Agenda Reminder Emails During Break
Just a reminder that starting Tuesday, Dec. 9, the Andrews Agenda reminder email will be on academic break schedule. This means that instead of receiving a reminder email twice a week (Tuesday and Thursday), you will receive an email only once each week (Tuesdays). Please keep this in mind when submitting items you'd like included in the reminder email. The deadline for guaranteed inclusion in the reminder email is noon on the day the email goes out.
If you have questions, please email agenda@andrews.edu.

Andrews Web Re-Engineering Project
We are rebuilding the Andrews website from the ground up and we want your feedback. Join us for one of our town hall meetings to get involved:

- Wed Jan 7 2:00-3:30pm
- Mon Jan 12 3:30-5:00pm
- Tue Jan 13 6:00-7:30pm
- Wed Jan 21 2:00-3:30pm

Stay tuned for more details

Horn Museum Holiday Schedule
We will not be open at all on Sabbaths during the Christmas break. Our regular schedule will resume the week of January 4-10. Museum tours will still be available by appointment on most weekdays, but with limited availability. Thank you for your understanding. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Share Your Photos for Week in Pictures
If you have photos from around campus or at events sponsored by an Andrews department/entity, we would love to share them with the campus, community and beyond via Week in Pictures.

There are two ways to share your images with us:

1. Upload your image to Instagram with a complete caption, incluing #aucardinal15.
2. Email your image to agenda@andrews.edu with the following information: Complete caption, your name, your title (if staff/faculty) or year/major (if student).

If your photo is selected to appear in the next Week in Pictures, you can find it by clicking the link under the Photo of the Week in the Agenda reminder email on Tuesdays. Who knows--maybe your picture will even make it into the email as the Photo of the Week!

Thank you for sharing your Andrews experience with us via photos.

Course Survey Extension

Dear Students and Faculty,

This month we’ve experienced several technical difficulties with our course survey system, related to a recent update. We apologize for any confusion this has caused. We will schedule a few more reminder emails, and will leave the surveys open until 5 p.m. on Tuesday, December 16. We will continue to monitor the situation closely so that we can trouble shoot as needed.

Thank you for your patience. Wishing you blessings during the exams and the upcoming break.

STUDENTS: Take Fall Course Surveys

It is once again time for students to rate their courses through course surveys. Course surveys provide the opportunity to give important (and anonymous) feedback to instructors on the effectiveness of the course.

Most courses will be surveyed electronically through our automated system, Class Climate. Email invitations for each course survey will be sent Thursday, November 20. If the survey is not taken, reminders will be sent automatically every three days until December 5. A Certificate of Completion will be generated and emailed to you after each survey is submitted. This may be saved, and used as proof of completion if the instructor offers any type of incentive.

Thank you in advance for your participation. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Institutional Effectiveness at ext. 3308 (assessment@andrews.edu)

Special Prices for Special People
Andrews Photography Submission Opportunity

Greetings Photographers!

The Office of Academic Records selects an image each year for the home page of the Academic Bulletin (bulletin.andrews.edu). Image submissions can be from a current student, staff, faculty or alumni. We are looking for photographs that emphasize art, active learning and anything that reflects the spirit of Andrews University.

Our department staff will then meet and decide which image will be used. Once selected, we will contact the photographer to obtain the bio information and a website link. We will add the small biography and link to a website to highlight the photographer. This will appear just below the bulletin home page.

Our deadline is Tuesday, December 30th. Department staff will then meet and decide which image will be used. Once selected, we will contact the photographer to obtain the bio information and website link.

Please submit your images by Tuesday December 30th, to bulletin@andrews.edu while noting the following Image requirements:

- JPG
- No larger than 5MB
- Landscape orientation

Please ensure photographs are consistent with the Andrews University community.

Howard Center Presents...A Christmas Celebration: Sounds of the Season with a Soulful Touch

Concert on Saturday, December 6 at 8:00 pm

Preconcert talk at 7:15 with Claudio Gonzalez, Belford Hernandez and Marianne Kordas.

The Andrews University Symphony Orchestra, the University Singers, conductor Claudio Gonzalez, and producer and pianist Belford Hernandez present diverse sounds spanning from classical Christmas themes, Celtic tunes, to soulful color in this concert celebrating the Christmas season. The production will include the traditional performance of Nutcracker suite by Tchaikovsky and Christmas music with the choir. For the second part of the program a Jazz trio from Chicago, under the leadership of Pianist Belford Hernandez, will join the Andrews University Orchestra to perform excerpts from Handel's Messiah with gospel elements. Celebrate the season with a diverse array of sounds!

TICKETS REQUIRED: $15 Reserved Seating, $5 Students

Purchase tickets online, or call the Howard Performing Arts Center box office at 888-467-6442 for student discounts and more information.

