I just returned from Strasburg, Pa., where we experienced a spiritually refreshing weekend. More than 300 local church leaders, along with their pastors, gathered for inspiration, training, and to celebrate the Pennsylvania Conference’s annual Hispanic Lay Festival.

The testimonies of lay missionaries like Dinorah Peña were the best part. She and her husband, Wilfredo, were baptized in 2004; their miraculous journey to our church is amazing. The short version is that she went to the Dominican Republic to die because of a serious illness. On her deathbed she promised to serve the Lord if He would heal her. “But please guide me to Your true church because I don’t know how to find it,” she prayed.

After her miraculous healing, she moved to Reading, Pa. Her prayers were answered when Julio and Jaqueline Narvaez, a faithful Adventist couple, moved in next door. They invited her to some of the special events at their church, but she refused to accept for fear of becoming part of a cult.

One day Jaqueline showed her how the Bible answers our inquiries. From that moment, Dinorah became an insatiable student of Scripture. After months of daily and intense Bible studies she asked for baptism. On February 14, 2004, she was born again and since that time has become a very successful soul winner. If somebody dares to get in her way, she will do everything to share Jesus with them.

At the recent festival where I met her, Dinorah brought Maria Alvarez and her young daughter.

Maria is one example of how Dinorah’s passion for Christ enables her to use every opportunity to win souls. One day Maria went to Dinorah’s house and asked her to watch her daughter while she went to a doctor’s appointment. Dinorah was apprehensive, but realized that God may have brought Maria’s request for a purpose. “Lord,” she prayed, “I promise that I won’t stop until [Maria] becomes your disciple.” Six months later Maria gave her heart to the Lord and was baptized. She is one of 13 people Dinorah has brought into the Adventist Church.

What could happen? Could it be that passion is one of the most important elements needed to complete the work the Lord has entrusted to us? What could happen if every believer (members and leaders alike) became a burning light filled with Jesus’ love for the lost, like Dinorah? The reality is that only six percent of church leaders confess to being passionate about their ministry.1

Christianity was founded on the greatest passionate act—self-sacrifice. Church history shows that this same passion was the key behind the early church success, the revivals, and the reformation. What moved our pioneers was their passion to encounter the Lord and prepare people for His second coming.

I strongly believe the gospel will be preached to all and the great commission accomplished by men and women filled with Jesus’ passion for the lost. Are you one of them?

Virginia Tech Students Pray After Massacre

In the wake of the massacre that killed nearly three dozen students and teachers and shook the campus of Virginia Tech, in Blacksburg, Va., Adventists gathered to pray for those affected and thank God for His protection. The prayer meeting was organized by Friends Adventist Christian Fellowship, an official campus ministry led by Sylvia Grove, a student and member of the Radford (Va.) church. Students from Virginia Tech and nearby Radford University and New River Community College, were joined by members and pastors from area Adventist churches. This photo was taken by Christopher Rawlins and captures the spirit of those in attendance.

Washington Adventist Hospital to Relocate

Adventist HealthCare (AHC) recently purchased land to relocate Washington Adventist Hospital (WAH), as part of its Vision for Expanded Access initiative. WAH’s new home will be located near the White Oak section of Maryland’s Montgomery County, approximately six miles from its current site in Takoma Park. The 48-acre site, off Plum Orchard Drive and Cherry Hill Road, will be accessible from Route 29 and the Capital Beltway. When planning for its future site—a process that will take several years—WAH officials will continue to make investments and purchase new equipment for the current 285-bed facility. “Maintaining an outstanding level of quality care and service remains a priority for everyone,” said hospital president Jere Stocks.

Founded in 1907 as the Washington Sanitarium with proceeds from Ellen White’s book The Ministry of Healing, the facility was on the underdeveloped outskirts of the nation’s capital. “Today, Montgomery and Prince George’s counties are first and second in terms of Maryland population,” says Stocks. “Times have changed and Washington Adventist Hospital must change as well.” William G. “Bill” Robertson, president and CEO of Adventist HealthCare, agrees. “We cherish our 100-year tradition of playing an integral role in the region’s healthcare safety net.”

Mountain View Evangelism Initiative Begins

About 35-40 nightly guests stopped by the Brier Inn, in Lewisburg, W.Va., for a two-week seminar series recently. Coordinated by the Lewisburg Adventist Church, this event kicked off the Mountain View Conference’s “Tell the World—Tell Them Now” cooperative evangelism initiative. Dave Weigley, Columbia Union Conference president, was the speaker for this inaugural session. “Our goal was to create a network of quality interests that the pastor and laypeople can nurture and guide to make decisions for baptism,” Weigley says. “After being introduced to the Sabbath at the meetings, a few of those interests came to church. By the end of the series, six indicated their desire to be baptized.”

Throughout 2007-2010, each of the Columbia Union’s remaining seven conferences have committed to sponsor evangelism programs in Mountain View. To view a video about the initiative, visit www.columbiaunion.org.

New Jersey Satellite Series Reaps Harvest

“Tell it to Your World: The King is Coming” was the theme of a Church Services in New Jersey Satellite conference in 2007, the Hispanic evangelism component of the NET satellite series. The two-week event originated from the New Jersey Conference and was aired around the world on the Esperanza and 3ABN television networks and some radio stations. At the uplink site in Vineland, N.J., more than 200 people were baptized during the series, preached by José Cortés (above, right), executive secretary for the Conference. “The people didn’t want the meetings to stop. They said, ‘Let’s keep going for another week,’” he reports. “It was a beautiful experience watching them accept Jesus.”

In spite of competition from the weather—it was the first beautiful Sunday this spring—Chesapeake delegates packed the Spencerville church in Silver Spring, Md., last month, for their Second Quinquennial Session. Conference president Rob Vandeman welcomed nearly 500 delegates with a challenge: “We come together today to do serious work. We come in confidence that God is in control and that He will see to it that decisions made today will continue to move forward His work in this territory,” he said.

In his president’s report, Vandeman asked three questions: Where have we been? Where are we now? Where are we headed? He shared highlights of the conference agenda since 2002 and then cast some of his vision for the conference’s future. The delegates sent a strong statement of affirmation for conference leadership and for the direction the conference is headed by returning all three officers.

In addition, they voted several significant changes to their bylaws: The midterm meeting will be replaced by a series of district town hall meetings. The K-12 Board of Education’s bylaws were rescinded; it will now fall under the direct authority of the Conference Executive Committee with terms of reference. The Conference Executive Committee was enlarged from 19 to 21 members.

The following two recommendations were also approved for further study with proposals to be brought back to the next regular (or specially convened) constituency meeting:
1. To investigate the possible merger of the Conference (the ministry focus) and the Association (the corporation) into one entity.

2. To study the possible collaboration between Highland View Academy (HVA) and Mt. Aetna Elementary School in developing a K-12 program with a board component. “The likelihood of this merger is uncertain at this time and will be to an important degree based upon HVA’s ability to maintain or increase its dormitory enrollments,” Vandeman told delegates.

Music > Sam Darby - “Come on up a Little Higher” (Inspirational Poetry)
Sam Darby thinks there’s too much negativity in the world. So through his third CD (with 17 poems), underscored by inspirational Christian jazz, he attempts to infuse listeners with positive vibes. “People don’t hear enough positive messages; the average person’s self-talk is 87 percent negative,” says this longtime educator and member of Allegheny East’s Pine Forge (Pa.) church. “I want to present positive messages of personal power to propel people past perceived potentialities.”
If the mantra-like poem “You Can do It,” doesn’t motivate you, maybe “You’re a Winner” or “Victory’s Just Around the Corner” will pick you up. Using personal experiences and Bible passages like Romans 7 and Psalm 52, Darby’s desire is to share messages of redemption and salvation. Learn more about his unique ministry and order his inspirational poetry CDs at www.deepvoice.net.

Technology > Bruce Cameron - GoBible.org
Each week 26,000 people access Bruce Cameron’s Bible study outlines in eight languages to teach Sabbath School classes or gain a better understanding of the Adult Sabbath School Quarterly. “I have also had pastors of other faiths tell me they use my outlines, and one Baptist pastor reported using them for Wednesday night prayer meeting,” says Cameron, a renowned religious liberty litigator and head elder/lapastor of Potomac’s Manassas (Va.) church.
In 1975 Cameron started teaching Sabbath School and wrote outlines for his class. At the dawn of the computer age, he started typing them. With the help of his technologically savvy son Blake, who was 10 at the time, “I taught my class using the computer screen as a kind of ‘teleprompter,’” he recalls. In 1996 the duo started publishing the outlines on the Internet at www.goBible.org where users can access them—and a number of sermon outlines—for free.

Whole Health
Are You a Health News Junkie?
In today’s culture of information overload, we are exposed daily to a plethora of health news in magazines, newspapers, radio, television, billboards, and the Internet. Oftentimes the messages conflict or even change from week to week. We feel like the patient in a health cartoon by Randy Glasbergen whose physician advises, “I want you to follow a healthy lifestyle—whatever the experts say that is this week.”
Many healthcare leaders recognize that this overload of information can be just as dangerous as ignorance. We have become health news junkies who quip the latest research, but never act on the information. Or, confused and overwhelmed, we give up trying to make healthy choices altogether. As a result, we still have tremendous health problems.
Knowledge alone doesn’t change behavior. The key is in personal reflection and application. Next time a piece of health information catches your attention, take a few minutes to ask yourself: How relevant is this to my? How can I integrate this into my lifestyle? What small step could I take today? Don’t be satisfied gathering more and more information. Do something with it!—Lilly Tryon, MSN, RN, Adventist WholeHealth

In the Spotlight > Nichole Delafield-Bromme
Nichole Delafield-Bromme is a Seventh-day Adventist fashion designer with her own label. Her degree in fashion design from the University of Maryland taught her about the industry, while work with a bridal designer and children’s wear company helped solidify her interest in the field. Though it’s not a typical career for Adventists, Delafield-Bromme uses her connections to witness. “Customers are always aware of my Christianity by how and when I do business and how I present my clothing and shows,” says this member of Potomac’s Vienna (Va.) church. “I’ve had many opportunities to say, ‘I am a Seventh-day Adventist Christian.’ This opens the door for questions and conversations.”

