Caribbean Nations Club Social

The Caribbean Nations Club (CNC) is an organization based on the Andrews University campus that aims to facilitate the education, empowerment, and enjoyment of Caribbean culture.

On February 28, 2015, at Burman Hall, CNC invites all to celebrate the history and culture of the Caribbean!

Come play games, win prizes, socialize and listen to conscious, uplifting Calypso music, and taste some awesome Caribbean food!

Admission will be free for all and doors open at 8pm.

Food for members of CNC will be free and non-members will be charged $2 per plate.

Members will also receive their club T-shirts for this year!

Waldensian class

Take a religion class and travel to the ancient home of the Waldenses in the Piedmonts of Northern Italy from June 3-11, 2015. The purposes for this study tour is to bring to you the historical and spiritual perspectives of these faithful people, and give you the opportunity for a personal experience of faith.

Before the tour you will meet with Professor Demsky for 7 class periods during spring semester to study the history to have a background on this ancient people of faith. The class times are arranged. Classes are beginning now so don't delay.

Please contact Professor Kathleen Demsky, Director of the Architecture Resource Center. Phone: 269-471-2418  email: demskyk@andrews.edu

All costs for the trip are covered by the tuition for this 3 credit summer course, RELG 360-04x, plus a $250.00 tour fee. This is a summer class and registration takes place at the end of the spring semester.

For Persons who want to travel with us on this faith journey and are not taking it for academic credit, the cost is $3,584. Please contact Professor Demsky by phone or email for the resources (books/DVDs) that will be needed prior to taking the tour, to gain knowledge beforehand of the amazing historical sites of these ancient people of faith, which we will discover on this faith journey.

Honoring George Knight

Please join Andrews University for the presentation of a festschrift to George Knight in honor of his distinguished teaching, research, editorial and publishing career. The recently released book, "Adventist Maverick: A Celebration of George Knight’s Contribution to Adventist Thought," is a collection of writings by colleagues and students who have come to highly respect Knight and his scholarship. The event will take place on Tuesday, April 21, at 11:30 a.m. in the Seminary Chapel at Andrews University and will feature tributes by the editors and a response from Knight. A reception will follow in the Seminary Commons. All are welcome.

Seminar Lecture: Serendipity in Organic Synthesis

Building a complex pharmaceutical molecule can often involve serendipity —- plain 'good' luck. Will you know when it happens?

All are encouraged to attend and hear Andy Mitchell’s seminar lecture this Thursday, February 26, 2015 at 4:30pm in A-107 Halenz Hall on the topic: Serendipity in Organic Synthesis.

This is the eighth Winter-Spring lecture in the annual Andrews University Department of Chemistry & Biochemistry Seminar Series. Our guest speaker enjoys building pharmaceutically-important natural products with complex ring architecture. Learn more about our speaker’s research interests at: http://cas.illinoisstate.edu/sites/tmitche/

View the lecture flyer for more details about our speaker’s background at: https://www.dropbox.com/s/w8ju41gp2nwbba5/CHEMSEM%20NEWS%20Winter-Spring%202015%20Flyer%208.jpg?dl=0

For non-Andrews faculty, students and others wishing to attend:

There are directions given to Andrews at: http://www.andrews.edu/about/visiting/get_to_andrews.html

To get to the A-107 Halenz Hall:

Teachers are encouraged to announce this lecture in their classes and/or forward this email to their classes. All are welcome to forward this email along to colleagues and friends.

Pirating the Caribbean Mind: Theoretical Piracy on High Seas of Colonization

In this presentation we will reflect on the impact of colonial and postcolonial experiences in the 20th-century epistemologies, and hegemonies which underlie imperialist actions and postcolonial thought. We will then highlight educational and social practices and institutions shaped by colonial and postcolonial realities. These include schooling, access to services, social values and norms, and culture. These introductory sections will enable us to explore how colonial and postcolonial actions have “pirated the mind” of Caribbean citizens. Included in this section will be a presentation of the appropriation of uniquely Caribbean theoretical constructs by other cultures in the name of “globality.” We will conclude the presentation with implications for North American educators.

Both poetry and science spring from our human mind and imaginings. Did you know that metaphors are central and essential to both poetry and science? Can you think of some metaphors in science?

All are encouraged to attend and hear Leigh Kotsilidis’s webinar lecture this Thursday, February 12, 2015 at 4:30pm in A-107 Halenz Hall on the topic: Poetry & Science: Hypothetically Speaking.

