Andrews Electronics Recycling Day

Wednesday, April 22, 3–7 p.m.
Transportation Building

Andrews University invites community members, businesses and residents from surrounding communities to recycle their unwanted electronic items at the University’s biannual electronics recycling event. The event will take place on Wednesday, April 22, from 3–7 p.m. at the Transportation building. In partnership with Andrews University, Green Earth Electronics Recycling will be operating the event.

Accepted items include computers, laptops, smart phones, monitors, TVs, telephones, cameras, DVD players, cords/cables, printers, toner cartridges, cell phones, refrigerators, air conditioners, appliances and any other electronic items or items with a cord.

A hazardous waste fee will be collected for CRT monitors ($5) and tube TVs ($10). All other items are recycled free of charge. Thin monitors and TVs (LCD and plasma) are free to recycle.

All hard drives are wiped to Department of Defense specifications or shredded. Businesses are encouraged to preregister by emailing pickup@greenearth1.com or calling 269-326-1232.

Efficiency UNITED will be in partnering with Green Earth and offering rebate incentives to customers of a participating utility provider (Indiana Michigan Power, South Haven Public Works, Dowagiac Electric) when they recycle a working refrigerator, freezer, dehumidifier, or room AC ($50 rebate for working refrigerators and freezers/$15 rebate for working dehumidifiers and room AC units).

Green Earth Electronics Recycling, headquartered in St. Joseph, Michigan, is a company whose focus is to keep unwanted electronics out of the landfill by using the best practices in information destruction and recycling. They are registered as a recycler with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. Their services include corporate and institutional pickups as well as community drop-off events.

For more information please visit GreenEarth1.com or email pickup@GreenEarth1.com.

Any Andrews University departments wishing to participate are asked to please contact ITS to have items picked up prior to the event.

Do you hate filing for financial aid? Do you wish someone would walk you through it?

From March 30 to April 10, the SFS lobby will turn into a full-service financial aid station. Financial aid advisors and trained staff will be there to walk you through your financial aid requirements for the 2015-2016 school year. No appointments are necessary. If you need to turn in a Financial Information sheet, download one at this link, and bring it with you.

Madagascar Flood Drive

The island of Madagascar was recently hit with a Tropical Cyclone and continues to experience severe flooding due to continued heavy rainfall. Over 100,000 affected and many more now suffering from starvation due to destruction of crops.

It has estimated that it would take at least 3 more months for the water to go down due to the lack of infrastructure to properly drain the water.

A group of AU students will be traveling to Madagascar for a Study tour this Spring (May 17). With them, the students will be taking items for the children, women, and men who have been affected by the storm.

Please help us help them by donating any of the following items:

- Basic necessities and toiletries (for all ages and gender)
- School supplies
- Water purifiers
Solar powered lanterns/flashlights
Clothing
Suitcases (to help transport the items)
Cash

Any donation will be a blessing!

Items may be dropped off at the Community & International Development Program located in Buller Hall 203. For more information or if you would like to take part in the Study Tour please contact us at 269-471-6538 or cidp@andrews.edu

Thank you!

Running for Change

What do 10 Andrews University students and 12,804 children from Cambodia to Colombia have in common?

Why, A Leg to Stand On, of course! For us, it’s our literal legs—the ones we are counting on to carry us 13.1 or 26.2 miles on April 12 (depending on the runner). For them, it’s a prosthetic device or orthopedic care that has opened up a world of possibilities by enabling the simple act of walking.

YOU can make a difference. Your support of the Andrews University ALTSO Marathon Team will help fund orthopedic care for a child in need whose family cannot afford treatment.

Any amount helps and all donations are tax deductible.

We need your help to raise an additional $4,020 by race day to reach our goal!

IMPORTANT! Please Read Carefully. Filing on time is very important.