AICER Presents Patrice Wright

Andrews International Center for Educational Research (AICER) invites students and faculty to attend a research symposium on Wednesday, December 3, at 5:30 p.m.

Presenter: Patrice Wright, Educational Leadership Program Graduate Student, Andrews University

How to Conduct a Qualitative Research Employing the Grounded Theory

This presentation will focus on writing a qualitative grounded research. It will provide a step-by-step process for conducting the research. Examples will be provided throughout the process. In so doing, the researcher will be able to understand human behavior; communicate effectively; use technology skills efficiently; perform effective research and assessment; respect and conduct inquiry which will lead to a resolution based on reading and evaluation research, conduct research and report the findings of the research. This presentation should be of interest to doctoral students and researchers who intend to conduct qualitative researching using the grounded theory.

Face-to-face participants meet in Bell Hall 180

Online participants login as “Guest” at https://andrews.adobeconnect.com/_a877709416/research/ or http://www.andrews.edu/sed/aicer/researchwebinars/ whether or not they are registered Andrews students.

Please join us for our "True Life" discussion on race, justice, and what it means to us as Seminary students and upcoming leaders in the church. This seminar will take place this Wednesday Dec. 3 at 10:30am in Seminary room N150.

Organized by Seminary Student Forum
Student Gardens Represent at Conference
by Jenna Neil

Arthur Mulyono, manager of the Andrews University Student Gardens, and Stephen Erich, a 2014 graduate from Andrews with a degree in international business, had the opportunity to present at the first annual Adventist Agriculture Conference in Dickson, Tennessee, last month.

Mulyono got involved with the conference when he attended an education and agriculture conference in 2013 at Uchee Pines Institute in Seale, Alabama.

"At the end of the sessions there was a group of individuals who were interested in forming an association," he explains. "More than 20 farmers and participants from throughout the U.S. met for several hours and discussed the idea. At the end of the meeting, the Adventist Agricultural Association was assembled and the board of directors was formed."

Mulyono was invited to participate at this year's conference and present on an institutional track and participate on other activities such as the Youth Panel and the Institutional Panel. He gave a report on the Student Gardens and Erich reported on the Mobile Farm Market.

"Working as the Mobile Market Coordinator this summer, I was exposed to agriculture for the first time," says Erich. "Although I didn't spend every day in the field, I learned a lot about farming, particularly about taking produce to market."

Near the end of the summer, Mulyono asked Erich if he would be interested in attending the conference and sharing about the Mobile Farm Market during the Student Gardens presentation. Then, during his interview for his current position as the field projects collaborator at Adventist Southeast Asia Projects (ASAP Ministries), the director mentioned the conference and asked if Erich would be interested in attending.

"They thought it would be a good opportunity to learn and network with people interested in mission and agriculture. So I decided to go."

Over three hundred people attended the event, according to Mulyono.

"Most were from the states," he said, "but there were a handful of people from throughout the world including Tanzania and Columbia."

Attendees had the opportunity to choose between five different tracks: institutional, market farming and gardening, home gardening, soil health and simple living. There were also hands-on demonstrations and a general session that tied agriculture with Adventism.

"I attended the institutional track along with 11 other institutions that were present," said Mulyono. "Here we reported what each institution is doing." Other presenters besides Mulyono and Erich included Light Bearers, Daystar Academy, Weimar College, Great Lakes Adventist Academy and Southern Adventist University.

"The purpose of this association is to revive the role of agriculture in the Adventist church," says Erich. "Over the weekend, after a lot of thought, I began to understand the important role agriculture can, and perhaps should, play."

"The purpose of the event was to network, share and experience, encourage and teach the purpose of agriculture as it relates to God's people," adds Mulyono.

"Andrews Student Gardens can be a model of market gardening for institutions," said Mulyono. "Some Adventist institutions are seeking ways to bring back agriculture into their curriculum. Presenting at the conference allows Andrews the opportunity to network with other institutions and support and encourage others in this line of work."

Both Mulyono and Erich said that Andrews University is one of the only schools to provide an agriculture program and degree.

When asked if this event is the first of its kind, Mulyono said, "Yes and no. In the past 20+ years, there have been meetings about agriculture among the Seventh-day Adventist Church but no association was formed."
Organizers are currently planning to have the second annual Adventist Agriculture Conference from November 4–8, 2015, and the list of possible venues includes Andrews.

Department of PT Receives Recycling Grant

by Lucero Castellanos-Aguirre

Each fall the Berrien County Parks Department offers a recycling grant. This year it was awarded to the Andrews University Department of Physical Therapy.

"It is called the Berrien County School Recycling Grant," said Penny Sisson, the department's operations assistant. She explained that all eligible Berrien County schools have the opportunity to receive a grant of up to one thousand dollars towards this recycling initiative.

