Thursday Series: "A Service and Missions Mindset"
Thursday, April 9, 2015
11:30 a.m.
Pioneer Memorial Church

Students share testimonies of their mission experience. A commission and blessing over all students accepting calls to serve over the summer or coming school year.

Horn Lectureship Series
Monday, April 13
7 p.m.
Seminary Chapel

The Horn Lectureship Series presents "Making a Future for our Past: Student Research at the Institute of Archaeology and the Siegfried Horn Archaeological Museum" by Robert Bates and his students from Andrews University.

Robert Bates, research associate at the Institute of Archaeology, is having a profound impact on the lives of students here at Andrews University. For the past four years undergraduates taking general education courses in history and behavioral sciences have had an unprecedented opportunity to participate in ongoing research projects at the Institute of Archaeology and the Siegfried H. Horn Archaeological Museum.

Under his direction, students are being trained and mentored in conducting research, analyzing artifacts, developing museum displays, photographing artifacts, collecting data, and preparing databases. They are given hands-on experience in examining artifacts ranging from the Early Bronze Age to the Late Ottoman period.

As of now, nearly 300 Andrews University undergraduate and Berrien County RESA high school students have participated in this project. The students are given an opportunity to do the type of research that is generally limited to graduate students, making an important contribution to archaeology, history and our understanding of the Bible.

Come see them showcase their unique and impressive contribution to the archaeological research goals of Andrews University.

Co-curricular credit will be offered. The event is free and open to the public.
Thank You for Participating in the NSSE Survey

Simone, Alex, Haley, Megan and Joshua wish to thank all freshmen and seniors who spent some of their valuable time taking the National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE).

"This semester I have been finishing up my research projects to complete my bachelor’s degree in marketing," says Megan Reid, one of our NSSE student representatives. "I've come to realize firsthand how important it is to collect good data—and how difficult it is to get people to participate. I was glad to help promote a culture of assessment on our campus because I know it can lead to improvements in effectiveness. And I’m proud for the participation improvement we had this year with the NSSE Survey."

To further promote participation in the NSSE Survey, the University's Office of Institutional Effectiveness entered students who took the survey into a drawing for gift cards. Lynn Merklin, director, recently announced the winners: Jasmine Griggs, Jae-Hyun Joo, Brian Shockey, Tim McGuire, Amanda Phillips, Lindy Elloway, Jesse Snelling, Whitney Watson.

Our NSSE survey response increased nearly five percent over the last survey, with 34.8 percent of freshmen and seniors participating. Survey results will be delivered sometime in August. When those results are available they will be posted at andrews.edu/effectiveness.

Howard Performing Arts Center

We are happy to introduce a new function of the Office of Alumni Services. At the request of David Faehner, vice president for University Advancement, an organization is being formed to coordinate the valuable service of our current and future volunteers. Through the years, volunteers have given untold hours of their time and energy to enhance University experiences. Having an organized volunteer program will become even more important in the future. Ray Nelson, a local retired alum, has accepted the coordinator position for this important venture.

In order to best serve the campus, he will be contacting you shortly to determine if you have a need for volunteers in your specific department/area. We would also appreciate a representative from your area attending the launch party on April 13 so the good news can be shared with your team.

Further details about the Andrews Volunteers program are available online at http://alumni.andrews.edu/volunteer, including a Service Request Form. Contact can also be made by email: volunteer@andrews.edu or phone: 269-471-6274.

Students’ Perceptions about Academic Motivation
Samuel Adamou

This study investigates the roles that innate psychological needs and students’ attitudes have on student motivation. The study seeks to explore how students’ perceptions of autonomy, competence, and relatedness play an important part in college and university students’ attitudes and motivation. Using the self-determination theory, this study is focused on how the appropriation process of extrinsic motivated activities is necessary and is a key to success.