This is the seventh Winter-Spring lecture in the annual Andrews University Department of Chemistry & Biochemistry Seminar Series. Our guest speaker is a Poet & Artist based in Montreal, Canada.

This lecture will be live streamed, for those unable to attend, on Thursday at 4:30pm at: http://www.andrews.edu/services/its/telecom/chemsem/
Also, view her website for more information including about her published poetry book at: http://leighkotsilidisart.weebly.com/

Attached is the lecture flyer in jpeg format with more details about our speaker's background.

For non-Andrews faculty, students and others wishing to attend:

There are directions given to Andrews at: http://www.andrews.edu/about/visiting/get_to_andrews.html

To get to the A-107 Halenz Hall:

Teachers are encouraged to announce this lecture in their classes and/or forward this email to their classes. All are welcome to forward this email along to colleagues and friends.

Poetry and Science: Hypothetically Speaking

Leigh Kotsilidis in a poet, stop-animator, and visual artist based in Montreal. She received her MFA in Studio Arts from Concordia University. Her most recent art projects include: Lady Into Fox, displayed at the Redpath Natural History Museum; and Scientists for Love, a series of events that generate human connection through scientific experiments.

Her poems have appeared in literary journals internationally; and have been anthologized in several publications including the Best Canadian Poetry in English 2011. Her first full-length poetry collection, Hypotheticals, was published in 2011. She was twice selected as a finalist for the CBC Literary Awards, and received an honourable mention for the P.K. Page Irving Prize. She is currently working on a collection of poems, tentatively titled, Flukes.

As an installation artist, stop-animator and poet, Kotsilidis challenges the line between fact and fiction as it relates to knowledge production in our society. She mingles facts or representations of definitive knowledge, often as it is presented through scientific theories, with ‘fictions.’ Her intention is to confound the ordinary to make it ambiguous, which by extension also makes us estranged to the conventionally recognizable, and, intrinsically, ourselves. She believes it is through this bemusement that we are empowered, and our imaginations are provoked to reinvent ourselves and the world around us.

‘Clear as black:’ Seeing beyond shades of albinism within Puerto Rico’s population

In Sight

By Nicole Crowder February 9

Born with albinism, Jomalier, center, sits with his brothers in Moca, Puerto Rico. (Adriana Monsalve)
Daneisha, diagnosed with albinism, plays at the beach in Ponce, Puerto Rico. (Adriana Monsalve)

On the sun-filled island of Puerto Rico, a little girl playfully bounds along the boardwalk, her stark blonde hair streaming around her pale pink shoulders. Her eyes, ever sensitive to light whether from the sun or indoors, are always covered by a pair of white sunglasses.

Puerto Rico has the highest prevalence of albinism and HPS (Hermansy-Pudlak Syndrome) in the world. HPS, a rare disease that occurs most commonly in people who have albinism, occurs in a variety of ways: HPS I and HPS 3 are the two most commonly diagnosed within the Puerto Rican population, with manifestations that can include platelet dysfunction, colitis, and/or fibrotic lung disease. But people diagnosed with HP3 do not always lack pigmentation in their skin, hair or irises.

Photographer Adriana Monsalve tries to dispel the misconceptions about persons with albinism in her beautiful series, "Clear As Black." As a woman who has fair skin but who is Hispanic and black, Monsalve was initially hesitate to approach the series, which forced her to confront her own story of being classified based on looks. "By looking at me you will not know what I am. I am white, but I am black. Slowly the personal side of this story kept gnawing at me more and more, and before I knew it this project was totally about me. Through this series, I discovered who I am genetically," she says.

“I came up with ‘Clear As Black’ because I felt it represented exactly what it was that I had been seeing for three months in Puerto Rico: white people that are black, and black people that are white and all the visual representations of that. In the same way, ‘Clear As Black,’ is telling about me.”

Monsalve wanted to break away from the narrative of seeing persons with albinism as “other.” “I wanted to highlighted the fact that they are people before they are albinos.’ They are people with a condition called albinism and they live interesting lives just like you and me, full of layers and puberty, and racism and prejudice and romance and academic achievements and religious views and break-ups and lust an family drama and everything that makes them a whole person.”

Ricardito, left, sits with two sisters with albinism, Kristal and Sofia, on a park bench in Barranquitas, La Guancha, Puerto Rico. (Adriana Monsalve)

Yeidyly at the Ponce School of Medicine in Ponce, Puerto Rico. She and her fiance, Eugenio, both have albinism. (Adriana Monsalve)
Engaged to be wed, Eugenio, left, and Yeidyly pose on set of their engagement photo session in Humacao, Puerto Rico. Eugenio was born with albinism. (Adriana Monsalve)

Monsalve executed the series in black and white intentionally, out of her predilection for mixing color photos with black and white and to further emphasize the overall theme of color. “I’ve always found the rule in photography about how you should not mix color photos with black and whites in a series to be silly. My story has so much to do with skin color and lack [thereof], so I am going at against that rule for my benefit and the benefit of the story.”

