I Am The Church
When Chavez arrived at Union, he knew he loved preaching and basketball. The thought of Greek scared him into studying computers. Mentors—including his basketball coach—helped Chavez take a shot at his dream and switch his major to theology. Now his professors teach him how to give a sermon, and his coaches teach him how to live one.

Dear Youth of Central States Conference,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to Youth Congress 2012 in Denver, Colorado.

The conference theme, I Am the Church, represents how we were made to be connected to God, to the church community, and to serving in the world He loves. Each of you is unique and a special gift to the church.

Elder Hinds and his staff have toiled many hours seeking to make this weekend a blessed event for you. It is their earnest desire, and mine, that as a result of attending, you will leave here renewed in the mission of being transformed and of bringing hope to the world! Let us be known as a Christian community engaging the culture in every arena. Let us build mission outposts for the kingdom of God. Let us call each other to action and commitment. As Christ-followers, we have the highest calling imaginable! So let’s not just go to church, but be the church!

To Him be the glory,

Congratulations on participating in the 2012 Youth Congress event in Denver, Colorado! Back to Basics (B2B) Magazine is for the youth, by the youth. There is no better time than now to get back to the basics in living. We are facing the end, which means that we are too close to lose sight of our goal. God has given us Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth, the Bible. B2B Mag is here not only to inform and inspire, but to also simplify our walk with Christ by providing content that excites and encourages young people, giving you a forum to express yourself.

Central States Conference
Seventh-day Adventist
Crowne Plaza DIA Convention Center
155000 East 40th Ave
Denver, CO 80239

Greetings:

It is my honor to extend a “Mile High” welcome as you gather for your youth and young adult conference in Denver, Colorado. As the future leaders of this community and the country it is exciting to hear that you are embracing the very real topic of “I Am the Church.” You are indeed the church and in today’s society you must have the courage to stand up for what you believe.

The activities that are planned for the next several days are designed to teach, empower and provide practical application of ministry. Random acts of kindness can go a long way in touching people’s lives and showing God’s love.

While you are here, we hope you will have an opportunity to enjoy some of the amenities that Denver has to offer. There are many dining, shopping and entertainment options available to you in the Northfield Stapleton area, just minutes from the hotel.

Once again, welcome to Denver and it is our hope that you will have an enjoyable and informative conference.

Sincerely,

Michael B. Hancock
Mayor

Hi Church,

I am excited that you are here in Denver, Colorado to affirm our theme “I Am the Church.” It is not just a slogan on a t-shirt or backpack and it’s more than just a title for an event.

It is a call. A wake-up call. Like you, there have been times when I have felt like the church is powerless, blind and disengaged from the real world and human needs. But one day God set off an alarm in my head and after coming out of slumber I recognized that I was powerless, blind and disengaged.

We all have a choice; to choose to wake up, stand up, get out and not just ‘come to church’ or ‘have church’ but ‘be the church.’ God has given each of us gifts, talents and things we are passionate about. If we would follow the way God leads, with the strength He gives and serve where He tells us to – at our school, on our jobs and in our communities, THE CHURCH would make a huge impact in the world. So let’s gather tools here to better be the church individually and collectively where we are.

I also write this as my last greeting as Youth Director of this great Conference. It has been one of my greatest blessings to have this opportunity to serve the youth and young adults. You all inspire me, challenge me and from the depths of my heart I love you. YOU ARE THE CHURCH...and I like that....because each of you is so gifted by God. Just let Him use you.

I want to say a great big THANK YOU to all the youth leaders, pathfinder leaders, pastors, administrators, and staff that I have served alongside. Thank you for making the ministry to youth better.

Pray for my family and I as we transition. If we each make a pact to be the church where we are, Jesus will come soon and there will be no more goodbyes...

Yours truly

KIM PEARSON          I Am Talented
Think you’ve got Talent? Are you wondering how to REALLY use your gifts for God? Then this workshop is for you. We’ll get creative & explore what your gifts are and how God wants you to use them to make a difference in your church, community, and yourself. You’ll learn how you can take your Talents from Hobby to Ministry in a BIG way.

PETER CASILLAS    Me, Myself and No One Else…think AGAIN!
Through the lenses of today’s cultures, we explore how the Bible with a similar culture, views God and the Church as an apologetic answer to the questions; Why God? & Why Church? The challenge is not the answer that the Bible provides – but the story and its carrier. Can the carrier become a conductor through which revelation is gained and experienced?

