 graduate of documentary film and photography at Andrews University, was diagnosed with Ankylosing Spondylitis, a long-term type of arthritis affecting the bones and joints at the base of the spine and their adjoining joints like hips, neck and shoulders. The joints become swollen and inflamed and, over time, the affected bones join together. A few years later he found out he also had Crohn’s Disease.

"I live a pretty exciting life," he says with a smile.

Depression Awareness Day

Oct. 10, 2013, the Andrews University Psychology Club, PSI CHI, and the Andrews University Counseling & Testing Center held an event for National Depression Screening Day and Mental Health Awareness Week. The purpose of the event was to raise awareness about depression on campus, to build a community of open conversations that allows students to know that there is help available and to create a support system in which students are encouraged and lifted up in their struggles.
By Becky St. Clair & Eloise Ravell

As part of his "Directing the Documentary" class at Andrews University, Paul Kim, associate professor of Documentary Film, debuted a program to take his students to the Toronto International Film Festival this past summer and is considering opening up this opportunity to the entire Documentary Film program.

The Toronto International Film Festival is one of the two most prominent film festivals in the world, the other being the Cannes Film Festival in France. Because of worldwide exposure of the Toronto festival, Kim feels that this opportunity is important to get his students involved with film in a big urban area.

"One challenge I see with film today is that so much of what we are familiar with and so much of what we consume is mainstream," says Kim. "Mainstream is not that diverse. When you go to a festival like the Toronto International Film Festival you get a chance to see films that break the norms of what we typically watch on a weekly or monthly basis."

The films presented in Toronto usually have plot lines that break social standards that the students may not be familiar with. It can help them develop different perspectives and consider in which direction they want their careers to go.

Running around Toronto in order to see as much as possible, Kim took his students to a dozen films over the course of five days. The filmmakers and some of the actors attended the showings and were taking questions from the audience to discuss their work.

"It's about watching and discussing films in a condensed form," Kim continues. "We're trying to raise awareness about the culture of film. To think critically about film and consume it as part of a community rather than consuming film alone in your dorm room behind a computer purely for escapist mechanisms. That's hard to do but important."

There were a total of seven students who ventured to Toronto with Kim and those students will be using what they saw and discussing it throughout the semester during class. Kim feels as though this experience was important to expose the students to something bigger and broader than anything they have seen before.

"It was intense. This was new for me, too, and it was big," says Kim.

The Documentary Film program at Andrews University focuses specifically on non-fiction which sets it apart from other schools with film programs. Documentaries tend to embrace the social component giving filmmakers a sense of civic responsibility as they approach their work. The students are encouraged to get their work out into the community and engage people by having conversations that would not otherwise take place.

"The power of cinema is considering life and situations in ways that people wouldn't have otherwise," Kim states.

Kim encourages his students to get out of their comfort zone. They cannot get proper material without taking to people, going to people's houses, talking on the phone and establishing those relationships between the filmmaker and the subject of the film that are absolutely essential. Differing from fictitious films, documentary films require you to be present and to talk to real people as well as engaging the community and enacting social change.

"You have to build the relationship and in that process you change and you become a part of what's happening. You don't just work behind the camera on a blank piece of paper, you have to engage."

New to the Andrews University faculty, Charles Reid, classical performer of opera and oratorio, has already demonstrated his immense talent by currently singing Don José in Georges Bizet's opera "Carmen" at Theaterhagen in Hagen, Germany. Commuting between performances and the Andrews campus, Reid serves as associate professor and artist-in-residence as well as coordinator of vocal studies for the Department of Music. His roles include voice instruction, leading theatrical and opera productions and teaching classes in vocal pedagogy, singer’s diction and vocal repertoire.

With a Bachelor of Music in vocal performance from Houston Baptist University and a Masters of Music in opera performance from the University of Maryland at College Park, Reid has traveled across the United States and Europe performing opera and oratorio. Oratorio differs from opera in the sense that opera is musical theatre and oratorio is generally a concert piece centered on Biblical characters. Andrews plans on presenting J.S. Bach’s oratorio, "The Passion According to Matthew," this Easter at the Howard Performing Arts Center, produced by Reid himself and featuring the University Symphony Orchestra, University Singers, and solo performers from the Division of Voice.

