Tables for Cuba

TABLETS FOR CUBA. Want to be part of an unprecedented ministry in communist Cuba? Christians in Cuba have no access to religious books, and entering them into the country is almost impossible. The solution? A Tablet. Yes, a tablet can be easily entered into the country and it can be loaded with a host of materials such as Bibles, EGW books, SDA Bible Commentary, Hymnal, music and more. Perhaps you are planning to upgrade your tablet this Christmas, or you have an old tablet you would like to donate. Give the gift of “knowledge unto salvation” this Christmas. Give a “library” to a Cuban family or Bible worker today. Drop your used Tablet at the Master of Divinity office at the Seminary and know that you are giving a gift of a “lifetime” For more information contact Fernando Ortiz, ortizf@andrews.edu or 269.471.3416. On behalf of a Cuban Bible worker or family, Thanks!

Course Survey Extension
Dear Students and Faculty,

This month we’ve experienced several technical difficulties with our course survey system, related to a recent update. We apologize for any confusion this has caused. We will schedule a few more reminder emails, and will leave the surveys open until 5 p.m. on Tuesday, December 16. We will continue to monitor the situation closely so that we can trouble shoot as needed.

Thank you for your patience. Wishing you blessings during the exams and the upcoming break.

STUDENTS: Take Fall Course Surveys
It is once again time for students to rate their courses through course surveys. Course surveys provide the opportunity to give important (and anonymous) feedback to instructors on the effectiveness of the course.

Most courses will be surveyed electronically through our automated system, Class Climate. Email invitations for each course survey will be sent Thursday, November 20. If the survey is not taken, reminders will be sent automatically every three days until December 5. A Certificate of Completion will be generated and emailed you after each survey is submitted. This may be saved, and used as proof of completion if the instructor offers any type of incentive.

Thank you in advance for your participation. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Institutional Effectiveness at ext. 3308 (assessment@andrews.edu)

Howard Center Presents... "His Creation"

The Howard Performing Arts Center will present "His Creation," an interactive family program by Rich Aguilera as part of the 2014-2015 Howard Center Presents series on Saturday, Jan. 10, 2015. Aguilera's high-energy presentation will utilize props, audience interaction, costumes, photos, video and other special effects to explore the subject of creation and evolution. Two showings, one at 6 p.m. and another at 8 p.m. will entertain parents and children alike.

Aguilera, "The Mud Guy" from Guide Magazine and 3ABN's "Kids' Time," travels the world looking for evidence of creation and sharing his discoveries with kids and adults. He writes several monthly columns, has published several books, produces audio and video resources and does speaking engagements that teach about nature and creation. Aguilera doesn't shy away from asking hard questions that even adults secretly have. Some of the questions he will answer are: How does carbon dating work? What evidence is found in human DNA about our origins? Is there scientific evidence that proves evolution?

A parent who attended a show in the past said, "I especially like the interactive nature of Rich's presentations. I have never seen our children sit to attentive to a presentation that was equally appealing to adults!"

Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for students and children. They can be purchased online at howard.andrews.edu or at the box office by calling 888-467-6442.

Faculty Senate on Race & Justice

The following is an official statement voted unanimously by the Andrews University Faculty Senate on Wednesday, December 10, 2014.

The members of the Faculty Senate have watched with great sadness and concern the events of the last few weeks of ongoing incidents of racial distrust and conflict in a number of America's major cities. In Ferguson, Cleveland and New York events have unfolded that, whatever one's race, color, or ideology, can only be seen as tragic.

The loss of life is always the sad result of our fallen, sin-sick world. Such losses are made even harder to deal with, however, when the circumstances surrounding them seem senseless and unjust, especially for those who have historically experienced mistreatment at the hands of those in positions of authority. We have far to go as a society in achieving a system of justice that is viewed as fair and impartial by all groups of people.