DENIQUE MORRIS     Handling Power Struggles in Church
Feeling frustrated and considering leaving your church? Before you decide to stick it out or jump ship; stop by this interactive workshop. In a small group setting, we’ll discuss how to handle conflicts, re-ignite your passion, and deal with the discouragement that can lead to apathy. Come and be empowered to affect change!

THALIA STEWART        ENVISION-ing
This workshop will explain the main aspects to quality photography. See the world the way God intended, with an eye for beauty in all things. Be one of the designated photographers from this session to photograph the I AM the Church Congress activities, even developing a “mock” magazine/newsletter in the end. MUST HAVE A CAMERA to attend this workshop.

EDDIE HYPOLITE      Conformers and Transformers
Going beyond being in the world, but not of the world – this workshop focuses on the social issues facing Christian young people, especially those that directly affect their faith life. It’s aim is to help young people celebrate faith in a secular post Christian society.

JAIME KOWLESSAR      No Church in The Wild
Is it possible to be a lover of God and a lover of hip hop? Check out this workshop to understand the roots and origins of hip hop culture. Think you’ve heard it all? Think again and learn ways to equip ourselves to make disciples of all people.
DR. LINDSAY MARSH WARREN
Ten Choices To Keep You Out of Trouble

With the rise of experimental behaviors and glamorization of teen pregnancy, this life-changing session is a transparent, real discussion surrounding sexually purity, restoration and making Godly choices in the midst of the sexploitation of our day. Attendees will be challenged to be the ‘STANDARD’, instead of the ‘STATISTIC’. Understand your worth, your value and your covenant swagger. It’s time to be swaggstinent ....because YOU ARE WORTH THE WAIT!

AUDRA MARK WELLS
The Bible, Anthropology, and the Ancient Caveman

God created man in His image; yet, there are bones that show evidence of manlike beasts. There is a plausible explanation for caveman! There is a connection between the Antediluvian scientists and the scientists of today. This presentation shows that evolution is a hoax and that Christ is coming soon!

DEVON FRANKLIN
Produced by Faith

You are the movie. This workshop parallels each step of the Hollywood filmmaking process with the faith-making process God uses to turn your career into a success. You will discover that it is possible to be both wildly successful and completely committed to God—and that you will be even more successful when you place your faith at the center of your career.

LAKETIA CARRELL
Let’s Shape Some Futures

This workshop will teach parents how to shape their child’s future from infancy up. It will give them positive parenting strategies designed to instill Christian character and encourage excellent behavior.

LAKETIA CARRELL
Breaking the Generational Curse of Poverty Mentality

This workshop teaches parents how to promote prosperity thinking in their children. It will teach Biblically based principles of finance. It will also explore irrational beliefs that contribute to living in poverty.

LAKETIA CARRELL
Developing Spirituality in Children and Teens

This workshop will give practical strategies that promote a healthy spiritual relationship in children and teens...without ruining your relationship with them.

LAKETIA CARRELL
Motivating the Unmotivated Teen/Child

This workshop will give practical strategies to motivate unmotivated and uncooperative teens/children. Learn positive parenting strategies, calm communication strategies, and how to deescalate arguments.

Responsibility

Who am I? I am who God says I am. I am a child of the King, so that makes me royalty. No, it’s not vanity, but a responsibility to take good care of me. So what do I do? I eat right and drink plenty of water so my inside will look as good as my outside. It’s not vanity, but I have a responsibility to take care of my temple. It’s just that simple. So I’m not hanging out all times of the night. I’m getting my proper rest so I can win the fight against Satan who wants to steal my mind. Get thee behind me Satan. You’re not my kind. No, it’s not vanity, but a responsibility to take good care of me. So when the cute guys come my way oh Heaven, they say, you’re so cute, you’re so fine, what I gotta do girl to make you mine? I keep my members in check. I’ve just seen too many ladies living a wreck just because they didn’t hold fast to the promise that would last. Is it vanity? No, it’s not vanity, but I have a responsibility to take good care of me.

