This event provides university faculty, PreK-12 teachers, graduate and undergraduate students, and other education professionals with the opportunity to present papers, posters, and demonstrations to an audience of peers and guests within a formal conference setting. In addition to student participation, TLC organizers encourage area educators, including Andrews University faculty members, to attend and to present. This year’s events currently include panel sessions presented by local educators and students in the area of urban and minority education as well as a panel session on the topic of project-based learning, and presenter registration is still ongoing. We are excited to announce that our keynote address will be presented by Michigan's Teacher of the Year, Melody Arabo, who will speak about her experiences and convictions as an educator.

Conference registration is free and may be completed onsite on the day of the conference or in advance through Eventbrite. Educators who would like to receive SCECHS for certification through the state of Michigan will be eligible to receive 3 credits if they attend all conference sessions. Michigan Conference educators are also eligible to receive PACS.

Guests who would like to enjoy a catered box supper for a fee of $7.50 at the event must pre-order through the TLC. Tickets for the supper will be available from February 1, 2015 through March 25, 2015. Those wishing to order a boxed supper should either stop by the TLC Department in Bell Hall, Room 014, or mail a check made payable to Andrews University to the TLC Department at the following address:

A Forum On State and Regional Conferences

A Forum on State and Regional Conferences.

This forum seeks to educate the Andrews community about a very current issue in our church: the administrative separation of our conferences along racial lines.

In light of the recent national conversations on race and race relations, this aspect of our church organization can seem strange. We want to learn about the current structure, the history behind it, and some of the opinions people have about it.

This Sabbath, Newbold Auditorium, doors open at 4:00 pm. Event begins 4:30. Come to learn. Open minds welcome.

Hooked on Games

Andrews University has invited Andrew Doan, a neuroscientist, to talk with undergraduate students about the effects of video games on the brain. His main presentation will be at Pioneer Memorial Church on Thursday, March 5, at 11:30 a.m. for Thursday Series.

Doan is a recognized expert in technology and video game addiction. With a doctoral degree in neuroscience, his background in molecular neuroscience adds in-depth knowledge of the areas of internet addiction, video game addiction, and technology addiction. He spends 80 percent of his time in medical research as head of addictions & resilience research for the U.S. Navy in the Department of Mental Health. Doan is also the author of "Hooked on Games."

"Hooked on Games" provides insight into the minds of hardcore gamers, helping us understand how and why gamers are lured to and trapped within the digital world of video games and the Internet. This book outlines methods on how to escape the addiction and to start on the path of recovery.

Doan enjoys talking to kids and their parents about video games and their effects on those who play them. To this end, there will be an open program for parents and the community on Thursday evening, March 5, at 7 p.m., in the Andrews Academy chapel.

"This free training opportunity is an excellent way for citizens to learn about severe weather threats and help prepare them to react to severe weather," said Capt. Rockey Adams of the Berrien County Emergency Management Office.

"Spotters will also learn how to contact the NWS Northern Indiana Office, to give specific information about storm conditions. This information is used to warn others in the community of these threats," Capt. Adams added.

The effects of severe weather are felt every year by many Americans. To obtain critical weather information, NOAA's National Weather Service (NWS), established SKYWARN® with partner organizations. SKYWARN® is a volunteer program with nearly 290,000 trained severe weather spotters. These volunteers help keep their local communities safe by providing timely and accurate reports of severe weather to the National Weather Service.

Although SKYWARN® spotters provide essential information for all types of weather hazards, the main responsibility of a SKYWARN® spotter is to safely identify and describe severe local storms. Since the program started in the 1970s, the information provided by SKYWARN® spotters, coupled with Doppler radar technology, improved satellite and other data, has enabled NWS to issue more timely and accurate warnings for tornadoes, severe thunderstorms, and flash floods.

Synthesis of Isoxazoline Derivatives as Potential Anti-Cancer Agents

The estimated number of deaths attributed to cancer each year has been decreasing thanks to tremendous efforts in the vast field of cancer research, however, the estimate of nearly 600,000 cancer-related deaths in 2014 is still largely problematic. A class of organic compounds called isoxazolines are currently explored for their many biological applications including anti-cancer activity.

Rosanne’s research focuses on an isoxazoline derivative that has shown great promise against cancer, with the goal of modifying the compound’s chemical structure towards increased activity.