We today affirm our commitment as leaders and representatives of the faculty of Andrews University to work for justice, peace and reconciliation in our society as well as in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the families and friends impacted by the conflicts and losses in these events. We call on our colleagues and community members to join us in prayer and action to seek the scriptural goal of having “justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream” (Amos 5:24; NAS).

As disciples of Jesus, who are instructed to daily seek the kingdom of God, we are committed to implementing His principles today. We look forward to this aspiration being fully realized in the earth made new.

Student Gardens Represent at Conference

by Jenna Neil

Arthur Mulyono, manager of the Andrews University Student Gardens, and Stephen Erich, a 2014 graduate from Andrews with a degree in international business, had the opportunity to present at the first annual Adventist Agriculture Conference in Dickson, Tennessee, last month.

Mulyono got involved with the conference when he attended an education and agriculture conference in 2013 at Uchee Pines Institute in Seale, Alabama.

"At the end of the sessions there was a group of individuals who were interested in forming an association," he explains. "More than 20 farmers and participants from throughout the U.S. met for several hours and discussed the idea. At the end of the meeting, the Adventist Agricultural Association was assembled and the board of directors was formed."

Mulyono was invited to participate at this year’s conference and present on an institutional track and participate on other activities such as the Youth Panel and the Institutional Panel. He gave a report on the Student Gardens and Erich reported on the Mobile Farm Market.

"Working as the Mobile Market Coordinator this summer, I was exposed to agriculture for the first time," says Erich. "Although I didn't spend every day in the field, I learned a lot about farming, particularly about taking produce to market."

Near the end of the summer, Mulyono asked Erich if he would be interested in attending the conference and sharing about the Mobile Farm Market during the Student Gardens presentation. Then, during his interview for his current position as the field projects collaborator at Adventist Southeast Asia Projects (ASAP Ministries), the director mentioned the conference and asked if Erich would be interested in attending.

"They thought it would be a good opportunity to learn and network with people interested in mission and agriculture. So I decided to go."

Over three hundred people attended the event, according to Mulyono.

"Most were from the states," he said, "but there were a handful of people from throughout the world including Tanzania and Columbia."

Attendees had the opportunity to choose between five different tracks: institutional, market farming and gardening, home gardening, soil health and simple living. There were also hands-on demonstrations and a general session that tied agriculture with Adventism.

"I attended the institutional track along with 11 other institutions that were present," said Mulyono. "Here we reported what each institution is doing." Other presenters besides Mulyono and Erich included Light Bearers, Daystar Academy, Weimar College, Great Lakes Adventist Academy and Southern Adventist University.

"The purpose of this association is to revive the role of agriculture in the Adventist church," says Erich. "Over the weekend, after a lot of thought, I began to understand the important role agriculture can, and perhaps should, play."

"The purpose of the event was to network, share and experience, encourage and teach the purpose of agriculture as it relates to God’s people," adds Mulyono.

"Andrews Student Gardens can be a model of market gardening for institutions," said Mulyono. "Some Adventist institutions are seeking ways to bring back agriculture into their curriculum. Presenting at the conference allows Andrews the opportunity to network with other institutions and support and encourage others in this line of work."

Both Mulyono and Erich said that Andrews University is one of the only schools to provide an agriculture program and degree.

When asked if this event is the first of its kind, Mulyono said, "Yes and no. In the past 20+ years, there have been meetings about agriculture among the Seventh-day Adventist Church but no association was formed."

Organizers are currently planning to have the second annual Adventist Agriculture Conference from November 4-8, 2015, and the list of possible venues includes Andrews.
Department of PT Receives Recycling Grant

by Lucero Castellanos-Aguirre

Each fall the Berrien County Parks Department offers a recycling grant. This year it was awarded to the Andrews University Department of Physical Therapy.

"It is called the Berrien County School Recycling Grant," said Penny Sisson, the department’s operations assistant. She explained that all eligible Berrien County schools have the opportunity to receive a grant of up to one thousand dollars towards this recycling initiative.