Heaven Persaud

Music Man Using Satan in Creativity

Music on my iPod I play it everyday. I got music on my phone and it’s on replay. You wanna go Yonkers, better hit up finish line, I’m runnin up to heaven, gotta get there on time. So take care Drake holy hip hop on my mind. Listen up, listen up, I want you all to hear like Kanye West I want Jesus to walk by here. Guard your ears close ya eyes and cover ya mouth. You know we got that fire make you wanna shout. The point of the rhyme to watch what you hear. Because you know the King is near.

Devon Sterling, Travis Turner
There will be days where heaven does not seem so close. When there seems like there’s no hope and your back is hugging the ropes, there will be times when your at your lowest point: Strive.”

-Miles Hodges and Carvens Lissaint

What is your top priority?
Going to College, especially one not in Colorado.

If you knew the world was ending in 2012, what would you do differently?
I would be a lot more honest about how I feel. I bite my tongue a lot because people say it’s good manners and its respectful but sometimes I hold on to things that make me really upset. It just eats at me and that’s not cool to harbor to that anger and they don’t even know it made you upset. So I’m trying to be more honest now.

If you could learn to do anything, what would it be?
Probably dance, I like to think that I can dance but I don’t think really can. Or draw.

When you have 30 minutes of free-time, how do you pass the time?
I would remake a song on the piano or write something.

Have you ever had something happen to you that you thought was bad, but it turned out to be for the best?
I always thought I was missing out on something by not going to homecoming, so this year I went and realized it’s the most grotesque thing I’ve ever witnessed and not going before was such a blessing. The scene was just caustic, my eyes are still burning.
What’s the hardest thing you’ve ever done?
Me and my grandfather had the same birthday. So I feel like I had a special connection to him. He died about a month before our birthday my freshman year and everything happened really fast and sporatic, it just was a lot for me to handle. My emotions were really erratic that by the time of the funeral, I just didn’t want to mourn him anymore. I was tired of crying I just wanted to send him off with a serene feeling. I tried not to cry that day and that was the hardest thing I’ve ever done. Looking back, I don’t really know why I did it.

What was the last experience that made you a stronger person?
Performing a piece in class that talked about what it’s like to a girl and what it’s like to be black in a room full of my peers. It was just a real truth moment in my life because people always ask me what’s it like to go to a pretty colorless school and I tried to express it in the best way i knew how.

What’s the #1 most played song on your iPod?
The Heart pt. 2 by Kendrick Lamar and That Power by Childish Gambino

I AM THE CHURCH

So me and my friend were messing around one day and were doing poetry to piano and it sounded pretty good, so now we plan do that sometimes at our sabbath school or for our concerts. We also collaborated our talents for a concert that raised money for the street boys of Sudan. I also like putting on poetry nights and socials just to bring us together to fellowship as teens and hang out and chill.

I’m working to make a video ministry because I feel technology disseminates faster and will reach more people more effectively.

IGen (Impact Generation) has given me a lot of the tools and ideas for my ministry. They really trained me how to lead and think of out of the box ministries that can bring people in the church and our community together.
What is your top priority?
My education in education, so I can work in the field of education in order for more youth to be educated.

If you knew the world was ending in 2012, what would you do differently?
I would read my bible more and not procrastinate.

If you could learn to do anything, what would it be?
I would learn how to sing and play all the instruments in the world. Then I would be rich and famous for singing and playing all the instruments in the world. Then I would start a school on how to sing and play all the instruments in the world. Then people would visit my memorial in the Kansas City Jazz Museum and it would say, “The only man that sung and played all the instruments in the world. And, he was black.”

When you have 30 minutes of free-time, how do you pass the time?
I either browse the web, run, work on poetry or eat. I mostly eat.
When I was just a little toddler, I was in the car with my Nanna in the passenger side. At some point I must've been looking up in the clouds. Then I turned to Nanna and said, “Nanna. Is God in the clouds?” She said, “Yes He is.” I continued to look in the clouds confused. Then I asked, “Well why doesn’t He fall out?”

I climbed a volcano this year that erupted in 1999. It’s elevation is 2,388 feet (we traveled a bit further considering we hiked diagonal). But, the most difficult thing about this climb was that, with every step you took, your foot would slide back a few inches because of the volcanic rocks. Nevertheless, we made it to the top and saw an ounce of God’s glory.

What was the last experience that made you a stronger person?

