AICER Symposium - Dr. Gregorutti -The Search for Wisdom

Andrews International Center for Educational Research (AICER) invites you to attend a presentation on Thursday, March 6, 2014 from 6:00 pm to 7:30 pm.

Title: The Emergence of the Fourth University Mission: The Search for Wisdom

Presenter: Dr. Gus Gregorutti, Postgraduate Researcher, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin Institut

Dr. Gregorutti will present his experience in comparative higher education research and the emerging trend of focusing on values. The phenomenon has been called the “fourth mission in higher education.” He will map and outline this trend with the intent of systematizing general characteristics of it and as well as exploring the different ways universities apply, purposely or not, some elements of this emerging mission.

Face-to-face participants meet in Bell Hall, Room 013.

Online participants to login as "Guest" at https://andrews.adobeconnect.com/_a877709416/research/ or http://www.andrews.edu/sed/aicer/researchwebinars/ whether or not they are registered at Andrews University.

The Role of Doubt
In Religious Identity Development and Psychological Maturity

Presented by Ron Coffen, Ph.D.
Professor of Counseling and School Psychology
Director, Andrews Community Counseling Center
Andrews University

and

Tiago Baltazar, EdS
School Psychologist
Berrien Regional Education Service Agency.

Saturday afternoon at 3:30 pm
March 8, 2014

Chan Shun Hall
Andrews University

Dr. Coffen has provided a preview of their presentation:

Religious educators at the elementary, high school, and college levels are concerned with the religious identity development of their students. We will explore a theory of general identity development (based on Erik Erikson’s theory of psychosocial development) and illustrate similar processes for religious identity development. We will analyze doubt as an essential factor for successful religious identity achievement. We hope to end with a discussion of potential educational interventions to create school environments that promote, rather than inhibit, religious identity development.

Chemistry Seminar: The Periodic Table: Its Story & Significance
Everyone is welcome to attend our eighth Winter-Spring 2014 session in the Andrews University Chemistry & Biochemistry Departmental Seminar Series this coming Thursday, February 27 at 4:30pm. As usual we meet in A-107 Halenz Hall.

Thursday's live webinar topic is:
The Periodic Table: Its Story & Significance

It is the central document in all chemistry. It is a map of all known elemental matter in the known universe. How did the Periodic Table come to be?

Our guest speaker is:
Eric Scerri, Author & Lecturer, Department of Chemistry & Biochemistry, University of California, Los Angeles

Attached is the seminar flyer in pdf format with more details about our speaker's educational and professional background.

Teachers are encouraged to announce this lecture in their classes and/or forward this email to their classes.

For non-Andrews faculty and students wishing to see the talk in the Chemistry Amphitheater:

There are directions given to Andrews at: http://www.andrews.edu/about/visiting/get_to_andrews.html

Here are the directions to the chemistry dept:

Revive Vespers with Dan Augsburger

Join us for another exciting spiritual adventure! Dan Augsburger, professor at the Seminary will be presenting a two part series entitled BE LIKE JESUS.

The first presentation will take place on Friday, February 28 @ 7:30 pm at the Biology Amphitheater, Science Complex. The title is "Be Like Jesus: Counting the Cost" (what it means to deny oneself, take up the cross and follow Jesus).

The second presentation on Friday, March 7 @ 7:30 pm (this time at Garber Auditorium, Chan Shun) is entitled "Be Like Jesus: Wearing the Yoke" (What it means to take up Christ's yoke).

These series are LIFE CHANGING! Daniel Augsburger is a renowned International speaker with focus on prayer and personal revival. You don't want to miss this one! Bring your family and friends!

For more info on Revive events go to www.reviveonline.org co-curricular credit available each Friday.

Children’s Leadership Conference

Announcing the second annual Lake Union wide Children’s Leadership Conference on the campus of Andrews University from March 28-30. If you or someone you know loves teaching kids about Jesus and need ideas, inspiration or encouragement, then this event is for you! Come learn and grow from the best trainers in Adventism, including Richard Aguilera, Miss Brenda, and Phyllis Washington. Full Adventurer Basic Staff Training and Hispanic Workshop Tracks (Basic and Advanced) will be available. Other workshops include Kids’ Health Expo, Creative Prayer Ministry, Children’s Ministries basics, and much, much more. Several of the workshops will be great for kids who would like to learn more about ministry. This is a training event you can’t afford to miss!