Course Type, Course Level, Student Age, Gender and Personality Type as Correlates of Student Evaluation of Teaching
Fatima Al Nasser
Student Evaluation of Teaching (SET) is a significant tool that most higher education institutions around the world use to help measure the course and instructor effectiveness. A review of the literature indicated that course type and level were the characteristics that affect the SET’s results. Also, the review indicated that student’s age, gender, and personality type were the student’s characteristics that most affect the SET’s results. The purpose of the study is to propose and empirically investigate the effects of the five factors on the students’ level of satisfaction with their education.

Curriculum Design & Language Learning: An Analysis of English Textbooks in Brazil

Ellen Rodrigues

The purpose of this study is to analyze two sixth-grade Brazilian EFL textbooks, identifying the underlying methodological approach of these textbooks and observing to what extent textbook writers are taking into account language curriculum design. The study analyzes how language learning processes are being incorporated into the foreign language textbook and evaluates the textbooks’ strengths and weaknesses, indicating changes necessary for these textbooks.

Capacity Building for International Development Practitioners through an Off-Campus Program

Ralph Wood

Andrews University a Master of International Development Administration (MIDA) degree. This program was developed to 1) build the capacity of international development practitioners, 2) build capacity of the organizations that employ them through MIDA transference and 3) build the capacity of the society they are serving. Perception(s) and capacity building that has occurred will be studied. The main hypotheses of this program evaluation is that the MIDA capacity building will have a positive effect both on the MIDA alumni and the organizations, and the lessons learned through this research can be used to strengthen the MIDA Program.

Andrews Receives $3,500 Grant from MDEQ

Andrews University was recently awarded a $3,500 grant from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ). The grant will be used to update the University's Wellhead Protection Plan (WHPP) for the groundwater areas that supply drinking water to the University.

Andrews, in cooperation with the MDEQ, has been involved in the Michigan WHPP for years. The primary purpose of participating in the plan is to protect groundwater and provide a clean uncontaminated water supply. By engaging in this voluntary program, Andrews is eligible for special grants from the state government for implementing different aspects of the program.

The task of maintaining a clean water supply is made easier because of the good relationship Andrews has with the City of Berrien Springs. Paul Elder, director for Facilities Management, says, "We have a benefit being close to the city, because we have two connections with the city to help us when we are down or vice versa. Last summer we renovated the water tower and had to drain our tower for a month. During this time we were able to open our connections to the city and make arrangements with their utilities maintenance department to allow Andrews University to use their water tower during our shutdown."

The University has contracted with Fleis & VandenBrink, an environmental engineering firm, to provide professional guidance during the update. The firm will help to determine the best actions for preserving the groundwater supply, and assist with development of an updated Wellhead Protection Plan for Andrews University. This process should not cause any interruptions beyond what is caused by normal maintenance shutdowns on the system.

Andrews Engineering Students Place Second in Stryker Challenge

Two Andrews University engineering students, Jonathan Penrod and Michael Hess II, were part of the Michigan Colleges Alliance team that placed second at the 2015 Stryker Engineering Challenge, held March 26–27, 2015, at Stryker Medical in Portage, Michigan.
Teams of four students, preferably sophomores, competed for $1,000 scholarships and interviews for Stryker internships. This year there were six teams competing from the following institutions: Purdue University, University of Notre Dame, Michigan Tech University, Western Michigan University, University of Michigan, and the Michigan Colleges Alliance. The Michigan Colleges Alliance team consisted of Penrod and Hess from Andrews University, and Rochelle Miller and Justin Hanselman from Hope College.

Before the challenge began students were given a product demonstration and tour of Stryker’s facilities. At 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 26, teams were provided with the rules and sent to their assigned workspace with their Stryker mentor. The workspace contained tools and supplies to build a remotely controlled vehicle with different custom attachments. They worked until 2 a.m. before retiring for the night.

Gunnar Lovhoiden, associate professor of engineering and faculty sponsor, says, "The best part for me was observing how well the Andrews and Hope students worked together as a team. I think they maximized their potential."