"I wrote the grant requesting nearly $580 to purchase ten 23-gallon blue recycling containers," says Sisson. "We were awarded the grant for the full amount requested at the end of October."

The department’s students have added a new class officer position to help with some new student-led initiatives. One is the Community Outreach and Volunteer Coordinator (COVC). Sophomore Samantha Callahan is this year's COVC and has put together a committee of eight other students.

"I am working with this committee to initialize and maintain our recycling program," stated Sisson. "Our plan is to place a recycling container next to each trash can around campus with clear instructions regarding what may be put in them."

The department encourages the recycling of paper, aluminum, cans, plastic bottles and glass. Physical therapy students, along with the department's student employees, will be in charge of the containers' maintenance.

"Students have shown an interest in recycling since I came to work here five and a half years ago," shared Sisson. "We have taken steps to ensure it is maintained long term—including adding this responsibility to my job description."

Sisson indicated that they have purchased real tableware for the department to avoid using paper plates and plastic forks for department lunches and events.

On Thursday, Nov. 20, the department received the recycling containers that were ordered. This will be the start to the department’s vision to better the Andrews campus through recycling.

Christmas at Andrews

Andrews University invites the community to attend any or all of these upcoming holiday concerts.

The season begins with a concert by students in the voice studios of Charles & Julie Reid on Friday, November 21, at 7 p.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center on the campus of Andrews University. This music vespers program will feature sacred Christmas selections such as "O Holy Night," "Gesu Bambino" and "Silent Night," but will also introduce the audience to holiday gems they may not have yet encountered. Admission is free for this concert.

The first University ensemble performance of the holiday season will take place on Saturday, November 22, with the University Wind Symphony at 8 p.m. in the Howard Center. The concert, under the direction of Alan Mitchell, will feature "Christmas Festival" by Anderson, "I Wonder As I Wander" arranged by Clark, "A Christmas Fantasy" arranged by Custer and "Russian Christmas Music" by Reed, in addition to other selections. Special features include "The First Noel" arranged by Simmons and directed by graduate student director Sebastian Serrano, as well as "Away in A Manger" arranged by Wallace and directed by graduate student director Francis Serpa. The University's brass ensemble will also perform "An English Carol Fantasy" arranged by Marchand. General admission for the Wind Symphony concert is $5; students and seniors are $3. For tickets, visit howard.andrews.edu or call the box office at 269-471-3560.

Andrews University’s Enactus members, as well as other students, staff and faculty, will be participating once again in the annual Berrien Springs holiday event “Kindle Your Christmas Spirit.” It takes place on Thursday, December 4, from 6–9 p.m. on Ferry Street in downtown Berrien Springs. That road, plus several surrounding roads, will be closed to automobile traffic, and most businesses will remain open. Activities include a non-perishable food drive, observing artists creating ice sculptures, horse-drawn carriage rides, live caroling, crafts for kids, face painting, a live nativity scene, and snacks and/or hot drinks will be available in most businesses. This event is free and open to the public.

The annual Welcome Christmas Choral Concert, featuring University Singers & Chorale, takes place Friday, December 5, at 7:30 p.m. This performance will feature a garland of Christmas choral art songs, including "The One Gift" by Kenneth Rudolph, "Masters in This Hall," a French carol arranged by John Rutter and "Child of Peace" by Jeffery Van and featuring harpist Christina Goosey. The groups are also bringing back two choral favorites, "Christmas Dinner" by Paul Stookey, featuring Susan Zork, alto, and David Schwoeble's arrangement of "Silent Night." The concert will also include "Magnificat" by John Rutter, and conclude with the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah," presented by the University Chorale under the baton of Brenton Offenback, graduate choral conducting assistant. Admission is free for this concert.

The Howard Center Presents... A Christmas Celebration on Saturday, December 6, at 8 p.m. The Andrews University Symphony Orchestra and the University Singers, conducted by Claudio Gonzalez, present the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky as well as other traditional vocal Christmas music. The second part of the program will include a performance with a jazz trio from Chicago under the leadership of pianist Belford Hernandez. The production will culminate in the famous Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah" with gospel elements. Other works include arrangements by Belford Hernandez and David Williamson. Tickets for the Christmas Celebration concert are $15 reserved seating; $5 for students. To reserve tickets, visit howard.andrews.edu or call 269-471-3560.

Andrews Academy will present their 42nd Annual Feast of Lights Program on Friday, December 12, at 7 p.m. at PMC. The community is invited to attend this spectacular night of music, scripture and drama honoring the King of Kings. It is an evening of lights, bells, instruments, choral singing, congregational singing, shepherds, a Nativity scene and the retelling of the most glorious Christmas story. Portions of Handel’s Messiah, including the well-known Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah" with gospel elements. Other works include arrangements by Belford Hernandez and David Williamson. For tickets, visit howard.andrews.edu or call 269-471-3560.