The door opened for Delafield-Bromme 12 years ago when, during a buying trip to New York City, she invested in silk painting supplies. The experiments that followed led to her trademark hand-painted silk separates, which she originally created for women. At fashion shows in local hotels and restaurants, she made contacts and sold from a sample collection. Then for about three years, she sold items by request only, in order to spend more time with her children—Max (8), Juliet (6), and Leif, a newborn.
Today her label, which targets children, is available online at www.nicholedelafield.com and www.delakids.com. “I contract seamstresses for sewing orders and do all the hand-painted work myself,” she says. The T-shirts, skirts, bags, belts, and other accessories are embellished with French silk paint. When she’s not working on the clothing line, Delafield-Bromme serves as art teacher and home and school leader at Vienna Adventist Academy.

What You Bring to the Table
What You Bring to the Table

Web Watch
www.operationglobalrain.com
Imagine what could happen if all churches in North America petitioned the throne of God at the same time, for the same thing. Then imagine the entire global church praying at the same time for the same thing: the outpouring of the latter rain. Hence, Operation Global Rain! Pray for “rain” June 27–July 7.
Due to difficulty in crossing the Allegheny Mountains, the main route passed through Johnstown, where the trains picked up “helper” engines to aid in pulling the load over the mountains. History records May 1889 as the very wettest month on record at that point. And right after the Memorial Day parade, the rains started again in earnest. In fact, the wet weather system seemed to stall over this area. The old city of Johnstown was located in a valley surrounded by mountains, with two rivers flowing through the city. An empty bucket set outside on the night of May 30 contained eight inches of water the next morning, and it was still raining.

As White and McEnterfer traveled toward Pennsylvania, they had no idea what was taking place in Johnstown—at least there seems to be no record of a divine revelation to White.

“One Big Push”

Johnstown had suffered many floods throughout its history, but in 1889 another peril—the South Fork Dam—presented itself.

By Friday morning, the dam, located on top of one of the mountains near Johnstown, had risen two feet and was continuing to rise at the rate of 10 to 12 inches per hour. South Fork was originally built and used by the railroad, but for many years it sat idle. It was sold and resold, and finally became the property of the South Fork Hunting and Fishing Club, an aristocratic resort for the wealthy in 1879. The owners had started repairing the dam, but, unfortunately, used inferior materials such as hay, leaves, manure, and whatever they could find. Some safety features, such as...
as the iron sluice pipes, had been removed and were not replaced. They also installed wire fencing at the overflow to keep the fish from escaping, and this caused clogging. Johnstown residents knew about the shoddy workmanship and complained, but nothing was done. After awhile they forgot about the danger.

Then came the heavy rains of 1889. The water began to rise perilously. On Friday morning, a few men at the dam saw that it would soon break. One man hopped onto a horse and rode to the nearest telegraph office. History records that three different messages were telegraphed to Johnstown. But those who saw the alerts did not take them seriously and failed to spread the alarm. No doubt they recalled previous warnings about the dam when no break had ever occurred.

At 3:15 p.m., one end of the dam gave way. “The dam did not break,” observes a writer. “It simply moved away. ... The whole dam seemed to push out all at once. Not a break, just one big push.” As the torrents gushed out, a 30- to 40-foot wall of water cascaded down the mountainside at about 40 miles per hour.

In some places lakes were formed by the mountain curves and fallen timber, but soon the buildup of water would break open the stoppage and the big waves formed again. It took less than 45 minutes to empty the main lake, which was about three miles long, one mile wide, and some 50 ft. deep.

In the direct path of the wave were the Johnstown railroad yards, where three passenger trains, 33 locomotives, and several freight cars were parked. The force of the water pushed one locomotive 4,800 ft., killing many passengers. The deluge continued and reached the city at about 4:10 p.m., killing hundreds more and leaving a watery wake of destruction.

Divine Intervention

Where was Ellen White when the dam broke? Because she boarded a train on Thursday evening, calculations would have put her on one of the trains arriving on the Johnstown tracks at 3 p.m. But God knew of the impending danger and had a solution—an impassable bridge between Pittsburgh and Johnstown. This problem was due to heavy rain and not the breaking of the South Fork Dam, which came later in the day. When her train reached Pittsburgh, it could not get through to Johnstown where the deadly destruction would soon take place.

So what did White do? According to Arthur White’s book The Lonely Years, p. 430, she and McEnterfer took another train to Elmira, N.Y., and tried to buy a ticket to Williamsport, Pa. When that didn’t work, they purchased tickets to Canton, Pa., which is about 40 miles from Williamsport. At Canton they booked a hotel over the Sabbath.

Arthur White describes their next travels in these words:

> “Determined to get through, Ellen and Sara put their heads together and left no stones unturned in their attempts to find a way. Traveling by carriage part of the way and walking part of the way, they compassed the forty miles in four days. At one point they waited for three hours as, at their direction, a raft was constructed upon which to ferry the carriage in which they traveled across a swiftly flowing stream. A small boat pulled it across, the horses swam the stream, and the two lady travelers were rowed across. Then they continued their journey by horse and carriage.”

When the pair finally reached Williamsport, they were told that the camp meeting had been flooded out and the tents taken down. But upon their arrival at the campsite, they found that the tents had been moved to higher ground and the camp meeting was still in progress. Although she arrived late, White was able to speak 13 times at this Pennsylvania camp meeting.

As she was leaving Williamsport, White penned these words: “We left Williamsport, Pa., June 12, for Rome, N.Y. We were glad to leave the flooded district. As I looked at the ruins from the car windows, and as I read the harrowing details of the destruction of human life at Johnstown, I could but think of the greater disasters that are yet to come upon the world. As the restraining power of the Holy Spirit shall be withdrawn, because of the impenitence and ingratitude of men, terrible things will be witnessed in the earth.”

Sadly, her words have come true numerous times in the years since. But in spite of life’s ongoing tragedies, God’s hand and divine providence are still present. Just as He protected White and her companion enroute to camp meeting so long ago, He continues to care for His people. “And we know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to His purpose” (Rom. 8:28, NKJV).

It had been raining all week and Sabbath, June 17, 2000, was no exception. Potomac Conference Camp Meeting worshippers gathered for services under their big tent on the campus of Shenandoah Valley Academy in New Market, Va. Other than enduring the sogginess, everything went well during the morning service.

The afternoon session, however, was another matter as things took a turn for the worse. “My daughter Peggy Jean [Lee] and I were at the afternoon meeting,” remembers Peggy Lee, secretary/treasurer of the Columbia Union Revolving Fund (CURF), who’s only missed one Potomac camp meeting in 44 years. “We were listening to a message by Harold Lee, who was Columbia Union president at the time.

“It started raining harder, and we could see the top of the tent buckling over our heads,” continues Peggy, who attends the Hyattsville (Md.) church. “At first we hesitated to move, or leave, since our boss was speaking,” she smiled. But they eventually made their way to the fringes of the tent.

“It was raining furiously,” confirms Harold Lee. I saw that the tent was not going to withstand the force of the water so, without creating a panic, I gently closed the service and alerted those on the platform that we needed to get out.”

TRAGEDY AVERTED

“Then the back left portion of the tent started coming down,” explains Peggy Jean, CURF assistant treasurer. “A few seconds later it came down completely. Then the left side came down and, finally, the right side. The few who weren’t able to get out immediately crouched under the chairs to avoid the poles coming down on them,” she said.

As he was exiting the tent, Harold Lee fell and lost his glasses. “The miracle,” he says, chuckling, “was that no one was seriously hurt.” Although there were a few minor injuries, the Lord’s watch care kept the tent’s poles—and water weight—from crushing anyone.

According to Jeanie Allen, conference communication assistant, “The pastors and administrators sprang into action, formed a line, and systematically held up the canvas to find and assist people.” Kurt Allen, vice president of finance, made sure that the electricity was shut down.

Even though this occurred during the Sabbath, when the crowds were largest, the rain may have actually kept more people from attending the afternoon service. This, according to Peggy Jean, was another blessing. “The fact that everyone remained calm was also amazing,” she remembers.

Once outside, attendees crowded onto the porch of the girls’ dormitory as fire engines and ambulances drove across the muddy campus to assist and rescue those left inside. “A few were taken to the hospital to make sure they were okay,” added Peggy. “We also made the evening news; I saw the story on TV. Later, we teased Elder Lee about ‘bringing down the tent’ with his dynamic message!”

Grateful that everyone was spared, and wanting to praise God for His mercies, the administrators decided to proceed with the closing meeting at the New Market church located on campus.

Six years later, in June 2006, Potomac’s leadership decided to pitch another tent. The response, based on surveys prepared by vice president for administration Roger Weiss, was overwhelmingly positive. Notwithstanding the pleasant weather this time, members seemed to appreciate the genuine “camp meeting feeling” that a tent provides.

Whether or not there are more tents in Potomac’s camp meeting future, one thing is certain: everyone will always remember, and be thankful for, the Lord’s protection and mercy the day the rain—and the tent—came down.
What is the world like today? What are the needs of those around us? These are a sample of the questions the people who make up Grandview Medical Center (GVMC) ask themselves every day. Our focus, since we opened our doors in 1926, has been to give whole-body care to all those who are in need. This was not a new concept then, and it isn’t today, but that focus on caring for the healthcare needs of our surrounding communities has never changed. Today, more than ever before, there is a need for help in the inner cities of our society. Dayton is no different, and Grandview Medical Center has redoubled its efforts to make a positive difference in the lives of Daytonians.