The challenge continued later Friday morning from 6 a.m. to 1:45 p.m., followed by the competition at 2:30 p.m. Each team was assigned a pit area to work on their vehicles if they needed service or repair during the competition. Challenge One consisted of rescuing Lego "victims" in "downtown" Kalamazoo. Stryker had constructed several models of downtown Kalamazoo buildings. All the victims had small magnets attached so they could be rescued using a pick-up magnet controlled remotely from the vehicle.

All teams competed against each other and points were awarded according to how difficult the victims were to access. Some were behind doors that had to be opened by activating different sensors while others were on roofs as high as three feet. In order to get points, the vehicle had to pick up victims and carry them out of the playing field, which was marked with tape. The Michigan Colleges Alliance vehicle broke down four times due to drive chain issues, but each time the team was able to fix the vehicle and put it back into play.

Challenge One lasted 20 minutes. The Michigan Colleges Alliance team collected enough points for second place.

The Final Challenge was to traverse an obstacle course with one horizontal section followed by a ramped section. If you made it up the ramp you had to raise/lower a bridge to cross to the finish line. The raising and lowering was accomplished by flashing an LED at a light sensor at two different predetermined rates. The final challenge had a 10-minute time limit.

Michigan Colleges Alliance competed against University of Michigan for first place. The Michigan Colleges Alliance team’s vehicle made it across the horizontal obstacle and up the ramp without any issues, but could not get further because their LED flasher didn’t work. The University of Michigan was able to complete both tasks and therefore won the competition.

Stryker provided meals and hotel accommodations for all team members. Lovhoiden commented, "I was impressed with the effort Stryker had put into the event and the number of Stryker staff involved. The whole challenge had a professional feel to it. It was good to see that there are companies willing to give students opportunities such as this. It reaffirms that although we [Hope College and Andrews University] are smaller engineering programs with limited resources, our students have good engineering skills and perform as well as or better than students from much larger programs."

Reflecting on the experience, Michael Hess said, "What stood out to me most about our team’s performance was how effectively we were able to collaborate in spite of our setbacks. We were the only team from two different schools, none of us had ever worked together previously, and unlike the other teams most of us didn’t even know we were competing until the day before. Even so, we were able to figure out each other’s strengths, delegate tasks accordingly, and maintain effective communication throughout the build. Coming from less-than-ideal circumstances to take second place showed that being from a smaller school like Andrews is not a disadvantage; we’re on par with some of the best engineering schools in the country."

Robert Bartlett, president of the Michigan Colleges Alliance, was also very pleased with the results. "Most prospective students, counselors and employers in the state don’t even realize MCA member schools offer engineering, this is a great ‘myth buster.’"

A Conversation on Race and Justice in America

Andrews University invites you to attend its fourth annual Summit for Social Consciousness from Wednesday, April 8, through Saturday, April 11. This year’s symposium will focus on the theme of “A Conversation on Race and Justice in America.” The objective will be to inform the community of the injustices and racial prejudices still alive in our nation, 51 years after the civil rights movement, and also provide a means for students and community leaders to engage in social action regardless of background. All events are free and open to the public.

Please note the following schedule highlights:

Wednesday, April 8
Panel Discussion
7 p.m., Seminary Chapel

Thursday, April 9
Documentary Screening of “The New Jim Crow”
7 p.m., Seminary Chapel

Friday, April 10
University Vespers: Race, Justice and Adventism
7 p.m., Pioneer Memorial Church

Saturday, April 11
Keynote Address: Paul Buckley
4 p.m., Seminary Chapel

The keynote presentation will be followed by breakout sessions at 6 p.m. The breakouts are designed to provide an informal setting to let everyone join the conversation on these important issues. These sessions will explore topics related to race and justice in the U.S., including health outcomes, white privilege, minority youth issues and more.