Remember to complete the FAFSA online at www.fafsa.ed.gov and link to the IRS Data Retrieval Tool. The Andrews University school code is 002238. We are no longer allowed to accept copies of federal tax returns. The IRS Data Retrieval Tool will be available 2-3 weeks after you (and your parent(s) or spouse, if applicable) have filed an electronic federal income tax return. If you have already filed the FAFSA, you will need to submit a correction and use the IRS Data Retrieval Tool to link directly to the IRS database. If you feel changes need to be made to the data uploaded to your FAFSA, please contact our office for further instructions. If you did not or could not use the IRS Data Retrieval in the FAFSA, you must print a Tax Return Transcript at www.irs.gov/Individuals/Get-Transcript. You may be selected for a process called “Verification” and then be required to provide additional documentation. Please log in to your All finVue account and check for additional requirements.

Ten Students Help Children Who Have Lost Limbs
On April 12, 2015, ten Andrews University students will participate in the "Running So They Can Stand” marathon, to raise money for children in need of orthopedic care in developing countries. The students have partnered with “A Leg To Stand On” (ALTSO), an organization that has provided free prosthetic limbs, orthotic devices, mobility aids, corrective surgery and rehabilitative care to at least 12,804 children who have lost limbs. Whether by traumatic accident, or if the children are suffering from congenital limb disabilities, ALTSO has worked to serve this need worldwide. Recognizing that they too can help, Andrews students have partnered with ALTSO by agreeing to run in either a half-marathon (13.1 miles), or a full-marathon (26.2 miles), at the Ohio River Road Runners Club.

ALTSO has provided care for children in Asia, Africa and Latin America. They have assisted families who cannot afford the care they need in order to be self-sufficient. The organization has sponsored adolescents and juveniles who may have suffered from diseases, birth defects or war injuries. However, they are incapable to do that work without your support.

In the words of Jennifer Calhoun, one of the marathon runners, "Physical deformities...have limited their mobility to distances that can be hopped, crawled or carried. It doesn't have to be this way forever! Which is why we're using our legs to run for change... literally."

Andrews University has partnered with ALTSO because they are looking for financial sponsors. Support the runners by making a donation today; even the smallest donation helps. A $25 donation provides a clubfoot brace, $100 an orthotic device, $250 a prosthetic limb, and $500 provides corrective surgery. All donations are tax deductible, but donations must be made by April 1. The goal is to reach $5,000 by race day. Make your donation at altso.org/aumarathon.

Readers Theater: "The Great Divorce"
Andrews University’s J.N. Andrews Honors Program invites you to attend a free reader’s theater production of C.S. Lewis’s "The Great Divorce." The presentation will take place on Sunday, April 5, at 6 p.m. in the University Towers Auditorium on the campus of Andrews University. Admission is free and open to the public.

"The Great Divorce," written in 1946, is a short, allegorical novel about a man who finds himself in Hell, only to discover that the damned may take a bus to Heaven, and that anyone who wishes may stay there. What follows is a series of conversations between the ghosts of Hell and the "solid people" of Heaven, exposing the choices that we make toward either of those destinations in our everyday lives.

The performance cast includes Brian Strayer as the narrator, in addition to Keith Mattingly, David Faehner, Frances Faehner, Monique Pittman, Ante Jeroncic, Hvyeth Williams, Joseph Greig, Ronald Knott, Zackery Babb and Alejandra Castillo.

This live presentation of reader’s theater differs from traditional theater in that the voice, rather than blocking and costuming, carries the drama. The script is read rather than memorized, resulting in a directed, well-rehearsed dramatic presentation.

The production is directed by Olivia Ruiz-Knott in partial fulfillment of her Senior Honors Thesis.

Easter Choral Concert
The Andrews University Singers and Chorale, under the direction of Stephen Zork, will perform their annual Easter concert on Saturday, April 4, at 8 p.m., in the Howard Performing Arts Center. No tickets are required.

The concert will feature the premier of a choral piece written by Andrews University student and composer Michael Momohara titled, “My Plea.” The text of the piece was written by WWII Japanese internment camp survivor Mary T. Matsuzawa.