"I Had No Idea..." Raising Awareness about Eating Disorders and Body Image

"I Had No Idea..." Raising Awareness about Eating Disorders and Body Image

To promote a healthy body image and increase awareness about eating disorders on our community, the Andrews University Counseling & Testing Center will be sponsoring an interactive event during the National Eating Disorders Awareness Week  (February 23 – March 1, 2014).

Faculty, staff, and students are welcomed to participate during our Awareness Event on Wednesday, February 26th, 2014, from 11:30am-2pm. All are invited to post messages of acceptance and encouragement, learn about the impact of eating disorders on mental health, discuss the role of culture and media in distorting body image, and discover ways to help a friend or family member who might be struggling with these concerns.

Also, we will be offering confidential screenings. The eating disorder screening consists of a brief, anonymous questionnaire designed to provide students with insight into symptoms they might be experiencing and receive helpful treatment and referral information, if necessary. In addition to in-person screenings during the Awareness Event, students can access an anonymous screening online at http://www.mentalhealthscreening.org/screening/andrews

Excessive preoccupation about weight and diets can lead to disordered eating habits. These unhealthy habits can be difficult to recognize, but over time, can develop into an eating disorder. The majority of students struggling with eating disorders are not receiving treatment. The screenings available help direct students to the appropriate care they need.

Eating disorders are more prevalent on college campuses than many people realize. In fact, 95 percent of those who have eating disorders are between the ages of 12 and 25. Twenty-five percent of college-aged women report engaging in binging and purging as a weight-management technique. And college males are not immune. Increasingly, men are feeling the pressure for physical perfection which can lead to excessive exercise and fixation on low body fat percentage.

Come, participate, and help in promoting a healthy body image and greater awareness of eating disorders in our community. For more information, contact Dr. Luis G. Cruz-Ortega at cluis@andrews.edu or call the CTC at 269-471-3470.
Spring Training for Faculty & Staff

Dear AU Faculty or Staff Member,

We’d like to invite you to our spring training for the Extended Support Network. This workshop is open to all AU faculty and staff members. In our fall semester training, we explored the experiences of international college students, identified their needs, and discussed how to assist them. The topic for our upcoming workshop is “Strengthening God’s Circle of Love on Andrews Campus: Identifying & Helping Students who are Challenged, Broken or Lost.”

We will meet at Whirlpool Conference Room in Chan Shun Hall on Friday, March 7th, 2014 from 10:30am – 12:30pm. The presenter is Dr. Joy Alexander, Associate Professor of Counseling at Indiana University South Bend.

We are welcoming any faculty or staff member who is interested in this topic, but will give priority to current Extended Support Network members. The space is limited, thus reserve your space as soon as possible by contacting Dr. Luis G. Cruz-Ortega at cluis@andrews.edu.

Presenter’s Bio:
Dr. Joy Alexander received her doctorate from Andrews University and is a licensed psychologist. She is currently an Associate Professor of Counseling at Indiana University South Bend. Having spent over twenty years on university campuses, Dr. Alexander has had the opportunity to assist many first generation college students, with the array of challenges they offer. Dr. Alexander has also facilitated workshops to church and school communities on issues pertaining to young adults in the college environment, academic difficulties, including sexual orientation, substance use, mental health, developmental tasks, and the interfacing of faith and life. Dr. Alexander has also taught in Canada, the Caribbean, and in South Korea.

About the Extended Support Network (ESN):
The ESN is a formal support system comprised of selected faculty and staff volunteers, serving as first responders, and committed to enhancing the caring, safe and supportive environment for Andrews University students where they can process their thoughts, explore, and share their concerns or challenges.

Chemistry Seminar: Investigating Structure and Function of Proteases

CHEMSEM 7: Investigating Structure and Function of Proteases

Did you know that proteins (proteases, lipases, and amylases) are intentionally used in detergents to enhance their cleaning properties?

Everyone is welcome to attend our seventh Winter-Spring 2014 session in the Andrews University Chemistry & Biochemistry Departmental Seminar Series this coming Thursday, February 20 at 4:30pm. As usual we meet in A-107 Halenz Hall.

Thursday's seminar topic is:
Investigating Structure and Function of Proteases

Our guest speaker is:
Peter Lyons, Assistant Professor, Department of Biology, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI

Teachers are encouraged to announce this lecture in their classes and/or forward this email to their classes.