This presentation explores the design and synthesis of a specific isoxazoline derivative as a potential agent to be incorporated in anti-cancer therapy.

Rosanne Thornhill is a senior biochemistry pre-med major at Andrews University, with plans to attend medical school and aspirations to become a cardiovascular surgeon.

Q&A About Student Fundraising Request

The below statement was sent to Andrews faculty, staff and students on March 10, 2015 from President Andreasen.

Dear Friends,

In the last 48 hours, there has been a significant amount of social media commentary and coverage regarding a decision by Andrews University to deny a fundraising request by an unofficial student club to raise funds for a Chicago agency that is focused on aiding homeless LGBT youth.

That reporting has included some information that is not correct.

As a result, I want to share, as best I can, some questions and answers that will seek to provide you with some accurate information and context.

Cordially,

Niels-Erik Andreasen, President

Q: Is Andrews University opposed to helping, or fundraising for, LGBT homeless youth?

A: Absolutely not.

It is within the University and Church mission to seek to provide care and compassion wherever and for whoever needs it.

The problem of LGBT homeless youth in particular is a heartbreaking national problem—perhaps as many as 40 percent of the homeless teens on the street at any one time are LGBT. Many of these teens were in Christian families who rejected their child’s orientation and, in the process, their child. A safe place and genuine care must be provided for these homeless LGBT youth.

Q: Did Andrews University offer approval for AULL4One, an unofficial campus club, to raise funds for this purpose and then later retract it?

A: No.

When campus administrators were approached with the idea of having a fundraiser to benefit LGBT homeless youth, those administrators expressed openness to the idea and encouraged the students to explore options, emphasizing to the students that any official fundraising effort would have to be aligned with the University’s mission. So, originally, the University neither “approved” nor “rejected” the proposal. The University merely said: Let’s explore the options. Subsequent to that, a number of conversations happened between students, Campus Ministries and Student Life.

At question in those conversations was not the cause itself, but the perceived mission and advocacy of a proposed agency that was to receive funds from the fundraising activities. In particular, the Church’s religious and moral views do not allow for the pursuit of intimate LGBT relationships, including marriage, and as a result Andrews University’s policies do not permit the raising of funds to support the work of agencies that advocate behaviors contrary to Adventist beliefs. This is true even though many unapproved agencies do valuable and important work that is within the University’s mission.

As the University was saying “no” to the specific, proposed agency, an administrator suggested an alternative support agency in Chicago that also deals with homeless LGBT teens. That suggestion does not appear to have been pursued by the student who instead proposed an additional unacceptable agency. Shortly thereafter, the student stopped his conversations with administrators, asked for a “written” clarification of the decision not to support his recommended agency, and went to the press/social media.

Q: Why would Andrews University say “no” to helping homeless kids? Isn’t that “unchristian”?

A: Again, Andrews University has no objection to helping LGBT homeless youth. As an Adventist university operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church, Andrews is called and committed to absolute compassion for those with an LGBT orientation.
Andrews University believes that it is possible to both show Christian care and compassion for all people while also pursuing a life that lifts up biblical values.

As has been true with the national debate on these issues, the Seventh-day Adventist Church and Andrews University believe that there is room for respect of differing viewpoints within this discussion and within society.

Unfortunately, Andrews University does not believe that its sincerely held beliefs have been afforded such respect. To “disagree” with another person’s view is seen as callous, uncaring and unchristian. It does not have to be this way. For example, recent proposed legislation in Utah seems to protect the rights of the LGBT community while also respecting and allowing the Mormon Church to operate and practice within its own religious and moral beliefs as it relates to LGBT relationships.

Q: So, how can Andrews University students officially help homeless LGBT youth or engage in fundraising for other worthy causes?

A: Students should engage in serious-minded dialogue about fundraising options with club sponsors or University administrators. Together, students and faculty/staff should explore whether a particular recipient of funds is largely and primarily aligned in support of the University’s mission and its faith commitment. The University recognizes that every single activity of an agency may not be in “alignment”—to expect perfect alignment might never permit any outside fundraising. But it is reasonable for the University to expect primary alignment between its mission and an agency’s activities.