Reid has had over 50 roles in opera and been involved with around 40 oratorio works in venues around the world, the most famous being the Metropolitan Opera, San Francisco Opera, Carnegie Hall, Bayreuth Festival, Theater an der Wien in Vienna, Austria, Salzburg Festival, Frankfurt Opera and Nationaltheater Mannheim in Germany.

When asked about his decision to study musical performance in college, he reveals that becoming a music major was never his intention. Although he was involved with music in high school, he declared music as his major primarily because of a scholarship that had been awarded to him so he would sing in the university’s choir. He decided to continue with it, much to his parent’s surprise, and concluded that performing music would be a sensible career choice.

"I laugh heartily when I look back on this point in my life, because it is only through God’s providence that I’ve been so blessed with a career," says Reid, "The vast majority of music students, even great ones, are not so fortunate, but somehow I believed it would be true."

As Reid's studies continued, he deluged himself with classical music by checking out six CDs biweekly, listening to them and making notes. The first time he physically attended an opera was after he had already performed in a few through the opera workshop program at his university. After graduating, he began working in the industry and has been actively performing for over twenty years. He thanks God for blessing him so richly in his career.

"Every big plan I ever made for my career failed to come to fruition," he recalls, "God always had bigger and better things in mind. A life in the theater or concert hall is intensely fun. The hardships of being on the road are less so, but singing as a job seldom feels like work, even though we work very hard. There is something about the act of using these artistic gifts, of creating, of playing, and most importantly, sharing with those for whom we sing. It is a tremendous blessing."

In addition to the spring semester staging of Matthew’s passion story, Reid encourages everyone to come to the Howard Center on Friday, Nov. 22, at 7 p.m. for a special concert featuring famous scripture songs from the early 1900s. This is a unique opportunity to worship with amazing music that has been seldom heard in our churches for many years.

"I firmly believe that continually working to improve our own skills is the best route to ensuring that the value of pathology services is recognized and that our profession survives and thrives. I am honored and grateful to be recognized by my peers with the CAP Distinguished Service Award."

Teacher Prep Program rated "Excellent"

By Becky St. Clair

The Andrews University Teacher Preparation Program has once again been declared an exemplary program by the State of Michigan. With a score of 68/70, the program has ranked Exemplary for the last seven years. This ranking is a result of evaluation based on a set of criteria from the Michigan Department of Education for the 2011-2012 school year.

Each year the State of Michigan develops a report card for the 32 Education Preparation colleges and universities in Michigan. In 2011 the Andrews program scored 63, still Exemplary, and in 2010 it gained the distinction of being the only institution in the state to receive a perfect 70/70 score.

"We’re thrilled we’ve ranked so highly for so long,” says James Jeffery, dean of the School of Education at Andrews University. "It’s a big deal to be ranked ‘exemplary’ ever since the state began ranking the 32 college and universities. Our students are performing excellently.”

Using seven measures, or data points, the Office of Professional Preparation Services and the State Board of Education assess how each institution has performed in preparing elementary and secondary teachers to educate students. These conditions include: The passing rate on the Michigan test of teacher certification; graduating teacher satisfaction level; employer satisfaction survey of graduates; number of students who have completed the education program; programs review (percentage of programs approved by the state); diversity of graduating teachers population; High Need Content – whether the institution has 35 percent or more students with a content specialty area, such as special education or mathematics, that are high need subject areas.

Lee Davidson, chair of the Department of Teaching, Learning & Curriculum, says the high performance of their students is due not just to the classes taken in the School of Education, but also to other academic disciplines on campus.

"Our students work hard, study well and learn a lot, not just in their education classes, but in every other class they take,” he says. "We work hand-in-hand with the professors in the College of Arts and Sciences to make this success possible.”

Their score of 68 for the 2011-2012 school year places them in second place, tied with five other schools including University of Michigan.

"We’re proud of our high standards," says Jeffery, "and we’re proud of our students who consistently meet those high standards.”

At the age of 10, Pieter Damsteegt, a 2013 graduate of documentary film and photography at Andrews University, was diagnosed with Ankylosing Spondylitis, a long-term type of arthritis affecting the bones and joints at the base of the spine and their adjoining joints like hips, neck and shoulders. The joints become swollen and inflamed and, over time, the affected bones join together. A few years later he found out he also had Crohn's Disease.

"I live a pretty exciting life," he says with a smile.

Since then Damsteegt has eliminated the symptoms of Crohn’s Disease in his life by switching to a completely gluten-free diet, but he still struggles with AS. To document his journey with the disease, Damsteegt created a film documentary of the life he lives.