Realizing that the needs of those around us are constantly growing, GVMC expanded by opening the Victor J. Cassano Health Center. It was located so that the medically underserved had easy access to the doctors and nurses who work there. Over the past three years, the number of clients has increased as more people have learned of the high quality care and service given at the health center.

Sisters in Service

The ability to provide quality healthcare hasn’t been confined to GVMC or its outpatient facilities. That level of service, commitment, and quality also extends to Southview Hospital. This sister facility to GVMC was built to meet the growing demands of the increasing population south of Dayton. Staffed with committed physicians, nurses, and support staff, Southview also addresses the physical, mental, and spiritual needs of those who pass through its doors. Moreover, it has continued to extend and branch out through the addition of the Joslin Diabetes Center, which is nationally recognized for its leading role in diabetes research, treatment, and education.

As Grandview and its many skilled employees have moved through this year, we have seen the guiding hand of the Master Healer touching lives through our efforts. We have been given the opportunity to encourage the sick and suffering. This is our mission; this is our desire.

Daddy’s Little Girl

Youth Services Provides Compassionate Care

Martin Clark

I can’t begin to tell you how proud we are of Mary.*

She was standing next to the casket of her father, greeting funeral guests with grace, composure, and beauty. Mary was quite a contrast to her father, lying in state and decked out—as he would prefer—in his favorite Cleveland Browns sweatshirt.

This would be quite a task for any 16-year-old. But Mary isn’t just any 16-year-old. She was at her father’s funeral on a pass from our youth facility, the Kettering Hospital Youth Services.

We refer to Kettering Hospital Youth Services as KHYS. One of the five hospitals in Kettering Adventist HealthCare, it is located on Lamme Road, in Dayton. KHYS is an inpatient and outpatient psychiatric treatment facility for children and youth from ages 4 through the teens. It is one of only a few such hospitals in state and decked out—as he would prefer—in his favorite Cleveland Browns sweatshirt.

Mary wasn’t just any 16-year-old. She was Daddy’s little girl, but Daddy had divorced, and Mom was now remarried. Mary was the only girl in a family of five children. She reacted to the news of her father’s death as anyone might—with an aching sadness and sessions of seemingly unending tears.

But something else soon began to emerge, something that showed Mary’s progress. She began to make plans for her father’s funeral. While her mother wanted to protect Mary from such duties, our therapists believed that it would be important for Mary to take an active role in as many aspects of her father’s memorial service as possible.

Why the Browns sweatshirt? Because he was an avid Browns fan. So avid, in fact, that some of Mary’s best memories were of game days when she, her brothers, and her father would all dress in their Browns shirts, eat their game-day dinner, and sit together in the family room to cheer for their favorite football team. Mary was working through her memories in a very constructive manner.

Her caregivers at KHYS watched closely as she prepared for her father’s funeral. Our hearts went out to this hurting girl. Hours of listening, loving, and monitoring prepared Mary for this enormous challenge.

Our chaplain, Rick LaVenture, her psychiatrist, and other KHYS caregivers had walked with Mary through the deep waters of her life. Chaplain LaVenture went to the funeral to assure Mary of the thoughts and prayers of her extended family at KHYS. He hardly recognized her. He was accustomed to seeing Mary in her hospital attire, which consisted of patient scrubs, her hair pulled back severely, and a blanket around her shoulders. Mary always had a blanket around her shoulders. But before him was a beautiful young woman who no longer needed the blanket.

She greeted him with a hug. “I’m doing okay,” she said. “I’m okay.”

Mary isn’t just any 16-year-old. She was working through her memories in a very constructive manner.

“Tears is a win-win situation. While students are getting a first-hand taste of working in the healthcare industry, the departments and patients at Dayton’s Grandview Medical Center are benefiting from their actions.”

Beginning last fall, the first 13 students from the Improved Solutions for Urban Systems (ISUS) Healthcare Institute started working as volunteers at Grandview. One group helps out in the morning and another group comes in the afternoon. When they aren’t in the hospital, they are working in their newly renovated building across the street learning healthcare skills in the classroom.

“They have given us well over 1,500 volunteer hours this school year, and it’s been a huge help,” said Grandview Volunteer Services manager Sharon Kiser. “It is really working out well.”

The students have assisted in the radiology and linen departments, surgery holding, surgery waiting, the eye clinic, and other areas. “I have two ISUS students in surgery waiting,” said staff member Gloria Sanders. “They interact well with the families and give them directions and updates. Both of them are really motivated, willing to help, and always wearing a smile,” she notes.

“And that’s a little unusual for kids that young.”

On the Right Track

Cynthia McCloud is one of Sanders’ ISUS volunteers in the surgery waiting area. She is on track to begin classes at nearby Sinclair Community College in May.

McCloud feels that the past several months at Grandview have been a valuable sneak preview into healthcare. This experience has given her the determination to pursue her dream of becoming a dentist.

“When I came in I was thinking I would like to become a surgeon, but I realized it wasn’t for me when I got to see certain parts of surgery,” McCloud admits. “Here at the hospital I get hands-on experience, and I get to meet the doctors. I love helping people, and this place just makes my day perfect. I wouldn’t change it for the world.”

Kettering Joins Genetic Study

Kevin Lavoie

Understanding a blueprint is the key to constructing a building, and it may also be the key to proper treatment of heart disease. Researchers at Kettering Medical Center (KMC) are taking part in a study to determine if people will respond differently to heart medications, depending upon their differing DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) makeup.

KMC, collaborating with the University of Cincinnati, is part of a $19.9 million, five-year Specialized Clinical Center of Research study looking at the interaction of genes and heart disease. This study is one of only five such projects funded by the federal government’s National Institutes of Health, and aims to make heart care more effective through DNA profiling. It is now known that many genetic variations determine how well patients will respond to specific treatments. This new field of research is called pharmacogenomics and helps explain why some people have a great response to a blood pressure medication, while others have almost no response, or, worse yet, some have side effects.

“Genetics is an emerging field in medical diagnosis and treatment,” said Harvey Hahn, MD, a cardiologist and principal investigator for KMC’s participation in the study. “Everyone is different and a big reason is your genes. In the future, by knowing a patient’s genetic profile, we hope to custom tailor their medical program to maximize benefit and minimize potential side effects and cost,” he states. “Why take medications and have a poor response because of how you are genetically programmed?”

“Kettering Medical Center is already a leader in stroke research, as well as having a clinical trial for Alzheimer’s disease, and research on the benefits of advanced medical imaging,” says Rick Mace, vice president for Clinical Affairs at KMC. “Now we are looking into the link between genetic makeup and congestive heart failure. Like our other research efforts, we think this will greatly benefit the health of people in our community and around the nation, for years to come.”

Suzanne Coleman, director of the Office of Research at KMC, is pleased with the joint venture. “It is exciting for us to work on this study with the University of Cincinnati and other prestigious research centers. Together we will gather significant findings to enhance our understanding of genetics’ role in the development and treatment of cardiovascular disease. Since August 2006,” she continues, “we have already enrolled more than 50 patients from our community who will participate in this important research.”

Programs

Youth

Senior Youth
Gather at this tent both weekends of camp meeting and be inspired by Pastor Andrea Trusty King, DMin. King is co-pastor of the Maranatha church in San Diego, Calif., and the vice president and co-founder of Brighter Hope Ministries, Inc., a multifaceted ministry that reaches today’s generation through radio, television, seminars, Bible studies, and inspirational camps for youth. Brighter Hope broadcasted its first radio program in March 2002. King is also an acclaimed speaker who has been heard throughout the United States and beyond.

NEW - Young Adults
The young adult tent is an exciting new feature this year. This tent will provide electrifying programming and activities designed and created by young adults for young adults. The Children’s Ministries Department has given serious attention to this age group because statistics show that they have untapped energy, resources, talents, and issues that the church must address to retain them for good. Make sure to join one of the most exciting Christian meetings on the East Coast. For more information, visit www.myspace.com/aecyouthministries.

Juniors and Teens
A junior tent will be available for the young people ages 13 and under, which will include special activities such as puppets, drama, kits, and other creative ways to worship Christ. The teen tent is going to have small group sessions where they can discuss issues they are experiencing, helping them in their spiritual development, in addition to worship services. There will be outings for both age groups during the week, giving them an opportunity to participate in outreach and community service.

Music

Pine Forge Academy Choir

Saturday, June 30

The Pine Forge Academy Choir consists of over 90 members, ages 13 through 18, who not only excel musically, but academically. The choir is noted for its rich, full, and powerful harmonies. They proclaim God’s goodness through spirituals, gospels, anthems, and a classical repertoire.

During the school year, the choir is engaged in concerts, church services, extensive tours, and other community events several times a month, throughout the United States, as well as on nearby islands.

During the past three years, the choir has sung for Philadelphia’s Year of the Child; with the State Senate’s Black Caucus in Harrisburg, Pa.; the inauguration of Philadelphia’s Mayor John F. Street; the world broadcast of NET 2004 from Baltimore, Md.; the Living the Dream program with Cicely Tyson at the Liberty Bell; seasonal guest artists for the Indian Valley Concert Series; and with Bill Cosby and Bobby McFerrin, to name a few.

Health Ministries

This year’s theme for Health Ministries events is “Your Body is God’s Temple, Don’t Destroy It!” organized and led by department director A. Leah Scott. Attend the camp meeting health seminars and learn how to crack the codes “TF, SF, S, EX” for a “temple demolition.” Seminar times and content are subject to change. Please refer to the conference website for updates.