Despite a prevalence of persons with albinism in Puerto Rico diagnosed with HP3, the task of finding and photographing them is made all the more complex not only because they often lack distinguishing traits of albinism (light hair, eyes, skin), but because they are not registered in medical offices as people with albinism and often suffer untreated medical problems. Even a person with HP1 will often have red or dark hair.

“That’s what this series is about: changing what the word ‘albino’ means, and ultimately taking it out of our lexicon. I am showing a broader more expansive narrative of what people with albinism look like.”

SIGN UP!

We are asking that people who want to donate blood sign up for a time slot. There are plenty of spots available all day. Please go to: www.redcrossblood.org (sponsor code: ANDREWS UNIVERSITY) to schedule an appointment. We need your information and please be sure to confirm your time. Remember the online sign ups close down the day before the blood drive. Although we will be taking walk-ins, please note that signing up will make the process much smoother (and faster) for you and the staff. Thank you for making sure our blood drive is a success!

IRON UP!

Every year, we have a lot of people turned down because of low iron. This happens especially in vegetarians or low weight girls, but can happen to anyone. You may be able to replenish your supply of iron by eating more high-iron foods or by taking supplements in the days or weeks leading up to the blood drive.

Good sources of iron are: iron fortified cereals, beans, raisins, and prunes. Eating foods rich in Vitamin C, such as citrus fruits, broccoli and tomatoes will help your body absorb the iron you eat.

Music Festival Concert & More

The Andrews University Department of Music will host three events the first week of March. All events are free (no tickets required) and open to the public.

On Thursday, March 5, the department’s faculty members will present the annual Showcase Recital as part of the University’s Band & Keyboard Music Festival. The recital will take place at 7 p.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center.

Featured will be Chris Gibson, flute; Jason Gresl, bass clarinet; Lisa Bubar, bassoon; Debra Inglefield, horn; Dan McCarthy, trumpet; Alan Mitchell, trombone; Charles Reid, voice; Claudio Gonzalez, violin; Carla Trynchuk, violin; and Carlos Flores, piano.

On Friday, March 6, the Department of Music will present a vespers concert featuring the Wind Symphony and University Singers, as individual ensembles and in a cooperative piece. The concert will take place at 7 p.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center.

The Wind Symphony, under the direction of Alan Mitchell, will perform “Alleluia” by Cross, “The Spheres” by Gjeilo, “Sunrise at Angel’s Gate” by Sparke and the Michigan premiere of Gregory Youtz’s “For Those Who Wait.” The University Singers, under the direction of Stephen Zork, will perform “Caritas Et Amor” by Stroope, “Alleluia” from “Songs of Faith” by Basler and “Jesus, The Very Thought of Thee” by Slater. The Wind Symphony and the University Singers will combine to perform Ola Gjeilo’s “Meridian.”

On Saturday, March 7, 97 high school students from four states and Canada will present the Andrews University Band & Keyboard Music Festival Concert. It will take place at 4 p.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center.

The festival band is directed by Edwin Powell from Pacific Lutheran University (Tacoma, Washington) and Alan Mitchell, Wind Symphony director at Andrews. Keyboard festival students will present several selections under the direction of Carlos Flores, professor of music theory and piano, and Trina Thompson, assistant professor of theory and piano, both at Andrews University.

For more information about these events contact the Andrews University Department of Music at music@andrews.edu or 269-471-3555.
Imagining Jesus in the Modern Age

During his 43-year tenure at Andrews University, Greg Constantine taught a class titled "The Life of Christ in Great Art" for 22 of those years. In the class he revealed to his students works by famous artists like Rembrandt and Michelangelo, showing how they had portrayed incidents from the life of Christ.

"Some of these artists brought Jesus to their own time instead of transporting them 2,000 years back so audiences could relate better," explains Constantine. "I liked that and I think my students appreciated it, too."

In 1990, Constantine wanted to do something in his own art dealing with the life of Jesus that his 18- to 21-year-old students could relate to. Though, as Constantine points out, we know nothing of what happened between the ages of 12 and 30, it's generally understood that Jesus "grew in wisdom and stature and approval of the people around him."