You are also invited to an evening of popular Christmas music with Andrews Academy ensembles on Saturday, December 13, at 7 p.m. at the Howard Performing Arts Center. Join us as we bring in the holidays with a variety of well-known Christmas songs including selections from Mannheim Steamroller, Trans-Siberian Orchestra and a collection of holiday favorites played by the combined musical groups. This concert is free and open to the public.

For more information on Andrews Academy events, call 269-471-3138.

On Sunday, December 14, at 2 p.m., join us for the December Second Sunday Concert. Every December this concert features a special Christmas carol sing-along. The Second Sunday Concert Series is a collaboration between WAUS 90.7 FM, the Andrews University Department of Music and the Howard Performing Arts Center. No tickets are required; the event is free and open to the public.

Other holiday concerts at the Howard Center include:

- Ruth Murdoch Elementary School Choral Concert: Monday, December 15, 7 p.m.
- Ruth Murdoch Elementary School Instrumental Christmas Concert: Tuesday, December 16, 7 p.m.
Carmelita Troy Interviewed on 3ABN

by Jenna Neil

Carmelita Troy, an associate professor of accounting in the School of Business Administration, was recently interviewed by 3ABN on “Scriptural Foundation for Business.” The episode, filmed in August at the 3ABN studios in Illinois, aired on Monday, November 17, as part of the 3ABN Today program with Danny Shelton and Yvonne Lewis.

“When the first monographs in the Spiritual Foundations series were published in June of 2014, I took a picture of the cover of one, which I had written with LeRoy Ruhupatty, another School of Business faculty member, and posted the picture on Facebook,” says Troy. “Danny Shelton, 3ABN founder, saw the post and sent a message that he was interested in interviewing us about the series.”

Monographs are groups of detailed written studies based on a specialized subject or an aspect of that subject. The Scriptural Foundations of Business monographs series is a group of written studies that brings business and scripture together.

“The monographs integrate scripture with the basic concepts and theories that are already in the business curriculum,” explains Troy.

Troy was interviewed on the show with Michael Cafferky, professor of business and management at Southern Adventist University (Collegedale, Tennessee). Cafferky was invited to appear along with Troy because he is one of the editors of the monograph series.

“Michael Cafferky and Bruce Wrenn came up with the idea of the series and they both worked tirelessly to recruit authors and the Andrews University Press to be the publisher,” says Troy.

Wrenn, Colson Endowed Chari of marketing at Andrews University, and Cafferky were the editors of the project, which included creating the idea, finding writers, and doing final edits.

Prior to this series on the Scriptural Foundations of Business, there was very little material available that integrated scripture and business that targeted college students as they are beginning their studies in business. This series is designed to be a part of the business curriculum.

“This topic is important to me because I want my students to understand and plan to be honest in their business dealings and to have a solid biblical base for responding appropriately when enticed to wrong,” says Troy.

In the accounting portion of the monograph series, Troy and coauthor Ruhupatty used the biblical story of Joseph.

"Joseph was trustworthy in managing and accounting for the assets of Potiphar,” she explains. "Despite the fact that he was wrongly accused and thrown into the dungeon, Joseph maintained his integrity." She wants to emphasize to students that it's important to do the right thing regardless of the consequences.

3ABN saw the importance of the topic in a broader sense than originally envisioned.

“Originally they envisioned providing Christian colleges and universities with a resource to integrate faith and learning in the area of business,” says Troy. "Not only did they accomplish that, 3ABN also brought to our attention that this series has a much larger target audience such as church treasurers, Adventist and Christian students attending non-Adventist/non-Christian colleges and universities, business people and just about anyone who conducts business."
With the publication of the monograph series and her interview on 3ABN, Troy hopes that students and others alike realize the importance of honesty in business and how each principle can be based on the Bible.

Andrews a STEM Jobs Approved University

Andrews University is pleased to announce that it has been designated a 2015 STEM JobsSM Approved College by Victory Media. A leader in successfully connecting individuals in transition with education and career opportunities, Victory Media is the creator of STEM JobsSM media, education and career resources for students interested in science, technology, engineering and math. The 2015 STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges inaugural list is the first of its kind to rate universities, colleges, community colleges and trade schools on their responsiveness and relevance to high demand, high growth STEM occupations.

Andrews was among over 1,600 schools participating in the STEM JobsSM survey process. Schools submitting surveys were scored on publicly available data and responses to proprietary questions around three key indicators of success: STEM job alignment, STEM job placement, and diversity in a school's STEM programs. The assessment and rights to the STEM Jobs ApprovedSM Colleges designation were available to qualifying schools for free. Andrews will be featured in the Winter 2015 issue of "STEM JobsSM" magazine, along with the entire 2015 list of STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges.

