Looking for a voice over actor!
The Department of Biology is producing a video about their research and needs a voice over actor to record the script (2-4 minutes).

For your audition clip, please record yourself reading the following:

"Research is a fundamental component of learning. Without research, studying is dry, dull, and lifeless. When students and teachers explore the realities of the natural world together, when they probe deeply, when they struggle to understand relationships and mechanisms, learning becomes something much greater. It becomes inspiring."

To submit your audition clip, please send it to rboothby@andrews.edu.

Advanced Connections for Student Employees--Tuesday Choices
The Office of Human Resources is excited to provide an opportunity for our student employees to participate in Advanced Connections training during Tuesday Choices this spring semester, beginning February 4.

Advanced Connections was developed with the intent of improving the quality of service provided to internal and external customers of an educational institution, and Andrews University has been offering this professional development opportunity to its faculty and staff for several years now. We recognize that a significant portion of our workforce on campus is student employees, with many of these students on the "frontlines," providing customer service to many individuals here on campus.

In an effort to improve our culture of service, we are excited to be able to provide this opportunity for student employees to attend Advanced Connections training! Topics to be discussed will include building a service culture, overcoming barriers, effective communication, checking for customer satisfaction, meeting service challenges and more.

Student employees wanting to attend Advanced Connections training during Tuesday Choices will need to RSVP by emailing training@andrews.edu, and they will need to provide their full name, ID#, email address, and the department in which they work. Please note that in order for them to receive the certification, you will need to attend all 6 sessions being offered during Tuesday Choices. There are only 35 seats available for this training.

Food Fundraiser for Manado, Indonesia

If you have not heard, at the beginning of this month, disaster struck Indonesia in the region of Manado. As you can see in the images below, flash floods and landslides have hit the region hard, killing 18 and displacing over 80,000 people from their homes. So to help, the Andrews Indonesian Student Initiative Society (AISIS) will be having a food fundraiser on Friday January 31 in Chan Shun Hall from 12:00-4:00 PM. We will be selling and serving authentic and delicious Indonesian cuisine made fresh by your local Indonesian community. During the week, AISIS will also have a booth set up in the Student Center during the day from Monday to Thursday. At the booth we will be collecting donations; Food (Non-Perishable), clothes, or money—anything that can help with the relief effort to the region some of our officers call home. Spread the word and tell your friends!!

More info to come during the week. So please keep your eyes and ears out!!

Blessings, and have a wonderful week.

Correlates of Perceived Abuse of Pastors’ Children- Dr. Wendy Thompson

You are invited to attend an AICER Symposium presentation on Thursday, January 30, 2014 at 5:30 pm.

Presenter: Wendy Thompson, DrPH, MSW, Associate Professor of Social Work, Andrews University.

Correlates of Perceived Emotional/Verbal and Spiritual Abuse of Adult Children of Pastors

Data analysis of an on-line survey of 120 pastors, spouses, and adult children for the North American Division showed relatively high correlations between perceptions of being emotionally/verbally or spiritually abused and self-reports of concern about substance abuse, mental health, pornography, gambling, domestic violence, extra-marital sex and difficulty with personal prayer. These findings strongly suggest that abuse may occur... within a context of family dysfunction and result in a wide range of chemical and behavioral addictions and a diminished prayer life. The church needs to be aware of these issues and provide support and intervention services to improve the spiritual life and retention of pastor's children.

Dining Services Earns Distinction
Congratulations to the Bon Appetit Management Company Terrace Café at Andrews University for receiving their Great Expectation III (GE III) certification this week for the first time. The Bon Appetit staff has worked persistently to contribute to the unique dining experience of every guest in order to achieve this accomplishment.

The certification requires a rigorous inspection of specific details of Andrews' operations including product sourcing, cleanliness, service standards, décor and food presentation.