"I didn't know exactly how I was going to create a book about it," he says. "But my book of drawings titled 'Vincent van Gogh Visits New York' published in 1983, showing a kind of innocent artist in this sophisticated and unforgiving city, constituted a precedent and an inspiration for what I titled 'Jesus of New York: Premonitions of a New York Teenager.' I took many things we know about Jesus during his ministry and approached the events as if he had premonitions of them, or like he would use the memories of his experiences as a 19-year-old observing hypocrisy and injustice later in one of his sermons."

For example, one of the 43 drawings includes a 12-year-old Jesus—abandoned by his parents in Manhattan—as a contestant on a quiz show. This drawing is based on the banter we know happened between the boy and the theologians in the synagogue. In another, he drew Jesus as a young man choosing a despised tax collector as a friend, and eating a meal in a tavern with what some considered questionable characters. Everything was based on biblical accounts, cleverly modernized to our time.

A big challenge came when Constantine approached the crucifixion. It was difficult to consider what would lead to something that dramatic and violent in such a public venue in today's culture. He finally settled on a sequence of drawings leading up to the Main Event: His friends (disciples) convince Jesus to enter the Golden Gloves competition in New York. Constantine even had his friend and neighbor Muhammad Ali pose for the climactic scene of a battered Jesus, arms outstretched on the ropes resembling the cross.

Although Constantine was unable to publish this particular story in the U.S., 14 years ago he was interviewed by Humberto Rasi for an article in Dialog magazine, which was published along with seven of his drawings. Then, a year later, Adrian Bocaneanu, the president of the Romanian Union of Seventh-day Adventists saw the article, had it translated and republished it in his union magazine.

In 2014, a pastor who had witnessed the exhibition of the drawings from the book in Bucharest emailed Constantine. He wanted to publish the entire book for his prison ministries there. Constantine agreed, and after several meetings among church officials in Romania it was decided that they would not use it for prison ministries, but instead for youth ministries as the main missionary tool for 2015, focusing on students attending public universities, and adding it to the collection to be sold by book salesmen.

Late in 2014, the Romanian version of the 90-page book was published. They invited Constantine to Romania for the book launching, and to present his material and host three exhibitions of the book's artwork, which he did in late November and early December.

"The Adventist students have a vision that their friends will be thus determined to grab a New Testament and read the Gospels to discover for themselves the rich meaning of the life of Jesus," said Bocaneanu, who attended the book's launch with Constantine and 700 other people at a recent conference of AMiCUS, or...
Adventist Ministry to College and University Students, in the city of Brașov.*

"I created 'Jesus of New York' for my students," says Constantine. "My mission was to bring Jesus to them at a new level they could better relate to. Though it hasn't yet been published here, I'm so glad my work is being used to further the Gospel in my parents' homeland of Romania. I really take very little credit, because all of this was due to God's inspiration and an answer to my prayers. It's a project I very much enjoyed putting together, and I'm excited to see what else God has in store for me."

When Jesus was 12, his parents took him downtown as they did every spring. He discovered his favorite game show being broadcast live. He went in and was chosen from the studio audience to be a contestant. His parents didn't realize he hadn't returned home with them until they saw him on TV. They were upset they had lost track of him. As they watched, they were reminded how he always answered their questions. Now on TV, he was doing very well. The panel of seminary theologians was amazed that in spite of not having attended any of their great schools, he demonstrated such intelligence, insight and wisdom. His parents called the station immediately to scold him, but Jesus told them he was in his own element there; and as soon as he was finished, he'd come home. They didn't understand that attitude at all.

Luke 2: When Jesus was twelve years old, he and his parents went to Jerusalem for the Feast of Passover as usual. When it was over, they went home, but Jesus stayed, and after a few days they found him in the Temple, sitting with the teachers, listening and asking questions. All who heard him were amazed at his intelligent answers. His mother said "Why did you do this to us? We have been terribly worried." He answered, "Didn't you know that I had to be in my Father's house?" But they did not understand what he said to them.

School of Education Receives Distinctions

by Jenna Neil

The School of Education (SED) recently received several recognitions and approvals.

The Master of Arts in school counseling has received full state approval until June 30, 2019. Bradley Hinman, assistant professor and school counseling program coordinator, along with Karen Benjamin, accreditation coordinator for the Department of Graduate Psychology & Counseling, spent many hours working on the approval documents. Over the course of about a year, they prepared application submissions, wrote several revisions, and attended many meetings with state officials.