"Everyone is going to have issues in life," he says. "I want to give other people a positive perspective on life. I want those of us who struggle with health issues to consider more of the things we're not missing. If an athlete sees my film, maybe they’ll remember it someday when they’re feeling lazy and it will get them on their feet, doing something worthwhile. Maybe it will keep them from giving up."

By the end of the film, Damsteegt is in a wheelchair, with only ten degrees of mobility in each of his legs. Still, he expresses gratitude for the things he does have, such as his sight, hearing, and senses of smell, taste and touch.

Ten days after he wheeled himself across the platform at Pioneer Memorial Church to receive his diploma in May 2013, Damsteegt underwent surgery.

He received a bilateral hip replacement from Rush Hospital’s Midwest Orthopedics in Chicago. The doctor who performed his surgery holds an engineering degree from MIT and was part of the team to design the tools used during the surgery, which provide a minimally invasive procedure.

“Typical hip replacements, especially doubles like mine, place lifelong restrictions on activities and movements,” explains Damsteegt. “But this particular procedure allows you to get back into just about any activity, making it a much better option for a 23-year-old like me.”

The surgery Damsteegt had incorporates a plastic part between two metal pieces in each hip. Every 15-20 years he will undergo a simple procedure to replace the plastic parts with new ones.

Now that the surgeries are behind him, Damsteegt has high hopes for a very mobile future, and has a good start already.

"I used to take things for granted," he says, "but today I can walk, and I can’t take that for granted anymore. So I have to go somewhere every day. I go walking or biking every day, just to be thankful I can do it."

Damsteegt’s goal was to do a walking expedition to celebrate the success of his surgeries. In early September, two months after the completion of his second hip replacement, he did a trial run with his mom to see how he would do.

"It was slow, and probably wasn't the mileage most backpackers like to accomplish, but it was still a huge deal for me," he says.

Two weeks later, Damsteegt and his mom headed up to Isle Royale National Park, located on a collection of islands in Lake Superior near the Canadian border.

"She has been so supportive," says Damsteegt of his mother. "Now I take her on all my adventures. Though I don’t think she’d go skydiving."
The five-day backpacking trip at Isle Royale included over 16 miles of hiking, a bit of rain, and a whole lot of beautiful scenery.

"Overall the trip felt like a big accomplishment to me," he says. "Now my mom and I are thinking of possible backpacking trips for next year."

Damstgeet has been to Europe and Asia several times, and is feeling up to traveling again. His dream is to work on travel or mission documentaries. His future in film and photography remains flexible, as his primary goal is to complete his personal documentary and submit it to film festivals for a starting point.

"I've met people who, because of my story, are out walking every day or staying active in some other way," says Damstgeet. "This is what I want to do – I want to inspire people to change their lives for the better. It's kind of like a circle, really, because I inspire them, and then they turn around and inspire me right back."

On Oct. 10, 2013, the Andrews University Psychology Club, PSI CHI, and the Andrews University Counseling & Testing Center held an event for National Depression Screening Day and Mental Health Awareness Week. The purpose of the event was to raise awareness about depression on campus, to build a community of open conversations that allows students to know that there is help available and to create a support system in which students are encouraged and lifted up in their struggles.

Because PSI CHI’s goals of promoting well-being and developing self-awareness of mental health matched those of the Counseling & Testing Center, they teamed up to make the event bigger and better than it has been in past years. Volunteers came from both of these organizations as well as from Counseling Outreach Peer Education (COPE).

“I think the event was very successful,” says Eliana Iller, president of PSI CHI and senior psychology and Spanish for translation double major at Andrews, who coordinated the event. “We had a great group of volunteers and a really strong turnout of students. I was pleased with how many students got involved and supported our cause.”

Several different stations around the Student Center, both inside and outside, allowed students the opportunity to interact with sponsoring groups. First greeted by volunteers offering free hugs and inviting people to participate in the event, students next visited a station to decorate their own T-shirt with encouraging messages. On a section of grass nearby, students could place a small black flag in the ground to represent someone they knew who had committed suicide. Sidewalk chalk allowed them to write or draw something encouraging outside the building. The final station outside was “Prayer Warriors” where students could write down their prayer requests or anything that they happened to be struggling with and pray with a volunteer.

“The prayer request slips were burned at the end of the event as a symbol of giving those troubles to God,” explains Iller.

