AFIA Rice Run to Benefit MRSA
With the endorsement of the Michigan Governor’s Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports and the Michigan Fitness Foundation, Andrews Filipino International Association (AFIA) of Andrews University has partnered with the MRSA Survivors Network for the 2014 Rice Run: a 5K run that aims to raise awareness of MRSA, Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, by encouraging the community to get involved in physical activity.

AFIA is a club on the campus of Andrews University that promotes Filipino culture, values, and traditions to the students of the campus and the people of the community. AFIA aims to create a diverse network of connections and relationships, bringing together anyone who may be interested in Filipino culture through a variety of events and programs. In addition to providing memorable experiences through fun events, AFIA also strives to inspire the spirit of love and support by bringing awareness to any struggles that some people in our community may be facing.

This year AFIA has collaborated with the MRSA Survivors Network in hopes of raising awareness and funds for this great organization. MRSA is an acronym for Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, a type of
The bacterium that causes serious infections, prompting more deaths than HIV. The MRSA Survivors Network is "the global leader and voice in awareness, prevention, support, and advocacy" of MRSA. To learn more about the organization, you may visit: http://www.mrsasurvivors.org/about.

The 2014 5K Rice Run will take place on 5 October 2014 at 8 AM in St. Joseph, Michigan, starting at Margaret B. Upton Aboretum. Registration is now live at http://alumni.andrews.edu/events/afia-5k-run/, costing $25 for general registration and $20 for student registration. Participants can run or walk the 5K in St. Joseph, assured that they are creating awareness and raising funds for a great cause while participating in a quality physical activity event through the Michigan Governor’s Council’s Pure Michigan FITness Series endorsement program. "Pure Michigan FITness events promote physical activity for individuals and communities while providing a fun way for us all to get moving,” says Mike Maisner, Vice President of Active Communities. Runners will also be eligible to enter the Mackinac Bridge Labor Day Run Lottery. For more information about the Governor's Council's endorsement program, you may visit: www.michiganfitness.org/pure-michigan-fitness-series.

Andrews Kicks off United Way Campaign
by Becky St. Clair

The 2014 Andrews University United Way Campaign begins October 1. This annual event encourages faculty and staff to support the local chapter of United Way, an international organization that strives to provide people and families around the world with education, income stability and healthy lives. United Way also works to provide basic needs in times of crisis.

The theme for this year’s campaign is “Break Out of the Andrews Bubble” to support the community in which we all live.

“Healthy communities are good for all of us,” says Rebecca May, campus and community relations coordinator for Andrews University. “It helps us build stronger, more sustainable places to live and work.”

The Andrews goals this year are to raise $25,000 with 30 percent participation by both faculty and staff. Gifts of all kinds are welcome and encouraged, including gifts of volunteering with United Way. All funds will go directly to United Way.

“We may never be able to top our 2012 incentive of President Andreasen jumping into the pool in his business suit,” says May, “but we do plan to have a little fun along the way.”

To help achieve these goals, for the first time this year the Andrews campus has been divided into seven groups, with seven campus leaders acting as United Way campaign spokespersons at staff meetings and United Way rallies, and answering questions about the campaign on an individual basis.

“We’ve asked faculty and staff to prayerfully consider how they can support this worthy endeavor,” says May. “We have made improvements in our participation over the last several years, but it’s time to get more involved, better informed, and go outside our Andrews and Adventist bubble and do even more to support the needs of our neighbors.”

The United Way campaign on the Andrews campus ends on October 31. For any questions or to make a donation of funds or time, consult the United Way campaign packet scheduled for delivery on Wednesday, October 1.

Barnes & Noble to Take Over Bookstore
by Jenna Neil

Andrews University administration has announced their decision to change management of the University bookstore from Tree of Life to Barnes and Noble. The full transition will take place the week of October 3–10, 2014. The store will open as a Barnes & Noble store on Monday, October 13.

“The process of deciding who to bring in as a new bookstore manager began with a recommendation from the faculty that it was time for a change,” says Larry Schalk, vice president for Financial Administration.

As a result, a committee was formed and began meeting last spring. The committee was made up of three faculty members, one academic dean, the provost, the chief financial officer, two support staff from IT and the bookstore, and two students. Together they discussed various options, settling on four finalists. Barnes & Noble was ultimately chosen because they are one of the biggest vendors who provide this type of service.