In reference to the specific matter that brought about this attention, the “problem” as the University sees it is that once a decision was made that a student did not like, he stopped conversation about it and went to the press/social media to portray the University in a light that was neither fair nor accurate. What happened to the specific suggestion of an alternative Chicago-based agency that works with homeless LGBT youth and why was that option not explored more fully? These kinds of misunderstandings can be avoided when students and faculty/staff work together in good faith.

Q: What information or statements have you shared with media about this topic?

A: To date, four different online blogs/newspapers have asked for information on this decision, and the following statement has been shared in return:

Andrews University recognizes the special challenges facing LGBT youth and believes that efforts to help them are worthy.

Providing care to LGBT homeless youth is compatible with our institutional mission to demonstrate God’s love to all people, and reflects our denomination’s specific call to exhibit compassion for LGBT persons.

At the same time, Andrews University has declined a student request to officially endorse a fundraising effort to raise money for an organization that may have a perceived LGBT advocacy role.

This decision was made in the context of our student fundraising policy in the Student Handbook, which states that funds may be raised for non-profit organizations “whose mission and practices do not conflict with those of the University.”

So, our objection was not to the worthy goal of serving LGBT homeless youth and their transitional housing needs but to the perceived advocacy stance of the proposed organization.

As a result, we can and will support LGBT homeless youth through organizations whose mission and purpose clearly align with the religious mission and purpose of our University and its sponsoring church. We invite our student clubs to find the appropriate organizations and opportunities to do just that.

Steel Band Concert March 22

Andrews University welcomes the Walla Walla University (College Place, Washington) Steel Band to the Howard Performing Arts Center on Sunday, March 22, at 7 p.m. The concert will feature guest artist Liam Teague, hailed as the “Paganini of the Steel Pan,” from Northern Illinois University (DeKalb, Illinois). Musical styles featured in this concert will include Caribbean (Calypso, Soca, 2-3 Son, Reggae), South American (Samba, Bossa Nova), jazz and classical.

WWU’s steel band, under the direction of Brandon Beck, has been in existence since 2002 and has toured the West Coast twice, the East Coast five times and has also toured to the island of Bermuda. They have performed with world-class steel pan artists Victor Provost, Gary Gibson and Tom Miller.

During their 2013 performance in Walla Walla, Washington, guest artist Gibson announced to the audience that he considered that year’s WWU Steel Band “one of the best collegiate steel bands in the nation.”

Guest artist for the March 22 concert at Andrews University, Liam Teague, currently serves as head of steel pan studies and associate professor of music at NIU. He has received many awards in his homeland of Trinidad and Tobago, including the Humming Bird Award (silver) for “loyal and devoted service.” He has also won a number of notable competitions such as the Trinidad and Tobago National Steelband Festival Solo Championship and the Saint Louis Symphony Volunteers Association Young Artist Competition.

“We are excited to perform with astounding steel pan performer Liam Teague,” says Beck. “He will not only perform solos at the concert, but he does us the honor of playing with us on several pieces. We look forward to this event very much.”

His commitment to demonstrating the great musical possibilities of the steel pan has taken Teague to Europe, Asia and Australia, as well as North and Central America and the Caribbean.

Teague has collaborated with prominent musicians such as Paquito D’Rivera, Dave Samuels, Zakir Hussain and Evelyn Glennie. In addition to commissioning a number of significant composers to write for the instrument, Teague has had many of his own compositions published, and has produced eight solo albums.

He has also served as musical arranger of the TCL Group Skiffle Bunch Steel Orchestra and Starlift Steel Orchestra for Panorama, the most prestigious steel band competition in the world.

General admission is $9; students (with ID) and seniors are $5. Tickets for this concert can be purchased at howard.andrews.edu, or by calling the Howard Center box office at 888-467-6442.

Faculty & Staff Awards Celebration 2015

The theme for the 2014 Andrews University Faculty and Staff Awards celebration was “An Evening of Fun and Recognition.” On Sunday, March 1, hundreds of faculty and staff gathered in the Howard Performing Arts Center for this annual event recognizing their coworkers and colleagues.

The evening’s entertainment was a mockup of the popular TV game show “Family Feud” called “Family Fusion,” featuring seven teams of four individuals from the honored years-of-service groups plus a team of retirees called “Once Upon a Time.” Participants were required to guess the top three answers from a survey of 16 questions that was sent to all faculty and staff three weeks in advance. David Nowack, professor of biochemistry, did a masterful job as host for the evening.