"I wrote the grant requesting nearly $580 to purchase ten 23-gallon blue recycling containers," says Sisson. "We were awarded the grant for the full amount requested at the end of October."

The department’s students have added a new class officer position to help with some new student-led initiatives. One is the Community Outreach and Volunteer Coordinator (COVC). Sophomore Samantha Callahan is this year’s COVC and has put together a committee of eight other students.

"I am working with this committee to initialize and maintain our recycling program," stated Sisson. "Our plan is to place a recycling container next to each trash can around campus with clear instructions regarding what may be put in them."

The department encourages the recycling of paper, aluminum, cans, plastic bottles and glass. Physical therapy students, along with the department’s student employees, will be in charge of the containers’ maintenance.

"Students have shown an interest in recycling since I came to work here four and a half years ago," shared Sisson. "We have taken steps to ensure it is maintained long term—including adding this responsibility to my job description."

Sisson indicated that they have purchased real tableware for the department to avoid using paper plates and plastic forks for department lunches and events.

On Thursday, Nov. 20, the department received the recycling containers that were ordered. This will be the start to the department’s vision to better the Andrews campus through recycling.

Carmelita Troy Interviewed on 3ABN

by Jenna Neil
Carmelita Troy, an associate professor of accounting in the School of Business Administration, was recently interviewed by 3ABN on "Scriptural Foundation for Business." The episode, filmed in August at the 3ABN studios in Illinois, aired on Monday, November 17, as part of the 3ABN Today program with Danny Shelton and Yvonne Lewis.

"When the first monographs in the Spiritual Foundations series were published in June of 2014, I took a picture of the cover of one, which I had written with LeRoy Ruhupatty, another School of Business faculty member, and posted the picture on Facebook," says Troy. "Danny Shelton, 3ABN founder, saw the post and sent a message that he was interested in interviewing us about the series."

Monographs are groups of detailed written studies based on a specialized subject or an aspect of that subject. The Scriptural Foundations of Business monographs series is a group of written studies that brings business and scripture together.

"The monographs integrate scripture with the basic concepts and theories that are already in the business curriculum," explains Troy.

Troy was interviewed on the show with Michael Cafferky, professor of business and management at Southern Adventist University (Collegedale, Tennessee). Cafferky was invited to appear along with Troy because he is one of the editors of the monograph series.

"Michael Cafferky and Bruce Wrenn came up with the idea of the series and they both worked tirelessly to recruit authors and the Andrews University Press to be the publisher," says Troy.

Wrenn, Colson Endowed Chair of marketing at Andrews University, and Cafferky were the editors of the project, which included creating the idea, finding writers, and doing final edits.

Prior to this series on the Scriptural Foundations of Business, there was very little material available that integrated scripture and business that targeted college students as they are beginning their studies in business. This series is designed to be a part of the business curriculum.

"This topic is important to me because I want my students to understand and plan to be honest in their business dealings and to have a solid biblical base for responding appropriately when enticed to wrong," says Troy.

In the accounting portion of the monograph series, Troy and coauthor Ruhupatty used the biblical story of Joseph.

"Joseph was trustworthy in managing and accounting for the assets of Potiphar," she explains. "Despite the fact that he was wrongly accused and thrown into the dungeon, Joseph maintained his integrity." She wants to emphasize to students that it's important to do the right thing regardless of the consequences.

3ABN saw the importance of the topic in a broader sense than originally envisioned.

"Originally they envisioned providing Christian colleges and universities with a resource to integrate faith and learning in the area of business," says Troy. "Not only did they accomplish that, 3ABN also brought to our attention that this series has a much larger target audience such as church treasurers, Adventist and Christian students attending non-Adventist/non-Christian colleges and universities, business people and just about anyone who conducts business."

With the publication of the monograph series and her interview on 3ABN, Troy hopes that students and others alike realize the importance of honesty in business and how each principle can be based on the Bible.