Inside, the students had the opportunity to take a free depression screening test and were given feedback on their results by staff and encouraged to talk to a counselor if needed. The station “Messages of Hope” gave students a chance to write encouraging messages and thoughts on sheets of brightly colored paper and tape them to a wall in the Student Center. There were also pamphlets and posters around the booths to promote depression awareness and mental well-being.

“It was great to see everyone come together and encourage one another,” says Iller. “I would definitely say that we reached our goal for this event and we are looking forward to making our upcoming events even bigger.”

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Changing M-139 through Berrien Springs and Oronoko Township can make a big difference when it comes to encouraging private development in the corridor, researchers concluded.

Andrews University professor Andrew Von Maur reported results of the M-139 corridor study Wednesday.

"The road is the public realm and zoning is the private realm," Von Maur said in a forum. "Both have to work together."

Von Maur and Andrews graduate architecture students have spent much of the fall meeting with property owners in the corridor and collecting their ideas. They've used the ideas to draft plans on what changes can be made physically and in zoning.

The plans will be turned over to the Williams & Works planning firm. Williams & Works will work with the village and township to see how zoning changes can accommodate the development expected with the extension of water and sewer lines.

Von Maur and the students studied eight sections of M-139 from the St. Joseph River bridge north to the township's boundary at Linco Road.

Some of the ideas revealed at Wednesday night's meeting at the public safety building on Snow Road included building highway medians in the village and township. The students proposed a median and possible marker at Ferry Street.

"Having a median with trees and maybe a marker there slows down traffic and has place-making potential to welcome people to the village," he said.

Von Maur reminded people of the January 2010 accident that seriously injured Sheryl Vance as she tried to cross Ferry at Main on a snowy wintry morning. He said putting a median on Ferry and Cass Street would slow down traffic and get people to pay more attention to the businesses there.

He cited statistics showing that fatalities and severe injuries can occur when pedestrians are hit by vehicles going 36 miles per hour or more.

He said the need to slow down traffic downtown was brought home to him when he was walking his son to school across Cass Street and almost got hit.

The students proposed a median on Cass between Mars and Union and even on the stretch of the highway that goes past the fairgrounds and Apple Valley Market. "Rebuilding the roads so that they are slower and more pedestrian friendly could have a huge impact on private investment," he said. "Slower traffic also helps people see the businesses more."
The Michigan Department of Transportation owns the road.

Von Maur said paint or different material to make the road look narrower could be a good idea.

He said retailers often think installing medians hurt sales, but studies show the opposite.

He said Main Street is busier than Grape Road in Mishawaka, though it has medians.

The final meeting for the Andrews phase of the corridor study comes Dec. 11 when Von Maur will meet with village and township officials in a public meeting at the public safety building at 7 p.m.
La PORTE — The opening concert in the 2013-2014 Fine Arts Series of the Presbyterian Church of La Porte will feature the Andrews University Singers, directed by Stephen Zork.

The concert will be 4pm CST Sunday. Child care will be provided and there will be a free-will offering and a reception after the concert to meet the choir members and their director.

Stephen Zork is the director of Choral Studies at Andrews University, a position he has held since 1991. His primary responsibility is the programming of and conducting the Department of Music's choirs: University Chorale, University Singers, Canta Bella, and Pioneer Men's Chorus. He keeps an active schedule guest-conducting choral festivals and lecturing throughout the United States and abroad. Zork holds professional memberships in the National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) and the American Choral Director's Association (ACDA). He holds a Master's Degree in Choral Conducting from Pacific Lutheran University. The three choral conductors who most inspired him, and with whom he has sung professionally, are Dale Warland, Gregg Smith, and the late Robert Shaw.

Every year, the 100-voice University Chorale performs major symphonic choral works with the Andrews University Symphony Orchestra. These works include Bach's Magnificat, Corad Susa's Christmas Garland, Haydn's Te Deum, Rutter's Requiem, and Mozart's Mass in C. They have also had the privilege of performing in concert with musical artists such as Bobby McFerrin, King's Singers, and David Benoit.

The Music of Creation is the theme expressed throughout the choral program, which will begin with the work, "God, Your Voice Called Forth Creation" by John Horman, commissioned to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Fine Arts Board of The Presbyterian Church of La Porte.