“Our music will celebrate Christ’s healing touch and teaching ministry,” says Zork. “Pieces such as ‘By Peter’s House’ by Brad Lehman and ‘This House of Peace’ by Ralph Johnson express the pathos experienced by Jesus Christ in the events leading up to His death.”

The ensembles will also perform “God So Loved the World” by Bob Chilcott, “Crucifixus” by Antonio Lotti, “Prayer of Gratitude & Psalm 150” by Andrew Bleckner (sung in Hebrew and English) and “Gloria Dios” by Ariel Ramirez (sung in Spanish).

Soloists for the event include Charles Reid, tenor; Carrie Vandenburgh, soprano; Christina Gibson, flute; and Mowa Mowa, cello.

For information on this and other upcoming concerts, visit howard.andrews.edu.

Clear As Black

by Jenna Neil

Adriana Monsalve, a 2008 Andrews University photography graduate, has been working on a series of photos titled Clear As Black. The series features people from Puerto Rico who have albinism, a condition that refers to little or no pigment in the eyes, skin or hair. Her work was recently featured in the Washington Post in an article by Nicole Crowder.

"Through the series I hope to dispel misconceptions of people with albinism by highlighting the fact that they are people before albinos,” she says.

Monsalve came up with the concept for Clear As Black after living in Puerto Rico for three months. Puerto Rico has the highest prevalence of albinism and Hermansy-Pudlak Syndrome (HPS) in the world. HPS is a rare disease that occurs most commonly in albinos in a variety of ways. HPS 1 and HPS 3 are the most common in the population of Puerto Rico and can include platelet dysfunction and fibrotic lung disease.

"I came up with ‘Clear as Black’ because I felt it represented exactly what it was that I had been seeing for three months in Puerto Rico," Monsalve explained in the Washington Post article: “White people that are black, and black people that are white and all the visual representations of that.”

Monsalve was hesitant at first to do the series because it forced her to tackle her own story of being classified based on looks. She is fair skinned but Hispanic and Black.

"By looking at me you will not know what I am," she said in the article. "I am white, but I am black. Slowly the personal side of this story kept gnawing at me more and more, and before I knew it this project was about me. Through this series, I discovered who I am genetically."

Monsalve wants society to break away from the narrative of seeing people with albinism as “other” and highlight the fact that they are fundamentally people.

"They are people with a condition called albinism and they live interesting lives just like you and me," she says, “full of layers and puberty, racism and prejudice, romance and break-ups, academic achievements and religious views, family drama and everything else that makes them a whole person.”

She began her project in June of 2013 and it’s still ongoing.

"At some point it will be finished," she commented. “But I feel like there are so many layers and this is just the surface. The way I work is long-term and in-depth. I don’t feel that it will reach fruition for another ten years or so.”

Monsalve recommends supporting organizations that work with albinos and encourages everyone to consider doing so. She plans on working on other projects while continuing to work on Clear As Black.

Computing History

Andrews Computing History Still Alive and Well in Seattle

For a long period of our history, there was only one computer on the campus of Andrews University. In 1973, Andrews switched from a succession of early IBM computers and card equipment to a Xerox Sigma 6. The 1972 computer selection committee report is a classic and copies still exist on various Adventist college campuses. That report studied several computing options in detail and recommended the acquisition of the Sigma 6 with 256 KB of main memory, 100 MB of disk storage, and 16 communication lines. It also recommended hiring a full-time systems programmer.

Xerox entered the mainframe computer business in 1969 with the billion-dollar acquisition of the real-time computer company Scientific Data Systems or SDS. SDS served a niche market, which included NASA, power companies, high-energy physics and airline flight simulators. Their Sigma line was well suited for general business computing, including time-sharing, and was making inroads into the university market. However, Xerox never achieved recognition as dwarf status (IBM was “Snow White” and the other computer companies were the “Seven Dwarfs”). Xerox had no idea how to even manage a computer company. In 1975, after a campaign saying how they wouldn’t “love you and leave you,” Xerox left the mainframe computer business with many high-valued contracts on the table.