The Social Justice Summit began in 2012 to bring awareness of current social issues to the graduate students of Andrews University.

Michelle Alexander, associate professor of law at Ohio State University and civil rights advocate, author of “The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Colorblindness,” says, “The fate of millions of people—indeed the future of the black community itself—may depend on the willingness of those who care about racial justice to reexamine their basic assumptions of the role of the criminal justice system in our society” (Alexander, 2009). Regardless of background, issues related to race and injustice have a wide societal impact and should be a concern to members of any community.

The Summit on Social Consciousness is designed to bring both awareness and public education to various subjects through the knowledge of different speakers and the opportunity to serve the surrounding community.

"The hope is," said Lhorraine London Polite, project manager and assistant to the dean in the School of Graduate Studies & Research, "that each year students assume the responsibility as the rightful advocates of those that have no voice. Andrews University seeks to empower students to 'Change the World’” and the summit has become our way to aid the mission as well as to give students the tools they need to succeed.”

Ten Students Help Children Who Have Lost Limbs

On April 12, 2015, ten Andrews University students will participate in the “Running So They Can Stand” marathon, to raise money for children in need of orthopedic care in developing countries. The students have partnered with "A Leg To Stand On" (ALTSO), an organization that has provided free prosthetic limbs, orthotic devices, mobility aids, corrective surgery and rehabilitative care to at least 12,804 children who have lost limbs. Whether by traumatic accident, or if the children are suffering from congenital limb disabilities, ALTSO has worked to serve this need worldwide. Recognizing that they too can help, Andrews students have partnered with ALTSO by agreeing to run in either a half-marathon (13.1 miles), or a full-marathon (26.2 miles), at the Ohio River Road Runners Club.

ALTSo has provided care for children in Asia, Africa and Latin America. They have assisted families who cannot afford the care they need in order to be self-sufficient. The organization has sponsored adolescents and juveniles who may have suffered from diseases, birth defects or war injuries. However, they are incapable to do that work without your support.

In the words of Jennifer Calhoun, one of the marathon runners, "Physical deformities...have limited their mobility to distances that can be hopped, crawled or carried. It doesn't have to be this way forever! Which is why we're using our legs to run for change... literally."

Andrews University has partnered with ALTSo because they are looking for financial sponsors. Support the runners by making a donation today; even the smallest donation helps. A $25 donation provides a clubfoot brace, $100 an orthotic device, $250 a prosthetic limb, and $500 provides corrective surgery. All donations are tax deductible, but donations must be made by April 1. The goal is to reach $5,000 by race day. Make your donation at altso.org/aumarathon.

Readers Theater: "The Great Divorce"

Andrews University's J.N. Andrews Honors Program invites you to attend a free reader's theater production of C.S. Lewis's "The Great Divorce." The presentation will take place on Sunday, April 5, at 6 p.m. in the University Towers Auditorium on the campus of Andrews University. Admission is free and open to the public.

"The Great Divorce," written in 1946, is a short, allegorical novel about a man who finds himself in Hell, only to discover that the damned may take a bus to Heaven, and that anyone who wishes may stay there. What follows is a series of conversations between the ghosts of Hell and the "solid people" of Heaven, exposing the choices that we make toward either of those destinations in our everyday lives.

The performance cast includes Brian Strayer as the narrator, in addition to Keith Mattingly, David Faehner, Frances Faehner, Monique Pittman, Ante Jeroncic, Hyveth Williams, Joseph Greig, Ronald Knott, Zackery Babb and Alejandra Castillo.

This live presentation of reader's theater differs from traditional theater in that the voice, rather than blocking and costuming, carries the drama. The script is read rather than memorized, resulting in a directed, well-rehearsed dramatic presentation.

The production is directed by Olivia Ruiz-Knott in partial fulfillment of her Senior Honors Thesis.

Easter Choral Concert

The Andrews University Singers and Chorale, under the direction of Stephen Zork, will perform their annual Easter concert on Saturday, April 4, at 8 p.m., in the Howard Performing Arts Center. No tickets are required.