For non-Andrews faculty and students wishing to see the talk in the Chemistry Amphitheater:

There are directions given to Andrews at: http://www.andrews.edu/about/visiting/get_to_andrews.html

Here are the directions to the chemistry dept:

Turn in at the J. N. Andrews Blvd. entrance. Go pass the Security Gate House. Make right turn at the first intersection on to E Campus Circle Drive. Then make a left turn at the next intersection (E Campus Circle Drive). Make another left onto Administration Drive. The Science Complex is the bldg on your left. Minute Taking Made Easy Workshop

Are you responsible for taking minutes for a committee or faculty meeting? Or, as a committee chair, wonder what you should expect from minutes? Are you aware that minutes are a legal record of University business? Do you know what to include and not to include? Would you like to learn how to better organize them for future reference?

Please join us as we discuss the minute-taking process and how to take better advantage of this organizational tool. Dr. Alice Williams, University Archivist, will delve into this topic and help simplify the process for us.

There are two opportunities for you to participate in this workshop:

- Wednesday, February 26, 12:30-1:30pm, Room 307, Administration Building
- Thursday, February 27, 11:30am-12:30pm, Room 306, Administration Building

Please RSVP by sending an email to training@andrews.edu, and be sure to include your full name, ID#, email address, the department you are employed by, as well as which day you would like to attend the Minute Taking Made Easy workshop.

The Periodic Table: Its Story & Significance

Dr. Eric Scerri received his PhD in the History & Philosophy of Chemistry at King’s College, London. After postdoctoral fellowships at the London School of Economics and Caltech he taught chemistry at Bradley University and Purdue University. Since 2000 at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) he has taught over 20,000 students in chemistry, and in the history & philosophy of science.

Scerri, founder and editor-in-chief of the Springer journal, Foundations of Chemistry, has written three award-winning books. His most recent book, A Tale of Seven Elements was named among the top 12 science books of 2013 by New Scientist magazine.

Scerri has also published two books of his own collected research papers and has edited three books on the philosophy of chemistry and the elements. His books have been translated into twelve languages and he is currently working on a new book about the rare earth elements.

He has appeared on radio and television and frequently lectures in countries all round the world. He has published over 100 articles in professional journals as well as more popular magazines including Scientific American, American Scientist, New Scientist, and Chemistry World. Horn Museum Featured in Local Story
If you’ve ever driven into Berrien Springs, chances are that you’ve driven right past the Horn Archaeological Museum at Andrews University. But, have you ever stopped and gone into the unassuming building that once served as a bank?
If you haven’t, then you have no idea the ancient treasures that lie inside, waiting to be discovered by visitors, just as they were discovered by archeologists on desert digs.

Alumna Publishes Book
Tracy Weakly, a McMinnville, Oregon, resident, recently published a book titled The Mission Through God’s Eyes. The book presents the life and death of Christ in a narrative format from the perspective of the interaction of each member of the Trinity—God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.
It was Weakly’s study of Jesus’ life that prompted her to write this book. As she dug deeper into the Bible and other commentaries, she began to imagine how a triune God experienced the events. Based on her research of Jesus’ life and the culture of that time, Weakly weaves in insights about the customs of Jesus’ day as she tells the familiar Bible stories as first-person accounts from each member of the Trinity.

Alumnus Receives Award
Acclaimed surgeon Dr. Stephen Yoo from Los Angeles Colon and Rectal Surgical Associates has been listed amongst the high caliber doctors chosen for the SuperDoctors Rising Stars Award. This award is an initiative to honor top doctors from different fields of specialization based on independent research and selection by peers. Student Gardens Partner with Health Department
If the people can’t get to the farm, bring the farm to the people.

That’s the philosophy behind a new partnership between the Berrien County Health Department and Andrews University’s student garden to operate a mobile farmers’ market this year.

Garth Woodruff, an Andrews horticulture instructor who oversees the garden project, said it is unbelievable that there are people in Berrien County who can’t get freshly grown produce.

"It is shocking to me that in this county, where 90 percent of the land is used for agriculture, where you can’t find better vegetable growing land in the region, and probably the United States, you would have food deserts in areas such as Berrien Springs, Benton Harbor and Niles," Woodruff said.

