TWO NEW CHURCHES ORGANISED IN JOINT SERVICE OF DEDICATION

History was made on Sabbath, 22 August 2015 as two new churches were officially organised in a joint service at Bracknell's Garth Hill School. Both Bracknell Ghanaian church and Frimley church were publically organised and recognised in a colourful celebration, as the two church plants dressed in different 'uniforms' to identify their new church families. Mr Isaac Owusu expressed how excited he was to see his fellow Bracknell Ghana church members wearing their uniforms for the first time.

Both churches were started after Reading and Slough Ghana pastor, George Dadey, challenged his congregations to find new places to plant Ghanaian churches within Area Five. Bracknell and Farnborough were then identified as key locations. Whereas Bracknell Ghana grew as planned, it was a struggle to find a suitable venue in Farnborough, and an opportunity in Frimley persuaded the group to move there instead. The Frimley location attracted a multitude of nationalities, and the originally planned Ghanaian church became an international plant instead. They retained a strong Ghanaian emphasis, however, and received continual support from their mother church, Reading Ghana.

Pastor Terry Messenger, South England Conference (SEC) Executive Secretary, conducted the celebratory service marking the official organisation of these two new churches. In his sermon, he spoke of moving from 'Disappointment to Joy', highlighting the importance of remembering how God has led us through difficult times, and how disappointment can turn into joy. He encouraged the congregation to "keep moving, keep going. God is working through you in a magnificent way to win souls. Yes, the road is difficult, but Jesus has gone before us, and victory is assured."

Throughout the service a variety of church choirs blessed the congregation with songs in the Twi language that spoke to the message. 'Fear not, God will be with you' sang the combined mass choir, and later on Reading Choir sang 'It doesn't matter how long it takes, God is going to take you through'. "The choirs were indeed a joyful part of the service", expressed Pastor Kirsten Øster-Lundqvist, SEC Communication and Media director, who was also in attendance.

Representatives from other UK-based Ghanaian fellowships had travelled from London, Manchester and Leeds, and the leader of the European Ghanaian Fellowship (EGACCOM), Pastor Charles Asare Bediako, had flown in from Stuttgart, Germany. Pastor Bediako expressed his hope that the "two new churches would grow, serve each other in humility and serve their communities with love."

Debbie Chengeta of Frimley church shared how, as she listened to the brief histories of each church plant, she was humbled by the commitment, perseverance, and sacrifice of the founding core members and mother churches.

Everyone kept holding on to the 'tokens of hope' that Pastor Messenger spoke about in his sermon, and those glimpses of hope had brought both congregations to this day.

In total, the day entailed six and a half hours of back-to-back church services, from 9:00 am to 3:30 pm, but that time passed quickly for those gathered to celebrate. "I was amazed", expressed Ms Chengeta, "at how people managed to sit through – attentively – the longest church service I have ever witnessed and still look as though they wished for more. Truly, the Spirit of God filled the place. It was a joyous occasion!"

Following the official organisation ceremony, a fundraising service was held. During this service, the visiting churches presented the new churches with financial support. The generosity of other Ghanaian churches, fellowships and individuals saw a total of £17,000 raised for the two new churches. This solid financial base will allow the churches to continue to grow in the areas of evangelism and outreach.
In his message during the afternoon concert, Pastor Sam Davis, SEC President, warmly acknowledged the spirit of giving that exists in the Ghanaian churches, expressing a deep desire to see that same spirit in all of the churches across the SEC.

CHURCH VOLUNTEERS IMPACT EAST KILBRIDE

What do you do when you see a run down looking bit of your town centre? At the East Kilbride Seventh-day Adventist church, members regularly pass by railings between Telford Road and Denholm Crescent. But for them it was not enough just to think "they need a makeover", they decided to take action. They approached South Lanarkshire Council who, they rapidly discovered, were more than happy to provide the paint, equipment, and even some new plants.

Before members even started, the area was power washed by council workmen. Then members scraped, sanded and repainted the railings in the same black and white as had originally been the case. They also replanted a small area with new shrubs.

Volunteers came from London and Glasgow Adventist churches for five days from Monday, 3 August, to help with the project. They included teachers, social workers, NHS staff, musicians and students. They all took some time off to travel to East Kilbride to paint railings in the rain!