Health Screening

Sunday, July 1

The conference’s Health and Wellness Department is partnering with PreventFirst, a division of Ultrasound Services of America, Inc., to provide a mobile health physical assessment for heart attack and stroke prevention. The day will include preventative ultrasound screenings for carotid (stroke), cholesterol, diabetes, blood pressure, and body mass index. There will also be testing for thyroid, complete blood counts, body chemistry, and prostate cancer screening. All testing will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. Please sign up by calling (301) 386-2223 or visit www.preventfirst.com.

Welcome

To commemorate our conference’s 40th anniversary, the theme for camp meeting this year is “Driven By a Vision—One More River to Cross.” Our purpose will be to not only reflect on the blessings of the past, but also to remind ourselves of what God expects of us in the future.

Perhaps the greatest challenge facing our churches is not the lack of money, but a lack of focus on what exactly is our mission. This has caused us to become ineffective. Our mission has been and will continue to be the proclamation of the gospel to a dying world. It is in our mission that we find our most profound satisfaction, and the direct line to the power that can only come from God. This mission cannot be accomplished without God. I know that the programming and speakers will richly bless you. We will review previous challenges that God has helped us overcome, as well as future obstacles that, by faith, God will provide what is necessary to stay “on mission.”

He has worked for the Southwestern Union since 1998, where he now serves as vice president for Ministries. Griffiths previously served as senior pastor of the Ephesus church in Columbus for nearly eight years, as well as other churches throughout the Allegheny West Conference (AWC) territory.

Youth Program
Guest Speaker
Sabbath, June 23
Pastor Nathaniel Lyles Jr. is the associate pastor for youth at the Glenville church in Cleveland. A recent Oakwood College (Ala.) graduate originally from Winston Salem, N.C., he and his wife, Natasha, now live in Strongsville, Ohio.

Guest Speaker
Sabbath, June 30
Rupert Bushner, DMin, is the chaplain at Oakwood College in Huntsville, Ala. He previously served the Allegheny West Conference as pastor and youth director, and has pastored in the Southeastern Conference. Bushner is often requested to speak at congresses and conventions, and has preached on many continents. Bushner is known for saying, “What I am is God’s gift to me. What I become is my gift to God. I want to give God an awesome gift.”

Pathfinder Camporee
The Youth Department, led by Donald Burden, DMin, youth and ministerial director, will host a Pathfinder Camporee during camp meeting this year. There will be Pathfinder clubs from around the conference participating and earning honors. Honors that will be offered are first-aid, communications (sign language), edible plants, nature, rocks, stars, trees, birds, mammals, and amphibians.

Pathfinder Camporee
On Sabbath, June 30, a combined Pathfinder drum corps and mass choir will lead a youth procession to the adult pavilion. After playing and singing for the adults, they will present their offering to the conference for the 40th anniversary. The goal set by the Youth Department is $20,000.

Evangelistic Meeting
May 29–June 26
The Ministerial Department, in conjunction with the Bible Training Institute, will conduct an evangelistic meeting in Columbus. Robert Moore, senior pastor of the Grievous church in Cleveland, will be the evangelist. The evangelistic meeting will be held at the Hilltop Community Worship Center with host Pastor Jerome Hunt. The meetings will take place on Sundays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from May 29 to June 26. The baptisms are scheduled to take place at camp meeting during the Sabbath services on June 23 and 30 to welcome the new converts to the AWC family.

40th Anniversary Celebration
God has been good to the Allegheny West Conference since its beginning in January 1967. The membership has grown from a little over 5,000 to over 12,000. Tithes have increased from $50,000 to over $6.5 million annually.

This year the conference will celebrate 40 years of blessings and take time to remember its existence, rejoice in its successes, and renew its commitment to it’s mission. A grand celebration will take place during this year’s camp meeting, and again on Thanksgiving Day.

A special offering was taken in all conference churches on April 28, with another being taken on May 26. A faith goal of $200,000 was set and will be allocated in the following manner:

- 40% Evangelism Explosion—2008
- 40% Capital Improvements (completion of youth pavilion, additional showers/restrooms on campgrounds)
- 20% Camp Meeting Celebration—2007

For further information or inquiries, contact Carl R. Rogers, AWC executive secretary and anniversary coordinator, or his assistant, Cheryl All, at (614) 252-5271 or (800) 238-9707.

Children’s Program
This year’s theme for the Children’s Ministries program is “Transforming Children Into Spiritual Giants,” led and directed by department director Kenneth J. Washington, PhD. The special programs and events will take place at the new Noah’s Ark facility, and will include activities such as movie night, numerous crafts, a splash party, coloring contest, swimming, and a balloon launch.

Lanessa Boddie, a home school parent and education specialist from the Hillcrest church in Dayton, will be the special guest leader for the first Sabbath. She will organize crafts for attendees and a Bible balloon launch.

For the second Sabbath, Carla Valles, Children’s Ministries leader for the Oberlin church in Ohio, will bring her children’s puppet ministry team to entertain and teach Bible principles. Valles will also provide craft projects.
Children's Speaker

Angy-Lynouse Saint-Louis, originally from Quebec, Canada, is a medical student in Long Island, N.Y. She is the niece of the conference Multicultural Ministries director, Libby Dubreuez, Sr.

Musician

Fred Emmanuel, MBA, and Evelyn Emmanuel, RN, are members of the Centerville (Ohio) church. Fred is the financial manager for the Senior Division at Kettering Adventist HealthCare. The couple regularly provides special music for churches in their area and will be the featured music for Hispanic camp meeting.

Cristina Piccardi (of Brazil) and Marcelo Caceres (of Chile) joined in the same dream of glorifying the Lord through classical music. Both are very accomplished musicians. Cristina has a master's in Vocal Performance and Marcelo a master's in Piano Performance. Both are dedicating their talent and life to spreading the gospel of Jesus Christ through music. Their repertoire incorporates a diversity of styles from very refined classical to eternal hymns of public dominion. This pair will provide the featured music for the Brazilian/Portuguese camp meeting.

Welcome

Please take advantage of the spiritual feast being prepared for you this year. Our theme "To Know Him—To Make Him Known" underlines two core issues in our lives as Adventist Christians. Fundamental to all we are and do is our personal relationship with Christ. Nothing else matters if we are not connected to Him. Yet once we are in a dynamic relationship with Christ, it becomes our greatest desire to share Him with others (see Steps to Christ, p. 78). It is a challenge for us to keep these in balance. When our devotional life lacks refreshment, it is often an indication that there has been no genuine expression of our faith in service. And when we become so exhausted in our service that we want to call it quits, it is a good indication that we have not fed our spirit with genuine worship. Life must always be practiced by the inspired pastor of the Adventist Church as a pastor, evangelist, conference communication director, stewardship director, conference communication director, and former president of the Centerville (Ohio) church. The North American Division has invited Pastor Tucker to conduct the NET 2007 program—"Heart Quest: Finding the One Who Has Loved You All Along"—which will start airing October 19.

Gary Krause is the director of the Office of Adventist Mission at the Seventh-day Adventist Church World Headquarters. This office has the twin tasks of caring for the Church's Global Mission initiative, and informing members on how their mission offerings are changing lives around the world. Krause was previously communication director for Global Mission and creative director for the South Pacific Adventist Media Center in Australia.

Myrna Tetz was recently the managing editor of the Adventist Review, and is now retired. She has also served as the vice president for recruitment of Canadian University College, and the British Columbia Conference communication and Health Ministries director.

Co-author of the book We Can Keep Them in the Church, Tetz has a passion for keeping Adventist young people active in the church.

Dave Weigley, Columbia Union Conference president, has served the Adventist Church as a pastor, evangelist, conference communication director, and former president of the Centerville (Ohio) church. The North American Division has invited Pastor Tucker to conduct the NET 2007 program—"Heart Quest: Finding the One Who Has Loved You All Along"—which will start airing October 19.

Seminars

“Just Walk Across The Room” will be presented by Frank Bondurant, assistant to the president and evangelism director for the church. Bondurant will challenge attendees to leave their comfort zones and to extend their hands of care, compassion, and inclusiveness to people who need the touch of God’s love today. “Relationship Evangelism” means that it is not enough to simply “go to church.” We must “be the church.”

“Enjoying Your Bible” is the theme of Willmore Eva’s seminar. Eva, an associate pastor of the Spencerville church in Silver Spring, Md., has a wealth of experience as a pastor, administrator, and editor. Every conscientious Christian feels a great need to read and understand their Bible, yet many struggle to understand it and receive the inspiration they crave. He will share simple, specific, and practical ways to understand and draw strength and inspiration from reading scripture.

“Living Free: Finding Freedom From Habits That Hurt” is this year’s health seminar by Vicki Griffin. She is author, speaker, and director of the Lifestyle Matters Health Intervention series, and a member of the American College of Nutrition. In her seminar, Griffin will reveal the damaging effects of negative thinking on our physical and spiritual health. She will also share lifestyle strategies and personal tools for building a better brain, better habits, and a better life.

“Preparing for the Latter Rain” is to be presented by Brian Jones, communication director and pastor of the Broxton, Givensville, and Spencer churches in the Mountain View Conference. Jones, a former Chesapeake pastor, will explore what the latter rain is, what it does, and how we can receive it. Study will also be given to the Bible explanation of true revival, the sealing process, and the power-filled proclamation of the three angels’ messages.

“Parenting—Let’s Talk About It!” is a seminar by Bob and Myrna Tetz. They will discuss how to lovingly parent our children, respect our grandchildren, and honor our church as parents. The husband and wife relationship will be reviewed as a model for family unity, and the discussion on church parent- ing will include finding ways to bond with our children, young people, and members so they’ll always want to be a part of the church.