Faculty Member Wins International Competition
The Jonas Center for Nursing Excellence, Khan Academy, and the American Association of Colleges of Nursing are pleased to announce that 14 individuals have been selected to join a select group of educators working to transform how health education is delivered across disciplines around the globe. The partnering organizations launched an international competition last fall to generate interest among health profession students, faculty, and practitioners in creating innovative healthcare tutorials with videos and exercises, which will be made available for free through the Khan Academy website. This content will support graduates of nursing programs in preparation for the NCLEX-RN exam.

The competition received almost 100 submissions from individuals around the world, emerging from over 60 hospitals and academic institutions. Competition submissions represented the disciplines of medicine, nursing, pharmacy, dentistry, public health, and graduate studies in biological science. The competition winners include Leslie Samuel, physical therapy instructor at Andrews University, among others.

Uncover the past Andrews University

BERRIEN SPRINGS—If you’ve ever driven into Berrien Springs, chances are that you’ve driven right past the Horn Archaeological Museum at Andrews University. But, have you ever stopped and gone into the unassuming building that once served as a bank?

If you haven’t, then you have no idea the ancient treasures that lie inside, waiting to be discovered by visitors, just as they were discovered by archeologists on desert digs.

“We have quite a nice collection, actually,” said Dr. Constance Gane, curator of the museum and assistant professor of archaeology and Old Testament at Andrews. “Altogether, we have almost 9,000 artifacts.”

Named in honor of Siegfried H. Horn (1908-1993), one of the early guiding forces behind the development of Seventh-day Adventist archeology, the museum was opened up to the public in 1970. In 2003, it moved to its present location at 9047 Old U.S. 31 in Berrien Springs.

The museum actually began with the donation of a few potshards in 1938 when it was still located in Washington, D.C.

“Our jewel in the collection is our cuneiform tablets, and we have about 3,000 of them in the collection,” Gane said. “It is the seventh largest collection in the United States.”

Besides their cuneiform tablet collection—some of which even include clay envelopes. The museum features a wide range of artifacts that are housed in a number of galleries, each of which focuses on a different period of ancient history.

For example, in the museum’s lower level, visitors can browse through the Classroom Hall. There, a number of cases make up a biblical storyline that spans ancient history, beginning more than 5,000 years ago with the Early Bronze I period (ca. 3200-3000 B.C.).

In the cases, artifacts are displayed in front of murals which depict historic scenes from each period. However, unlike many such murals, the museum’s actual artifacts are featured within the paintings, thereby showing the objects in their original context.

“Nathan Greene took the Bible stories, and he used our artifacts and painted into the story some of the artifacts,” Dr. Gane explained. “It’s just brilliant!”

While each case includes many fascinating objects, some highlights in this area include an example of the type of household gods—or teraphim—that Rachel would have stolen as she and Jacob left the house of her father, Laban.

Another interesting piece in this collection is a replica of the clay Cyrus Cylinder, which tells of the fall of Babylon to the Persian king, Cyrus the Great. This artifact adds insight into the period during which Daniel would have lived.

There is also an example of a “purr,” which is the predecessor of the dice we now use for game-playing, and which is related to the Jewish holiday, Purim.

“That’s what was used to cast lots. They would roll it,” Gane explained. “Originally, it was used for divination purposes. This one is from the Mesopotamian region.”

On the main level of the museum, the Main Exhibit Hall is dominated by a life-sized, modern Bedouin tent, complete with couches upon which visitors are welcome to sit and relax.

“The great thing about these is that they are basically the same as they were during Abraham’s day,” said Gane. “He would have lived in tents like this.”

The New Testament room features a large, three-dimensional model of the city of Jerusalem which was created in 1898. Photographs of Jerusalem, taken during the same time period, provide viewers with a greater level of context by which to approach the relief.

In the Mesopotamian Hall, visitors will find ancient bricks from the cities of Babylon and Ur displayed, including one with King Nebuchadnezzar’s stamp on it. Another highlight of the room is a replica of the Black Obelisk of Shalamannesser III, which depicts conquered peoples paying tribute to that king.

“I can’t believe we have it. It’s just a wonderful treasure,” Gane said of the obelisk. “This was a huge find when it was first discovered.”