Andrews a STEM Jobs Approved University

Andrews University is pleased to announce that it has been designated a 2015 STEM JobsSM Approved College by Victory Media. A leader in successfully connecting individuals in transition with education and career opportunities, Victory Media is the creator of STEM JobsSM media, education and career resources for students interested in science, technology, engineering and math. The 2015 STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges inaugural list is the first of its kind to rate universities, colleges, community colleges and trade schools on their responsiveness and relevance to high demand, high growth STEM occupations.

Andrews was among over 1,600 schools participating in the STEM JobsSM survey process. Schools submitting surveys were scored on publicly available data and responses to proprietary questions around three key indicators of success: STEM job alignment, STEM job placement, and diversity in a school's STEM programs. The assessment and rights to the STEM Jobs ApprovedSM Colleges designation were available to qualifying schools for free. Andrews will be featured in the Winter 2015 issue of "STEM JobsSM" magazine, along with the entire 2015 list of STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges.

"Being officially approved as a 2015 STEM Jobs university reaffirms what we are doing in STEM here at Andrews," says Keith Mattingly, dean of the Colleges of Arts & Sciences. "It assures our students that they are receiving a quality STEM education and affirms our professors that they are providing a recognized great value. We are proud of the mentorship of students as well as the research and creative scholarship that comes from our STEM disciplines and this approval gives a positive endorsement to our success."
"With the list of STEM JobsSM Approved Colleges we're able to help parents, students and guidance counselors evaluate how well education is translating into real-world jobs, and how responsive institutions are to meeting those demands," said Daniel Nichols, President of STEM JobsSM. "We're pleased to showcase schools like Andrews University, a school leading the way in this area."

United Way Campaign Results
As President Andreasen stated in a message to campus in September, "The mission of Andrews University has always resonated with the mission of United Way—to improve lives by mobilizing the caring power of communities. It also takes us to the story in Matthew 25 where Jesus calls his followers to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the sick."

Andrews employees truly embraced this year's United Way campus campaign theme, Bursting the Andrews Bubble, ending the campaign with our best-ever results. More employee donors gave more dollars that will help fill more needs in our community.

"The campaign goals we set for this year were definitely 'stretch' goals, and while we didn't quite hit those goals, we burst our own bubble and achieved new levels," said Dalry Payne, United Way campus campaign leader. "We want to thank everyone who participated in this great campaign."

President Andreasen and the team of campaign leaders had some fun putting together a thank you video for those who helped break records in the 2014 campaign.

March for Justice at Andrews University

More than 200 students at Andrews University took part in the March for Justice.

"I felt like not being involved was also saying I didn’t care," said Jevon McAllister, a student at the school. "So I felt like now was the time to get involved and for my voice to be heard."

For students, this was a chance to lend their voice to a larger movement.

Family on the Mend After Plane Crash

A plane crash on Friday in Berrien Springs is still affecting the aviation community at Andrews University.

Bryce Fisher, the man that made the miraculous landing just two miles from the school's airport, obtained his pilot's license from their aviation department.

He is also an airplane mechanic and has an aviation maintenance license from Andrews University too.

His family was heading from Richmond, Indiana to Berrien Springs for a family function when Bryce believes the engine failed.

Great Leaps Forward
Although she was born in 1965, Rachel Williams-Smith's story could have been set in the 1800s.
Wearing long dresses and broad-brimmed bonnets, she grew up without modern conveniences like electricity, telephone, radio, television or indoor plumbing. She, along with her two older brothers, was shaped by the extreme religious views of her iron-willed, Vietnam veteran father and practical-minded mother.

Cardinals win vs. Holy Cross College
The Holy Cross men's basketball team hosted Andrews University Saturday night in their 2014-15 home opener. The Saints fell to the Cardinals, 59-57. The loss drop the Saints to a 2-3 record for the season.

Grace Place: Caring for the Community
The Grace Place may be fairly new to the community, but members have already made their presence known with their programs on health, marriage and finances and their regular outreach to South Bend neighborhoods.