The weather was awful but the company was good as local residents took time to stop and chat about both painting and Jesus. Some of the volunteers had never been to Scotland before - the hope is that the weather won't stop them coming again! The project was called 'Impact East Kilbride' but it was not limited to there. Two other teams worked near the Glasgow and Faifley churches throughout the same week.
On Friday the weather improved and local councillor Susan Kerr and her twin daughters joined in. They worked tirelessly for several hours even while the rest of the group took a lunch break.

The East Kilbride church members thank all the volunteers including the organisers, painters, and those who provided lunch. A special thanks also to the folks in the neighbouring flats who brought many cups of tea, cake, cans of juice and chocolates.

An Impact was made on East Kilbride - both physically and with friendships. The members now look forward to some similar challenges in the future.

LOUGHBOROUGH ADVENTISTS LEAD PRAISE AT VILLAGE FETE

A surprise phone call from another Christian led to an invitation: "The Churches in Mountsorrel are planning parts of the village fete. Would you like to join us?"

The invitation led to a meeting and the meeting led to our musicians being asked to be responsible for organising an outdoor Songs of Praise session. This seemed a daunting task at first as most of our musicians are children and they were very nervous about playing outside for a large crowd of people they didn't know.

Sunday, 9 August soon came round. The sun shone and the village was packed for the event. The Songs of Praise was held in the beautiful canal-side garden of the Waterside Inn where hundreds of people were able to hear our music praising God.

Every day throughout the previous week, 52 children, mostly from the village, came to our Holiday Bible Club where they enjoyed sharing in Paul's Adventures. Many of the children then returned with their families to Messy Church on Sabbath and plan to join us on a monthly basis. A number of the children also joined us at the fete on the Sunday, sharing Jesus' love through some of the Bible action songs they had learnt during the week. All wore the T-shirts that they had tie-dyed on the day we heard the Bible story of Lydia, who sold purple cloth.

There are four denominations worshipping in the village, of which Adventists are the newest. Until recently, our contact with all except the Methodists whose church we rent has been limited. This has been a wonderful opportunity to make some new Christian friends who are inspired by our efforts to reach out to local families through Holiday Bible Club and Messy Church and who now support us with their prayers and encouragement.

HEALTH, HAIR AND BREAKFAST FAYRE IN NEWTOWN

Back in April we reported on how Adventist businesswoman Eileen McKenzie organised a fashion event to bring new life into the Newtown, Powys shopping centre where she has her hair salon. On Monday, 24 August 2015 she went a stage further and brought in the Welsh Mission Health Ministries team to support her.

On the day, Eileen moved out of her salon and gave hair plaing demonstrations in a small pavilion just outside, while the health team took over her shop and the café next door. Members of the public were drawn in by free healthy breakfasts in the café and while they were there they were told about the free health checks.

Other business people in the Ladywell shopping centre, including the very friendly butcher, Ian Cooke, joined in with Eileen's programme, offering their own promotions and generally trying to create a buzz on the day.

More than 20 volunteers made up the Adventist team, some coming from as far away as Swansea and Birmingham. Despite a decidedly unsettled forecast the sun came out making it a very pleasant day for all.

Newtown church leader Kenroy McKenzie was delighted with the support of the members and the response from the public. He was particularly grateful to Eileen's business neighbour John, who gave up his café for the day so that the health team could use it.

UNIFIED BY THE CROSS

On Sabbath, 15 August, the Yardley and Bearwood district of churches in Birmingham came together for a special Day of Fellowship. Unity was the feeling of the day as the Seventh-day Adventist church members fellowshipped together – particularly as that fellowship crossed cultural boundaries.

Bearwood church has a membership of mainly Ghanaian background and Yardley church mainly Caribbean. Both churches worked hard to deliver a memorable day that was enjoyed by the congregations of both churches. Yardley was introduced to Bearwood's wonderful way of greeting everyone that attended the service. "There were smiles all around as everyone greeted each other. All were in agreement that they all learned something from each other. The day was the beginning of a future relationship", said district pastor, Pardon Chenjerai.

Dr Lovemore Nganunu gave a fitting sermon about the love of Jesus that was displayed through His suffering on the Cross. The afternoon youth programme reminded the church of the relationship that should exist within families. They may be two distinct churches, but they have one mission – to the glory of God.