"Being officially approved as a 2015 STEM Jobs university reaffirms what we are doing in STEM here at Andrews," says Keith Mattingly, dean of the Colleges of Arts & Sciences. "It assures our students that they are receiving a quality STEM education and affirms our professors that they are providing a recognized great value. We are proud of the mentorship of students as well as the research and creative scholarship that comes from our STEM disciplines and this approval gives a positive endorsement to our success."

"With the list of STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges we're able to help parents, students and guidance counselors evaluate how well education is translating into real-world jobs, and how responsive institutions are to meeting those demands," said Daniel Nichols, President of STEM JobsSM. "We're pleased to showcase schools like Andrews University, a school leading the way in this area."

For more information about Andrews' commitment to students interested in STEM fields of study and careers, visit our website at andrews.edu/cas/stem.

United Way Campaign Results
As President Andreasen stated in a message to campus in September, "The mission of Andrews University has always resonated with the mission of United Way—to improve lives by mobilizing the caring power of communities. It also takes us to the story in Matthew 25 where Jesus calls his followers to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the sick."

Andrews employees truly embraced this year's United Way campus campaign theme, Bursting the Andrews Bubble, ending the campaign with our best-ever results. More employee donors gave more dollars that will help fill more needs in our community.

"The campaign goals we set for this year were definitely 'stretch' goals, and while we didn't quite hit those goals, we burst our own bubble and achieved new levels," said Dalry Payne, United Way campus campaign leader. "We want to thank everyone who participated in this great campaign."

President Andreasen and the team of campaign leaders had some fun putting together a thank you video for those who helped break records in the 2014 campaign.

United Way Campaign Totals
2014: 216 people gave $22,811.85!
2013: 142 people gave $16,549
2012: 135 people gave $14,538
2011: 90 people gave $9,145
2010: 87 people gave $8,401
2009: 82 people gave $10,179
2008: 48 people gave $4,800
2007: 91 people gave $11,202

In 2013, United Way funded 50 different programs and partnered with 34 different organizations in Cass & Berrien counties. Some of the ways your 2014 donations will help in our community are: provide mentorships for at-risk students, help low-income families prepare their children for school, provide at-home services to cancer patients, and provide much-needed services to vulnerable senior citizens, to name only a few examples.

A special word of thanks to those employees who served as campus leaders for the campaign, taking the goals and objectives of United Way in a grassroots way throughout campus. In addition to sending out information through group emails, leaders made presentations at various staff meetings, braved the elements to cheer at the campus entrances for the campaign kickoff, participated in the Alumni parade, provided giving incentives in the form of snack carts, and made their offices mini-campaign headquarters festooned with United Way posters and goal devices.

Campus campaign leadership was Alisa Williams, Kristine Knutson, Garth Woodruff, Bruce Wrenn, Carolina Gomez-Jones, Gerilyn Gigante, Beverly Sedlacek, David Sedlacek, Lisa Rollins, Paul Elder, David Iwasa, Rod Church, Sarah Burton, Dalry Payne, Curt VanderWaal, and Rebecca May.

"One of the most compelling experiences of the campaign for me was touring United Way funded agencies with other campus leaders," according to David Iwasa. "When you see with your own eyes the wonderful community services that United Way supports, it made me realize how they can do so much more with my small donation—it's the least I can do to help those in need. One of our campus leaders on the same tour gave a touching testimonial how one of the agencies had helped his family fill a need for medical assistance."

While our campus fund-raising campaign only lasts for a month, there are many ways that employees can support United Way all through the year. If in your current situation you have more time than money to donate, or you’d like to give both time and money, please give consideration to United Way volunteer opportunities. Full details are available at uwsm.org. Some of their best-known volunteer opportunities are:
March for Justice at Andrews University
More than 200 students at Andrews University took part in the March for Justice.
“I felt like not being involved was also saying I didn’t care,” said Jevon McAllister, a student at the school. “So I felt like now was the time to get involved and for my voice to be heard.”
For students, this was a chance to lend their voice to a larger movement.

Family on the Mend After Plane Crash
A plane crash on Friday in Berrien Springs is still affecting the aviation community at Andrews University.
Bryce Fisher, the man that made the miraculous landing just two miles from the school’s airport, obtained his pilot’s license from their aviation department.
He is also an airplane mechanic and has an aviation maintenance license from Andrews University too.
His family was heading from Richmond, Indiana to Berrien Springs for a family function when Bryce believes the engine failed.