A surprise tribute was given to Niels-Erik Andreasen, celebrating 20 years as president of Andrews University, and Demetra, who has served graciously at his side.

Just after accepting the presidency of Andrews in 1994, Andreasen was quoted in a FOCUS editorial. “The whole nation talks about failing public education and the risks that presents to our future. We must not allow Christian education to fail. That cannot be. With God’s help, it must succeed, and if it is to remain Christian education it must be good education. A bad Christian education is a contradiction in terms. If we dare call it Christian it must be good in every respect. To seek this goal in every plan and decision made in Andrews University is the chief assignment of the university president and everyone who works here.”

The Andreasens were thanked for setting Andrews on a true-north direction and leading the way together.

“Dr. and Mrs. Andreasen, we’re so glad you said yes to Andrews 20 years ago,” stated Stephen Payne, vice president for Integrated Marketing & Communication, who presented the award. “We believe the future of Adventist education and Andrews University is stronger because of your God-honoring leadership.”

Additionally, recognition from the Faculty Senate was given to Teresa Reeves, associate professor of New Testament contexts and associate dean, Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary and Marcella Myers, associate professor of physical science and chair, Department of History & Political Science. Both of these women were instrumental in reshaping the structure and role of the current Faculty Senate.

Each year at this event faculty and staff are given recognition through the Years of Service Awards, Excellence in Service Awards, Faith Development Leadership Award, Daniel A. Augsburger Excellence in Teaching Awards, and Siegfried H. Horn Excellence in Research & Creative Scholarship Awards.

Music Professor Performs Wagner in Hong Kong
by Jenna Neil

Charles Reid, associate professor of voice and voice area coordinator at Andrews University, spent a week in January performing one of the four operas from Wagner’s “Ring Cycle” with the Hong Kong Philharmonic in China.

The Hong Kong Philharmonic has committed to performing and recording Wagner’s “Ring Cycle” over the next four years. This collection of four operas written by the German composer Richard Wagner is compromised of, in sequence, Das Rheingold, Die Walküre, Siegfried and Götterdämmerung. The opera in which Reid participated was Das Rheingold and he performed the role of Froh.

"Jobs come for various reasons,” he said. “I have two agents, one in Vienna and one in New York. As we establish our singing careers, we build reputations and many jobs develop because of ‘word of mouth’ references.”

The Ring Cycle is written in German and it was also performed in German.

*Second to English, German is the language I know best, thanks to living and working in Germany for approximately ten years," says Reid. "In addition to training our voices, musicianship and acting abilities, opera singers must become proficient at singing in multiple languages."

Reid regularly performs in French, English, German, Italian and Latin and has also performed several times in Czech and Russian.

One of the titles that Reid holds at Andrews is artist-in-residence, meaning he takes part in some singing events at Andrews. Because of this title, he is also expected to continue pursuing a professional singing career along with his teaching career.

"I believe the singing career makes me a much better voice teacher," he says. "This concert and recording project was one of several performance events I have planned for this year."

51st International Food Fair

by Jenna Neil

The annual International Food Fair will take place on Sunday, March 29, from 12-7 p.m. in Johnson Gym on the campus of Andrews University. The 2015 Food Fair will represent 82 countries and 18 ethnic clubs. Participating clubs include the Korean Club, Peruvian Club, Brazilian Club, Indian Club and Haitian Club, among many others.

The cost to try the food is minimal. Participants can purchase tickets in blocks of $5 to be used to obtain food at each booth. Cash transactions won’t be accepted at the booths and ticket sales will go to the respective clubs; some of the clubs use their earnings for scholarship funds to assist students and others use the funds for mission projects.

In years past, the event has been very successful with thousands of people in attendance, coming from as far as Chicago and Grand Rapids. It is a great opportunity to showcase the cultural diversity at Andrews University and to experience food and culture from around the world.

"We certainly hope that you can come and experience the variety of international entrees and dishes prepared by about 20 ethnic international student clubs," says Robert Benjamin, director of International Student Services & Programs. "We are looking forward to seeing you at this event."
A Message from the President

by Niels-Erik Andreasen, president

You’ve perhaps read, or heard about, an opinion piece about Black History Month celebrations that was printed in last week’s issue of our student newspaper, The Student Movement.