Mobile Farm Market Puts End to Food Deserts
A mobile farm market is making a difference in Michigan one vegetable at a time. Andrews University said due to its success this summer they are going to expand next year.

One woman said she loved the recipes the dietitian would provide.
Pauline Washington said, "They picked it that morning and they brought it, they were selling it, plus showing us how to cook it... the grocery store is not close to where I live! nothing is close to where I live!"

Hundreds rally for justice in Berrien Springs

Berrien Springs -

More than two hundred students at Andrews University took part in the March for Justice.

“I felt like not being involved was also saying I didn’t care,” said Jevon McAllister, a student at the school. “So I felt like now was the time to get involved and for my voice to be heard.”

For students, this was a chance to lend their voice to a larger movement.

“Give the students here a voice and let them know they are not alone,” said Jameel Daniels, an organizer for the march. “They are not unheard and that we too stand for justice.”

“What's going on in these major cities, yea, it's affecting us too even though we’re attending school in a rural area,” said Michael Polite, a chaplin at the school.

The students, along with faculty and members of the community, marched more than two miles from the school to the police station. When they arrived they fell silent for four and a half minutes, to commemorate the amount of time Michael Brown laid dead on the street in Ferguson.

Then, they prayed and actually thanked police officers, pointing out that now too many officers are all being held accountable for the brutality of a few.

“There are individuals here who have no intention to abuse anyone of any ethnic group,” Polite said at the rally. “But they have every intention to use their lives on an every day basis to protect and to serve.”

“We want to make sure that, particularly the civil servants in our community, that we recognize they are not victimizing us,” Daniels said. “But that we do stand in support of those who are being victimized.”

While lately the national conversation has focused on race, for the people who took part in the rally, today was about more than that.

“We’re not saying that we only care about black lives,” McAllister said. “We care about Hispanic lives, we care about everyone's life.”

The rally at Andrews University was only one of several rallies in Michiana today. Rallies were also held in Elkhart and Benton Harbor that were inspired by Ferguson and the Eric Garner case.

Family on the mend after plane crash

By Alexandra Koehn Email Connect akoehn@abc57.com Follow @AlexKoehnABC57

BERRIEN COUNTY, Mich. - A plane crash on Friday in Berrien Springs is still affecting the aviation community at Andrews University.

Bryce Fisher, the man that made the miraculous landing just two miles from the school's airport, obtained his pilot's license from their aviation department.

He is also an airplane mechanic and has an aviation maintenance license from Andrews University too.

His family was heading from Richmond, Indiana to Berrien Springs for a family function when Bryce believes the engine failed.

Bryce had to be extricated from the plane but he has been released from the hospital.

His 70-year-old father Dr. William Fisher owned the plane and was the co-pilot. He has been flying various aircraft for 3 or 4 decades. There were reports that he was walking around after the crash.

Dr. Fisher's wife, Barbara Fisher, is still in serious condition and sources said she underwent surgery at a Kalamazoo hospital, but she is expected to be okay.

Bryce's girlfriend, Miritha Morales, was also in the plane and walked away from the crash.

Bryce's former aviation instructor at Andrews University was at the scene moments after the plane went down. His professors said the Fisher family recently donated a plane to the aviation department, and the community knew the family well.

Randy Robertson said, “Given the direction they were coming from, there weren't really any good options. There are trees and narrow little streets and that they happen to be right where they were is providence, a blessing, miracle.”

Before Robertson was an Associate Professor of aviation at Andrews University, he investigated dozens of plane crashes for the Air Force.

Robertson said, “Metal is metal. I can buy more metal, I can't buy more people. I can't replace them.”

Robertson said it was shocking to find out his former student was in the cockpit.

Robertson said, “They were able to carry all the way through the trees and impact the ground at the top of the bluff as opposed to down the bluff and the providence that they didn't actually come 3 or 4 feet higher may well have saved lives. Had they hit 4 or 5 feet down, the aircraft would have turned into an accordion. Like hitting a wall.”