The Madaba Plains Hall highlights Andrews’ current archeological dig sites, Hisban, Jalul and Umayri. It also presents information on a cultural preservation project that Prof. Oystein LaBianca is spearheading, the creation of an Institute of Cultural Heritage at Hisban.

In the Egyptian Hall, graduate students Scott Baker and Sean Porras have cleverly transformed the old bank vault into a replica of King Tutankhamen’s tomb, complete with a replica of the sarcophagus, various mummified birds, scarabs and a life-size replica of his throne.

“This is, hands down, most people’s favorite place,” Gane said. “I just love what they did with it.”

The exhibit also features a tiny hole into which visitors can look, providing them with the same view that greeted Howard Carter when he first peered into King Tut’s tomb.

More information about the museum can be found at www.andrews.edu/archaeology. It is open on Saturdays from 3 to 5 p.m., except for holidays, but appointments to visit the museum during the week can also be made by calling (269) 471-3273. There is also a gift shop where visitors can purchase items imported from the Middle East.

As a part of Andrews University, the museum is centered on a biblical interpretation of ancient history. Nonetheless, visitors of any faith will find ancient and modern artifacts that pique their interest and stir their imagination when viewing the collections at the Horn Museum.

“This is a little hidden treasure,” Gane said. “It really is.”

Renowned surgeon Stephen Yoo has been selected as a recipient of the SuperDoctors Rising Stars Award. Key Professional Media presents this award to physicians from different fields with an exceptionally strong peer recognition and professional achievement.

Beverly Hills, CA (PRWEB) February 25, 2014

Acclaimed surgeon Dr. Stephen Yoo from Los Angeles Colon and Rectal Surgical Associates has been listed amongst the high caliber doctors chosen for the SuperDoctors Rising Stars Award. This award is an initiative to honor top doctors from different fields of specialization based on independent research and selection by peers. All doctors selected for the SuperDoctors Rising Stars Award will very soon be featured online as well as in traditional media. Los Angeles Colon and Rectal Surgical Associates have expressed their deep satisfaction about the feat achieved by Dr. Yoo, one of their top surgeons.

Hundreds of awards are presented by different bodies to medical practitioners for professional excellence. However, the SuperDoctors Rising Stars Award has a special significance in the medical fraternity because of its strict selection procedure. Firstly, this award is given only for highly active and completely licensed and certified physicians with approximately ten years of experience in their field of specialization. The selection process consists of multiple steps starting with the nomination of exceptionally skilled physicians by their colleagues. Candidates with adequate credentials are also invited after searching different medical databases and publications. Each candidate is evaluated in terms of parameters such as experience, fellowship training, hospital appointments, certifications, leadership positions, and other rigorous criteria. The final selection is made on the basis of points awarded to each candidate based on research, nomination, and a panel review.

Stephen Yoo M.D. is presently associated with Cedars Sinai Medical Center as an Attending Surgeon. He is also an integral part of the Department of Colon and Rectal Surgery's teaching faculty. Dr. Yoo completed his Bachelor of Science and medical doctorate from Andrews University and Loma Linda University School of Medicine respectively. Later, he completed his colorectal fellowship at Henry Ford Hospital. The major areas of research and clinical interest for Doctor Yoo includes surgical techniques in minimally invasive surgery, laparoscopy, and surgical outcome optimization. He is on the forefront of robotic colorectal surgery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. He is rated highly for preventive treatment of colorectal cancer, anorectal disorders, and diseases related to inflammatory bowel disease. Q&A: Keeping it together at RESA

Posted: Monday, February 24, 2014 5:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS - When Tonya Snyder graduated from Andrews University in June 2000, she headed right to the Berrien Regional Education Service Agency without missing a proverbial beat.

However, the path to a public relations degree took time to emerge, as Snyder said.

"If my current self were to visit my college or high school self, I would probably not believe the career path I find myself in," Snyder said, laughing. "I pictured myself more along the journalism side, or (being) the author of a book."

These days, Snyder wears two hats.

As student activities coordinator, she ensures the smooth operation of major events like the Cloverleaf Spelling Bee, which drew 59 contestants this month to Lake Michigan College.

About 3 1/2 years ago, the district named Snyder as coordinator of the Berrien County Math and Science Center, giving her a chance to work with advanced math and science students - another role she would never have imagined.

"I was OK in (high school) math and science, but it was not my focus," Snyder said. "That always amuses people close to me, that I work in a math and science environment, and have not had a huge propensity towards math and science."