Great Leaps Forward

Although she was born in 1965, Rachel Williams-Smith's story could have been set in the 1800s. Wearing long dresses and broad-brimmed bonnets, she grew up without modern conveniences like electricity, telephone, radio, television or indoor plumbing. She, along with her two older brothers, was shaped by the extreme religious views of her iron-willed, Vietnam veteran father and practical-minded mother.

Cardinals win vs. Holy Cross College

The Holy Cross men's basketball team hosted Andrews University Saturday night in their 2014-15 home opener. The Saints fell to the Cardinals, 59-57. The loss drop the Saints to a 2-3 record for the season.

Grace Place: Caring for the Community

The Grace Place may be fairly new to the community, but members have already made their presence known with their programs on health, marriage and finances and their regular outreach to South Bend neighborhoods.

The church held its first service in February 2013 in the home they found at the Community Congregational Church, 19671 Cleveland Road in South Bend. The two churches collaborate on joint services and programs at various times during the year. The Grace Place is affiliated with the First Seventh-day Adventist Church in South Bend.

Hyveth Williams, an Andrews University professor, founded the church with the express goal of reaching out to the community. Church members have adopted as their own the neighborhood bordered by Portage Road, Cushing Street and Lincoln Way, going out every two weeks to give away free food and other items, to invite people to come to church and to tell them about the special seminars and programs the church offers.

Mobile Farm Market Puts End to Food Deserts

A mobile farm market is making a difference in Michigan one vegetable at a time. Andrews University said due to its success this summer they are going to expand next year.

According to the USDA, there are four large food deserts in Berrien County. They include a part of Benton Harbor, Niles, Buchanan, and Berrien Springs. Every Monday the market would stop at the Ferry Street Resource Center so residents could buy nutritious food.

One woman said she loved the recipes the dietitian would provide. Pauline Washington said, "They picked it that morning and they brought it, they were selling it, plus showing us how to cook it…. the grocery store is not close to where I live! nothing is close to where I live!"
Hundreds rally for justice in Berrien Springs

More than two hundred students at Andrews University took part in the March for Justice.

"I felt like not being involved was also saying I didn’t care," said Jevon McAllister, a student at the school. “So I felt like now was the time to get involved and for my voice to be heard.”

For students, this was a chance to lend their voice to a larger movement.

"Give the students here a voice and let them know they are not alone," said Jameel Daniels, an organizer for the march. “They are not unheard and that we too stand for justice.”

“What’s going on in these major cities, yea, it’s affecting us too even though we’re attending school in a rural area,” said Michael Polite, a chaplin at the school.

The students, along with faculty and members of the community, marched more than two miles from the school to the police station. When they arrived they fell silent for four and a half minutes, to commemorate the amount of time Michael Brown laid dead on the street in Ferguson.

Then, they prayed and actually thanked police officers, pointing out that now too many officers are all being held accountable for the brutality of a few.

“There are individuals here who have no intention to abuse anyone of any ethnic group,” Polite said at the rally. “But they have every intention to use their lives on an every day basis to protect and to serve.”

“We want to make sure that, particularly the civil servants in our community, that we recognize they are not victimizing us,” Daniels said. “But that we do stand in support of those who are being victimized.”

While lately the national conversation has focused on race, for the people who took part in the rally, today was about more than that.

“We’re not saying that we only care about black lives,” McAllister said. “We care about Hispanic lives, we care about everyone’s life.”

The rally at Andrews University was only one of several rallies in Michiana today. Rallies were also held in Elkhart and Benton Harbor that were inspired by Ferguson and the Eric Garner case.

BERRIEN COUNTY, Mich. - A plane crash on Friday in Berrien Springs is still affecting the aviation community at Andrews University.

Bryce Fisher, the man that made the miraculous landing just two miles from the school's airport, obtained his pilot's license from their aviation department.

He is also an airplane mechanic and has an aviation maintenance license from Andrews University too.

His family was heading from Richmond, Indiana to Berrien Springs for a family function when Bryce believes the engine failed.

Bryce had to be extricated from the plane but he has been released from the hospital.

His 70-year-old father Dr. William Fisher owned the plane and was the co-pilot. He has been flying various aircraft for 3 or 4 decades. There were reports that he was walking around after the crash.

Dr. Fisher's wife, Barbara Fisher, is still in serious condition and sources said she underwent surgery at a Kalamazoo hospital, but she is expected to be okay.

Bryce's girlfriend, Miritha Morales, was also in the plane and walked away from the crash.

Bryce's former aviation instructor at Andrews University was at the scene moments after the plane went down. His professors said the Fisher family recently donated a plane to the aviation department, and the community knew the family well.
Randy Robertson said, “Given the direction they were coming from, there weren't really any good options. There are trees and narrow little streets and that they happen to be right where they were is providence, a blessing, miracle.”