The plane crashed just five feet from a house in the 400 block of Bluff Street.

The instructors showed our reporter an engine failure in a plane simulator. In the demonstration, it all happened in a matter of seconds.

Jared White said, “This means I'm about to land, and that's my crash. I mean we had roughly between 15 and 30 seconds to do minimal troubleshooting but basically try and find a safe place to land. And that's what Bryce and his family did as well.”

The FAA is investigating the plane crash and it's expected to take several weeks.

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Although she was born in 1965, Rachel Williams-Smith's story could have been set in the 1800s. Wearing long dresses and broad-brimmed bonnets, she grew up without modern conveniences like electricity, telephone, radio, television or indoor plumbing. She, along with her two older brothers, was shaped by the extreme religious views of her iron-willed, Vietnam veteran father and practical-minded mother.

The Seventh-day Adventist family separated from society and moved to an old, abandoned house high on a hill in Tennessee where they would await the end of the world. Her father told her that girls were trouble, and refused to play with her. At 16, Rachel left the hill and entered school for the first time, living in a world she knew little about. She went on to graduate from college with a bachelor's degree in language arts, a master's degree in English and a doctorate in communication.

She has two grown daughters, Sharon and Sheryl, and, following a failed marriage, met and married Carl Winston Smith, a fashion designer and tailor. They live in Coloma, and Carl Smith recently opened a tailoring business in St. Joseph.

Williams-Smith, 49, is chairwoman of the Andrews University Department of Communication and an associate professor, and author of the New Book, "Born Yesterday: The True Story of a Girl Born in the 20th Century but Raised in the 19th." The first hard copies of her book arrived the day she sat down for an interview with Herald-Palladium Staff Writer Julie Swidwa.

Tell me why you wrote this book.

When people find out my unusual past, they ask me how did I go from where I was to where I am today, and I realize it came over a period of time, that my life was like a gift. For my doctorate I did my dissertation on that whole adjustment process and I began to realize through the help of my professors that, as one professor said, "You've been given an unusual life. What are you going to do with it?" You can either sit on it... and do nothing, or you can actually use it to benefit others.

What do you think it can do for people?

My number one hope is that for people who have been turned off from God, I hope to re-inspire their faith. The testimony of how you could come up with too much religion and yet come out where you have a stronger faith in God than you ever did before in your life, is a testimony to what God can do for anybody. I also hope it will help parents with good intentions to realize that what children experience can be different from what the parents perceive. I also hope that for young people who are feeling in despair, who may feel like they've messed up or blown it and there's no chance in life they could ever accomplish anything worthwhile.

What would you say to young people who blame mom and dad for everything that happens, or if they stumble?

Everybody has something that they would rather not have and some people have more than others. Sometimes it's your parents, as well intended as they may be or as awful intended as they may be, parents make mistakes, they do things that they shouldn't do. There's no perfect ones out there.

So first, you have to acknowledge the things that have happened in your life, and see them for what they are. There's no point in lying to yourself.

It's not necessary to go back to parents and say 'you did this or that,' but you have to know for yourself where some of those problems and challenges came from.

I know for myself, particularly with my father, I didn't want to make him look bad ... and some things I didn't even want to admit to myself, but then I had to realize, no, this had an impact on my life.

But the other side is, you can't use what happened in your life, no matter what it is, as an excuse for sitting down and letting it destroy you. There are people in life who have gone through more than me and they've accomplished much more than me.

Do you have a good relationship with your mother?

I do. She moved in with us in August and I enjoy having her there. She still holds a lot of her beliefs like she did before, so I listen when she talks.

Sometimes she'll talk about her beliefs and she wants to talk about them with great fervor, and I just enjoy the fact that my mom is alive and that she can be excited about the things she believes and they can still give her joy and inspiration at 79.

Do you have a good marriage now?