It has led to significant discussion on our campus and in social media, a discussion that has reflected dismay and, at times, outrage, about the views expressed by the student in the article. In turn, these discussions have raised questions about whether the views expressed in that opinion piece reflected a larger attitude about race and diversity on the part of the University and its administration.

The student newspaper is and should be a place where honest conversation about ideas can take place—including differing opinions about subjects that matter to us. However, some of the conclusions reached in this opinion piece were clearly at odds with the values of our University community on this subject. Our Student Movement editor has recognized this and has published an apology in the March 4th edition of the student newspaper.

Once again, while this opinion piece may reflect the attitudes of some on this campus and in our country, in the end it ultimately does not reflect the values and attitudes of our entire campus, nor does it ultimately represent the ideals we seek to achieve as a diverse community.

In turn, the fact that Andrews University is still seeking to achieve these ideals, and that some may question our commitment to do so, is a reminder that discussions about race and equality are not fully resolved in our country and, in turn, are not fully resolved on our campus.

At Andrews University, this yet to be fulfilled ideal of true cultural and racial understanding is a specific and assigned task for our Diversity Council, who must study, struggle with and help our University community define a path that helps us move forward. We as individuals, and as a community, still have significant goals to achieve and an important road to travel in this regard.

As we continue on this journey, I want to let you know that we remain fully committed to understanding and best fulfilling God’s plans and purposes to serve as a globally and culturally diverse university community that’s dedicated to changing the world for Him—and to seek to first fulfill that task on our very own campus.

Honoring George Knight

Please join Andrews University for the presentation of a festschrift to George Knight in honor of his distinguished teaching, research, editorial and publishing career.

The recently released book, “Adventist Maverick: A Celebration of George Knight’s Contribution to Adventist Thought,” is a collection of writings by colleagues and students who have come to highly respect Knight and his

Medicine for the Cause of Peace

On Thursday, March 12, two Israeli doctors who are treating wounded Syrians in a war zone will present at Andrews University. Arie Eisenman, head of the internal division in the Emergency Medicine Department, and Ohad Ronen, senior physician-surgeon in the Department of Otolaryngology, will present in Newbold Auditorium in Buller Hall at 11:30 a.m. This event is free and open to the public.

Hailing from the Medical Center to the Galilee in Israel, the doctors will share personal experiences treating hundreds of wounded Syrians who are brought to their hospital from the Israel-Syria border for life-saving surgeries. More than 1,500 casualties of the Syrian war have been treated in Israel to date.

Eisenman studied medicine at Tel Aviv University, graduating in 1981, and was trained in emergency medicine at Witwatersrand University in Johannesburg and Elim Hospital in South Africa, then specialized in internal medicine at Carmel Medical Center in Haifa and served as senior physician of internal medicine at Rambam Medical Center there.

His research focuses on emergency medicine and resuscitation, and he has participated in writing nearly 30 articles, reviews and descriptions dealing with the promotion of CPR knowledge and emergency medicine. A worldwide presenter, in 2009 Eisenman shared his personal experiences treating victims of the second Lebanon war in Nahariya to four hospitals and EMS teams in New Jersey.

Ronen received his MD in 1995 from the Technion, Israel Institute of Technology in Haifa and completed his internship at Shaare Zedek Hospital in Jerusalem. He spent several months doing humanitarian work at a rural hospital in South Africa before completing his residency in otolaryngology (head and neck surgery) at Carmel Medical Center. He then moved to Southern Illinois University School of Medicine (Springfield) for a two-year fellowship in head and neck cancer surgery.

He is currently a lecturer at Bar Ilan Faculty of Medicine in the Galilee, and mentors sixth-year medical students’ MD theses. He is also involved in several areas of research, including human papilloma virus and cancer, micro biome of ENT patients and genetics of hearing loss. He has authored numerous medical journal publications and book chapters.

Play Celebrates Legendary Filipino's Influence
The role of Philippine national hero and liberator Jose Rizal initially seemed like an intimidating assignment for Kyle Lucrida - who hadn't acted since middle school.

However, once the Andrews University senior dug more deeply into the subject, he gained all the necessary confidence.

"At first, I wasn't sure - I didn't know if I could take on the role," Lucrida said. "Going in, I knew his name, and that was the extent of my knowledge. But as I looked into him, and all that he did for the Philippines, it definitely inspired me to portray it better."