She further holds a master's degree in public administration from Western Michigan University.

Outside work, Snyder focuses on family life with her husband, Chris, and two young sons in Berrien Springs. She discussed her life and work with Herald-Palladium Correspondent Ralph Heibutzki.

Your degree's in public relations - a world away from education, isn't it?

My mother is an educator, and two of my fore-grandparents were educators and administrators, so it's not a world that's completely foreign to me.

It (education) just has been an evolution of being exposed to something (new) - seeing how it fits my interests, and how I can better Berrien County, and its future, through the kids.

Obviously, being the Math and Science Center's coordinator gives you a direct hand in that (goal).

What was taking that job like?

I was still quite young. I was 25, (and) only a couple years older than some of the kids I am leading, directing, and sometimes disciplining.

The first couple of times, it was an out-of-body experience: "Am I really getting after them for this?" I began to measure my words much better, and think a lot before I'd say anything.
Suffice to say, you've gained a renewed appreciation for the subject (of math and science) ...

Absolutely! I married an engineer, (and) computer programmer - so I have a great appreciation for the field, in many aspects. We just celebrated our 12th wedding anniversary a week and a half ago.

I'm a parent, so I always love meeting the parents of our students, just picking their brains: "Your kid is amazing, how do I do that for my boys?"

Do you still write in your downtime, since you (originally) envisioned yourself as a writer?

I do a little bit, but I obviously don't do it enough. I'll have something published once a year, in some random journal or publication.

My husband and I have been talking about how I need to dedicate an hour an evening to sitting down, and writing something. It's always in my mind, to keep the craft up.

What else do you do during your downtime?

Right now, a lot of my downtime is just spent with my family. I got the little guys, and they're so active.

When we have a little bit of downtime, we (the Snyders) just look at each other, and say, "What's our next place to explore?"

We did Disney, in January - and this summer, we have close friends in Nebraska, which is not exotic, but we always go and see them. We always try and do a cruise to the Caribbean, or go to an island, every three years.

What kind of traveling did you do when you were younger?

My mom was an educator, and then she became a travel agent for a decade. Back in the day, travel agents received some wonderful discounts, so it was much more affordable.

I would spend spring breaks going to places like Egypt, Norway or China. That was a very important thing for her (mother), to make sure we saw the world, and were exposed to new cultures.

What went through your mind when you saw those pictures from Tahir Square (during the protests that toppled former dictator Hosni Mubarak)?

It's pretty unbelievable when you see the news, and think, "I've been there. I've walked there." It helps give you a good world perspective. We're fortunate to be Americans, and there are a lot of countries that have a lot of unhappiness in them, for many reasons.

It definitely sounds like you don't sit still for very long.

The days the events are happening are always my favorite days because you see all the hard work that you have put in for months in advance.

It's a huge sigh of relief, even though that day is full of running around and work. Everyone was happy, everyone made it there safe, (and) it was a success. It's a good thing.
A moveable feast

By JOHN MATUSZAK - HP Staff Writer | Posted: Tuesday, February 18, 2014 5:00 am

BENTON HARBOR - If the people can't get to the farm, bring the farm to the people.

That's the philosophy behind a new partnership between the Berrien County Health Department and Andrews University's student garden to operate a mobile farmers' market this year.

Garth Woodruff, an Andrews horticulture instructor who oversees the garden project, said it is unbelievable that there are people in Berrien County who can't get freshly grown produce.

"It is shocking to me that in this county, where 90 percent of the land is used for agriculture, where you can't find better vegetable growing land in the region, and probably the United States, you would have food deserts in areas such as Berrien Springs, Benton Harbor and Niles," Woodruff said.

Food deserts describe places where residents do not live near stores that sell fresh food. This lack of access is linked to numerous health conditions, including obesity. Berrien County has one of Michigan's highest obesity rates.

The Berrien County Health Department has tried to close that food gap by managing the Benton Harbor farmers market. Andrews' students sell the fruits, vegetables and herbs they grow at their own seasonal market, and through Consumer-Supported Agriculture subscriptions, in which consumers sign up for a portion of the annual yield.

Woodruff has been interested in the possibility of a mobile market for several years, but has been unable to get the effort on the road.

The health department's proposal fit in with the university's mission of community service for students, Woodruff said, as well as their dedication to reaching the public.