"All universities in the state who offer school counseling programs had to reapply this year," said James Jeffery, dean of the School of Education. "Our counseling program was the first one to submit the original application, well before the deadline."

This is one of the ways the SED proves they have a good program, staff and faculty. Their approval letter commended the program for having a strong heritage of developing quality counselors.
"I know this took a lot of hard work and effort as well as graduates that reflect the quality of the education they received," says Ray Ostrander, professor of teacher education. "Congratulations to one and all: teachers, staff and report writers. You make the SED not only proud but look most excellent as well."

The program also received recognition for their science division.

"We've received word," said Jeffery, "that our secondary education program in integrated science has received full national recognition from the National Science Teachers Association. This means that graduates in this field are authorized to teach these three science areas in Grades 6–12."

Because the School of Education is fully accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP), graduating teachers can apply for teaching licenses in 47 states.

In order to be issued a state teaching license in Michigan, elementary and secondary education students need to take a state exam. The Michigan Department of Education recently shared data that shows where different universities scored between August 2013 and July 2014.

"Andrews students are at the top," says Jeffery. "The students must pass these exams to be issued a Michigan state teaching license and our elementary and secondary education majors had the highest pass rate of any other college or university in Michigan.

The average pass rate of Andrews elementary and secondary education graduates was 95.8 percent. There was also a 100 percent pass rate on content exams in English, reading, history, chemistry, secondary mathematics, Spanish, elementary education, English as a second language, language arts (elementary), integrated science (elementary), visual arts education and music education.

Two "Selma" Screenings on Campus

Two showings of the Academy Award-nominated movie "Selma," will be presented on Sunday, Feb. 22, 2015, at 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. in Newbold Auditorium, Buller Hall. "Selma" is the story of Martin Luther King Jr.'s march to secure equal voting rights from Selma, Alabama to Montgomery, Alabama. The Civil Rights Act of 1964 had already made desegregation legal but discrimination was still extensive. King led a march that culminated, less than five months later, in President Lyndon Johnson signing the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

On Tuesday, Feb. 24, 2015, there will be a Forum at 11:30 a.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center on Selma, The Movie: What it Means Today featuring Paul M. Buckley, PhD, assistant vice president and inaugural director for the Butler Center at Colorado College, providing vision and leadership to advance and support issues of diversity, inclusion and equity.

Buckley is a former associate dean of Student Life at Andrews University. He also served as assistant dean of undergraduate students at Dartmouth College. He earned a PhD in cultural foundations of education from Syracuse University, a master of science in educational administration and policy studies from the University at Albany, and a bachelor of science in business administration with a concentration in marketing/management and minor in African American studies at the University at Albany.

These events are free and open to the public. Co-curricular credit will be available. Please contact Debbie Weithers (rdw@andrews.edu) for more information. [The planned Forum on Women's History originally scheduled for Tuesday, February 24, 2015, will be rescheduled to a later date.]
ArtFest 2015 Begins This Week

by Becky St. Clair

Andrews University’s Department of Visual Art & Design invites all high school-aged students to attend the first annual ArtFest, a weekend-long experience where students can explore the worlds of photography, design, fine arts and documentary film. The event takes place February 19-21, 2015, on the campus of Andrews University.

Students will dive into art by exploring many media through hands-on activities ranging from making a cyanotype to creating hand-crafted ceramics to working with professional photographic studio equipment, and much more.

Both Visual Art & Design students and professors will be on-hand to guide, instruct, offer feedback and answer questions.

The weekend culminates with an art show of each participant’s favorite piece in the Visual Art & Design Gallery in Smith Hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 21.

ArtFest is open to students in grades 9-12, including home school students. Schools are encouraged to send one team of five students; individual applicants will be matched with an existing team. Students must have high school and parent approval to register.

All-inclusive cost is $75/student (free for accompanying teacher) and $75/parent or other supporter. Each team is required to have at least one supervisor.

To register visit auvad.com/artfest. For more information call 269-471-3450 or email visartndes@andrews.edu.

Dynamic Duo
Rich and Brandon Ridenour have the kind of on stage rapport you might suspect from a father-son musical duo.

Which is why it doesn’t take long for them to deflect a serious question about playing together with a few tongue-in-cheek jabs and self-deprecating humor.

“We put up with each other just fine,” Brandon Ridenour says by telephone from Grand Rapids. "He does everything I tell him to do.”

Andrews on WSJM re: "Selma"
Two free screenings of the Oscar nominated film, Selma will be held on Sunday at Andrews University in Berrien Springs. Andrews Associate Dean for Student Life and Diversity Debbie Weithers (withers) says that the film, which tells the story of Doctor Martin Luther King's march from Selma to Montgomery during the civil rights movement of the 1960s, could help some of the young students at the university get a better understanding of the struggle for racial equality in the US in light of recent events.