System software was free in those days. The Sigma 6 came with the long-delayed UTS (Universal Time-Sharing System) operating system whose name was soon changed to CP-V or Control Program-five to help ameliorate some of the bad press garnered over the years. CP-V is an event-driven, real-time operating system that was ahead of its time in many ways, such as security and programs running seamlessly across multiple access modes like online or batch.

Andrews hired George Plue as the systems programmer. However, George’s job soon expanded from just software programming to helping engineers assigned to fix the hardware. When they couldn’t fix it before leaving for the day, he would fix it at night when they were gone, allowing production to keep running. With Xerox exiting the mainframe computer business, obtaining expansion equipment and good maintenance soon became problematic.

By 1979 the Xerox system had expanded to 512 KB of main memory, 500 MB of disk storage, and 64 communication lines. The new communication lines were designed by George and built internally. Several important decisions were made at that time. Andrews would start providing their own “in-house” maintenance and the computing center would expand with now readily available used equipment. Keith Calkins had been hired in 1978 to replace Dan Bidwell as systems programmer but was soon pressed into hardware service and Dan returned as the programmer. By 1980 the academic and administrative computer systems had been split onto separate Sigma 6/7 computer systems. In 1983 George Plue left for Arizona to provide time-sharing services using Xerox Sigma mainframes for the Ritland family medical practice in Flagstaff, Arizona.

From 1984–1985 Keith and his technical support staff converted the two Andrews mainframe computer systems onto Sigma 9s, which were about 50 percent faster and could handle much more main memory. A cooperative software development and maintenance arrangement with Telefile brought tri-density tape drives to campus. By 1990 similar work with Belo-Box resulted in smaller, higher capacity disk drives.

By 1992, University administration decided to sell the entire collection of Sigma equipment. A few minor details needed to be addressed since George had first right of refusal, plus the Sigmas still ran all the software for the University’s financial and grading systems. Keith Calkins ended up purchasing the 80 tons of equipment and sold to George Plue what he wanted. This time the Sigma 9 had 152 communication lines, with many of those connected to a terminal server providing access to many more. It also had 16 MB of main memory and 4 GB of disk storage.
One of the eight Sigma 9s Andrews University owned came from the University of Southern Mississippi. In November 1985, Robert Moon, Keith Calkins and Jim Massena disassembled it there and loaded it onto a truck for transport. That Sigma 9 CPU (Central Processing Unit) was used for testing within the Andrews computing center. In February 1990 it was sold to George Plue and Keith hauled it out to Flagstaff in a 24' Ryder truck. Since it overheated when the air conditioning failed at the University of Southern Mississippi, George had some challenges getting it to run reliably. It was used until the mid-90s, when the Ritlands converted their business onto personal computers.

George Plue moved back to Berrien Springs in 1997. In late September he gave Keith a call and said he wanted to write an emulator for the Sigma computer. Keith came right over with diagnostics code and within a month they were running the CP-V operating system. In December, George went back to Arizona to convert his backup tapes. During the spring of 1998 Keith added the decimal instructions and George added floating point. They also added large memory and terminal support. The emulator was a project that stretched all their hardware, software and personal computer knowledge. The emulator was also instrumental in helping to preserve the software to this time; since many “permanent” save tapes had been scratched.

Although George never bothered to finish a degree at Andrews he was inspirational to many, providing technical support in the pursuit of their education. Dan Bidwell obtained his PhD by porting the C language onto the Sigma and utilizing its real-time capabilities to precisely time differences in code optimization schemes. Jim Wolfer obtained his PhD in image processing, another area of interest to George. Keith Calkins obtained his PhD in metrology, the study of measure, in part due to extensive work with statistics on the Sigmas. Devin Zimmerman obtained his doctorate in medicine while honing his diagnostic skills repairing terminals and writing code.