Before Robertson was an Associate Professor of aviation at Andrews University, he investigated dozens of plane crashes for the Air Force.

Robertson said, “Metal is metal. I can buy more metal, I can't buy more people. I can't replace them.”

Robertson said it was shocking to find out his former student was in the cockpit.

Robertson said, “They were able to carry all the way through the trees and impact the ground at the top of the bluff as opposed to down the bluff and the providence that they didn't actually come 3 or 4 feet higher may well have saved lives. Had they hit 4 or 5 feet down, the aircraft would have turned into an accordion. Like hitting a wall.”

The plane crashed just five feet from a house in the 400 block of Bluff Street.

The instructors showed our reporter an engine failure in a plane simulator. In the demonstration, it all happened in a matter of seconds.

Jared White said, “This means I'm about to land, and that's my crash. I mean we had roughly between 15 and 30 seconds to do minimal troubleshooting but basically try and find a safe place to land. And that's what Bryce and his family did as well.”

The FAA is investigating the plane crash and it's expected to take several weeks.
Andrews prof reflects on 19th century upbringing and life's bumps

Posted: Monday, December 1, 2014 5:00 am

Although she was born in 1965, Rachel Williams-Smith's story could have been set in the 1800s. Wearing long dresses and broad-brimmed bonnets, she grew up without modern conveniences like electricity, telephone, radio, television or indoor plumbing. She, along with her two older brothers, was shaped by the extreme religious views of her iron-willed, Vietnam veteran father and practical-minded mother.

The Seventh-day Adventist family separated from society and moved to an old, abandoned house high on a hill in Tennessee where they would await the end of the world. Her father told her that girls were trouble, and refused to play with her. At 16, Rachel left the hill and entered school for the first time, living in a world she knew little about. She went on to graduate from college with a bachelor's degree in language arts, a master's degree in English and a doctorate in communication.

She has two grown daughters, Sharon and Sheryl, and, following a failed marriage, met and married Carl Winston Smith, a fashion designer and tailor. They live in Coloma, and Carl Smith recently opened a tailoring business in St. Joseph.

Williams-Smith, 49, is chairwoman of the Andrews University Department of Communication and an associate professor, and author of the New Book, "Born Yesterday: The True Story of a Girl Born in the 20th Century but Raised in the 19th." The first hard copies of her book arrived the day she sat down for an interview with Herald-Palladium Staff Writer Julie Swidwa.

Tell me why you wrote this book.

When people find out my unusual past, they ask me how did I go from where I was to where I am today, and I realize it came over a period of time, that my life was like a gift. For my doctorate I did my dissertation on that whole adjustment process and I began to realize through the help of my professors that, as one professor said, "You've been given an unusual life. What are you going to do with it?" You can either sit on it and do nothing, or you can actually use it to benefit others.

What do you think it can do for people?

My number one hope is that for people who have been turned off from God, I hope to re-inspire their faith. The testimony of how you could come up with too much religion and yet come out where you have a stronger faith in God than you ever did before in your life, is a testimony to what God can do for anybody. I also hope it will help parents with good intentions to realize that what children experience can be different from what the parents perceive. I also hope that for young people who are feeling in despair, who may feel like they've messed up or blown it and there's no chance in life they could ever accomplish anything worthwhile.

What would you say to young people who blame mom and dad for everything that happens, or if they stumble?

Everybody has something that they would rather not have and some people have more than others. Sometimes it's your parents, as well intended as they may be or as awful intended as they may be, parents make mistakes, they do things that they shouldn't do. There's no perfect ones out there.

So first, you have to acknowledge the things that have happened in your life, and see them for what they are. There's no point in lying to yourself.

It's not necessary to go back to parents and say 'you did this or that,' but you have to know for yourself where some of those problems and challenges came from.

I know for myself, particularly with my father, I didn't want to make him look bad ... and some things I didn't even want to admit to myself, but then I had to realize, no, this had an impact on my life.

But the other side is, you can't use what happened in your life, no matter what it is, as an excuse for sitting down and letting it destroy you. There are people in life who have gone through more than me and they've accomplished much more than me.

Do you have a good relationship with your mother?

I do. She moved in with us in August and I enjoy having her there. She still holds a lot of her beliefs like she did before, so I listen when she talks.

Sometimes she'll talk about her beliefs and she wants to talk about them with great fervor, and I just enjoy the fact that my mom is alive and that she can be excited about the things she believes and they can still give her joy and inspiration at 79.

Do you have a good marriage now?