The concert will feature the premiere of a choral piece written by Andrews University student and composer Michael Momohara titled, "My Plea." The text of the piece was written by WWII Japanese internment camp survivor Mary T. Matsuzawa.

"Our music will celebrate Christ's healing touch and teaching ministry," says Zork. "Pieces such as 'By Peter's House' by Brad Lehman and 'This House of Peace' by Ralph Johnson express the pathos experienced by Jesus Christ in the events leading up to His death."

The ensembles will also perform "God So Loved the World" by Bob Chilcott, "Crucifixus" by Antonio Lotti, "Prayer of Gratitude & Psalm 150" by Andrew Bleckner (sung in Hebrew and English) and "Gloria Dios" by Ariel Ramirez (sung in Spanish).

Soloists for the event include Charles Reid, tenor; Carrie Vandenburg, soprano; Christina Gibson, flute; and Mowa Mowa, cello.

Day for the Pi
Pi lovers at Andrews University celebrated National Pi Day on Thursday by eating pie. And lots of it. Karen Johnson-McWilliams of the university’s math department said the school provided 25 pies and 64 cheesecake squares, which quickly disappeared.

She said she cut the 8-inch pies into eight pieces and the bigger pies into 16 pieces, which gave her 320 pieces when you add in the 64 cheesecake pieces.

So, how many eight-inch pies did she have?

You do the math.

For most of America, Pi Day is Saturday, when the calendar and clock will combine for two moments to read: 3-14-15, 9:26:53 - or pi to its 10th digit. Andrews celebrated Thursday before classes ended for spring break.

Southwestern Medical Clinic, a Lakeland Health Affiliate, will offer a free seminar for community members, titled "Is It an Addiction, Habit, or Obsession?" The presentation will take place on Tuesday, April 21, from 6–7 p.m. in the Frederick S. Upton Education Center at Lakeland Medical Center, 1234 Napier Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan.

Bradford Wilson, MS, MA, TLPP, and Richard Watson, MA, LPC, LLP, from Southwestern Medical Clinic’s Christian Counseling and Psychological Services will discuss the many forms that addiction can take, including food, gambling, substances, shopping, and even dependence on technology such as mobile devices and social media. The event will include a presentation on the psychological and emotional implications of addictive behavior.

“As technology has evolved, we are able to access virtually anything we want or need through the Internet,” said Rich Watson. “Indirectly or directly, our vulnerability to addiction has never been higher.”

Michiana Adventist Forum
Saturday, April 11, 2015
3:30 p.m., Garber Auditorium, Chan Shun Hall
Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan

Michiana Adventist Forum presents "Conflict as Catalyst—Is a Lawsuit the Best Option?" presented by Deborah Bennett Berecz, collaborative lawyer and mediator.

About the Speaker
Deborah Bennett Berecz is a collaborative lawyer and mediator who practices family law in Berrien and Kent Counties. She is a graduate of Andrews University and of the Notre Dame Law School, where she earned her JD degree.

She has been involved in alternative dispute resolution since 1995, and has served as chair of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Section of the State Bar of Michigan, and as president of the Collaborative Practice Institute of Michigan, the Berrien Association of Mediators, and the Collaborative Divorce Professionals of W. Michigan.

As an adjunct professor at Andrews University she has taught Family Law and Public Policy to master’s level and doctoral students.

About the Topic
Christians are called to love others. But conflict is inevitable as long as people interact with one another. When we've been wronged, there are many options for redress. Some have the potential to heal and achieve meaningful resolution. Others ensure that the battle and resentment rage on for years. Lawyer Deborah Bennett Berecz will share insights regarding creative alternatives when experiencing conflict.

Adventist Forum is open to the public. All are welcome. For information, contact Art Robertson at robertsa2@earthlink.net or call 269-471-7150.