George died in 2010 but had already made contact with the Living Computer Museum (LCM). The LCM is the brainchild of Paul Allen, cofounder of Microsoft with Bill Gates, and thus about the 25th richest person in the U.S. George wanted to see CP-V on his Sigma computer kept running and that was consistent with Paul’s goals for the museum. In the fast-paced computer industry it is easy to lose vital parts of our rich heritage.

Stanley Ritland delivered five truckloads of computer equipment from Flagstaff, Arizona, and Berrien Springs, Michigan, to the Seattle museum in 2011. In 2012 the museum contracted with Keith to bring the Sigma 9 back to running order. Keith spent 12 weeks there over the next 2.5 years and in December 2014 LCM announced that the CP-V operating system, a copy of the actual boot tape last used at Andrews University, is running on a Sigma 9 once owned by Andrews University.

CP-V ran Andrews University’s business on Xerox Sigma mainframes for over 20 years, from 1973–94. During the 70s it was also the only computer available for student use. It is thus familiar to many workers and students from that era. The Andrews technical support staff made substantial changes to the operating system, associated processors, languages and hardware over the years, molding it to the many and varied needs of the University. George Plue, Keith Calkins and their technical support staff saved the University more than $2 million by extending the Sigma era into the 1980s and 90s.

This era marked the beginning of a philosophy of Andrews Information Technology staff to provide significant support “in-house” rather than through vendor provided maintenance, resulting in very significant cost savings. It also encouraged a spirit of innovation that still marks the department today.

If you are ever in Seattle, consider stopping by the LCM to see a big part of Andrews computing history running there with many other computers of that era.

Submitted by Keith Calkins

Lorena Bidwell started working with the Sigma computer in 1977. Here she is loading a 9-track tape to retrieve data for use on the Xerox Sigma 6 computer.

No Passion Play in 2015

We regret to inform you that Andrews University’s Passion Play will not be offered in 2015. We continue to explore ideas for offering this much-loved community event in the future, and hope to be able to do so in coming years.

However, we still invite you to visit the Andrews University campus this Easter season for our annual Easter Choral Concert, featuring the University’s Chorale and Singers. Under the direction of Stephen Zork, these vocal ensembles will present a special Easter performance.

The concert will take place on Saturday, April 4, at 8 p.m. in the Howard Performing Arts Center. No tickets are required.

Renaissance Kids 2015

Registration is now available for Renaissance Kids, a day camp for kids ages 5–15 for six 1-week sessions and one 2-week session in June and July. The camp is held at Andrews University in the School of Architecture, Art & Design (SAAD). Two of this year’s sessions offer a new all-day option.

Renaissance Kids offers a variety of hands-on projects to teach kids about the architecture of cities, buildings and other places. The activities have been created to help the children learn about other people, history, different cultures, design concepts, architect tools and others.

Each year, the students who attend the two-week session have the chance to participate in a real-world building project. In past years, students have helped design a paved sitting area in front of the Curious Kids Museum in St. Joseph, Michigan, and an arbor outside of the SAAD.

Renaissance Kids is in session during the following dates:

- Session 1: $295
  June 8–12, 8:30 a.m.–5:15 p.m.
  Ages 5–7

- Session 2: $295
  June 15–19, 8:30 a.m.–5:15 p.m.
  Ages 7–10

- Session 3: $160
  June 22–26, 8:30–12:15
  Ages 10–12

- Session 4: $160
  June 22–26, 1:45–5:15

‘Clear as black:’ Seeing beyond shades of albinism within Puerto Rico’s population

Born with albinism, Jomalier, center, sits with his brothers in Moca, Puerto Rico. (Adriana Monsalve)
Daneisha, diagnosed with albinism, plays at the beach in Ponce, Puerto Rico. (Adriana Monsalve)

On the sun-filled island of Puerto Rico, a little girl playfully bounds along the boardwalk, her stark blonde hair streaming around her pale pink shoulders. Her eyes, ever sensitive to light whether from the sun or indoors, are always covered by a pair of white sunglasses.