Funding will come from the health department, through a grant from Gov. Rick Snyder's 4x4 initiative to promote a healthy lifestyle.

The mobile market will be on the road four days a week, making eight to 10 regular stops.

Nicki Britten, the health department's director of community health planning, said likely stops include Benton Harbor, Benton Township, Buchanan, Niles and Niles Township.

The Southwest Michigan Planning Commission will help target neighborhoods where the need for fresh food is greatest, Britten said.

The market will be geared to serve low-income residents with limited access to fresh food. Produce will be sold at 10 percent above wholesale prices. The market has applied to be able to accept Bridge cards used by residents receiving food assistance.
"I'm glad we're serving a large part of the county. We know it's not enough, but we're trying to do more," Britten recently reported to the Board of Health.

There is a lot of bounty to share. Last year, the Andrews' garden produced around 30 tons of produce, not counting its apple crop, Woodruff said.

The university maintains 10 acres for vegetables, three acres of Gala apples, four acres of peaches, along with patches for raspberries and blackberries, and three greenhouses.

What are some of the barriers to getting healthier food to low-income residents?

"Some of it is cost, some of it is time," Woodruff suggested. "People work hard at their jobs, with probably low wages. They come home tired, and you don't feel like chopping vegetables."

Few people are advocating the benefits of buying local food, he added, noting that even a lot of food pantries distribute processed, packaged goods.

Another part of the effort is education, Woodruff said. The market is working with Lakeland HealthCare to include cooking demonstrations to introduce buyers to new foods and quick and easy recipes. The student garden website, augardens.com, also posts recipes.

The health department has applied for a grant from the Conservation Fund to provide cooking demonstrations at the Benton Harbor market.

Along with promoting a healthier diet for residents, the garden operation has many benefits for students, Woodruff said.

About 20 students participate throughout the growing season, and another 30 volunteer to work 10 hours on the farm during the semester.

With the farm stand and the CSA operation, the students gain the experience of running a business, and earn money for tuition, Woodruff said. Internships also are available.

They get to work outside and take some of the vegetables home, he added.

In a blog entry, Woodruff tells of students going out to the fields before dawn to pick and sort the produce, and the happy chaos in the warehouse as the food is packed and shipped out.

"The smells, sounds, sights, touches and even tastes of 101 minutes in that place were more positive and energizing than anyone could describe and it truly took my breath away," Woodruff wrote.

Sue VanderWaal, wife of Curt VanderWaal, research professor of social work and chair of the Department of Social Work, died Sabbath, Feb. 22, after a hard-fought, two-year battle with cancer. Sue and Curt have three children, Michael and Ben, who are students at Andrews University, and Emma, who attends Village Adventist Elementary School.

Condolences and memories may be posted in the comments below. Please remember the family and friends of Sue in your prayers as they mourn her loss.

Obituary

Susan Denise Copin VanderWaal was born on October 27, 1964, as the youngest child of John and Edith Copin of Hickory Corners, Mich. She joined older siblings John, Jeanne and Teresa.

Sue grew up in the Battle Creek area and attended elementary and secondary school at Battle Creek Academy, from which she graduated in 1982. She continued her education at Andrews University and Lake Michigan College, receiving an associate degree from LMC and achieving her RN in 1985. She subsequently completed her BS from the University of Michigan and her Master of Science in Nursing with a clinical specialization from Andrews University.

In elementary school, one grade ahead of her, Sue met Curtis Jon VanderWaal. They completed school, worked at summer camp together, and married in Urbandale, Mich., on June 16, 1985. Sue was happy to expand her family to include Curt’s parents, Pat and Neal, and his siblings, and they became very dear to each other.

Together Sue and Curt continued their education and started their professional careers. Sue first embraced her vocation of caring for babies at the University of Michigan hospital, in the continuing care nursery. When the VanderWaals moved to the Berrien Springs, Mich., area in 1990, Sue began work at the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit of Memorial Hospital of South Bend, Ind., where she pursued her career for the next 24 years. She began as a staff nurse, worked as a primary nurse, and later managed the unit’s computer systems and services. She also served as assistant unit director. In the course of her career, she was responsible for hands-on care of her tiny patients, training of new staff, transporting babies to and from the hospital, parent education and helping to administer the unit. Her colleagues universally remember her and speak of her as compassionate, patient, intelligent—a versatile, gifted nurse. Sue was especially empathetic to the stress of the new parents and bonded with many of them, keeping in touch through the unit’s annual family reunions at which she was rewarded by seeing her “babies” growing up happy and robust.