Bob, now retired, was recently a pastor in Baltimore. He has also served as the vice president for alumni and development at Canadian University College and as a conference youth director. The couple has traveled throughout North America holding manage, family, and Children’s Ministries seminars.

“Love for a Lifetime” will be presented by Mike and Gayle Tucker. Mike holds a master’s degree in counseling. Gayle works with Mike at the Arlington (Texas) church as an associate pastor and also hosts Faith For Today broadcasts.

Children’s Schedule

Musician

Javier Gonzalez is a graduate of Columbia Union College (CUC) in Takoma Park, Md. He sang with the CUC Collegiate Choral and Pro Musica and made his Carnegie Hall debut in Mozart’s Requiem under the direction of John Rutter. Gonzalez sings with the Washington National Opera, and has enjoyed traveling with the New England Youth Ensemble to such places as Spain, France, and Italy. He is part of the vocal trio Bella Voce, which includes Karla Rivera and German Rodriguez. As a member of the Spencerville church in Silver Spring, Md., he sings with the Sanctuary Choir and teaches voice to many students of Spencerville Adventist Academy.

Karla Rivera is a soloist and ensemble singer with Bella Voce. She was the featured soloist at the 2005 Chesapeake Conference Camp Meeting. Rivera has won many competitions as a soloist, and has toured with the New England Youth Ensemble to many countries. Rivera earned a master’s degree in Vocal Performance from the University of Maryland and is currently on the voice faculty at CUC, her alma mater. She is now pursuing a professional career, and sings first soprano in the Spencerville church’s Sanctuary Choir.

German Rodriguez has been the lead baritone for CUC’s Collegiate Choral and Pro Musica, and has performed in various venues such as Carnegie Hall and the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts—as well as the Sanctuary Choir at Spencerville church. He has performed abroad in his native Argentina, Brazil, London, and South Africa. He sang and played the role of the Mikado in Gilbert and Sullivan’s The Mikado. Rodriguez sings with the vocal trio Bella Voce. All three members have enjoyed solo performances in the original composition Requiem by James Blingham, PhD, CUC music department chair— their teacher and mentor.

Charlotte McClure comes to camp meeting for her seventh year as the director of music for adult meetings and programs. She coordinates the music using the talents of members throughout Chesapeake, including featured guests. McClure is an associate pastor of the Spencerville church, where she is also active musically. One of her college majors was music, and she has enjoyed opportunities to play and sing professionally. McClure loves hymns and other sacred music and believes that they are active worship.

Tim Crosby, DMin, a keyboardist, composer, and baritone, is pastor of the Willow Brook church in Boonboro, Md. He has served the church in many capacities, including director of production at the Voice of Prophecy in California. Crosby has authored nine books. His recent video seminar Di Vinci Decoded: The Undiscovered Jesus is available on DVD. Crosby spends his spare time working on a manuscript on the historical Jesus and composing music, including theme music for The Quiet Horn and Voice of Prophecy broadcasts.
Welcome

In Mountain View, the phrase "camp meeting" brings thoughts of regeneration of the soul and reunion with church members from around the conference. It also brings opportunity to get acquainted with world church leaders. It’s a time when we can study God’s Word and pray for a closer walk with Jesus.

Our theme this year, "Tell Your World—Now!" is designed to help us sense the urgency of the times in which we live. A time that calls for a stronger relationship with Christ, which will lead and empower us to do greater service in our communities, and which will hasten the day of His return.

Many of you will choose during the year to make camp meeting your vacation. For others, it’s an established tradition. Regardless of the path that leads you there, we’ll all be there for one reason—to know more of Jesus.

—Larry Boggess, President
—Victor Zill, Treasurer

Tell Your World—Now!
Valley Vista Adventist Center • June 15-23

Midweek Speakers

Sunday thru
Friday—Our mornings begin at 6:30 a.m. with Stuart Tyner, pastor of Family Ministries, La Sierra University Church (Calif.). His presentation “Searching for the God of Grace” is based on his book by the same title.

Tony Moore, speaker and president of The Biblical World, continues after breakfast with In the Footprints of Jesus. Ed Rockwell, publishing leader for the conference, will present “Keeping the Vision Alive” for those interested in becoming a literature evangelist.

Jim King, retired pastor from Spokane Valley church in Washington, who believes sharing Jesus should be the heartbeat of every church. He will be teaching one-to-one evangelism with his Friend 2 Friend approach. Rachel Whitaker, associate editor of Guide magazine, will demonstrate practical ways to use the magazine to conduct fun, creative programs for juniors and early teens. Guide’s special doctrinal issues and outreach magazines will be featured. Whitaker will also offer tips on getting your stories published in Guide.

David Morgan, pastor of the Huntington/Point Pleasant district in W.Va., will be conducting a series for those who want to know “The How-to of Preaching.”

Richard Boggess, MD, president of MUSE Ministries, author, and a retired physician, will be sharing how anyone can be a medical missionary. Dr. Boggess will also be offering blood testing.

Worship Service @ 11 a.m.
E. Lonnie Melashenko, director-speaker of Voice of Prophecy, will share God’s message with attendees.

Junior Department
Guest Speaker @ Rachel Whitaker, associate editor of Guide magazine, will be the featured speaker this week for the juniors and earlies! Whitaker will be looking at the question “Who Ya Gonna Believe?” and discussing God’s truths and Satan’s lies. There will also be lots of games and activities. Bring a friend and come prepared to have fun.

Shepherdess Meeting
4 p.m. @ Room 10
Pastors’ wives can join together for fellowship, with worship led by Jeannie Melashenko. She travels regularly with her husband, Lonnie, and has helped lead in evangelistic series in many places around the world.

Evening Meeting @ 7:15 p.m.
Once again attendees will hear the Lord speak to them through the words of E. Lonnie Melashenko. His many years of ministry and travel will give substance to his messages that will challenge listeners to “Tell Your World—Now!” about Jesus.

Closing Sabbath

Devotional Study @ 6:30 a.m.
Stuart Tyner will be concluding his weeklong study on God’s grace.

Sabbath School @ 9:15 a.m.
Cheryl Jacko will act as the Sabbath School superintendent. Jacko serves as principal of the Highland Adventist School in Elkins, W.Va., and also as associate Superintendent of Schools for the Mountain View Conference. Her husband, Don, pastor of the Elkins/Parsons district, will lead in the lesson study. The day’s mission emphasis will be on education in Mountain View.

Worship the Lord @ 11 a.m., 7 p.m.
Pastor Ron Halvorsen, Sr., concludes his weekday presentations on Sabbath morning and evening. He will help attendees understand that Christian growth involves sharing one’s faith in “your world now!” Come expecting your world to take on new dimensions as you embrace the principles that have helped millions of others engage their communities for Christ.

Musical Concert

Musical Concert @ 2:30 p.m.
King’s Heralds

Twenty-nine men have been a part of the King’s Heralds since it was founded in 1927. They’ve recorded more than 100 albums in 30 different languages and in a variety of musical styles, making them a favorite with audiences of all ages.

The King’s Heralds have been regular guests on It Is Written. They have received 23 Silver Angel Awards for Excellence in Media, including six for Best Male Vocal Group, 1 for Best Album and a Best International Broadcast award for their own radio program Sounds of Praise. This group also received a Gold Angel Award for being the oldest continuous gospel quartet in America.

ENGLISH
Jere D. Patzer, DMin, is president of the North Pacific Union Conference. Born in Montana, he earned his master’s and doctorate from Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich. Patzer has worked in several conferences including New York, Pennsylvania, and Oregon. He has also authored four books: Before You Burn the Rule Book, Bored Again Christian?, Everybody’s Doing It, and The Road Ahead. Patzer is married to Susan, an administrative assistant for the Institute of Ministry and Mission and director of Women’s Ministries at the same union. The Patzer’s three children—Darin, Troy, and Carissa—are all married with children.

SPANISH
Armando Miranda was elected as a general vice president of the worldwide Seventh-day Adventist Church during the 2000 General Conference Session in Toronto. Mexican-born, he is an ordained minister and holds a master’s degree from Andrews University. In more than 20 years of church service, he has worked as a pastor, evangelist, and departmental director. He has also served as the president of the North Mexican Union Conference. Miranda and his wife, Rosa Alicia, have three adult children: Liz, Rosy, and Armando Jr.

To the delight of many attendees, the big tent is back!

—LeRoy Finck, President

This year’s camp meeting is one you will not want to miss. There are many rich blessings available as we focus on sharing our precious Savior. The Camp Meeting Planning Committee has selected the theme “Tell It to Your World” in support of the theme for the worldwide Seventh-day Adventist Church “Tell the World.” Jere Patzer, North Pacific Union president, will be the featured speaker for the English services starting Thursday evening June 28. Patzer is the one who was miraculously healed from stage 4 lymphatic cancer last year. You won’t want to miss his powerful testimony and messages from the Word of God. Armando Miranda will be with us from the Seventh-day Adventist Church headquarters to share during the Spanish services, also starting Thursday evening. The spiritual food during this weekend, along with the health and evangelism training provided, have the potential of preparing all of us to be more effective witnesses for our Lord. I look forward to visiting with you during our convocation together.

—LeRoy Finck, President

NEW JERSEY CAMP MEETING 2007
LeRoy Finck, New Jersey Conference president, has served in California and Oregon and has helped establish churches in Russia, El Salvador, and Africa. Pastor Finck is a thoughtful leader who enjoys leading by consensus. A true man of God, this seminar presenter knows the Shepherd’s voice.

José Cortés is conference executive secretary and evangelism director. He has a long and fruitful denominational career as pastor, evangelist, writer, departmental director, and administrator. Cortés studied at Antillian College in Cuba and received a master’s degree in family counseling and a doctorate in psychology from Carolina University.