Tari Popp, director of the Office of Planned Giving & Trust Services at Andrews University, has received the Certified Specialist in Planned Giving (CSPG) certification offered by the American Institute for Philanthropic Studies through the California State University at Long Beach (CSULB) Foundation. The CSPG is a professional designation program designed to a master’s level standard and developed to provide participants with the body of knowledge required for planned giving professionals.

This certificate allows Popp to provide general education about estate planning and help facilitate that process with the assistance of professional advisors. It also means that Andrews can continue to be a leader in the area of advancement, specifically in planned giving and trust services.

Two years ago, the North American Division (NAD) of Seventh-day Adventists encouraged its union and institution planned giving and trust services directors to seek advanced certification in this area, offering to cover 50 percent of the certification program for anyone interested.

"In any profession, an individual needs to continue learning or they will fall behind,” says Popp. “I felt that in order to continue to offer the best possible service to our constituents, it was important that I take advantage of this opportunity.”

Popp was required to complete six modules taught by a faculty of professional advisors and take two exams at the end of each unit over the course of a year. After finishing the course work, Popp submitted a practicum applying the information she learned during classes to her work here at Andrews. Roughly 25 people achieve this certification every year and Popp is currently the only person at Andrews that has it.

"I feel grateful to be given this education opportunity by Andrews University and the General Conference," states Popp. "I will be able to better serve our alumni and friends in this specialty area which will eventually result in additional funds for the support of our students and this wonderful school."
Andrews University invites the community to join them as they celebrate Black History Month in February. A calendar of events and speaker information is below. Any questions should be directed to the Office of Student Life at 269-471-3215. All events are free and open to the public.

50 years ago the Civil Rights Act was signed by President Lyndon Johnson with Martin Luther King, Jr., in attendance. This landmark piece of civil rights legislation in the U.S. outlawed major forms of discrimination against racial, ethnic, national and religious minorities, and women. It ended unequal application of voter registration requirements and racial segregation in schools, at the workplace and by facilities that served the general public. King's role in the American civil rights movement helped bring about this legislation, and he called the act nothing less than a "second emancipation." During black history month we pause to celebrate this legacy of freedom, and discuss the yet unfulfilled needs of equality and freedom.

The Bible scripture theme for this month's events comes from Acts 5:29. "But Peter and the apostles answered, 'We must obey God rather than men.'"

Student Writes on Learning from Holidays

Katelyn Ruiz, communications graduate student, writes for U.S. News & World Report

As an international student, I miss my folks, but being away from home over the holidays makes the distance between us seem much greater.

To combat this calendar-induced bout of seasonal homesickness, I committed to celebrating in my own way with whatever traditions I could sneak across the border.

First, I realized that I was not alone in feeling lonely. Many of my fellow international students, whom I came to know through classes or campus-sponsored activities, also missed their own holiday celebrations.

“It’s not a Field Museum, obviously,” said Dr. H. Thomas Goodwin, professor of paleobiology and chairman of the biology department at Andrews, “but we do have quite a nice collection of stuff.”

“Certainly, our most famous draw is the mammoth. We have what we call the ‘Prillwitz mammoth,’ which was found on the Wesley Prillwitz farm back in the early 1960s,” Goodwin said. “By direct line of flight, it would be two miles away from here, but it’s slightly further by car.”

“When Mr. Prillwitz was having a pond excavated, dredging it to make it deeper, he ran across this mammoth, and it is the most complete mammoth ever found in Michigan up to this point,” Goodwin said. “It’s a very nice specimen.”

While the museum has a nearly-complete skeleton of a mammoth on display, it also has the tusk of a mastodon which was discovered in southwest Michigan.

“We have the tusk of a mastodon, what we call ‘the Carmichael Mastodon,’” Goodwin said. “These tusks were excavated near Watervliet back in the 1970s.”

According to Dr. Goodwin, “Mastodons were more common here in Michigan than the mammoths, in a ratio of about four to one, probably because of the environment.”

Visitors can learn more about the differences between the two species of extinct mammals when they visit the museum, and they can also learn about animals that currently live in both Michigan and in other parts of the world.