Included in the lighter fare of the program will be the performance of several folk songs such as "Skylark" arranged by John Rutter, Stephen Foster's "Some Folks" arranged by Mark Hayes, the Brazilian samba "Aquarela do Brasil" arranged by University Singers' member Marcelo Martins, and the tender "Good Night, Dear Heart" arranged by Dan Forrest and set to the words of Mark Twain as inscribed on his daughter's tombstone. The centerpiece of the concert is the three-movement work "Gloria" by John Rutter.

The church is located at 307 Kingsbury Ave, La Porte. For more information call the church at 219-362-6219 or access the web page at www.yourhomechurch.com.

Other events in the series are Carey Scheck & Friends on March 2, 2014; Winners’ Art Exhibition, May 18-May 30, 2014; Duo Pianists Andrew Remillard and Edgar Swarthout on September 21, 2014.

Help Verlyn Benson
Verlyn Benson (former Dean of College of Technology and now Assistant to Provost and President) has been stricken with a rare and very serious form of liver cancer. The tumor is large and invasive. He is going to Mayo Clinic weekly for chemo treatments and blood work. This is expensive and there have been a number of requests from those who would like to help with his heavy travel costs. On a website for donations, "Give Forward", a page has been set up for contributing to Verlyn's expenses: http://gfwd.at/1d8Cy9e. He also is blogging at: http://www.caringbridge.org/visit/verlynbenson. (You may make donations to the Caring Bridge but they are to support that website and not Verlyn’s medical travel expenses.)

Category: Life Stories
Alex Ruben Vargas Hernandez was born August 27, 1965, in Arecibo, Puerto Rico, to Ruben Vargas and Candida Hernandez. He was the first in his family to accept Christ as his savior at the age of 12 and since that young age became deeply involved with the ministry and the church. Until he attended Antillian College in Mayaguez, Alex resided with his parents and younger brother, Melvin Vargas, in Barceloneta. Being at Antillian College started a new chapter in his life. Alex began as an education major but soon realized that God had different plans for him and switched to a theology major. During his time there he was greatly involved as a school and spiritual leader. He was one of the youth directors at the college and the director of the Drama Department. One of his passions was the performing arts, and he organized and directed multiple plays. It was at this time that Alex met his future wife, Nereida. Alex was the youth director for the male students, with Nereida fulfilling the same role for the ladies. Alex and Nereida fell deeply in love and married on August 9, 1987. Alex would go on to work at the Convention Center for the Fine Arts. When offered a promotion that required work during the Sabbath, he promptly declined and chose to move on. He then went to work for the Red Cross as an instructor of classes for emergency response and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), but once again felt the call of the Lord and decided to focus on pastoral ministry by finishing his studies in education and religion. During this time, Alex and Nereida were blessed with the birth of two beautiful daughters, Nerialex and Rossenery, born 1988 and 1990, respectively. On January 2001 all four members of the Vargas family arrived in Berrien Springs, in hopes of providing a great Adventist education for the children and attending Andrews University. Alex and Nereida would hold various jobs, including the Andrews Academy and Elementary cafeteria programs, where they would impact the lives of hundreds of children and youth with their kind and cheerful demeanor. They would also continue to teach CPR and emergency response classes in Indianapolis. Alex also continued to exercise his talent in the performing arts by staging a Christmas ministry that performed in churches throughout the area. Unfortunately, in the wake of increasingly serious health concerns, Alex was forced to put his studies and full-time job on hold. Nevertheless, his fighting spirit allowed him to continue his ministry through his emergency response and CPR training, something that brought much joy to him and all the people that he came in contact with. In the face of adversity Alex never wavered in his commitment to be a loving husband and father. Anyone who ever came in contact with him will attest to his ability to bring joy and friendship, even to complete strangers. On October 27, 2013, Alex tragically succumbed to a heart complication. He passed away suddenly and quickly, surrounded by his immediate family. He is survived by his loving wife, Nereida; daughters, Nerialex and Rossenery; mother, Candida; brother, Melvin; and his nephews. Alex will be dearly missed and remembered by all those who had the pleasure of meeting him. We know that Alex is now resting in peace until the day that he rises to reunite with his family and all those saved, especially everyone who found Christ because of his influence. Funeral services were held at 1 p.m. Friday, November 1, in the Castelbuono Youth Chapel of Pioneer Memorial Church, where friends gathered beginning at 11 a.m. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery, Berrien Springs. Allred Funeral Home assisted the family, and online messages may be left at www.allredfuneralhome.com.