Jim Greene, conference treasurer, has a wide range of experience working for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the financial field. He has served in various conferences, educational institutions, mission fields, and Adventist Book Centers. Most recently, he worked for the Rocky Mountain Conference.

Joel Soto uses his God-given pastoral and leadership skills to equip lay evangelists and small groups in his Bridgeton, Cape May, and Panamerican Spanish churches. They are baptizing more than 100 souls per year.

Mario Thorp is pastor of the Edison and Long Branch churches. He is the former youth director and field secretary for the Costa Rica Mission in Central America. He is a powerful speaker and seminar presenter, and is passionate about evangelism.

Bradley Galambos is the conference ministerial secretary, and Personal Ministries and Sabbath School director. Galambos has 35 years of ministry experience, including positions among the following conferences: Alaska, Arkansas-Louisiana, Chesapeake, Florida, Gulf States, Indiana, Michigan, and Texas.

Laffit Cortés is the conference’s Youth, Children’s, and Health Ministries director. He is passionate about helping youth who are going through difficult times. Cortés is organizing this year’s activities for the young people.

Family Summer Camp
Sunday, June 26—Thursday, June 28 - Tranquil Valley Retreat Center
In addition to regular summer camp activities—sports, field trips, arts and crafts, canoeing, swimming, etc.—the conference pastoral staff have arranged for real family bonding. Through the theme, “Rebuilding the Family Alter,” Christian counselor Julian Anderson Martin, MA, LLPC, of Indiana, will be available all week for special seminars and family intervention meetings. He will be addressing some of the challenges of raising this generation, and providing positive ways to deal with family issues.

Guest Speaker
Derrick Cruz is a 23-year-old Adventist collegiate from the Greater New York Conference who is studying theology at Atlantic Union College (Mass.). He is a servant of Jehovah who wants to move the young generation toward a greater purpose and eternal life. Cruz is serving his conference as a church planter, hired specifically by the Youth and Hispanic Ministries department to plant the first young adult bilingual church in New York City.

Touching Heaven—Changing Earth
Mount Vernon Academy ■ June 10-16

Speakers

Ron Halvorsen, Sr. ■ Friday, 7:30 p.m., Sabbath, 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. ■ Wouldn’t it be nice to have a snapshot of Jesus in your wallet? Scripture gives snapshots of Jesus from eyewitnesses. Come and hear one of the church’s premier evangelists describe Jesus in a way that will be imprinted in your mind forever.

Chris Blake ■ Sabbath, 9 a.m., Monday-Thursday, 7:30 p.m., Blake, professor at Union College in Nebraska, will present a series from his book Swimming Against the Current. God often calls us to swim against the current of this life. Like the great salmon compelled to return to their origin, we struggle against the current to go upstream—scaling waterfalls—to get to the Great Source of life, rebirth, and hope. Blake’s new book, will be given free to the first 100 people to attend The Hoppers’ concert on Sunday evening.

Alden Thompson ■ Tuesday-Friday, 10:30 a.m. ■ Thompson, professor of theology at Walla Walla College (Wash.), will present “Pictures to Help Us Study the Bible: Avalanche, Pyramid, Castle, and Pie.” “Change” and “diversity” are frightening words for many devout believers. But with Jesus as our anchor and guide, we can discover in scripture the simple enduring principles that enable us to explore the Bible, without being afraid that our faith will collapse. Knowing what will never change can help us recognize the things that do, and we become more effective witnesses for God.

Paula Reiter ■ Monday 10:30 a.m., Monday-Friday, 2:30 p.m. ■ Reiter is an office manager at Nedley Health Solutions and the Nedley Clinic in Ardmore, Okla. She regularly speaks for Dr. Nedley at Depression Recovery seminars, women’s retreats, and ministerial events and camp meetings.

There are moments when we catch a glimpse of God. It’s not just His grace that’s amazing. Maybe you’ve seen His awesome power like a cascading waterfall. Maybe you have sensed His sovereignty when faced with a difficult decision. At times like these, when we grasp all that makes God great, we naturally respond in worship.

Life Keys • Monday-Friday, 10:30 a.m. • There are moments when we catch a glimpse of God. It’s not just His grace that’s amazing. Maybe you’ve seen His awesome power like a cascading waterfall. Hispanic Camp Meeting

“Adelante Jovenes”
Mount Vernon Academy • June 8-9

Enjoy great preaching, singing, and delicious food. José Rojas, director of the Office of Volunteer Ministries for the North American Division, will be the featured speaker. Rojas is an accomplished musician and recording artist, and is also an author and a passionate preacher. Rojas serves as a member of The Alliance for Youth, the U.S. national organization founded by former Secretary of State Colin Powell. He has also assisted two United States presidents with domestic policy initiatives for humanitarian leadership.

This camp meeting marks the 100th anniversary of the beginning of the youth work for the Seventh-day Adventist Church. In 1907 the very first Youth Congress took place on the campus of Mount Vernon Academy. This year a special dedication service will take place at the center of campus at the monument that was dedicated to commemorate the 50th anniversary. A new plaque will be dedicated in Spanish to commemorate the event. The singing group Alabanza Pura from Maryland will treat attendees to a concert on Sabbath afternoon.

Welcome

Camp meeting is more than just a time to fellowship with friends, enjoy inspiring music, and be impacted by practical and challenging seminars and worships. It is a time of making memories, sharing your life with others and growing in God. This year we come together again, this time for “Sharing Our Creator’s Glory.”

I invite you to make this a week you will never forget. Bring your family and friends. Learn new insights from the Bible in a small group setting. Share what God is doing in your life with a new friend. Pick up a hammer and help a needy family. Learn how to live a healthier life. Discover truths about dinosaurs. Enjoy a game of volleyball with young people after the evening seminar. Enjoy being a part of a family bound together because of Christ’s love, grace, and soon return. Join me in praying for the Holy Spirit’s refreshing presence at this year’s camp meeting!

—Ray Hartwell, President

Sharing Our Creator’s Glory
Blue Mountain Academy ■ June 15-23

Worship

Friday-Sabbath, June 15-16 ■ Clifford Goldstein is the editor of the Adult Sabbath School Quarterly and a prolific author. He served as the editor for Religious Liberty magazine and as associate director for the North American Division Department of Public Affairs and Religious Liberty until 1999.

Sabbath, June 16 ■ Kelly Mowrer, sometimes called the “NET pianist,” will join camp meeting for an inspiring concert of worship and praise. Mowrer works regularly with pastors Mark Finley and Doug Batchelor of 3ABN and appears regularly on the network.

Friday-Sabbath, June 22-23 ■ Dan Smith is senior pastor at the La Sierra University church in California and recent speaker for Adventist Preaching. Smith, formerly a pastor in Hinsdale, Ill., will share a worship series titled “Yes, God,” proving that God is far better than even our best pictures of Him.

Sabbath, June 23 ■ Amy Fitser, a graduate of Blue Mountain Academy (BMA) in Hamburg, has been a soloist for 12 years. She regularly performs at churches, camp meetings, and other events. Fitser and her family are members of the BMA church, where her two little boys often join her in performing special music.
Worship and Seminars

Gaspar Colón, PhD, is associate professor of religion at Columbia Union College in Takoma Park, Md., as well as director of the school’s Center for Metropolitan Ministry. During his early morning study “Faith and Grace in a Changing World,” Colón will review the life and ministry of Jesus for elements that must become part of the ministry of His “body” today. Colón’s afternoon series will reveal strategies to help your church and personal witness truly transform your community.

May-Ellen Colón, PhD, is the assistant director of the Sabbath School and Personal Ministries Department for the worldwide Seventh-day Adventist Church. Colón will unpack bib-ically based principles in “Making the Sabbath Joyful.” She will help answer the question, “How do we joyfully live the wonderful and right theology of the seventh-day Sabbath in real life?”

Tom Cusack will be presenting a study about the history, teachings, and biblical responses to the Roman Catholic Church. He will help attendees study the issues of authority, the papacy, tradition and scripture, the Eucharist, the Catholic Church in prophecy, end-time events, etc. Cusack pastes the Erie, Corry, and Lowville (in Wattsburg) churches.

Elaine G. Kennedy, PhD, will take attendees on an exploration in “Geology and Faith Grounded in Genesis.” You can also join her weekday afternoons for “Dinosaurs: Bridging the Gap Between Science and Faith” as she explores the data on dinosaurs. Dr. Kennedy works as a research scientist and adjunct professor of geology at Southwestern Adventist University (Texas).

Larry Lichtenwalter, senior pastor of the Village church in Berrien Springs, Mich., will do a presentation called “Everyday Apocalypse.” He will show that Scripture’s last book reveals Jesus Christ for our everyday life, not just for end times. In “Why I Love Jesus,” Lichtenwalter will show that Revelation is about loving Jesus!

Neil Nedley, MD, is a full-time practicing physician in internal medicine at the Ardrum Institute of Health in Oklahoma. He is also the founder and CEO of Nedley Health Solutions and author of Proof Positive: How to Reliably Combat Disease and Achieve Optimal Health through Nutrition and Lifestyle and Depression: The Way Out. Dr. Nedley will share how to be set free from depression. His week-long series will focus on living healthfully—body, mind, and soul.

Art Randall is a licensed CPA who works as a Certified Financial Counselor with Crown Financial. He has more than 20 years experience in financial counseling. Learn what God expects you to know about how to manage his money in his seminar “Financial Secrets for Personal and Family Freedom.” Private financial counseling sessions will be available by appointment.