Serving in the area that had the volcano (Nicaragua). I learned a lot about myself and what privilege really is. It’s not wealth, education, access to good health care or being white. God will provide your needs, wisdom and health regardless of who you are. Privilege actually, according to my experience, is being able to find a lot of time to be present and with God. Money can’t give you a better feeling. (Privilege is being able to believe that.)

I'm also working on a book or CD of poetry I'm going to call "unmanufactured." In short, these songs/poems urge society to love and believe in the way God created them and fall out of love and belief in the way that popular culture has manufactured them.

Right now I'm working on a video project for youth congress that peeks into the lives and minds of some individuals who are doing a lot for their churches and communities. Hopefully, it will inspire other youth to claim their identity as "the church" so they can also spiritually enhance their environments.

Church is Bigger Than the Church

Aaron Niequist

Why ministry doesn’t begin and end with the pulpit.

For the last 35 years, one of the most anthemic phrases around my church is this one: “the church is the hope of the world.” I couldn’t agree more. The Almighty God is actively healing and redeeming the entire world, and doing it primarily through human beings who are willing to offer themselves to this movement.

You can be God’s hands and feet as you teach middle school math.
You can be a part of God’s Movement of grace while wearing your blue Best Buy shirt.
You can help heal the world as you bag groceries.

The same can be said for those who are employed by a church.

But the opposite can also be true. You can hide from God as you wait tables, and you can hide from God while preaching sermons. The scriptures remind us that “People look upon the outside appearance, but God looks at the heart.”

So if you are a pastor or church-worker, please continue to pour out your heart and life for your community, but let’s not think of ourselves more highly than we ought.

And if you don’t work at a church, please continue to pour out your heart and life for your community, and take your calling to ministry very seriously. The world desperately needs each one of us.

God has invited every person to join His work of redemption - whether we’re wearing a clerical collar or an orange construction vest.

So for all of us who pastor, lead, and work at churches, here’s the question that keeps me up at night: How can we help foster this reality? What kind of church trains and launches people into the ministry of their every day lives, and what kind of church trains and retains people to receive the ministry of the church? This is obviously a huge question – and I don’t claim to be a church leadership expert in any way – but I can’t shake this thought:

I am way more compelled by a church OF the people than a church FOR the people. Church as a movement rather than an institution. A church created by the people rather than consumed by the people.

A few examples…

In a church FOR the people, worship means: Come hear our most gifted artists provide a worship experience that will inspire and bless you. When it’s done, you’ll want to give them a round of applause and thank God for giving such great gifts.

In a church OF the people, worship becomes: Prayerful, intentional space that empowers the people to co-create a worship experience – both as individuals and as a body, both at home and when together. The church helps people connect with God and each other, and then gets out of the way.
In a church FOR the people, evangelism means: Bring your friend to church to hear the pastor explain the truth to them. It exports evangelism to the expert, and often reduces the sweeping Story of God to presented information.

In a church OF the people, evangelism becomes: Training up disciples and launching them out to serve the world and share their story…and helping foster a community so alive and beautiful that people can’t wait to join.

In a church FOR the people, mission means: Give your money to the church so it can take care of the poor. You write a check and they’ll take it from there.

But in a church OF the people, mission declares: “No one knows the poor in your town better than you. Let us help you serve them. And if you don’t know the poor in your town, following Jesus means that you’ll need to make some changes. Please let us help you humbly engage, learn from, and serve the poor in your town.”

Obviously, these are exaggerated examples for clarity. Most churches I’ve been a part of are both, but tend to lean one way or the other. And it’s my personal hope that this year, every faith community will inch a bit more in the Church OF the People direction – developing and unleashing the supernatural potential of every woman, man, and child.

And this year I commit to humbly and constructively use any opportunity I’m given to help and get swept up in this Movement. What an honor and responsibility it is for every single one of us to be the potential hands and feet of God!