Bookstore inventory will stay very much the same, from textbooks and general reading books to food, apparel and office supplies.

“One of the main things we can be assured of is quality service for students and faculty alike,” says Schalk.
The bookstore will be closed October 3–10 for the transition. No business will be possible during this time, including textbook purchases.

Howard Center Presents...Jars of Clay

On Sunday, Oct. 19, at 7 p.m., the Howard Performing Arts Center will present the well-known group Jars of Clay on their 20th-anniversary tour. The concert will be a mostly acoustical evening of Christian music from their new album, Inland, as well as many of their well-known songs.

The music of Jars of Clay has cinematic quality marked by lush keyboard melodies, strong acoustic rhythm guitar, serpentine bass lines, ambient melodies and rich lyrics that attest to two decades of creativity. They have written more than 100 songs, made 10 studio records, won three GRAMMYs, toured internationally, and created Blood: Water Mission, an organization dedicated to providing clean blood and water for African nations suffering from the HIV/AIDS crisis.

Premium seating tickets are $25. Regular seating prices are $20, $15 for Andrews University faculty and staff, and $10 for Andrews University students.

Tickets can be purchased online at howard.andrews.edu or at the box office by calling 888-467-6442.

Scholars Discuss Interplay of Faith and Science
Dr. Deborah Haarsma stood in front of the audience at Granger Community Church and described the layers of glaciers that have preserved evidence of 720,000 winters. She presented layers of sedimentary rock that go back millions of years and radiometric dating that puts some earthly rock formations at 3.6 billion years old.

She described her own work as an astronomer, where she studies distant galaxies over a billion lightyears from Earth.

Speaking to a sold-out crowd attending Michiana Forum on Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, Haarsma was one of four panelists invited to speak about scholarship and reconciling Christian faith with scientific evidence that appears to contradict Biblical teachings.

Other panelists took different approaches, but also spoke of reconciliation between science and faith.

Dr. Roy Gane, a professor of Hebrew Bible and ancient near eastern languages at Andrews University, spoke of the importance of recognizing both the Bible and scientific evidence as legitimate sources of knowledge.

Bahamian Alumnus Awarded Scholarship to Oxford
Ebola a small threat to U.S.

By LOUISE WREGE – HP Staff Writer | Posted: Friday, September 26, 2014 6:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Ebola virus ravaging West Africa poses little threat to the U.S., a researcher told an Andrews University audience Thursday.

But doing nothing about the deadly outbreak is not an option.

If nothing is done to stop the spread, officials at the Centers for Disease Control estimate that by January, 550,000 people in West Africa will have contracted Ebola and 300,000 will have died, according to Robert Stahelin, associate professor in the chemistry department at the University of Notre Dame.

He spoke Thursday to chemistry students at Andrews University in Oronoko Township.

If the Ebola virus reaches the United States, he said the virus will not have the same impact it is having in Africa. He said he is confident it would be quickly contained and there would be few deaths. He said the virus spreads through bodily fluids and direct contact, so patients need to be isolated, which local medical facilities are ready to do.

In addition, he said supportive care with fluids and electrolytes is important while a person is fighting the virus, things that are also easily available in the United States.

He said there have been almost 3,000 deaths in almost 6,000 cases of Ebola in West Africa since the current outbreak began in December 2013.

"But the CDC estimates that this has been grossly underreported," said Stahelin, who is also an associate professor of biochemistry and molecular biology at the Indiana University School of Medicine - South Bend. "There could be as many as 2.5 times the cases and fatalities that have been reported thus far."

Unlike previous outbreaks, he said this one centers around large cities like Monrovia, the capitol of Liberia, which has about 1 million people.

The largest outbreak previous to the current one was in 2000, when there were around 470 patients and about half of them died, he said.
He said many people don't know that there has been a second, independent outbreak of the Ebola virus in the Republic of Congo. He said genetic sequencing shows that it's a different strain of the virus. "In that outbreak, there have been about 68 cases and about 41 fatalities so far," he said.

He said ever since the first outbreak of Ebola in Zaire in 1976, there has been an outbreak every few years. But those outbreaks have been much smaller than the current one.

Stahelin said he doesn't study the Ebola virus itself, but one of its proteins called VP-40. He said that protein allows the virus to replicate. If a drug can be found to inhibit that protein, he said that will help slow Ebola's spread.

One of the problems with the Ebola virus is it isn't round like most viruses, making it difficult to produce a vaccine for it. Instead, he said Ebola has long, sometimes branched filaments.