Lucrida, a biological pre-medicine student, performed the lead role in "Our Story: Jose Rizal" - an original play written and directed by Andrews University engineering senior James Magbanua.

Biochemistry Grad on Alzheimers Research

A new British study highlighting the fact that memory-destroying Alzheimer's has become the leading cause of death in women in the UK, should ring alarm bells in the US, says a leading brain-health specialist.

...Dr. Daniel Thomas, founder of DementiaQuiz.com, said, "There is every reason to believe that what has been seen in the British study may soon be seen here in the states. Alzheimer’s is not only the most-feared disease, but is also the fastest-growing disease in America. This is an unprecedented health-care crisis that could cost this country $1 trillion a year. The scope of the looming medical-care disaster is beyond comparison. If this disease is not contained, it may bankrupt the US healthcare system!"

...Dr. Thomas is a brain-health specialist and founder of DementiaQuiz.com. He is a leader in the promising field of neurogenesis. Dr. Thomas earned his medical degree from Des Moines University, a Master's degree in Metabolic and Nutritional Medicine from the University of South Florida College of Medicine, and a Bachelor's degree in Biochemistry from Andrews University.

Paul Kim is an associate professor of documentary film at Andrew's University. As a professor, his stated mission is to help the Adventist community engage and create culture.
Jesus of New York?

By JEREMY D. BONFIGLIO - HP Features Writer | Posted: Sunday, March 8, 2015 6:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS - During his 43-year tenure, retired Andrews University professor Greg Constantine taught the popular class, "The Life of Christ in Great Art."

Using works by a range of artists, including Dutch painter Rembrandt van Rijn and Italian master Michelangelo Buonarroti, Constantine showed how art was used to portray various incidents described in the bible about the life of Jesus Christ.

"Many, many, many artists have done something on the life of Christ," Constantine says. "Of course before the Renaissance and even during the Renaissance the church was pretty much the only patron for artists. They thrived on that."

During the more than 20 years he spent teaching the course, Constantine noticed that both he and his students seemed to relate to some of the same works. That's when he noticed the common denominator.

"What I found satisfying is when an artist brought Jesus into their own time instead of transporting us back 2,000 years to Christ's time," Constantine says. "They did it to help their own viewers identify with the situation they were trying to depict, but those were also the works I identified with the most, and I think the students did as well."

In 1990, Constantine, who is an artist in his own right, wanted to see if he also could bring Christ into modern time in his work. The result is a 25-year journey that has led him to his ancestral homeland to publish, "Jesus of New York: Premonitions of a New York Teenager."

The book, published late last year by the Adventist-operated Romanian Publishing House, features 43 drawings by Constantine alluding to characters, situations and actions from gospel stories. Each drawing is accompanied by words that provide clues to the time, location, characters and story that is being referenced from the bible. The text is also followed by a paraphrase of the Bible passage depicted in each drawing.

"Some of them are generalized, some of them are specific," Constantine says. "Originally I just wanted to do something in my own art that my students could relate to. I took many things we know about Jesus during his ministry and approached the events as if he had premonitions of them."

One scene, for example, depicts Jesus, who is almost always wearing a New York Yankees cap, skiing bare-foot across the East River to the astonishment of his 12 friends. Another, alluding to the story of Jesus staying behind to teach the rabbis in the temple, depicts him doing remarkably well on a quiz show, despite not having been educated in the high-profile schools from which the panel judges have come.

Constantine says one of the hardest pieces was deciding how to approach the crucifixion. He finally settled on a sequence of drawings leading up to Jesus entering the Golden Gloves boxing competition.
The image features a battered Jesus in the corner with his arms outstretched on the ropes.

"I had to totally fabricate a series of drawings to find a construct for the crucifixion," Constantine says.
"Jesus's friends convince him to enter the Golden Globes and he ends up getting totally beaten up to where he is almost unrecognizable."

Constantine, who had three previous books - "Vincent van Gogh Visits New York" (1983), "Leonardo Visits Los Angeles" (1985), and "Picasso Visits Chicago" (1986) - published by Alfred A. Knopf, hoped they would pick up "Jesus of New York" as well.

"But in those five years the publishing world changed," he says. "I had made a lot of contacts during that time and so I schlepped it around to all of my connections and all there references. I had one editor at Penguin who really loved the idea but couldn't get it past his board."