Sue and Curt welcomed their own babies into their family, beginning with Michael Jon in 1991, then Benjamin Edward in 1995, and Emma Denise in 2001. A devoted mother, Sue helped out at school, cheered them on at many games, supported their participation in the Berrien County Youth Fair, nurtured their many interests, helped take care of their animals, loved and “adopted” their friends, and loved each child unconditionally. Sue and Curt loved to travel with their family throughout the United States and also to Europe.

In early 2012, Sue and her family learned that she had breast cancer. She fought valiantly through surgeries, radiation and chemo, and enjoyed every minute with family and friends. But the disease progressed to her brain and spine, and Sue lost her battle on Saturday, February 22, 2014. She was tenderly nursed through the final days of her illness by her family and especially her dear friends Connie Guerra and DeEtta Chen.

Sue was preceded in death by her mother, Edith Copin, in 1981. She is survived by her husband Curt, her children, Michael, Benjamin and Emma (all at home), her father John Copin and her stepmother Della, her brother John (Ruth Ann) Copin, her sisters Jeanne (Dale) Dent and Teresa (Mark) Cope, her father and mother-in-law Neal and Patricia VanderWaal and their children, Greg (Kimberly), Gail (James) Micheff, Robert (Jennifer), and Chris (Macie), many nieces and nephews, grand nieces and grand nephews, and a myriad of friends.

Donations in Sue's memory may be made to the Newborn Intensive Care Unit of Memorial Hospital of South Bend, c/o Diane Freel, 615 N Michigan Street, South Bend, IN 46601.

Death of Leona Running

Live streaming of Dr. Running’s funeral will be available at www.andrews.edu/livestream at the time of her funeral, 2 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 30.

Viewing will take place at Allred Funeral Home, 212 W Main Street, Berrien Springs, on Wednesday, Jan. 29, from 6–8 p.m. The funeral is at Pioneer Memorial Church on Thursday, Jan. 30, at 2 p.m. Interment will take place at Rose Hill Cemetery in Berrien Springs immediately following the service. Please remember her extended family and friends as they grieve.

Niels-Erik Andreasen, president of Andrews University, shared the following statement: "During her long and productive life Dr. Running broke new ground in the University and in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. She was the first female professor at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in Takoma Park, Md., and later here at Andrews. She was the first Adventist woman to earn a doctorate in Ancient Near Eastern Studies (Johns Hopkins University), with a specialization in ancient Syriac texts. She overcame the grief of losing her husband early in life and built her exemplary academic and professional calling. Following her retirement she continued to share her linguistic skill with graduate students (Syriac, Egyptian, Akkadian, Hebrew, Aramaic, and almost any other language these students cared to learn). And she served the University with her editorial talents, improving a good many of its publications over the years... She was an inspiration to many and an example to us all.”

Jiri Moskala, dean of the Andrews University Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, says: "Dr. Running holds a special place in the hearts of her Old Testament and Seminary colleagues and former students, who greatly appreciated her mentoring during their Seminary years. She was the first woman professor at the SDA Theological Seminary and was indeed a woman of remarkable skills and influence... We praise the Lord for her life and faithful ministry!"

William Shea, a close colleague, estimates that "Leona assisted more students in writing doctoral

Berrien Springs Camera Club March Meeting

The Berrien Springs Camera Club will meet on Wednesday, Mar. 5, at 7 p.m. in the Berrien Springs Community Library at Cass and Union.

Cheryl Thomas, president, states that for the March meeting members are invited to submit up to 5 digital images for projection and critique. They may wish to turn in pictures rejected by judges during recent competitions.

The club’s monthly meetings alternate between competitions, with three judges at each one, and other kinds of presentations. Members always notice how very subjective judging can be: Sometimes an image that is “out” one month may be resubmitted in another competition, with different judges, and receive “honor” status.

The March meeting will feature some of these rejected images and let the whole group try to decide why they were not accepted and how they could be improved. Submission guidelines can be found on the club’s Web site.

The public is welcome. To submit pictures, one must be a member. Refreshments are served at each meeting.