HOPE CHANNEL NOW ON SAMSUNG SMART TV

Helping to share the gospel across every part of the British Isles and across Europe, the Adventist Media Centre UK partnered with Germany, Norway and others to develop an app for Samsung Smart TVs allowing owners to easily access the Hope Channel. While the app was developed fairly quickly, it took much longer to get approval from Samsung for its launch – but thankfully they now see the benefits of a very positive 'lifestyle' channel on their platform.

The very attractive and accessible app was launched this week including easy access to the latest UK content 'on demand'. Favourites such as Hope Channel Sabbath School can also be easily accessed.

"We are delighted to be able to extend the reach of Hope Channel in the UK and Ireland", states BUC Communication and Media director, Pastor Victor Hulbert. "We are currently working on a number of initiatives that will make it easier for the public to access Adventist programming, including a hoped for launch on another major IPTV platform in the next couple of months."

Hope Channel is now available in the UK and Ireland via Samsung Smart TVs, Roku, Apple and Android apps on your smartphone or tablet, and via the dedicated website, www.hopetv.uk.

"There are a variety of life-changing programmes on the channel", Pastor Hulbert states, noting that they range from interviews sharing simple concepts of faith, to deeper programmes that lead viewers further down a discipleship track. "The other significant advantage of receiving Hope Channel this way is that it not only gives you control with the 'on demand' programmes, but also gives you a choice of live channels to follow, including the more teaching orientated channel,
"Hope Channel church."

"I bought a Roku box for my mother a couple of years back when Hope Channel switched from satellite to IPTV", states BUC President, Pastor Ian Sweeney. "It was so good that I then went out and bought another one for myself. Jenny and I would both recommend it to you... and I am now delighted that there is now yet another accessible way for the public to watch Adventist TV."

For Pastor Sweeney, the great advantage of the new platforms is the 'on demand' function. "I like Roku because the video on demand library is extensive and you just could not get that feature on satellite." This means he will be even more delighted with the upgraded features on Samsung and the development of yet another platform for hopeful release before Christmas.

SACRIFICE, SERVE & PRAISE

Saturday evening, 22 August saw the first ADRA organised fundraising concert ever, held at the Advent Centre to support the work of the Adventist Development and Relief Agency-UK in its current overseas projects in Zimbabwe, Nepal and Somalia.

There was a tangible buzz of excitement in the air as attendees from Manchester, Nottingham, Bristol, and of course London travelled far and wide to attend what could be described as 'the fundraising concert of the year'. Once the concert began, artistes performed to a sold out venue, the Praise team and house band kicking off the programme, followed by artistes, Amplified Praise, Byron & Co, Josiah 4, The Collective, Bianca Gillin and Matthew Allen. Together they lifted their voices in worship throughout the evening.
This concert also served as an opportunity to explain exactly what ADRA does and who we are, with Bert Smit (ADRA CEO) opening the night, and Sophie Gordon and Howa Avan-Nomayo briefly explaining how we can all Sacrifice, Serve & Praise.

"On behalf of everyone at ADRA-UK we would like to say a huge thank you, as we were able to collect over £500 during the night in a free-will offering", Bert Smit stated. On behalf of the team he also expressed his sincere gratitude in making this very first ADRA-UK concert a success with a special thanks to Ricardo Gillin and his team.

With attendees asking "when is the next ADRA concert?", 'Sacrifice, Serve & Praise' is likely to become an annual event. Visit the ADRA-UK Facebook page to see pictures from the night or ADRA Instagram to view videos captured on the night.

BEARWOOD CHURCH SHARES 'NO WEALTH WITHOUT YOUR HEALTH'

Bearwood Seventh-day Adventist church, Birmingham, hosted its first health expo, themed 'No wealth without your health' at Brasshouse Community Centre in Smethwick on Sunday, 9 August 2015. As part of preparing for the expo, the Health Ministries department offered daily prayers in the week leading up to the expo. Training for the volunteers was conducted by the elder, Noah Naylor. While the expo was scheduled to run from 11 am till 4 pm it continued past closing time due to the many people who kept coming.

The Health Ministries team, joined by some church members arrived to set up by 10 am. The first attendee was already waiting when the expo doors opened at 11 am. Throughout the day there was a steady flow of participants who were keen to know their health age. Sixty people were screened and 25 wish to be contacted for follow-up programmes.

Attendees received advice on site from Dr Lovemore Nganunu, nurses, Pastor Chenjerai and health expo experts Noah and Liz Naylor. The guest of honour was the Mayor of Sandwell, Councillor Barbara Price and Consort Councillor Robert Price. In her speech Mayor Price indicated that she was impressed and that she would accept another invitation in the future.