“We have two areas of better coverage,” Goodwin said. “One would be local specimens, and we have quite a collection of both mammals and birds from Peru.”

“The museum, really, is kind of an old-fashioned museum with the stuffed specimens, but it also has a quite a nice teaching collection of specimens, especially mammals and birds,” Goodwin said. “We also have quite a few insects and a shell collection.”

“The shells were donated by an individual. They really don’t have significant scientific value, but they have a nice display value,” Goodwin said. “They’re cool. They have nice variation.”

“We have a crocodile skull. We have bears, just lots and lots of different things. And then, we have a series of casts, including an extinct lion that used to live here in the United States, a saber-toothed cat — the smilodon, and a giant beaver. We have a number of Ice Age casts,” Goodwin said. “We have various teeth of mammoths and mastodons. We have a number of hominid skull casts as well.”

“If a school group is doing something on diversity, and they want to do something locally, we have quite a nice collection of specimens,” Goodwin said.

“Typically, when groups come here to visit, they spend a half an hour or 45 minutes,” Goodwin said. “We also have a green house up on the top floor that has a tropical room and a desert room and so on, so sometimes when school groups come, some of them will want to do that — visit the museum and the greenhouse.”

Individuals and families with children are also welcome to visit the museum. Although it is not open on a regular basis, visits to the Andrews University Museum of Natural History can be arranged by calling Mayra Robertson in the Biology office at (269) 471-3243 during normal business hours. The museum is located in G. McCready Price Hall, 4280 Administration Dr., on the Andrews University campus.

“With a little bit of advanced notice, we’re happy to do that — to open it up and let people come take a look,” Goodwin said. “We have that happen on a fairly regular basis.”
BENTON HARBOR—George Agoki has a dream that technology can be used to help people, to re-build communities and heal the world.

Agoki, 63, is a native of Kenya and chairman of the engineering and computer science department at Andrews University. He learned the practical applications of machines while studying at a missionary boarding school in Uganda. He was taught how to repair lawn mowers and ran the water pump for the farm, before working with rudimentary computers that used punch cards and took up entire rooms.

The philosophy of the school was “Teach the head, the heart and the hand,” Agoki said.

Since September, he has been passing along that belief to participants in a computer literacy class at the Benton Harbor Housing Commission, volunteering four days a week. He plans to recruit students from Andrews to assist him.

What kind of computer skills did your students have at the beginning?

We were starting on a very basic level. They can’t handle a computer. “Do you have an email address?” “No. What is email?” So this is an introduction to computer tools, to help them in everyday living. We show them how to use the keyboard. Showing them how to search on the Internet about anything you want. A couple of them are applying for jobs on the Internet. This is great.

Now that they have gained basic skills, what kind of projects are they involved in?
People are so insulated. They have lived in Benton Harbor all of their lives. They have not had much exposure to how people in other parts of the world live. So I ask “Would you like to have a trip to Africa? Would you like to go on a safari? Where would you like to go? Can you plan a trip? Do you need a passport? How can you do that on the Internet?” They get excited. This way they begin to see the need for computer literacy. It's not just learning the computer for the sake of learning the computer. It's a tool.

How do your students react when they begin to master these skills?

They go from searching the alphabet on the keyboard, spelling out the words, to composing sentences. They realize “Hey, this is do-able. Those baby steps, something we thought was so hard, now we're doing it.” You can see their faces lighting up, “This is useful. We can do it.” Now it comes naturally, and they’re asking what is the usefulness of this. ... We are working on something now, as a team, answering the question “Can anything good come out of Benton Harbor?” through poetry. It’s all painted a bleak picture, that’s where you start. Then farther down, you can see something good about it. This is helping them beyond just computer literacy to something they can use. I do feel that they need to tell their own story.

What was your motivation for getting involved with the jail ministry?

