Many international students have already seen parts of the world and the insides of airports in locations that many American college students can only dream about. So, semester breaks provide the perfect chance for international students to do some local exploration.

During my first Christmas break as a student abroad, I had almost three weeks of free days to fill up. Some of that time was spent enjoying the freedom of a schedule without homework. But after the novelty of sleeping in wore off, I was itching to see something new.

Dreaming big with my husband, who was also a student, we decided to spend the New Year's holiday at the Walt Disney World Resort in Orlando, Fla.

By following a few travel tips, I was able to plan an adventure for less than the price of an academic credit.

1. Travel on less desirable days: Everyone generally gets the same breaks, but putting plans on pause until after Christmas or a later weekday will help to save money. We used the online auction site eBay to gauge the price of tickets.

On Dec. 22, we found a family's vacation up for bid that included two admissions passes for five days. If we could pull the holiday together on short notice, their scheduling conflict would let us enjoy Disney for less than half the retail price.

2. Check out the online options for booking your travel: We didn't buy the tickets right away because sometimes the expense of travel and board is more than the destination and we wanted to do some research and budgeting to see if it would work.

A bus fare found on Megabus.com took us from Detroit to Pittsburgh, Pa., for less than the cost of one tank of gas. We caught another bus from there and, with a little patience and time to think, we found a route to Florida that rang in under $100 per person.

The success of getting there and the excitement at the end of the line motivated us to find a bed for the flawless getaway. AirBnB.com was the perfect fit. The website's literal legitimization of couch-surfing puts you in contact with people who rent out spare bedrooms or apartments for any period of time you request.

Each place is rated like a hotel by the previous occupants and creates a community of travel enthusiasts that international students can really benefit from. We found a room with a fellow who offered to pick us up from the bus drop-off.

3. Plan your travel around a local event: Each of the tricks to traveling cheap work on the smaller scale, too. In fact, staying within state lines is sometimes the best way to get a unique taste of the local culture. Our adventures in Michigan even took us to places that locals sometimes miss out on.

In addition to the student discounts offered by many transportation companies and destinations, making your plans around a larger promoted event will help you secure more discounts and more concrete experiences as you travel. This was the case this past October when we participated in the Great Turtle Run on Mackinaw Island, Mich.

Participating in a fundraiser got us discounts on the ferry and a recommended list of hostels and campgrounds that supported the event by lowering prices for participants. We also got to enjoy the benefits of other local event sponsors while exploring the natural beauty of the state park.

To get the most out of your study experience, I recommend using your student status to visit locations local to your school. You're here and might as well see some of what your new community looks like, so get out there and see a bit of your brand new world.

Don't let your farewell from home be your last bon voyage as an international student. Traveling on the cheap comes easy for students if you know where to look for discounts and deals.

Katelyn Ruiz, from Canada, is pursuing an interdisciplinary master's degree in communication and English from Andrews University.

August 11, 1931 - December 27, 2013

Obituary

E. Loren Hummel, 82, of Berrien Springs, passed away early Friday morning, December 27, 2013, at Silverbrook Manor in Niles. Funeral services will be at 4 p.m. Sunday, December 29, at Pioneer Memorial Church on the campus of Andrews University, Berrien Springs, of which he was a member. Friends may visit with the family at the church from 2 p.m. until service time. Pastor Don Dronen will officiate. Inurnment will be at 10 a.m. Thursday, January 2, at Rose Hill Cemetery, with military rites conducted by the Berrien Springs American Legion Stover-Wagner Post 85. Allred Funeral Home, Berrien Springs, is assisting the family, and online messages may be left at www.allredfuneralhome.com. Loren was born August 11, 1931, in Sonora Township, Illinois, in an old farm house near Nauvoo, Illinois. His parents, Leon and Emily (Mackie) Hummel, had two other sons, Lewis and Lester. He graduated from an old country grade school and completed a year at Nauvoo High School before he dropped out to help his father run the farm. He later received his GED diploma. Loren married Dorothy Reynolds on December 2, 1951, and was soon drafted into the Army as a helicopter mechanic/crew chief at Fort Riley, Kansas. They had two children, Connie and Kevin. He was baptized in the SDA Church after hearing about the Adventists through Dorothy and taking Bible studies. Before coming to Andrews University in 1971, he worked for seven years on an archaeology project with Nauvoo Restoration, Inc. At Andrews, he was first hired at Plant Services as equipment operator. Later he worked in the carpentry and paint shops before settling in the supply room. He retired in 2001. He met Nancy Payne at Roma's Pizza, and on March 27, 1988, they were married. They shared their home with their dogs and Loren's collection of (inanimate) pigs. Survivors include his wife, Nancy (Payne) Hummel; a daughter, Connie (Martin) Jackson of La Center, Washington; two stepdaughters, Debera Schutter of Calhoun, Georgia, and Suzann Lewis of Kirkland, Washington; four grandchildren, Brian, Brett, Steven, and Michael; and four step-grandchildren, Derek, Matthew, Evan, and Julia; and daughter-in-law, Karen Hummel of Stevensville. He was preceded in death by his son, Kevin Hummel; and two brothers, Lewis and Lester.

Jan. Meeting of Berrien Springs Camera Club

The Berrien Springs Camera Club will meet on Tues., Jan. 7, at 7 p.m. in the Berrien Springs Community Library at Cass and Union. Notice the change from its usual first Wednesday of the month, due to the holiday on Jan. 1 and the library not being available on the following Wednesday.

The program will be presented by Rob Shellhamer, the treasurer of the club. His topic will be Flash Photography. He says, “I will be covering both built-in and camera flash, but not strobe lights (though many of the same principles would apply).” He adds, “There will be a short bit on theory and technique, but mostly just playing with the camera and flash. Participants should feel free to bring theirs and play along or just sit and enjoy.”

Shellhamer, an avid photographer, has been a member of the Berrien Springs Camera Club for six years. He enjoys a wide variety of kinds of photography and enjoys collecting gear for it. He not only is a skilled photographer, but also has the ability to explain techniques in a step-by-step manner.

All are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Mac for Sale $350 obo
Selling my Super-upgraded 2010 Mac mini
It has been upgraded with a new 128 gb Samsung Solid State drive inside. It also has the latest operating system Mavericks and 8gb of memory.
It turns on in less than 20 seconds because of the Solid State Drive and Mavericks optimization.
It's super fast, and in great condition. I need a laptop so I would like to sell it. I'm willing to go with you to have it certified by Apple or to have you come over to try it out before you purchase. I am a former Apple Inc. employee and have only let certified Apple "Geniuses" work on my machine.
Works very well as a media computer, just connect an external drive.
See original Specs here http://support.apple.com/kb/SP585