Stahelin said the best way to keep the Ebola virus from spreading is if the people in West Africa believe what is being taught to them about how to stop the spread. "One of the problems now is resistance," he said. "We've had a few deaths in Guinea, where a village essentially attacked some people who were there to communicate how to be clean with Ebola and how to not transmit the virus. Even the Red Cross, while bearing bodies ... were attacked by some people."

He said the region has had prior conflict, which is making it difficult. "If people aren't buying in, it could be a real big problem," he said.

He said there hasn't been an Ebola outbreak before in West Africa, so there hasn't been education on the virus in this region. "We've had people hiding from doctors. People not going in when they get sick," he said. "If you don't go in when you get sick, your family takes care of you. You might die, but then they get the virus and someone has to take care of them."

In West Africa, he said they are finding that every person with the virus is infecting on average another two people. "That's where you get the exponential growth in the outbreak," he said.

He said traditional burial rituals are also helping spread the virus. "In many of these countries, the ritual is to have everyone kiss the body," he said. "Especially early in death, that's really bad because there's still a lot of bodily fluids on the face, and the body can still transmit the virus even though it's died for a number of hours or even a day or two."

He said symptoms appear between two and 21 days after exposure. "People usually succumb to the virus in two to three weeks. If they live longer than three weeks, they're usually in the recovery phase," he said.
But the virus can cause lifelong problems for survivors. Many of the secondary health problems are similar to rheumatoid arthritis, he said.

He said many people believe, but it isn't certain, that the Ebola virus lies dormant in fruit bats.

Dr. Deborah Haarsma stood in front of the audience at Granger Community Church and described the layers of glaciers that have preserved evidence of 720,000 winters. She presented layers of sedimentary rock that go back millions of years and radiometric dating that puts some earthly rock formations at 3.6 billion years old.

She described her own work as an astronomer, where she studies distant galaxies over a billion lightyears from Earth.

Speaking to a sold-out crowd attending Michiana Forum on Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, Haarsma was one of four panelists invited to speak about scholarship and reconciling Christian faith with scientific evidence that appears to contradict Biblical teachings.

Haarsma admitted many scientific observations contradict the religious beliefs she learned as a child from her church and her family, both of which believed in a literal interpretation of the Bible and adhere to the idea that Earth is just a few thousand years old.

"Well, when I first learned about this, I was flummoxed," Haarsma said, referring to the scientific observations that suggest the world is actually quite old. "But once I learned to understand what the Bible was teaching us, and that it wasn’t teaching scientific information, I began to see this as God’s way of showing us how and why he went about making the earth."

Haarsma, a MIT-trained astrophysicist, said her belief in the biblical account of creation went unchallenged until she signed up for high school biology.

"I brought home the textbook and I talked to my dad about it, and asked him, ‘Okay, what’s wrong with this evidence? It looks like there’s a case here for evolution,’” Haarsma said. “And we talked about it for a long time, and he finally said, ‘I don’t know.’"

"And he kind of gave me permission then to explore it on my own and figure out what I thought. He was showing me it wasn’t essential to my faith in Jesus Christ, what I thought of evolution.”

Haarsma said she has maintained her strong faith even as she’s explored evidence that contradicted the biblical account of creation, explaining that she believes nature and the data extracted from it is as much a part of God’s revelation as the Bible is.

Other panelists took different approaches, but also spoke of reconciliation between science and faith.

Dr. Roy Gane, a professor of Hebrew Bible and ancient near eastern languages at Andrews University, spoke of the importance of recognizing both the Bible and scientific evidence as legitimate sources of knowledge.

"The Bible provides an authoritative framework, but when it leaves something open, science can help us decide something," Gane said, noting that a close reading of Genesis leaves open the possibility that the universe is much older than life on earth.

But Gane acknowledged there are times when the Bible and science come into conflict and suggested the faithful learn to accept that contradiction.

"The evidence of each is limited. They have different epistemologies, that is, approaches..."
to knowledge, but they have overlapping scope," Gane said. "Harmonizing into a coherent picture is elusive due to insufficient information, but we can live with the mystery as we live with other mysteries such as the Trinity and the incarnation."

Dr. John Walton, a professor of Old Testament at Wheaton College, stressed that biblical studies is largely a field of interpretation — even if one accepts that the Bible is divinely inspired, there is no guarantee that the person reading the text understands it in the same way as the writer.