So Christ himself gave the apostles, the prophets, the evangelists, the pastors and teachers, to equip his people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God and become mature, attaining to the whole measure of the fullness of Christ. (Eph 4:11-13)

PURPOSE BY DESIGN

It’s really very simple
My body is His temple
So when you deal with me
Remember I’m sacred and holy
You can’t just step to me any kind of way
You better have something of substance to say
Don’t step to me with all that vain repetition
Because I guarantee that won’t get you any attention
Respect my value
Recognize my beauty
Honor who I am
And walk softly in my sanctuary

Date Night with God
I put it on my calendar, said that I’d call.
Told him I was sick, that’s not true at all.
Limiting our relationship, I stood him up last week.
Went to his house today, but we still didn’t speak.
I know I shouldn’t cheat, but Satan is so tempting.
He helps me make up all these excuses I’m inventing.
Preventing me from enjoying my date night with God.
Applauding me for all my deception and my fraud.
So we broke up, then I woke up.
And I spoke up to my first love.
He forgave me, then saved me,
And erased me of my thirst of,
The world and its imperfections.
He is the fine tuner.
Now everyday I pray that date night will come sooner.

GAMERS
Hey DayDay put down that game and let’s go shoot some hoop.
I’m on level ten about to win the Loopty Loop.
Let’s get some real action to keep our bodies strong.
Video games all day, man that’s just wrong.
You’re fryin’ your brain, gain insane and getting fat.
But look Willie can’t you see where I’m at?
I can’t stop! I really tried. I think I’m hooked!
Have you tried praying to God, reading His Book? Our bodies are His Temple, He’ll help you win this fight. OK. I don’t like basketball, but let’s go ride our bikes.

Rethink God.

Willie Vinson, Deleion Whitcomb-Powell

It’s really very simple
My body is His temple
So when you deal with me
Remember I’m sacred and holy
You can’t just step to me any kind of way
You better have something of substance to say
Don’t step to me with all that vain repetition
Because I guarantee that won’t get you any attention
Respect my value
Recognize my beauty
Honor who I am
And walk softly in my sanctuary

Date Night with God
I put it on my calendar, said that I’d call.
Told him I was sick, that’s not true at all.
Limiting our relationship, I stood him up last week.
Went to his house today, but we still didn’t speak.
I know I shouldn’t cheat, but Satan is so tempting.
He helps me make up all these excuses I’m inventing.
Preventing me from enjoying my date night with God.
Applauding me for all my deception and my fraud.
So we broke up, then I woke up.
And I spoke up to my first love.

Faith Without Works Is Dead...
It Ultimately Comes Down To
Do You Believe?

That is the Moral of Jesus.
Can you enjoy real success without compromising your beliefs and what you know to be true? We caught up with DeVon Franklin, author of Produced by Faith, to learn about his inspiring story of how he stepped out on faith. It’s time to decide. Do you believe?

By Brittany Winkfield

One of the main stories DeVon Franklin tells in his book, Produced by Faith, is about 10 years ago when he was working for Overbrook Entertainment, Will Smith’s company. DeVon interned for Will his entire college career and, upon graduation, worked for Will’s manager for a year and a half. It was at this time that DeVon was hoping to make the jump from assistant to executive. He found himself frustrated and depressed because he thought he was going to get promoted to become an executive, but unfortunately that did not happen due to major cutbacks. 10 years ago DeVon was trying to figure out how he was going to get to the next level. Feelings of anger and disappointment entered in because of the reality of the situation.

One day Franklin came into the office and was so distraught. He tells the story of how he went to the bathroom and really prayed to God. He said “God you have to get me out of here today. Anything I ask for in the name of Jesus you said you would do. In the name of Jesus you have to do something on this job today because I don’t really know what I’m supposed to do.” Later on that evening his boss called him in his office and says “Look, we wish we could help you, but we can’t because the company is not set up that way.” His boss offered to assist DeVon in his job search. Will Smith himself even offered to help. He set DeVon up with his agent and he sent him on some interviews, but nothing happened.

With so much uncertainty and no direction, DeVon attended Bishop T. D. Jakes’ service in LA. He preached a sermon called “Turning the Page.” Bishop Jakes illustrated the story at the end of Deuteronomy after Moses died and the Israelites are mourning. DeVon remembers Bishop Jakes explaining that when you turn the page, at the beginning of Joshua, God tells the Israelites, you have to get up and go to the promised land. “That really motivated me because I was mourning my job and that job was not coming back,” explains Franklin. That pivotal moment motivated DeVon to go in the following week and turn in his two weeks notice. He had to step out on faith and said “Lord, I don’t know where the next job is coming from, but I’m going to turn the page on my situation and step out on faith and have the courage to trust you.” People didn’t understand what he was doing. Through fasting and prayer, DeVon really wanted God’s will in his life and believe what He was doing in his life.