Puerto Rico has the highest prevalence of albinism and HPS (Hermansy-Pudlak Syndrome) in the world. HPS, a rare disease that occurs most commonly in people who have albinism, occurs in a variety of ways: HPS I and HPS 3 are the two most commonly diagnosed within the Puerto Rican population, with manifestations that can include platelet dysfunction, colitis, and/or fibrotic lung disease. But people diagnosed with HP3 do not always lack pigmentation in their skin, hair or irises.

Photographer Adriana Monsalve tries to dispel the misconceptions about persons with albinism in her beautiful series, “Clear As Black.” As a woman who has fair skin but who is Hispanic and black, Monsalve was initially hesitate to approach the series, which forced her to confront her own story of being classified based on looks. “By looking at me you will not know what I am. I am white, but I am black. Slowly the personal side of this story kept gnawing at me more and more, and before I knew it this project was totally about me. Through this series, I discovered who I am genetically,” she says.

“I came up with ‘Clear As Black’ because I felt it represented exactly what it was that I had been seeing for three months in Puerto Rico: white people that are black, and black people that are white and all the visual representations of that. In the same way, ‘Clear As Black,’ is telling about me.”

Monsalve wanted to break away from the narrative of seeing persons with albinism as “other.” “I wanted to highlighted the fact that they are people before they are ‘albinos.’ They are people with a condition called albinism and they live interesting lives just like you and me, full of layers and puberty, and racism and prejudice and romance and academic achievements and religious views and break-ups and lust an family drama and everything that makes them a whole person.”

Monsavle executed the series in black and white intentionally, out of her predilection for mixing color photos with black and white and to further emphasize the overall theme of color. “I’ve always found the rule in photography about how you should not mix color photos with black and whites in a series to be silly. My story has so much to do with skin color and lack [thereof], so I am going at against that rule for my benefit and the benefit of the story.”

Despite a prevalence of persons with albinism in Puerto Rico diagnosed with HP3, the task of finding and photographing them is made all the more complex not only because they often lack distinguishing traits of albinism (light hair, eyes, skin), but because they are not registered in medical offices as people with albinism and often suffer untreated medical problems. Even a person with HP1 will often have red or dark hair.

“That’s what this series is about: changing what the word ‘albino’ means, and ultimately taking it out of our lexicon. I am showing a broader more expansive narrative of what people with albinism look like.”

Gymnics Travel the World
The Andrews University Gymnics recently performed at the Bankers Life Fieldhouse in Indianapolis during halftime of the Indiana Pacers’ game on March 12.

It is hardly the only time the Gymnics, a noncompetitive gymnastics team at the Berrien Springs’ college, has been on a big stage.

Day for the Pi
Pi lovers at Andrews University celebrated National Pi Day on Thursday by eating pie. And lots of it. Karen Johnson-McWilliams of the university’s math department said the school provided 25 pies and 64 cheesecake squares, which quickly disappeared.

She said she cut the 8-inch pies into eight pieces and the bigger pies into 16 pieces, which gave her 320 pieces when you add in the 64 cheesecake pieces.

So, how many eight-inch pies did she have?

You do the math.

For most of America, Pi Day is Saturday, when the calendar and clock will combine for two moments to read: 3-14-15, 9:26:53 - or pi to its 10th digit. Andrews celebrated Thursday before classes ended for spring break.

Israeli Doctors Share What They've Learned Treating Their Enemies
This month marks the fourth anniversary of the start of the Syrian Civil War. In an effort to shed light on the conflict, Andrews University in Berrien Springs invited two people with first-hand experience with the war to talk about their experiences. Two doctors, who work to save the lives of people considered their enemy.

"Whether they're enemies or not...they're people," Ohad Ronen, Senior Surgeon, at Galilee Medical Center, said.

Watch Fox affiliate WSJV in South Bend, Indiana, report on the presentation.