Karen Knotts: One-Woman Show at Andrews

For years, the question lingered in Karen Knotts’ ear like a bad ring tone. “So many people, all of my life, have asked me what’s it like growing up with Don Knotts as your dad,” she says by telephone from her home in Los Angeles. “The fascination people have with my father was just never-ending. I finally said, almost jokingly, well, why don’t I just do a show to answer all of those questions.”

...Knotts, 60, now reveals those stories in her one-woman show, “Tied Up in Knotts,” which she performs Sunday at Andrews University’s Howard Performing Arts Center. In the production, Knotts steps into the roles of the famous people who came in and out of her father’s life, and also serves as the show’s narrator. Photographs and some rarely seen video clips augment the story, which ultimately is a father-daughter tale of his influence and their close bond on and off stage.

Thirty of the most promising college and high school vocal music performance students from the Midwest will compete at the annual Kalamazoo Bach Festival Young Vocalists Competition on Saturday, March 14, in Kalamazoo College's Recital Hall in the Light Fine Arts Building. The competition, which is a free event open to the public, begins at 9:30 a.m. The purpose of the Young Vocalists Competition is to encourage the study and performance of vocal music.

This year's competitors will come from schools and colleges in Michigan and Indiana. They include Calvin College, Depauw University, Grand Valley State University, Holland High School, Indiana University-Purdue University Fort Wayne, John Adams High School, South Bend, Indiana, Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo Valley Community College, Kelloggsville High School, Mattawan High School, Michigan State University, Northwestern Michigan College, Tecumseh High School, University of Michigan, University of Notre Dame, and Western Michigan University.

Entrants in the College Division are required to sing one 20th or 21st Century art song by an American, British, or Canadian composer sung in English, one foreign language art song sung in the original language and an appropriate aria from opera, oratorio, or musical theatre. Entrants in the High School Division will sing one 20th or 21st Century art song by an American, British, or Canadian composer sung in English, and one foreign language art song sung in the original language. The competition, which is open to the public, begins at 9:30 a.m. for the High School Division and runs from 10:40 a.m. to 3:40 p.m. for the College Division.

Judges for the competition are Maura Janton Cock, Lecturer in Music at Valparaiso University, and Stephen Zork, Associate Professor of Music at Andrews University. They will choose first, second and third place winners as well as honorable mentions in both divisions.

Maura Janton Cock, soprano, teaches voice and conducts the Women's Choir at Valparaiso University. She has appeared as soloist with the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony, the Tucson Symphony, the Southwest Michigan Symphony, and the Northwest Indiana Symphony. Ms. Cock worked extensively with Robert Shaw and the Robert Shaw Festival Singers as both soloist and chorus member, and Helmuth Rilling of the Oregon Bach Festival.

Stephen Zork is the director of Choral Studies at Andrews University--a position he has held since 1991. His primary responsibility is the programming of and conducting the Department of Music's choirs: University Chorale, University Singers, Canta Bella, and Pioneer Men's Chorus. As one of three teachers on the conducting faculty, he oversees the graduate choral conducting degree. Zork keeps an active schedule guest-conducting choral festivals and lecturing throughout the United States and abroad.

The winning vocalists will be showcased in the Young Vocalists Concert on Saturday, April 11, at 3 p.m., in the Light Fine Arts Building, Kalamazoo College. They will receive their cash prizes at the free recital and a reception to meet the vocalists will follow. For information about the Kalamazoo Bach Festival Education and Outreach programs or their Concert Series, please call the Bach Festival office at 269-337-7407 or visit their web site at kalamazoobachfestival.org.

Dynamic duo

By JEREMY D. BONFIGLIO - HP Features Writer | Posted: Sunday, February 22, 2015 5:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS - Rich and Brandon Ridenour have the kind of on stage rapport you might suspect from a father-son musical duo.

Which is why it doesn't take long for them to deflect a serious question about playing together with a few tongue-in-cheek jabs and self-deprecating humor.

"We put up with each other just fine," Brandon Ridenour says by telephone from Grand Rapids. "He does everything I tell him to do."

"It's a funny thing how the tables turn on you," his father, Rich Ridenour, adds. "As a father you get used to your son taking direction from you, now the tables have reversed on me."