I was reading Scripture, Matthew 25, about the end of time, Judgment Day, when Christ separates people into two groups, the sheep and the goats. And he says to the sheep on his right “You saw me hungry and you fed me. You found me naked, and you clothed me. I was sick, and you came to see me. I was in prison, and you came to see me.” Well, my wife was a nurse, so we were able to see a lot of sick people. I ticked than one off. Food—I’ve given food. Clothing—we’ve given that. What about this prison thing? I don’t want Christ to tell me on Judgment Day, ‘I was in prison and you didn’t come to see me!”

What has that experience been like?

I found all kinds of people there. Hispanics, whites, black. I ask “What brings you here?” “Well, I didn't pay my child support,” “I was caught at this and that.” “How many times have you been here?” “Maybe this is my second time.” So we have repeat offenders.

My interest is, when you get out of here, where do you go? Do you have a job? They can’t find a job, they don't have a driver’s license, their record is not clean. So it’s really a complex cycle of problems. And I’m trying to find a way to help these people. Some need training, some just need support. ... I was told in training “Don't proselytize, don't try to convert them. Share Jesus with them—period.” (Laughs). Fair enough. But I wasn’t quite satisfied. I’m sharing Jesus, but this guy wants a job, this guy wants to reform, this guy wants to be rehabilitated. I asked, “Couldn't we mount a more integrated program?” (The minister) didn’t seem to get my point, at all, so when this call came last summer (to head the computer literacy program) I said I’m going to grab this.

You have a background in urban planning. How does this connect with your interest in renewal for Benton Harbor?

Part of my engagement here is defining the problem, so I can understand the problem. (And) the students can also help me provide solutions. Engineers don’t ask the users what the problem is. Yet the people who are having the problem perhaps could help us define the problem and give us a peak into the solution. So that's why I’m here. ... Someone needs to hold hands with these people and help them. Who knows? If Benton Harbor succeeds, it could be a model to provide solutions around the globe. We must forget about thinking insular. We must think globally.

And technology can help with that.

Exactly.
Death of Leona Running

Live streaming of Dr. Running's funeral will be available at www.andrews.edu/livestream at the time of her funeral, 2 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 30.

Viewing will take place at Allred Funeral Home, 212 W Main Street, Berrien Springs, on Wednesday, Jan. 29, from 6–8 p.m. The funeral is at Pioneer Memorial Church on Thursday, Jan. 30, at 2 p.m. Interment will take place at Rose Hill Cemetery in Berrien Springs immediately following the service. Please remember her extended family and friends as they grieve.

Niels-Erik Andreasen, president of Andrews University, shared the following statement: "During her long and productive life Dr. Running broke new ground in the University and in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. She was the first female professor at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in Takoma Park, Md., and later here at Andrews. She was the first Adventist woman to earn a doctorate in Ancient Near Eastern Studies (Johns Hopkins University), with a specialization in ancient Syriac texts. She overcame the grief of losing her husband early in life and built her exemplary academic and professional calling. Following her retirement she continued to share her linguistic skill with graduate students (Syriac, Egyptian, Akkadian, Hebrew, Aramaic, and almost any other language these students cared to learn). And she served the University with her editorial talents, improving a good many of its publications over the years... She was an inspiration to many and an example to us all."

Jiri Moskala, dean of the Andrews University Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, says: "Dr. Running holds a special place in the hearts of her Old Testament and Seminary colleagues and former students, who greatly appreciated her mentoring during their Seminary years. She was the first woman professor at the SDA Theological Seminary and was indeed a woman of remarkable skills and influence... We praise the Lord for her life and faithful ministry."

William Shea, a close colleague, estimates that "Leona assisted more students in writing doctoral dissertations than any other faculty member of Andrews University. She has probably touched the educational lives of more Seventh-day Adventist ministers than any other woman except Ellen White."