DeVon left his job unemployed. The following Monday he received a call from Tracey Edmonds. He started working for Edmonds Entertainment as a junior executive in Development literally the following week. “It’s amazing to me to see God really work, and when we put Him to the test, He really works!” “It was a very valid lesson to me that faith was going to be the thing to make a difference in my career and I had to get used to living a life of faith.”

Not being afraid to step out and sometimes do things that traditionally seem to not make sense, but spiritually they make absolute sense, is DeVon’s message to young people. The goal for his work is to touch as many people as possible. “There is this “fear factor” embedded in us,” says DeVon. “When you live in fear, by definition, fear is the hindrance. So we are raising a generation of young people that are hindered. Instead of teaching them the power of faith, we instill in them the power of fear.” God says that I created you to do this and I put this dream in your heart and the only way you can get there is through faith. In the book of Timothy, Paul says the Lord did not give us a spirit of fear, but of love…and a sound mind. Franklin’s mission is to encourage this generation that you cannot live in fear. You cannot let people tell you what you can and can’t do. God is the only person who has a determination on your destiny. “You have to step out more, you have to trust your instincts more and you have to listen for His voice more. Faith without works is dead. You have to put works behind your faith and it ultimately comes down to do you believe? That is the moral of Jesus,” explains Franklin. All of the healing that Jesus did predominately focused on belief according to your faith. Those ideas are still relevant to us in this generation.

DeVon has a message to the new generation of young leaders: “Being Adventist is not a negative. Being Adventist is an asset. Being in the word, having a relationship with God, observing the Sabbath, are all things that are keys to your destiny. We happen to have a tremendous word and we need to learn how to apply that word to our everyday lifestyle. These principals will help us navigate through difficult situations. We have to look at it as a competitive advantage not as something that is keeping us from where God wants us to go. There are no limits as long as you put God’s will for your life first. You must want what He wants for you. I have faith in this generation. They really have the opportunity to overcome what could be pitfalls, because God has put in place the right people who can lead this generation.”
I Am The Church
Sometimes you think it’s other people’s responsibility “I am the church” says this is me and if I don’t do what I’m supposed to do, there is no church. When you say I am something it’s an identity you take accountability for taking ownership of the faith. It’s empowering.

LOVE
When two people come to an understanding about their view on God, that’s where love starts and that is the foundation from which a healthy relationship can grow.

What wakes you up in the morning?
The practical and realness of it is, I have to be at the office. I have a job. There’s an expectation and there is work to do. If I don’t do it, it won’t get done.

LIFE
Life is good. Get out there and live your life! Life experience is one of the most important things you need to be successful.

Things you do for fun
Truthfully I don’t have much downtime. Between the preaching schedule, book signings, executive schedule and personal life, downtime is my personal life, which is not a lot. I try to relax. I like going to movies as recreation. Also travel and reading.

What’s up next
Sparkle is the movie I’m finishing up now. I can quote almost line for line. I’ll continue to make movies and write books, which I’m excited about.
Chaperone Guidelines

1. All chaperones must be at least 21 years of age or older.

2. You are to provide 24 hour supervision over your delegates.
   You need to know where they are at all times.
   As far as possible, maintain visual contact with your delegates.

NBC’s “The Voice” is one of the latest, and some would argue, the best singing competition show on television. Some say this because of the process of how contestants are chosen: the judges sit with their backs to the contestants while they perform. They are not permitted to see them. And if a particular judge likes what they hear, they can opt to accept the contestant by turning around. This ‘blind audition’ concept is amazing! People are not judge based on their looks, but purely on the “Voice.”

The beginning of Acts 2 is a little like “The Voice”, only here we see the inner workings of how these Christ-follower-contestants got their “Voice” in the first place. The picture is painted of the disciples and other followers praying hard in the upper room, and while praying they cleared the air with one another- forgiving and getting on the same page. Then something amazing happened. The Holy Spirit came “like a violent wind” and rested in them and on them...fire. Now we get to the fun part where we get to break the scene down. The Spirit blows in the room, and then they go out into the community to share Christ. It’s almost as if the Spirit blew in the room to ‘blow them out’ into the world to make a difference. Jesus promised this would happen when he said “you will be my witnesses...to the uttermost parts of the world” Acts 1:8.