He suggested Adam and Eve were meant to be human archetypes, not prototypes, meaning their story was chronicled because it was significant and exemplary of humans as a whole, not because they were the only two humans living on earth at the time.

"The idea that there were other people makes some sense in the Biblical text," Walton explained. "Remember, Cain finds a wife in Genesis 4. We have Cain afraid that anyone who finds him will kill him. We have Cain build a city. For whom? You can’t build a city for yourself.

"The implication is that there were other people around."

Walton went on to explain that many of the words used to discuss the creation of Adam and Eve in early Hebrew versions of Genesis would have been used almost exclusively in spiritual contexts, not medical or physical descriptions. For example, the text states Eve was created from Adam’s rib, but the Hebrew word translated as “rib” could more accurately mean “side,” as in an entire side of a building or half of a pair.

"If Genesis 2 has an archetypal focus, then there is no biblical account of material human origins," Walton said. "If the Bible does not have any claim to make about material human origins, then we are free to go to the sciences and take a look at what it offers. The Bible is not making a contrary claim."

Dr. Todd Wood, a biochemist and president of the Core Academy of Science, discussed his belief in "the God of the impossible," and said he accepts aspects of the Bible that seem preposterous.

"I believe in Creation not because I can prove it, but because that creationist perspective, the absurdities of very short chronologies and the ridiculousness of giant floods and arcs that seems so impossible makes my world work and makes my world exciting," Wood explained.

Jason Miller, teaching pastor at Granger Community Church and the event’s moderator, ended the event with questions suggested by audience members, including the classic, “Really? We came from monkeys?” and, perhaps more importantly, “Is that a problem?”

The general consensus from the panelists was no, genetic similarities between humans and other animals hardly disprove the existence of God.

"The thing to think of is how distinct we are as humans," Haarsma said. "I think underlying that question is that we’re just monkeys, that’s all we are. Well, clearly, we share a lot — you don’t need evolution to tell you that we share a lot of biology — but we clearly have a lot of differences in our capabilities for language and thought and caring for each other.

"Ultimately, I think the difference comes from God, from how he views us, not from how related we are to the animal kingdom."

Prayer for LaRonda Forsey's Hospitalized Son

Update: You can keep up to date with everything going on with Drew's progress on the Pray 4 Drew 4C Facebook page.

Drew, son of La Ronda Forsey, associate dean for the School of Distance Education and K-12 principal for Gripps International Academy, was in a bicycle accident on Tuesday evening, July 22. La Ronda and a friend drove through the night to get to the hospital to be with him. Drew sustained serious head trauma and broken scapula. His lungs were bruised from the impact so he is on a ventilator but at times breathing on his own.

It is believed that Drew's bicycle tire malfunctioned throwing him over the handlebars landing on his head. His helmet was smashed and pushed off to the side of his head, so he received some abrasions. Cyclists happened upon Drew lying in the ditch and called 911. One was trained as a first responder and was able to assess Drew's condition and inform the ambulance team when they arrived.

ASAP Ministries Vespers
Jee Won maintains an exciting and diverse performing career as a pianist and solo vocalist. He gained national attention when his multi-media soundtrack "Lotus" was presented at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in 1999. We are grateful that Jee Wong has chosen to represent ASAP Ministries through benefit concerts that help the needy in Southeast Asia.

During the 45-minute vesper service provided at All Nations th coming Friday evening, October 4, Jee Wong will engage in ministering to the young people through music, testimonies, and prayer. Day of Action for Seniors Community seniors need your help. According to the Weather Channel, last year’s winter was one of the coldest on record in Michigan, and sources predict the upcoming winter to be no different.

If you already signed up to volunteer - that’s great, feel free to forward this email to a friend or co-worker. If you haven’t signed up yet, please make sure do so by Friday, October 10th.

Volunteer teams are needed to rake leaves, clean gutters, and weatherize windows for seniors citizens in your community! These activities can be difficult, if not impossible, for seniors. They can easily fall, strain muscles or simply not be physically able to do the work. But with your help, seniors could be ready for winter!

Thursday, November 6, 2014 marks the 4th Annual Day of Action for Seniors where volunteers LIVE UNITED by helping Berrien & Cass County seniors winterize their homes. The goal is to serve 200 senior citizens in our community all on one day! To reach that goal, we need 500 volunteers!