Born on Aug. 24, 1916, in Flint, Mich., to Charles Comstock Glidden and Leona Mary Bertha Boat Glidden, Leona showed an early attraction to languages. Her mother, a teacher, began coaching her in reading skills when she was 3 or 4, and she entered Grade 4 at age 8. She graduated from Adelphian Academy in Holly, Mich.

Running graduated from Andrews University (then Emmanuel Missionary College) as valedictorian in 1937 with a Bachelor of Arts with a concentration in modern languages. She went on to earn an M.A. in Greek and Hebrew from the Adventist Theological Seminary in 1955, and a Ph.D. in Semitic languages from Johns Hopkins University in 1964.

She married Leif ("Bud") Running on May 17, 1942. On August 20, 1946, when Bud was 37 and Leona almost 30, he died while undergoing his third lung operation.

During her early professional years, Running served the Seventh-day Adventist Church in many capacities. From 1944–1948 she worked in the Foreign Language Division of the radio program Voice of Prophecy, translating programs and typing scripts in German, Spanish and Portuguese. In 1950 she moved to Washington, D.C., to become the copy editor for Ministry magazine. During these early years, Running often earned far less than her male counterparts for doing the same amount of work. Nevertheless, she continued to do God’s work, traveling to many European countries, promoting the Seventh-day Adventist Church and, at the same time, expanding her cultural experience.

Running began working for the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in 1955, teaching Greek and Hebrew. At the time, the president of the seminary was skeptical about a woman's ability to teach male students, and male students' willingness to be taught by a woman. She began teaching on a trial basis, but in 1956 she was granted regular status and, shortly after, full tenure.

Not content to sit on the sidelines and watch her students, Running was actively involved in their professional and personal development, and her guidance helped countless individuals find their voice. Her strength and determination during a time when women were not always treated as equals with men, even within the church, were an inspiration to many.
When the Seminary was moved from Takoma Park, Md. to Berrien Springs, Mich. in 1960, Running came with it, continuing on as a valuable and dedicated professor of biblical languages. Siegfried Horn, professor of history of antiquity at the seminary, nominated her to the Chicago Society of Biblical Research, and she served as the first female president from 1981–82.

Among her many interests, Running traveled extensively. In 1951, she traveled with Del Delker to the Paris Youth Congress and to seven European countries. Later she published 36 Days and a Dream, recounting her trip. In 1957, she joined Siegfried Horn's first guided study tour to Europe and the Middle East. She wrote another travelogue of this trip, published in 1958 as From Thames to Tigris. In 1965 she traveled through Europe and studied six weeks in Israel, ending with a trip through Western Turkey and a cruise of the Aegean isles. In 1970, she again traveled through Europe to spend eight days in Iran, a weekend on Cyprus, and 10 days in Israel. In 1974, she taught in a summer session at Newbold College, England, then spent three weeks in both France and Germany.

For many years Leona collected articles, journals and books on women in ministry. She donated the collection to the Center for Adventist Research in the James White Library. The most notable of her multiple publications is William Foxwell Albright: A Twentieth-Century Genius, published by Morgan Press in 1975, a 436-page biography on the “Dean of Biblical Archaeologists.”

She retired from teaching at her 65th birthday, but for 21 years she continued to teach Egyptian, Akkadian and Syriac in the seminary, finally quitting in May 2002. At the May 2012 commencement ceremony, Leona was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Andrews University.

Leona Running was predeceased by her husband, Leif Running; her parents, Charles and Leona Glidden; her sister, Beth Habenicht; and her niece, Linda Joy Habenicht.

Besides countless former students and friends around the world, she leaves to mourn her nieces, Merry Habenicht Knoll and husband Thomas Russell Knoll Sr. of Walla Walla, Wash., and Cheeri Lee Roberts of Queensbury, N.Y., along with numerous grandnieces and grandnephews.