Our theme “I am the Church” is grabbing hold of that upper room moment. We have come to Denver from near and far to be together. To be more passionate followers. To know Him better, and to do His will in relevant ways. The Spirit is willing to blow into your life. Rearrange your ‘stuff’ and blow you out into the world to make a difference.

When they were blown outside, they noticed that they had a new “Voice” (something to say, and a new way of saying it!). The thousands gathered were amazed. They said “how is it that each of us hear them in his own native language?” The Spirit gave the disciples the ability to talk about Christ in a manner that people best understood. As a result, many people turned around from living without Christ to loving Him. They were speaking God’s language in their own words and that helped people to choose Christ. God challenged us to go out to minister to people too, and its only while we are listening to Him that we realize that God has given us a “Voice.” A voice fit for the time at hand. Jesus makes us relevant. He gives us the ability to relate to people in ways they best understand. So don’t be afraid of what you’re going to say.

I can only imagine that they apostles and others were shocked at what was happening to them, through them. Up until this time, speaking up for God was something only the priest, rabbis, prophets and teachers would do, but with them God switched the game up. Now anyone with a willing heart could be used! This is the only way the world got to know Him then, and the only way it’s going to get to know Him now.

I get excited thinking about this first “I am the Church” movement we see in Acts. They went from a group in a room one day, to people coming into the Church daily. This was a powerful scene. The Lord showed me that the Church has always grown fastest and greatest when it was outside of a building. It grew most when the focus was outside instead of inside. Just maybe Jesus is trying to get us to do the same thing, to move outside of our comfort zone, and into the crisis areas where people are hurting.

Youth Congress this year wanted to break the mold by doing something drastic, something groundbreaking, and this 'something' was getting back to the Bible. Hence our theme "I am the Church". As I think about that powerful theme, I realize that we as young people are 'The Church', we don't just go to one. And since this is true, we have to get busy. We have to come up with a Game Plan to give "Church" a face-lift, or some swag. Because to be quite honest, the regular church as we know it has lost some swag (well let's just be blunt, it's absolutely 'swagless', lol). "I am the Church" is translated to "You are the Church"

Let’s do something bold and radical. Let’s break the rules and get out there, making a statement, starting a movement! Like some of the older folks say, 'it’s better to have tried, than to have not have tried at all.” Follow me with this thing the Lord hit me with.

During Youth Congress and in the few days right afterward:

Connect with Like-minded People.
Find a few friends in your group or city that are actually down with the idea of a movement. We will be starting this Game Plan from scratch, so you have to get people that are interested in coming up with ideas and accomplishing the goals we set. Make sure you have someone good at logistics, like calling the group, setting up meetings, emailing the ideas and updates, facebooking, tweeting and ordering pizza- can't forget that.

Come up with a Plan to Help People
The Game plan is about us doing good for other people. When the "I am the Church" movement started in the book of Acts they did two simple things:
1. They helped people to know who Jesus really was and
2. Helped people live a better life, meaning they fed the hungry, took care of poor widows, visited prisoners, sacrificed their stuff for those who didn't have, the list goes on and on.
We can do the same thing. So in this next step you will gather with your team, pray and find out a couple of things you would like to do to help people.

Team up with Local People
Once we have connected our hearts to a plan to help people, we're going to need to team up with local people. God always blesses us with people who can help us accomplish His goals (Read Nehemiah chap 1 & 2 if you don't believe me). First, go to your parents for help. They love to see us doing good for God. Second, go to your youth leader and Pastor. They too would love to help. Third, see if there are any organizations in the community already doing similar things to what you have in mind. They can offer advice, donate funds, or team up with you. Teamwork makes the Dreamwork.

Go out and Reach the People
Now comes the fun part. Once we have connected with people and came up with a 'Helps' game plan by teaming up with local people, it’s time to reach the people. We are moving outside the four walls, disturbing our comfort zone, going into the great unknown to reach someone who needs Jesus and a helping hand.

Some Pointers, stay consistent with the dates you set, keep safety in mind, and trust that God is with you. And should you need any help at any time, the youth ministries team at Central States Conference will be more than happy to coach you along.

SN: Notice that when you go out to reach people, there will hardly ever be a big crowd with you. Jesus didn’t have big numbers with him, just 12 people!