Sign Up Here
Volunteer Sign Up Deadline is October 10, 2014

Berrien Springs Camera Club

CONTACT: Madeline Johnston
471-1109
Jill Dodge, President
473-2658

The monthly meeting of the Berrien Springs Camera Club will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 1, at 7 p.m. in the Berrien Springs Public Library at Cass (Old 31) and Union. This month's program consists of a competition of prints and projected images, submitted by members, the first competition of the current season.

As usual, there will be two select topics for the month. In addition, "Nature" is always an acceptable category, as are "Open" (any subject) and "Portraits." The two select categories for the October competition are "Rocks" and "Marinas." The former could include rocks of any size or substance, but must be the main focus of the picture. The latter can bring out visits to marinas around the world or close to home, overviews or close-ups. "Nature" photos are to show nothing from human hands (no wires, fences, cultivated flowers, etc.). Thus a member can submit images in any of five categories or a combination thereof, though extra points are given for acceptances in the two select categories.

Prints, at least 5" x 7" in size, should be mounted, with the title and photographer's name on the back. Digital submissions, however, need to be sent in ahead, with instructions for submitting them on the club's blog site: http://berrienspringscameraclub.blogspot.com/

Any member may submit up to 10 projected images and/or 10 prints for the competition, but no one is obligated to do so. Pictures are shown one at a time, and three judges score them by machine. The total points determine whether a photo is rated "honor," "acceptance," or "out." From the "honors," a Slide-of-the-Month and a Print-of-the-Month are selected. Photographers' names are not revealed for the "out" category. No one need feel embarrassment; this is a group of friends sharing experiences and tips for better photography.

All are welcome, either to observe or to join. Refreshments will be served.

AFIA Rice Run to Benefit MRSA

With the endorsement of the Michigan Governor’s Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports and the Michigan Fitness Foundation, Andrews Filipino International Association (AFIA) of Andrews University has partnered with the MRSA Survivors Network for the 2014 Rice Run: a 5K run that aims to raise awareness of MRSA, Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, by encouraging the community to get involved in physical activity.

AFIA is a club on the campus of Andrews University that promotes Filipino culture, values, and traditions to the students of the campus and the people of the community. AFIA aims to create a diverse network of connections and relationships, bringing together anyone who may be interested in Filipino culture through a variety of events and programs. In addition to providing memorable experiences through fun events, AFIA also strives to inspire the spirit of love and support by bringing awareness to any struggles that some people in our community may be facing.

This year AFIA has collaborated with the MRSA Survivors Network in hopes of raising awareness and funds for this great organization. MRSA is an acronym for Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, a type of bacterium that causes serious infections, prompting more deaths than HIV. The MRSA Survivors Network is “the global leader and voice in awareness, prevention, support, and advocacy” of MRSA. To learn more about the organization, you may visit: http://www.mrsasurvivors.org/about.

The 2014 5K Rice Run will take place on 5 October 2014 at 8 AM in St. Joseph, Michigan, starting at Margaret B. Upton Aboretum. Registration is now live at http://alumni.andrews.edu/events/afia-5k-run/, costing $25 for general registration and $20 for student registration. Participants can run or walk the 5K in St. Joseph, assured that they are creating awareness and raising funds for a great cause while participating in a quality physical activity event through the Michigan Governor's Council's Pure Michigan FITness Series endorsement program. “Pure Michigan FITness events promote physical activity for individuals and communities while providing a fun way for us all to get moving,” says Mike Maisner, Vice President of Active Communities. Runners will also be eligible to enter the Mackinac Bridge Labor Day Run Lottery. For more information about the Governor's Council's endorsement program, you may visit: www.michiganfitness.org/pure-michigan-fitness-series.

"Through this event, we hope to succeed in our goal of generating awareness and raising funds for the MRSA Survivors Network," says the 2014-2015 officers of AFIA. "But we also want to succeed in our goal of creating a diverse network of connections and relationships with our fellow students and with those in our community, further amplifying the spirit of love and support.” For more information about our sponsors for the event or AFIA, visit: www.andrews.edu/go/afia.

In 2010, about 1.9 million new cases of diabetes were diagnosed in adults age 20 or older. In addition, another 79 million adults are estimated to have pre-diabetes, a condition that increases the risk for diabetes. Early diagnosis of the disease is critical to successful treatment in order to delay or prevent complications such as heart disease, stroke, blindness, and kidney disease.