Yes, I do! We've been married six years. My husband came into my life sure about one thing and that was that he was there to love me. He wanted to be in my life. And I wasn't even sure about all that, but it was the best decision I made. He's been a blessing to me. He's been absolutely supportive of the book, including things in the book that you might not want to put in a book for a person in a professional position working at a religious organization. He just kept telling me, "Rachel, you need to tell your story, you need to be true to yourself and what you believe you need to do in sharing your life. Don't mince, don't hold back, don't do a half job, do exactly what you believe you should do."

Was it therapeutic for you to write this book?

Actually the therapy came earlier when I wrote my dissertation. That was a very therapeutic process even though I didn't go into the family dysfunction element, but just having to go back into my life so much. The book was therapeutic again, but not to the same degree. I think where it helped, it was very revealing. I had always thought that my life was very disconnected.

And actually when I wrote my dissertation I talked about five distinct stages that I went through. I saw everything as disconnected. It was in writing the book that I discovered that there was almost like a plot to my life and it was amazing.

When I'm sharing now, even in this interview, when I'm sharing and answering questions, I feel a joy and a life and an energy that I've never experienced before in my life for anything that was happening in my life. I've occasionally felt like that over something I was working on for somebody else, but this is a whole other level, and I just want to be able to be a blessing. I want to be able to share, and help, and make a difference. I just want my life to make a difference.

Thank You from the Gonzalezes

Dear Andrews Family,

As many of you know, we lost our 14-month-old granddaughter, Emma, in a tragic car accident in October. Over the past several weeks, many of you at Andrews, in addition to others from our church family and the community at large, have reached out to us in significant ways. These gestures of compassion and love have meant so much to us. We would like to express our sincere, heartfelt "Thank You." May all of you be as richly blessed as you have blessed our family with your kindness.

Eduardo and Sylvia Gonzalez

Death of Thesba Johnston

Thesba Johnston, professor emerita of counseling psychology, died on Thanksgiving morning, November 27, at the age of 96 years, in Berrien Springs, Michigan. Dr. Johnston served in the School of Education from 1978–1998, and maintained a private practice as a licensed psychologist in Berrien Springs. She was the first female licensed psychologist in Berrien County.

Visitation will be from 6–8 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 2, at Allred Funeral Home, Berrien Springs. There will be a private graveside service December 3. Online messages for the family may be left at www.allredfuneralhome.com or in the Comments section of this posting.

Please remember her extended family in your thoughts and prayers, including son-in-law Don Smith, who works for Andrews University Arboretum/Grounds.

Cook Nuclear Plant Supports Village School
Mr. Aaron Koleda, Village Adventist Elementary School Technology Director, has a vision for computer science education. His passion is evident as he works with students to generate excitement and motivation to learn science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM subjects). Mr. Koleda recently set up an Adopt-A-Classroom website to reach out to the community for support of Computer Science Education Week, which is Dec. 8-12. His dream was to participate in the national effort for students to learn basic programming skills.

Danielle Burgoyne and Irene Weaver, employees at Cook Nuclear Plant, were searching for a community outreach program, and came across Mr. Koleda’s website. These ladies are part of the group Women in Nuclear (WIN), and have been selling candy at the plant to raise funds, which would promote STEM subjects. Danielle and Irene presented to the Village School 5th-8th grade students 5 Sphero robots, which are programmable balls created by Orbotix. The student response was amazing as they cheered and shouted!

Mr. Koleda will be using these robots to teach programming to students in grades K-8 the week of Dec. 8, as they participate in the Hour of Code event that is taking place nationwide. This week, across over 150 countries, millions of people and students will try out computer programming for the first time. Anyone can learn to code! The goal is for millions of students to give it a try.

Danielle and Irene also announced that Cook Nuclear has purchased a 3D printer for the technology program. The 3D printer will arrive in February 2015.

On behalf of the Village School technology program and our students, thank you Danielle and Irene, WIN, and Cook Nuclear.

A Thinking Generation
How to raise thinking children in an age of conformity.

Author, speaker and child development researcher Joshua White will present a seminar entitled “A Thinking Generation” at the Hartford Seventh-day Adventist Church, December 6, beginning at 10:50 a.m. and continuing through vespers, with potluck lunch and supper.

Through research, brain science and the study of child development, this important seminar gives a wealth of insights on how to best work with the developing mind. A fascinating topic for all ages but of special interest to parents of young children. Topics presented include:

A Thinking Generation
The importance of raising a generation of critically thinking young people, and Satan’s plan to prevent it.
Satan’s thought destroying tactics are often hidden in the very environment of our children’s daily lives!

Ready or Not?
Avoiding the most common mistake parents make.
Is it possible that the very thing most parents consider beneficial actually does more harm than good?

Schooled or Educated?
How to know the difference.
Is your child being “schooled” or “educated?” Is there a difference?

A Parent’s Best Curriculum
What to do and when to do it.
A look at the how-to and day-to-day practical aspects of “doing life” with your children.