Phil and Sylvia Rosburg will look at biblical principles for success and powerful ways of living a more joyful, grace-filled life in their series “Relationships that Demonstrate our Creator’s Glory.” Phil is director of Family Ministries for the Carolina Conference. Sylvia is a physical therapist and an assistant in Family and Health Ministries.

Lilly Tryon and Tammy Horst will present the seminar “Keys to a Successful Life Journey.” They will help discuss how to discover God’s purpose and then fulfill it, even during our increasingly busy schedules. Lilly Tryon, MSN, RN, is Health Ministries director for the Pennsylvania Conference. Tamry Horst is assistant to the president for communication.

Dave Weigley, a BMA graduate, is the president of the Columbia Union Conference. On Sunday, June 17, Weigley will reveal “Our Greatest Need.” He will challenge attendees, closing that with our greatest need met, our lives will be changed. A vibrant, meaningful, and hopeful Christian life will be the result.

Angie Weens, conference Children’s Ministries director and experienced educator and administor, will compare the calling of Bezaleel and other Bibel characters with our calling as par-ents, teachers, and/or leaders. Her interactive seminar “The Lord Has Called You By Name” is designed to give attendees the opportunity to grow.

Special Features

Community Health Expo ■ Sunday, June 17, 1-5 p.m., BMA Gymnasium ■ The Community Health Expo will include eight action-packed exhibits offering free screening for blood pressure, lung capacity, body fat analysis, Harvard step test, computerized health age appraisal, plus free anti-stress massages.

Depression Recovery Training ■ June 17-18 ■ Neil Nedley, MD, will help prepare participants to facilitate a Depression Recovery Program. Using a comprehensive approach, he applies his training, scientific knowledge, and experience to teach how to assist others in achieving optimal mental health. For more information and to register, call (888) 778-4445.

Effective Tools for Health Ministry Training ■ June 15-17 ■ Charles Cleveland, MPH, and Phoebe Cleveland, RN, from Health Education Resources, will teach attendees how to use the health expo as an effective tool for making friends with the public.

For more information and to register, contact Lilly Tryon at ltryon@paconference.org or (610) 823-9385.

Family Worship ■ Monday-Friday, 9:30 a.m. ■ Whether you are young or old, or somewhere in between, you will be blessed by interactive presentations about creation. There will be living parables, music with the McCabe family, and much more during family worship’s “God’s Wonderful World,” featuring Sergio Mamante, leadership director at Blue Mountain Academy.

Mission for Men ■ Tuesday and Thursday ■ Do you enjoy swinging a hammer and helping people? This year’s camp meeting features a mission project with Habitat for Humanity in Berks County. Men who are 18 years old and older are invited to contact Tamra Horst for more information or to sign up: (610) 374-8331, ext. 236, or thorst@paconference.org.

Senior Medicare Issues Seminar ■ Sunday, June 17, 1 p.m. ■ Social Security, what can it do for me? How does it work? What do I need to know about it? Medicare and Medicaid—you can’t wait until later to find out what you should have done. A representative from the Social Security Administration will present this informative seminar to guide you in making decisions for the future.

Young Adult Worship ■ Each evening at 7 p.m. young adults can enjoy Brad Cassell, pastor of the Fayetteville (Ga.) church, Cassell grew up in the Hershey area and pastored in several districts in Pennsylvania before moving to Georgia. His “Hall of Faith” seminar talks about people who “keep it real”—real people, dealing with real situations, with a real desire to serve God.

Small Group Bible Study, Prayer, and Praise ■ Monday-Friday, 8:20 a.m. Join one of several small groups for Bible study, sharing, and prayer. Topics include relationships, a study of parables, Christ, and walking with God in modern America. Bring your Bible and a notebook for this interactive small group time.

El pastor Daniel Scaran e es Asociado Ministerial y Coordinador de la Asociación de Michigan. También es autor del libro evangelístico para el 2007 Asado a la mente.
Welcome

I am looking forward to my first Potomac Conference Camp Meeting. Some of my earliest and fondest memories of camp meeting include listening to stories by Adventist authors Josephine Cunnington Edwards and Eric B. Hare. That was quite awhile back, but as I have reviewed the schedules, there are some things that haven’t changed. Camp meeting is a time for spiritual inspiration and fellowship. It is a time to pray together, to remember that the God of the universe has a special message for a special time, and to direct our focus on Jesus. It is a time to be reminded of our mission, that we are to be “salt” and “light.”

This year’s theme is “Watch, Ye Saints.” The word “watch” for some conjures up an image of inactivity, but in the spiritual context it is active. It implies we are to watch and focus on Jesus, evidenced by how we portray His grace to others and wherever we live out our lives. Are you in need of spiritual renewal? Come and discover the blessings that await you.

Speakers

Henry Wright is senior pastor of the Community Praise Center in Alexandria, Va. A sought-after speaker and evangelist, both in the United States and throughout the world, Pastor Wright’s pastoral ministry and teaching career have taken him to Kentucky, Mississippi, and Ohio. Pastor Wright has received numerous awards and recognition for pastoral leadership, preaching, and evangelism. He is married to Carol Wright, undertreasurer at the Columbia Union Conference. Wright will share timely messages during the evening worship services.

Cheri Peters is the founder of True Step Ministries, a faith-based, nonprofit organization. Its mission is to give troubled children dreams to work toward, to teach them to accept love into their lives, and to help them “fight for their recovery.” Born to teenage addicts, Peters was abused and unwanted, ending up on the streets of Los Angeles by age 13. That’s where she stayed for the next 10 years, raised by addicts. By age 23, she found her way out of that life through an incredible encounter with God and a woman who encouraged her to fight for her recovery. Peters has authored two books, hosts a television program and a radio show, and is a sought-after speaker. She lives in Kuna, Idaho, with her husband, Brad, and daughter, Jaci.

Charles Drake III, PhD, is the executive secretary and vice president for administration for the Mid-America Union in Lincoln, Neb. He is also a sought-after speaker who has preached at many large gatherings and conventions in the United States and throughout the world. Hearing the call to ministry early, he began preaching at the age of 12 and conducted his first evangelistic meeting when he was only 16. Drake and his wife, Crystal, have three adult children and seven grandchildren.
Seminars

Roots, Fruits, and Wings

Ivan Warden, PhD, is an associate director in the Ellen G. White Estate. Previously he served as a professor at Andrews University Theological Seminary (Mich.), as a pastor, and as the director of Urban Ministries and Community Services for the Southern California Conference. He will be extrapolat- ing 19th century principles from White’s writings and applying them to the 21st century.

StepFast Program

Barbara Watson-Paille, director of the StepFast Lifestyle program, collaborates with leading experts in preventive medicine to present the Adventist health message in a clear, practical way. She is frequently featured on 3ABN. Learn practical instruction in vegan cooking and how to con- duct a StepFast Lifestyle Seminar. Her “double blessing” feature empowers you and your seminar participants to make permanent lifestyle changes!

The Adventist Health Message: Obsolete or Cutting-Edge?

John Kelly, Jr., MD, MPH, assistant research professor for the Nutrition Department at Loma Linda University School of Public Health (Calif.), has a passion for evidence- based lifestyle medi- cine. He is currently involved in a number of research trials in the United States and abroad.

Health reform principles have been a unique part of the church since its beginnings. With the spotlight on epidemiology, the Adventist health message is even more relevant today. Learn how to reclaim and refocus the role of health ministry in our evangelism.

Family Life Issues

Marriage: Roles and Expectations

Jim Brown is the Nurture and Discipleship pastor at the Seabrook (Md.) church. His seminar is for mar- ried couples, and those considering marriage. Discover how to identify and fulfill your role and how to biblically respond to your spouse’s role. Learn practical communication skills, how to deal with conflict and resolution, and the language of fighting fair.

Forgive Us, as We Forgive

Gerry Fuentes is an associate pastor of the Takoma Park (Md.) church. He will teach that forgiveness is a gift from God, and is founda- tional to Christian faith and community. Learn how to experience the freedom of forgive- ness.

Wild at Heart

Joey Poliom is pastor of the Manassas (Va.) church. God designed men to be dangerous, passionate, alive, and free. Simply look at the dreams and desires writ- ten in the heart of every boy: to be a hero or a warrior, to live a life of adventure and risk. Sadly, most men abandon these dreams and desires. This seminar will give men permission to do what God designed them to do.

New Technology for Pastors and Teachers

Todd Mace, Information Systems director, will teach pastors and teachers about the new and improved Potomac Conference email system! Sessions are open to all skill lev- els. Choose a time that works for you.

Using Technology for Ministry

Todd Mace will discuss how we live in an age that is redefining communication. Learn how to uti- lize games, blogs, podcasts, social networking, and mobile devices to spread the gospel.

The Life You Save May Be Your Own

Ron Goss, Potomac Conference evangelist, will define the greatest obstacle in evangelical America: to understand the three angels’ messages. It is the job of a pastor to follow the rapture followed by seven years of tribu- lation and the rise of the antichrist.” He will enable laypeople to present the truth regarding the end times in a clear and convincing manner. Bring your Bible, Early Writings, and The Great Controversy.

SVA … It’s Better

Administration will answer such questions as, “Should you consider sending your child to Shenandoah Valley Academy?” Spirituality is their number one objec- tive. Seniors can graduate and enter college as a soph- omore. They offer sufficient student aid so that any Adventist student can attend. Through the Partial Dorm Program, freshmen and sophomores can be home nearly every weekend.