While their comedic banter is certainly entertaining, it's the musicianship of pianist Rich and trumpeter Brandon that keeps audiences clamoring for more. Tonight they return to Andrews University's Howard Performing Arts Center to perform a program of their own arrangements of George Gershwin, Astor Piazzolla and Leonard Bernstein classics.

"There's quite a bit of Gershwin," Brandon Ridenour says. "We play Three Piano Preludes (Allegro ben ritmato e deciso; Andante con moto; and Allegro ben ritmato e deciso), but that - in addition with most everything else - we've arranged for both trumpet and piano. Things that were original piano pieces are now trumpet and piano."

"It's a trumpet invasion," Rich Ridenour adds. "A lot of this was piano repertoire I played in my career that Brandon heard growing up. One day Brandon suggested creating arrangements for piano and trumpet. I should note that he is playing one trumpet piece, too - 'Carnival of Venice' (by Del Staigers) is standard in the trumpet repertoire."

Growing up in Kalamazoo, Brandon Ridenour loved music, but it took some time to warm up to the trumpet.

"I actually started out on piano, and I've been told I had a great piano teacher (his father)," he says. "But in middle school I was told that I either had to pick an instrument to play in the band program or join the choir. I still wanted to be cool, so I picked an instrument. There was a trumpet collecting dust in the basement of our house. It was the same trumpet that my dad played in high school. It was a good trumpet and it was just waiting."

Rich Ridenour is quick to defend the gentle nudge he gave his son.

"We didn't push music on our kids, we just wanted them to be able to enjoy music," he says. "I was the complete opposite. I was forced into playing piano at 8 years old by my mom. And I wasn't a quick learner. It wasn't until I was 12 or 13 years old that I started to understand the social aspect of music."
Girls started talking to me so I practiced more."

Both Rich and Brandon attended The Juilliard School. Rich Ridenour, a longtime international Steinway Artist, went on to cofound the Grand Rapids Musicians' League and is the former education director for the Gilmore Keyboard Festival in Kalamazoo, developing programs such as Camp Gilmore and Keys Fest.

He's arranged and performed several programs of piano favorites with orchestras throughout the United States and Mexico, and each season serves as pops director for the Dearborn Symphony Orchestra. Since 2013, he and wife Stacy, have lived in Sarasota, Fla., where she is the development director for the Sarasota Opera.

Brandon Ridenour's own career took off in 2006, when at the age of 20, he won the International Trumpet Guild solo competition, and became the youngest member to ever join Canadian Brass, the legendary ensemble whose guiding principle is to challenge the way people think about brass quintets.

"A few months after that competition I was asked to join Canadian Brass," he says. "Performing regularly wasn't something I was doing until I joined Canadian Brass. Just playing that often really helped propel my career."

Seven years and 10 albums later, Brandon Ridenour left Canadian Brass to focus on his solo and chamber music career. Since then he's won the 2014 CAG Victor Elmaleh Competition, and formed the group Founders with fellow classical musicians Ben Russell (violin/vocals), Nathan Schram (viola), Hamilton Berry (cello/vocals) and Andrew Roitstein (bass) in New York City. Their pieces range from Appalachian folk originals to classically modernized Radiohead covers, and their debut album, "You & Who," is due in March.

"We call it a singer-songwriter chamber music group," Brandon Ridenour says. "The idea is to merge classical instruments with the craft of writing songs."

Much of the music the Ridenours perform tonight appear on their albums "Trumpet Invasion" and "Trumpet Encores," including Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," Piazzolla's "Adios Nonino" and Bernstein's "America."

Although Rich Ridenour says he's semi-retired now, he does in fact enjoy playing with his son. Just don't expect him to admit that in front of him - at least not without getting the last laugh.

"Brandon really did excel in music early on," he says. "I taught piano privately, and had about 35-40 students, and Brandon was ready at about age 6 because he could sit for a half-hour and focus. Our problem later became not asking him to practice, but asking him to stop."

Andrews University To Screen Selma This Weekend
Two free screenings of the Oscar nominated film, Selma will be held on Sunday at Andrews University in Berrien Springs. Andrews Associate Dean for Student Life and Diversity Debbie Weithers (withers) says that the film, which tells the story of Doctor Martin Luther King's march from Selma to Montgomery during the civil rights movement of the 1960s, could help some of the young students at the university get a better understanding of the struggle for racial equality in the US in light of recent events:

Listen:

The screenings on Sunday will be at four PM and 6:30 PM, and they're open to the public on a first come, first serve basis. Also, on Tuesday, Andrews will welcome guest speaker Doctor Paul M Buckley, Director of the Butler Center at Colorado College, to come and speak about racial diversity. That engagement will be at 11:30 AM in the Howard Performing Arts Center.