Heart-Healthy Cooking Class
Free Class on Heart-Healthy Cooking
(ST. JOSEPH) – Lakeland Health will offer “Cooking for Your Heart,” a free cooking class for community members. The presentation will include a cooking demonstration by a Lakeland registered dietitian, with taste-testing of the demonstrated recipe and tips on heart-healthy cooking techniques. Attendees will also learn about easy ingredient switches designed to help raise “good” cholesterol (HDL) and lower “bad” cholesterol.
“A healthy diet and lifestyle are the best weapons to fight cardiovascular disease,” said Heather Rudnik, Registered Dietitian, Lakeland Health. “By making some simple changes part of your life, you can have a positive impact on your health and your heart.”
Pre-registration is preferred, but not required. For more information or to register, call (269) 556-2808 or (866) 260-7544.

Meet Our Presenters
D. Lynn Bryson
and Timothy Arena

Lynn has been presenting Bible messages for 29 years as a pastor and evangelist. In 1996 he survived along with four others a small plane crash in Mexico. He struggled to learn to walk again and his story of God’s grace in his life will open up a new perception of God as Lynn presents answers from the Bible. Tim, a theology student in seminary, is a Bible teacher and burgeoning scholar. He loves to talk about the greatness of Jesus and His salvation as it has been revealed to us in Scripture.

Free Program on Heart-Healthy Foods at Lakeland

(ST. JOSEPH) – Lakeland Health will present “Eating Right for a Healthy Heart” on Tuesday, April 14, from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m., in Community Room at Lakeland Medical Center, St. Joseph, 1234 Napier Avenue.

At this free program, a registered dietitian will discuss how better food habits can help reduce the risk of heart disease and stroke, and give participants tips on following the American Heart Association’s eating plan.

A 24-hour advance registration for this class is required. For more information or to register, call (269) 556-2808 or (866) 260-7544. Visit www.lakelandhealth.org or find Lakeland Health on Facebook or Twitter for more classes and events.

Free Class for Women in Chemotherapy

(ST. JOSEPH) – Lakeland Health will offer “Look Good…Feel Better,” a free two-hour class for women who are currently undergoing chemotherapy, at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, April 13, at the Marie Yeager Cancer Center at the Lakeland Health Park, 3900 Hollywood Road, St. Joseph.

Presented in cooperation with the American Cancer Society and the National Cosmetology Association, this program is designed to teach beauty techniques to female cancer patients to help restore their appearance and enhance their self-image. Licensed cosmetologists provide cosmetic advice, information on skin care, and guidance on the use of wigs, turbans, and scarves. Each participant receives a free make-up kit valued at $300 from the Personal Care Products Council.

Future “Look Good…Feel Better” seminars will be held the second Monday of each month at the Marie Yeager Cancer Center.

Class size is limited, and pre-reregistration for this free program is required. For more information or to register, call (269) 556-7197. Visit www.lakelandhealth.org or find Lakeland Health on Facebook or Twitter for more classes and events.

Lakeland Offers Free Stress Management Class

(NILES) – Lakeland Health will present a class on stress management on Wednesday, April 15, from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. at the Niles District Library, located at 620 E. Main Street. At this free, interactive class, participants will learn about the signs and symptoms of stress as well as stress management techniques.

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, people under chronic stress are prone to more frequent and severe viral infections, such as the flu or common cold, and vaccines, such as the flu shot are less effective for them. Over time, continued strain on the body from routine stress may lead to serious health problems, such as heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, depression, anxiety disorders, and other illnesses.

Preregistration is required for this class; call (269) 556-2808 or (866) 260-7544. Visit www.lakelandhealth.org or find Lakeland Health on Facebook or Twitter for more classes and events.

summer host family needed

I'm looking for a host family for a Chinese young man whose age is 15 year old on behalf of his mom. He wants to stay in the host family for 1 month in order to study verbal English. The requirement for the host family is a SDA American family with a boy’s age range from 15-18 years old. The two boys can make friends and the Chinese boy can be influenced by the host family's belief too. It's also a good way to show God's love to others too. They will pay for the accommodation. Please email me to discuss in detail if you are interested in being a host family.