Although Constantine was unable to find a U.S. publisher to take on the project, former Andrews University colleague Humberto Rasi interviewed him about the project in 2001 for an article that appeared in "Dialog" magazine along with seven of his drawings. Then, a year later, Adrian Bocaneanu, the president of the Romanian Union of Seventh-day Adventists saw the article, had it translated and republished it in his union magazine. Bocaneanu then invited Constantine, whose parents were born in a Romanian village, to exhibit the drawings in Bucharest in 2004.

Last year, a pastor who saw that exhibition in Bucharest emailed Constantine. He wanted to publish the entire book for his prison ministries there. Constantine agreed, but after several meetings among church officials in Romania it was decided that they would not use it for prison ministries, but instead for youth ministries as the main missionary tool for 2015, focusing on students attending public universities.

"They translated it and published it, and gave them out to these young people," Constantine says. "I created 'Jesus of New York' for my students, and now 25 years later it's being used as a tool in Romania."

Constantine has recently traveled back to Romania for a book launch and exhibit of his drawings. The reception he's gotten for the book, he says, has renewed his interest in getting it published in the U.S.

"I had them print 40 copies for me in English for my kids and grandkids, and to approach publishers again," he says. "I've approached one publisher so far, and they are very, very interested so we'll see how it goes."

Play celebrates legendary Filipino's influence

By Ralph Heibutzki - HP Correspondent | Posted: Monday, March 2, 2015 5:00 am

BERRIEN SPRINGS - The role of Philippine national hero and liberator Jose Rizal initially seemed like an intimidating assignment for Kyle Lucrida - who hadn't acted since middle school.

However, once the Andrews University senior dug more deeply into the subject, he gained all the necessary confidence.

"At first, I wasn't sure - I didn't know if I could take on the role," Lucrida said. "Going in, I knew his name, and that was the extent of my knowledge. But as I looked into him, and all that he did for the Philippines, it definitely inspired me to portray it better."

Lucrida, a biological pre-medicine student, performed the lead role in "Our Story: Jose Rizal" - an original play written and directed by Andrews University engineering senior James Magbanua.

"Our Story" served as the centerpiece of the Andrews Filipino International Association's cultural night, which drew about 350 people Sunday to Andrews Academy, organizers estimated.

The two-hour production retraced the personal and political struggles of Rizal - a Filipino nationalist whose efforts to free his nation from its Spanish rulers ended with his execution for conspiracy and sedition on Dec. 30, 1896.

Rizal's death at 35 came only two years before the outbreak of Spain's war against America that broke its hold on the Philippines, and also ended its dominance in the region.

Magbanua said he'd wanted to do a historical drama for awhile, and Rizal's life seemed like the right opportunity.

"A lot of exciting things happened in his life, and it was a great thing to have a play (written) off this (subject)," he said.

Magbanua began writing "Our Story" in September and started working with his cast in January.

Asked if he encountered any surprises while researching Rizal's life, Magbanua said, "He's more than what you think he is. He's more than just an inspiring writer or someone who leads rebellions. He has a sense of humor, is passionate about what he does and has a big heart for his people."

The two-hour production also included a couple of extended dance numbers, which required the cast to move fast, in unison, bearing poles and fans. There also was a humorous game show segment during the intermission, which allowed the audience to interact briefly with the cast.

The event closed with a dinner of traditional and contemporary Filipino dishes.

Now in its 15th year, the AFIA's cultural night has grown into a big draw for the club, which has about 224 members, according to co-sponsor Fares Magesa, a financial aid adviser at Andrews.

"All the members are not Filipinos, but they're one of the largest active clubs (on campus)," Magesa said.

Judging by the turnout, Sunday's event more than accomplished its perennial purpose of spreading awareness of Filipino culture, Magesa said.

"People sometimes don't know who Filipinos are or (much) about their history or their background," he said.
Werner Lehmann Life Story

Werner W. Lehmann, former employee of Plant Services at Andrews University, passed away Thursday, Feb. 26, from the results of a massive stroke.

He was born Feb. 4, 1934 in Rosthern, Saskatchewan, Canada. His parents being grain and dairy farmers gave Werner an appreciation for an honest work ethic that followed him the rest of his life. He was a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church where he faithfully served in various capacities throughout his lifetime.