Yes, I do! We've been married six years. My husband came into my life sure about one thing and that was that he was there to love me. He wanted to be in my life. And I wasn't even sure about all that, but it was the best decision I made. He's been a blessing to me. He's been experienced before in my life for anything that was happening in my life. I've occasionally felt like that over something I was working on for

Was it therapeutic for you to write this book?

Actually the therapy came earlier when I wrote my dissertation. That was a very therapeutic process even though I didn't go into the family dysfunction element, but just having to go back into my life so much. The book was therapeutic again, but not to the same degree. I think where it helped, it was very revealing. I had always thought that my life was very disconnected.

And actually when I wrote my dissertation I talked about five distinct stages that I went through. I saw everything as disconnected. I was actually going to call (the book) "The Patchwork Quilt" when I started because I just saw my life as a collection of things that had happened. It was in writing the book that I discovered that there was almost like a plot to my life and it was amazing.

When I'm sharing now, even in this interview, when I'm sharing and answering questions, I feel a joy and a life and an energy that I've never had before. I always had a feeling like that over something I was working on for somebody else, but this is a whole other level, and I just want to be able to bless. I want to be able to share, and help, and make a difference. I just want my life to make a difference.

A Request from Adventist Forum
Dear supporter,
For the last ten years, the Michiana Adventist Forum has been sponsoring scholarly presentations, thought-provoking discussion, and even occasional debate, with featured scholars and researchers from both the local area and further abroad.

In the past, we largely arranged for speakers who were in town and on someone else's travel budget, since... we were working on such a “shoe string” budget. In order to provide the richest intellectual experience possible, we now occasionally also arrange for speakers who require travel and lodging compensation. These new travel costs, along with the rental fees for equipment and venue, make up the majority of our expenses. Last year, however, the Forum Board voted to expand our operation by paying a $250 honorarium for each program presented as a gesture of gratitude. With these new policies in place, our expenses began exceeding the occasional contributions received. Accordingly, we are now writing to ask for your assistance in covering the costs of the Michiana Adventist Forum’s continued operation.

Though we have enjoyed the past ten years of intellectual enrichment from the Michiana Adventist Forum with minimal outlay of funds, the Forum’s continuation at the same level of excellence depends upon our willingness to support this program as a team. We encourage you at this time to consider making a tax-deductible gift to the Michiana Adventist Forum in order to enable it to continue as a major intellectual medium within our academic community. Thank you for your continued support and attendance.

Sincerely,

Art Robertson, president
Michiana Adventist Forum

Cook Nuclear Plant Supports Village School

Mr. Aaron Koleda, Village Adventist Elementary School Technology Director, has a vision for computer science education. His passion is evident as he works with students to generate excitement and motivation to learn science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM subjects). Mr. Koleda recently set up an Adopt-A-Classroom website to reach out to the community for support of Computer Science Education Week, which is Dec. 8-12. His dream was to participate in the national effort for students to learn basic programming skills.
Danielle Burgoyne and Irene Weaver, employees at Cook Nuclear Plant, were searching for a community outreach program, and came across Mr. Koleda’s website. These ladies are part of the group Women in Nuclear (WIN), and have been selling candy at the plant to raise funds, which would promote STEM subjects. Danielle and Irene presented to the Village School 5th-8th grade students 5 Sphero robots, which are programmable balls created by Orbotix. The student response was amazing as they cheered and shouted!

Mr. Koleda will be using these robots to teach programming to students in grades K-8 the week of Dec. 8, as they participate in the Hour of Code event that is taking place nationwide. This week, across over 150 countries, millions of people and students will try out computer programming for the first time. Anyone can learn to code! The goal is for millions of students to give it a try.

Danielle and Irene also announced that Cook Nuclear has purchased a 3D printer for the technology program. The 3D printer will arrive in February 2015.

On behalf of the Village School technology program and our students, thank you Danielle and Irene, WIN, and Cook Nuclear.

CUC Changes Status and Official Name to Burman University

Charles Burman

Leona Burman

December 15, 2015 - On December 15, 2014 the CUC Board of Trustees approved changing its name from Canadian University College to Burman University.