Thank You from the Paynes
On behalf of my daughter, Sheri, and her family, I would like to thank my campus community for the outpouring of caring and concern and especially the prayers for my grandson, Ewan, as he underwent chemo for a massive abdominal lymphoma. I am happy to report that he completed all five rounds of chemo in three months (half the time they initially indicated) and was discharged from BC Children's Hospital on December 23, cancer-free and just in time for Christmas. God's fingerprints could be found all throughout this very difficult but amazing journey. I am particularly thankful for His grace and mercy and of course, your prayers. Ewan turned three years old two weeks ago and is eating well and driving his two older sisters crazy, so all is well in his house!

GROW group at Home

A GROW Group from the convenience of home!
On March 18, United Way of Southwest Michigan and Honor Credit Union are taking action to promote the impact reading has on our youth. This annual Reading Day of Action asks PreK-5th grade classrooms from all corners of Berrien and Cass County to open their doors to our community members and allow volunteers to share their love of reading with the students. Volunteers will be reading to over 10,000 on one day! Please be a part of raising awareness of the importance of reading on the development in a child’s life.

Schools and Classrooms- will be able to specify a time range they would like volunteers to come and will have the ability to signup a whole school! After that, United Way will coordinate volunteers to come to you! Volunteers will have a 20 minute appointment at the classroom. Though we strongly encourage volunteers to bring books we ask that classrooms have 5-6 books available just in case.

Volunteers- can volunteer from 9am-Noon or Noon-3pm. Typically volunteers read to multiple classrooms and are asked to bring an age appropriate book if available. Teachers and students love to hear new books! Volunteers can signup in a group of two or as a single. We will do our best to keep multiple volunteer groups from one company at the same school building.

Desperately in need of a job

Hello, my name is Grace, I am an MSW student who is desperately in need of a job. I am open to anything that will give me some sort of income so I can pay for my voice lessons and my upcoming music project. I love music with passion (write my own songs by God’s grace) and desire to share the love of God with others through my music ministry. I am 27 years old, warm, obedient, God-fearing woman. I design and customize little girl’s church, birthday and party outfits if anyone is interested, I am highly interested in any singing opportunities if anyone knows of such or will be willing to give me the chance. I will also write and sing songs for special occasions if needed. Thank you.

Field School Swap

Attention all Seminary Field School Students!

Would you like a chance to work directly with Dr. Carlton Byrd? I am currently assigned to go to field school in Buffalo but cannot make it. I’d like to swap for a field school spot closer to home in South Bend, Ind. or Benton Harbor, Mich. If you’re currently assigned in the area and would rather work with Dr. Byrd in Buffalo, NY, please get in touch with me at strattd@andrews.edu. NADEI has approved swapping for Field School. Please let me know if you’d like to swap.

Large Space Needed
Andrews University is looking for a large, clean space where we can set up the booth for General Conference for a month or two. The booth is 50' x 60'. If you have a space that could suit our needs and are willing to lend us this space it would be a great service to us. Please contact the Division of Integrated Marketing and Communication at 269-471-6031 or at imc@andrews.edu

Regular Caregiver Needed for Infant
I am a single mother of my infant and I am a young healthcare professional with Borgess. I live in Dowagiac, MI. and I am looking for a caregiver who will come to my residence and sit with my infant and provide care while I work Monday through Friday 8:00 am. to 4:30 pm. This would be ideal for an Early Childhood Education student and/or a student taking evening classes. My current caregiver is providing care in my home for $100.00/Wk. I also pay a steady paycheck to the caregiver, regardless if I have to take time off of work for doctor’s appointments, holidays, etc. My infant is almost a toddler and is exclusively breastfed, so it really makes the job easy. I come home at noon on my lunch break and nurse my daughter.

We are a small Christian family and the ideal candidate would respect our beliefs and wishes, not drink, not smoke, not do any drug of any kind, not have any criminal record, have a true passion for children, does not have a pet allergy as we have an elderly fixed feline, cpr certified preferred, and that is willing to commit to our little family.

Interested and qualified candidates should send their resume with at least 3 professional references to Tanya.Thomas@borgess.com as references will be checked.