Following the welcome Mayor Price visited every booth and took a number of health screenings. At one time during the day an exercise routine was demonstrated outside led by Joshua Osei. A number of people joined in. A health quiz game was conducted by Bro Affram for everyone including children, and a lucky few won some prizes.

Community groups that supported the event were Diabetes UK and the Terrence Higgins Trust.

The community of Smethwick really appreciated the expo and many people showed interest in a follow-up expo. Health expos can open opportunities for the church, even in difficult areas.

BUC FINANCIAL REPORTS UPDATE

The British Union Conference is pleased to make public its consolidated financial report in line with its stated trust building values of Competence, Open-Transparency, Reliability and Equity.

The statement includes the combined efforts of the ten entities which operate from the Union office: the Headquarter operation, the Adventist Discovery Centre (ADC), Irish, Scottish & Welsh Missions, ADRA-UK, Stanborough School, the Pension Reserves, the Seventh-day Adventist Association and Trust Company. Separate statements for the North and South England Conferences should also be available. Each entity is subject to its own review which has been completed successively between January and May this year.
The BUC Treasury department intended the work to be finished before the General Conference Session in July, but in the end was slightly delayed by the travels of people during the holiday season. However, we trust that these reports will give confidence to all who have an interest in the workings of our faith community.

In particular we express gratitude to all who support the church, faithfully throughout the year. We wish on them God's promised blessing.

Read the reports and find out more about the Treasury department and its resources by visiting their page on the Adventist Church website.

NEW SERIES ON REVELATION FOR REVELATION TV

While the public continues to enjoy the current 'Animal Encounters' programmes on Revelation TV, a whole new series of programmes on the Book of Revelation has been developed and is ready for launch on Thursday, 1 October.

"Revelation is one of the least understood books of the Bible", states Victor Hulbert, BUC Communication and Media director, who has been an integral part of developing the ten-part series for a UK audience. "The rationale behind 'Arnion' is to develop programmes that look at the 'great themes' in the book and share them in a way that a 21st century viewer can understand." The plan is to introduce them to the joy of the book – which then lead them towards studying it further via a Bible correspondence course and books which will be offered through a dedicated website, www.arnion.uk.
The series is a four-way partnership between the German, Norwegian, Brazilian and UK media centres with the German Stimme-der-Hoffnung (Voice of Hope) studios taking the lead with the script writing and drama production. The UK segments were filmed around the Newbold area using two British hosts who both balance each other and make the programme come alive.

"I love the maturity and measured tones of Newbold lecturer, Robin Anthony, contrasted with the more youthful enthusiasm of Miriam Johnson, daughter of Newbold pastor, Patrick Johnson", enthuses Kirsten Øster-Lundqvist, South England Conference Communication and Media director, who took on the role of director for the UK segments. Hristiyan Demerdzhiev, a recent Film and Media graduate from Teeside University, used his creative genius to film and edit the UK segments. "Chris has a very creative eye", Kirsten stated. "He has a natural flair for bringing out the best, not just in terms of lighting and finding the right settings, but in encouraging Robin and Miriam who donated countless hours on many Sundays to standing in front of the camera and giving their all."

Arnion has already aired on the German Hope channel, but series producer, Wolfgang Schick, states he cannot wait to see how English version of the programme – he was really pleased with the innovation shown in the pilot episode stating, "It looks really tremendous." He agrees with Kirsten and other members of the team from across the world that, "It's wonderful to be able to work in collaboration with other media entities – something that enables us to bring a high quality product to our viewers."

Arnion is not a traditional 'Revelation Seminar', taking instead a more existential approach to the book – something the producers believe will be of appeal within the more secularised mindset of the 21st century. Arnion will first air on Revelation TV and then be available via the various Hope Channel outlets on the web or via Roku, smartphone apps or your Samsung Smart TV. View the trailer here.

Meanwhile, tune into Revelation TV or visit the Hope TV website or Roku for Animal Encounters, back by popular demand. Watch Adventist programming every Thursday night at 8:30 pm or Sunday lunchtime at 1:00 pm. Coming this week:
Thursday 27 August 8:30 pm (repeated Sunday 30 August 1:00 pm). Animal Encounters. Part 9 takes a look at the underwater world of Fish.