The university is named after Charles A. and Leona Burman the husband and wife team who founded the institution in 1907. Charles A. Burman served as the first and third President (Principal) of the school that would be known as CUC. Leona Burman taught English, science, language, geography, physiology, and acted as school nurse. Both Charles and Leona devoted their entire lives to the work of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

"It was because of their selfless dedication and sacrifice that the first school on this hilltop was established," said CUC President Mark Haynal. "In every season of their ministry both of these individuals exemplified the mission of our school. They thought with discernment, believed with insight and commitment, and acted with confidence, compassion and competence."

On July 2, 2014 the Alberta government granted CUC permission to change the institutions status and name from "university college" to "university."

"Referring to ourselves simply as a university will more clearly reflect our degree-granting status and enable our students to pursue graduate school and employment without having to repeatedly explaining what a 'university college' is," says Haynal. "Because 'university college' means markedly different things in different regions, potential students and administrators of post-secondary institutions across Canada and around the world have always been uncertain and often confused by our name."

The name "Burman University" was chosen after an intensive process of focus groups held in three regions of Canada. Faculty, staff, students, alumni, friends and citizens of Lacombe joined the process, suggesting more than a hundred possible names.

CUC will continue as Canadian University College for the remainder of the 2014-2015 academic calendar year. Full implementation of the new name will take place May 1, 2015. The name change process will be fully complete after petition for amendments through a private bill moves through the Alberta legislature.
The Burmans' entire life was dedicated to service. The two met at Union College and were married in 1897. Early on in their careers the Burmans were stationed in Alberta where Charles became the first president of the Alberta Conference. Leona also served the Alberta Conference as the Sabbath School Secretary and in the Youth People's Work department.

As Alberta Conference president, Charles urged that building a school would be the best way to inspire colporteurs. This idea gave way to the Canvassers' School that would one day become Burman University. Always working as a team, Leona Burman worked alongside Charles as a staff member at the Canvassers' School.

Only a few months working with the students at the Canvassers' School convinced Charles that a secondary institution was needed. As a team of action the Burmans, with a logging crew, embarked to gather lumber even before a site or conference approval was granted. Charles led a crew of eighteen men, eighteen horses, three bobsleds, and a cutter to the woods west of Leduc. Leona, with student Hazel Edwards, joined the crew to provide support and cook for the loggers. In three weeks the crew had cut 1,700 logs and piled them on the ice of the North Saskatchewan River.

In 1907 Alberta Industrial Academy was established. The school functioned with four staff members, Charles as the principal and Bible teacher and Leona as the preceptress along with teaching English, geography, physiology, and acting as the school nurse.

Charles and Leona Burman cared for not only the academic needs of the AIA students but for their physical needs as well. When seeing student Camille Armeneau canvassing in the cold without a topcoat, Charles took off his and gave it to the student. On another occasion, noticing student Willie McCready's wornout shoes, he bought him a new pair. It was through their tireless service that the students addressed the Burmans as "Ma and Pa Burman."

Leona Burman wrote, "The teacher never gets his reward in the pay envelope, it comes with the years as he watches the students he has taught develop into strong men and women able to carry responsibilities."

This institution was established by the sweat and sacrifice, vision and courage of Charles and Leona Burman who dreamed of a school where men and women would be prepared for lives of service. Their dream lives on in the mission of Burman University, which is to prepare students to think with discernment, to believe with insight and commitment, and to act with confidence, compassion and competence.

How to raise thinking children in an age of conformity.

The importance of raising a generation of critically thinking young people, and Satan’s plan to prevent it.
Satan’s thought destroying tactics are often hidden in the very environment of our children’s daily lives!

Ready or Not?
Avoiding the most common mistake parents make.
Is it possible that the very thing most parents consider beneficial actually does more harm than good?

Schooled or Educated?
How to know the difference.
Is your child being “schooled” or “educated?” Is there a difference?
