Fill out the survey, enter drawing for iPad

By Dave Gemmell

Several hundred have taken the survey but we'll leave it open a few more days for those of you who haven't yet had a chance.

Pastor, would you be willing to assist your pastoral colleagues in the NAD by taking about twenty minutes of your time to fill out an online survey where you can give us feedback on our "Pathways to Effective Ministry" initiative? As a thank you for completing the survey, your name will be entered into a drawing for an iPad.

Dear Pastor,

Would you be willing to assist your pastoral colleagues in the NAD by taking about twenty minutes of your time to fill out an online survey where you can give us feedback on our "Pathways to Effective Ministry" initiative? As a thank you for completing the survey, your name will be entered into a drawing for an iPad.

Professions from physicians to plumbers are discovering that there are core competencies unique to their trade which help define their vocation. As pastors we have long known about our special ‘calling’ and the skills and gifts that are needed for our ministry. But what are the core competencies that make us effective pastors? Over the last two years NAD Ministerial and the NAD department of assessment have been seeking answers to those questions from pastors, administrators, ministerial directors, elders and religion professors. Your responses have helped us produce a working draft of seven core competencies each with several descriptors.

At NAD Ministerial we are creating architecture for pastoral development that will cover all of the milestones in ministry from initial call all the way through retirement in order to continually improve our core competencies.

Again, on behalf of all of the pastors in the North American Division, we thank you for your participation.

Blessings!

Dave Gemmell, D. Min.