United Way Reading Day of Action - Volunteers Needed

Reading Day of Action - Sign up today!

United Way of Southwest Michigan and Honor Credit Union invite you to share your love of reading with a child! On March 17th, we will take action to promote the positive impact reading has on our youth. This annual Reading Day of Action asks Pre K-5th grade classrooms from all corners of Berrien and Cass County to open its doors to our community and allow volunteers to share their love of reading. Volunteers will be reading to over 10,000 children in one day! We ask you to do your part by raising awareness of the importance of reading on the development in a child's life.

Schools and Classrooms Sign up by Feb. 20th
Specify a time range you would like volunteers to come, you can even sign up a whole school! After that, United Way will coordinate volunteers to come to you! Volunteers will have a 15 minute appointment in the classroom. Though we strongly encourage volunteers to bring books we ask that classrooms have 5-6 books available just in case.

Volunteers Sign up by Feb. 27th
Volunteer from 9am-Noon or Noon-3pm. Typically you will read to multiple classrooms and are asked to bring an age appropriate book. Teachers and students love to hear new books! Volunteers can sign up in a group of two or as a single. We will do our best to keep multiple volunteer groups from one company at the same school building.

Interested?
Go to www.uwsm.org/read to sign-up and to receive more information.

Looking for a roommate

I'm a seminary student looking for a roommate (males only), to share a room and split the rent. The room has two single beds and a closet, a desk and a chair. It's part of a house where we share livingroom, bathroom and kitchen with another male student. There is washing machine and dryer, heating, power and all utilities included. Walking distance from Andrews. The rent already split would be $250 (plus deposit), month to month and the deal is directly with the landlord. Quiet place.

The 12" Drill Press with Laser and LED Light Gets Your Job Done Right! $185 obo

Cut holes in steel, aluminum, wood, plastics and more with ease and precision with the Craftsman 12" drill press with laser and LED light. Made with a rigid frame and positioned on a sturdy steel post, this drill press uses a powerful 1/2 HP motor to spin anywhere between 355 and 3065 revolutions per minute. It powers through metal and rips through wood with speed and accuracy. Featuring smooth turning at high speed and high torque spindle settings, this drill press is designed for sharp and consistent results.

You can count on this 12" drill press with laser and LED light to move fluidly from project to project, helping you get more done with laser precision on every job. Perfect as a bench top or temporary jobsite accessory, this press features a fast swapping depth adjustment along with both X and Y axis pin point positioning, delivering the finesse that precision machining requires. So whether you're kicking up saw dust, cutting slots for a mortise-and-tenon frame, twisting out metal shavings while drilling bolt holes or giving that carving a super smooth finish with a sanding drum, you'll always get long-lasting and accurate operation. A solid addition to any bench, this tool is adjustable, adaptable and built to last.

Head Microgel Radical Mid Plus Tennis Racquet - $50

For sale is my gently used Head Microgel Radical Mid Plus tennis racquet - $50

The racquet is in good shape though it does display sings of use. It is pre-strung with Head Control String and it has a nice damper. It also has a nice Head Grip cover protecting the actual Grip and the Grip size is 4 1/2.

I can send you more pictures if interested.
Custom Build PC or Media Center

Selling my Intel Core i3 Custom Build Computer

Selling my Intel Core i3 Custom Build Computer

You can take it with a brand new, fresh installation of Windows 8.1 or the Kodi dedicated media center platform (More info: http://kodi.tv/)

The computer would be ideal for office work, web surfing and email applications and light gaming or it can be used as a dedicated Media Center.

Because I intended to use it as a Media Center it has a dedicated graphics card with silent cooling powerful enough to process HD Video and Graphics without any issues. That is on top of the Intel Graphics on the processor.

Specs:

- Processor: Intel Core i3 3.06 GHz (540)
- Motherboard: Gigabyte GA-H55M-UD2H
- Power Supply: 500 Watts Cooler Master Extreme Power Plus (A bit overkill but oh well)
- Graphics: Intel HD Graphics AND ECS Silent Series GeForce GT 220 1GB
- Ram Memory: GeIL 4GB (2x2GB) DDR3
- Hard Drive: Samsung SpinPoint F3 500GB (One platter disk, really fast)
- Case: Brand New Micro ATC Mid Tower with plastic protective film still on it!
- FREE GIFT: Rosewill Wireless Key Board and Mouse.

Optional - Used - Samsung 24 inch FullHD Monitor