His early education began in a little country school in the town of his birth. He graduated from La Sierra University in 1970 with a BS in biology and from Loma Linda University with a master's degree in public health.

In 1995, he and his family moved to Eau Claire, Michigan, where he worked for Andrews University Plant Services. After retirement, he spent many pleasant hours composing music to the honor of his precious Savior.

He is survived by his loving wife of 45 years, Shirley (Oetman) Lehmann; daughter Leandra Block of Bullhead City, Arizona; daughter Jennifer Wittum of North Carolina; son Kevin ('04) (Linaea) Lehmann of Granger, Indiana; daughter Karyn ('06) (Zach) Owen of Loveland, Colorado; four priceless grandchildren; and sister Ellen (Lyle) Thunstrom of Abbotsford, British Columbia, Canada.

The funeral service will be held at the Eau Claire Seventh-day Adventist Church at 6562 Naomi Rd, Eau Claire, Michigan, at 3 p.m., Tuesday, March 3, 2015. Viewing will precede from 1–3 p.m. at the same location.

Werner was a lifelong advocate of Seventh-day Adventist education. In lieu of flowers, donations can be given to the Eau Claire SDA Elementary School.

Great Lakes Shipwreck Diver to Present at 2015 Lecture Series

The Michigan Maritime Museum will be holding the third lecture of their 2015 Lecture Series with speaker Jim Scholz. Scholz will be giving a presentation on his shipwreck diving experiences and discoveries in the Great Lakes during his presentation, “What Lies Beneath.”

Scholz has been a SCUBA diver for over 30 years, gaining his initial certification on a shipwreck in the cold, dark and deep North Atlantic Ocean off the coast of New Jersey. Shortly after, he moved to Michigan and started diving the Great Lakes, only to find that the shipwrecks are more abundant, better preserved, and the only place in the world where you can find fully intact wooden Lake Schooners waiting to be discovered. He has assisted in locating three shipwrecks in Lake Michigan and is currently President of the Southwest Michigan Underwater Preserve. His mission is to work to locate, identify, preserve, and educate the public on the shipwrecks and bottomlands of the Great Lakes, and the joy of diving the cold, fresh waters.

Scholz will be speaking on the Michigan Maritime Museum Campus on March 28th at 2pm. The lecture series will continue on the last Saturday of the following months and feature a variety of topics and speakers.

Admission is $8 for adults and $7 for seniors. There is no admission fee for Museum members. Light refreshments will be provided. Become a member and attend each additional lecture at no cost. It is the perfect time to become a member!

The Michigan Maritime Museum is dedicated to the preservation of Michigan Great Lakes waterways, maritime history, and culture. Located at the drawbridge in South Haven, the museum is a 501 (C3) organization and donations are tax deductible. For more information call 1-800-747-3810 or visit michiganmaritimemuseum.org.

Looking for Single Occupancy apartment with kitchen
I am looking for living space somewhere this coming Fall-Spring semesters 2015-2016 near campus (<2 miles) for just myself. I'm more than happy to share the space with house/apartment mates, but given my often strange sleep habits (I'm a night owl), I'd rather not share with a roommate so as not to disturb them.
The major selling point of any place is the kitchen -- it's my reason for leaving the dorm. I'm a fairly clean and neat person -- I clean up after myself, and I'm not opposed to sharing a kitchen, so long as the other users are also clean. I have no qualms about pets, but have no pets of my own. I’m looking to pay somewhere in the $3-450 range (which seems fair to me).

I can be best reached by email at vyhmeise@andrews.edu whether you’re looking for a roommate or looking to rent a place. Thanks!

Looking for an apartment

Hello,

My wife and I are looking for an apartment to rent as I plan to begin the Mdiv program in the fall semester. We are currently working as missionaries in Hong Kong and would be arriving around the end of July or the beginning of August.

We would like the price to be $600 or less, utilities included (one or two bedroom apartment). We have no children and two very well-behaved pets (one cat and one dog) that we adopted from animal shelters (we are willing to pay an additional deposit for them, although we have no reason to suspect that they would cause any damage to the house).

We can be contacted via email at navarro@andrews.edu or martha.i.dettwiler@gmail.com. You can also leave a voicemail at 740 485 0649.

Thank you!