Meeting the “Left Behind” Issues

Ron Rogers, a Potomac Conference evangelist, will define the greatest obstacle in evangelical America: to understand the three angels’ messages. It is the job of a pastor to follow the rapture followed by seven years of tribu- lation and the rise of the antichrist.” He will enable laypeople to present the truth regarding the end times in a clear and convincing manner. Musicians

Valor, a group of committed Christian young men based near Huntsville, Ala., enjoy a full-time music ministry performing across the United States and Canada, as well as Europe. Their sound is a unique blend of contemporary Christian and southern gospel. Valor consists of (left to right) David Kennamer, Jr., Benjamin Dixon, and John Laws. Kennamer, the group’s bass, has consistently awed audiences and the music industry with his more-than-five-octave vocal range. The group has opened for Lamelle Harris, Sandy Patil, and 4Him. Don’t miss this awesome vocal group and expect to be blessed!
Jesus is Our Servant Leader

One of the most incredible stories about Jesus occurred in the upper room with His disciples (John 13). When Jesus started to wash the feet of the disciples, they were not sure how to respond. Finally Peter protested, How could Jesus, God’s only Son—God Himself—take on the role of a servant and wash his feet? First he asked, and then he insisted that Jesus not do this. When Jesus explained that Peter could have no part with Him unless He washed his feet, Peter was all for it. Jesus is our highest example of a servant leader.

Finding opportunities to serve others is a passion we seek to cultivate at Blue Mountain Academy (BMA). Each year we dedicate two school days to providing service to the community. Students clean, file, scrape, paint, and interact with young and old.

On a recent weekend, each of our tour groups—Aerial Aires, La Sonnette, and Bel Canto—spent several hours assisting businesses in Carnegie, Pa. They then performed a free concert for the community at the Andrew Carnegie Music Hall. It was a first, combining a performance tour with a service opportunity, and we plan to continue the practice.

During spring break, 58 students participated in mission trips to Brazil or Ecuador. During these service experiences, our students are challenged to serve as Jesus did. The question we want them to answer is, “How can I add value to the people I serve?” Jesus said in Mark 10:43-45, “… whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be slave of all. For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve …” We have no greater example of adding value to others than Jesus himself.

Adding value to others. Learn it at BMA, experience it for eternity.

Mourning Their Passing: Harold and Virginia Shobe

Anyone who has spent any time at Blue Mountain Academy will remember Harold and Virginia Shobe (pictured), faithful members of the BMA church. Harold and Virginia moved to Hamburg in 1958 so that their children could attend the academy. In the years that followed, their five children and four of their grandchildren attended the school.

Harold and Virginia were faithful members and volunteers at the church, the academy, and the elementary school. They gave of their time, their means, and their multiple talents. Last May, Virginia passed away after a fall. The Shobes had been married nearly 64 years, and the loss for Harold was enormous. He continued to attend church and enjoy his family and friends as long as he could; however, his loneliness for his life’s companion was evident.

On February 23, Harold “Grandpa” Shobe passed to his rest at home, surrounded by his loving family. We praise the Lord for the influence of Harold and Virginia on the BMA community. Their faithfulness to God and to each other was exemplary.
Students, Staff, Community Give Gift of Life

A t a time when the blood supply was running seriously low in the area, BMA held a blood drive that netted 32 units. This was the fifth year that the school has held a blood drive on campus.

The Miller-Keystone Blood Center, which supplies blood for hospitals in Berks and Lehigh counties in Pennsylvania, and as far away as Hackettstown, N.J., are always grateful for BMA’s response.

Not only do needy patients benefit from the donation, but also the young people are being educated about the importance of contributing to a healthy blood supply. The response is encouraging, as all shapes, sizes, and ages roll up their sleeves and steel themselves for the “prick,” many for the first time. We hope that early education will make blood donation a habit for our healthy, Christian young people.

Students Inducted Into Honor Societies

To the delight of parents, family, and friends, 44 Columbia Union College (CUC) students were recently selected for membership into the Alpha Chi and Phi Eta Sigma honor societies. The induction ceremony for the 2007-08 academic year was held last month.

“I’m proud of the students. You don’t casually become a member of one of these societies,” said Selma Chajj Mastrapa, associate director for the Center for Learning Resources. “You have to be intentional about it and put forth effort and discipline.”

Phi Eta Sigma is the national honor society for freshmen, and Alpha Chi is for juniors and seniors. Both societies require dedication to academics. During the inductions, Mastrapa reminded students of the qualities they should embody as members, such as an unimpeachable character, a healthy body, and a well-disciplined mind.

These ceremonies help act as a catalyst to encourage students to move forward in scholarship and spirituality,” said Fitzroy Thomas, director of the center and co-sponsor of the event.

CUC chemistry professor Melvin Roberts gave the keynote address and shared a few personal experiences with the students. He encouraged them to seek God’s guidance in everything that they do, using Proverbs 3:5-6 to illustrate his point.

“Mr. Roberts’s speech was really riveting,” said Phi Eta Sigma vice president John Allen, freshman health fitness major. “It made me think about my future. I feel that I can do anything with God’s help, and that I can learn from others and teach others as well.”

The honors induction program occurs every school year, during the spring semester.—Alexis Goring

New Online Giving Method Established

You know all that stuff in the closet or garage you’ve wanted to sell on eBay? Here is one more good reason to do it. Columbia Union College, in partnership with MissionFish—a service of the Points of Light Foundation—has become a participant in the charitable giving online marketplace.

Through this partnership, friends, alumni, and constituents can donate a percentage of their sales from online auctions directly to CUC.

“This partnership provides donors with an alternative to traditional giving to assist their alma mater in producing unrestricted, consistent revenues to strengthen the quality of education at the college,” said Bryan Zervos, director of development for the Office of Advancement.

MissionFish was created in 2003 and works as an online giving tool to accept and process donations from individuals who sell items through eBay Inc. This new venture will benefit current students and assist with the mission of the college. The donations can be set up at the time a seller creates a new auction.

“This service adds to our ability to accept and process gifts of any kind,” said Leroy Cain, a strong supporter of CUC’s new venture and member of the college’s Founders and Visionaries Society. “It works for everyone who has used eBay to sell items, and those who haven’t. We hope this will encourage people to take advantage of this convenient process.”—Marketing & Communication Staff
The Department of Religion recently unveiled two paintings by artist Jeremy Satterlund for display in the H.M.S. Richards Hall lobby. The two, 10-foot paintings on canvas are titled “ Hovering Above” and “ Moving Upon”. Classified as abstract expressionism, the paintings depict two interpretations of the same act described in Genesis 1:2, when God first moved upon the void in the act of creation. “These incredible gifts are the result of passion—passion for beauty, passion for reflection, and passion for the interaction of life, culture, and theology,” said CUC president Randall Wisbey, DMN. Religion professor and department chair Zdravko Plantak, PhD, commissioned the large abstract works during an in-class discussion with the artist. He hopes the paintings “challenge the viewer to develop deeper understandings of the interplay between mind, body, and spirit.” The paintings were made possible through the generous support of private donors—including college professors, administrators, and students—Adventist HealthCare, and friends of the department.—PR Staff

Chef Crowned at Cooking Competition

D own-home macaroni and cheese, collard greens, deep fried portabella mushrooms, and peach cobbler were the winning combination for CUC’s executive chef Gregory Davis (pictured) as he secured a third-round victory of “K.O. in the Kitchen,” an annual culinary cooking competition. The event was hosted in CUC’s dining hall. Students and faculty members stood armed with gray cafeteria trays and red ballots to vote for their favorite vegetarian or vegan meal. Davis competed against chefs from nearby Bowie State University, Howard University, and Cathedral College. This recent win guarantees Davis a spot in the final competition. “The event was a great opportunity for faculty, students, and staff to enjoy the food and be with each other,” said attendee Marilyn Riley, executive assistant to the president. “It was great fun to comment back and forth over the food.” Davis has won many awards but feels that this CUC victory was special. “The remarks from students were very humbling and overwhelming,” said Davis, who won the competition by more than 60 votes—from a total of 283. “It felt great to witness such school pride, I felt like the victory was just mine, but ours.” In addition to his duties at CUC, Davis is the district executive chef for Campus Services at Sodexo, Inc., the sponsor of the CUC event and the leading food and facilities management services company in North America. Davis manages a total of 10 schools—Candace Hamilton

Potomac abre sede de ministerios

La Asociación de Potomac adquirió una propiedad de tres acres de tierra en Temple Hills, Md. El centro de entrenamiento y producciones evangelísticas funcionará como sede de ministerios hispanos. Líderes y pastores hispanos, movidos por el lema “Haciendo discípulos y entrenándolos para el servicio” se comprometieron a usar el centro para entrenar a poderosos ejércitos de hermanos deseando cumplir fielmente la misión que Jesús encomendó. El edificio con capacidad para 240 incluirá los ministerios de asistencia del segundo advenimiento, ministerios radiales, ministerio de coportadores hispanos y evangelismo, y ministerios de jóvenes (PGJovenes.com).—José Esposito y Rubén Ramos

La obra en Chesapeake crece

La compañía hispana de Salisbury, Md. (en la foto), fue organizada y está siendo dirigida por Marcos Schueren, un empleado de la Review and Herald, en Hagerstown, Md. La congregación actualmente está adorando en la Iglesia de Dios de Profecía localizada en el 605 College Street. La congregación hispana de Washington-Spencerville, liderada por el Pastor Juan Sicalo, fue recientemente organizada como iglesia. El servicio de dedicación fue dirigido por el presidente de la Asociación de Chesapeake, Robert Vandeman, quien presidió, asistido por Ramón Chow (intérprete), tesorero; Eduardo Muñoz, tesorero asociado, y el Pastor Sicalo. La congregación se reúne en el 2100 Spencerville Road, Spencerville, Md.

La convocatoria hispana de la Asociación de Chesapeake tomará lugar del 29 al 30 de septiembre. Los feligreses de habla hispana se congregan en el Campamento y Centro de Retiro de Mt. Aetna, Hagerstown, Md., para compartir experiencia, adoración y estar mejor equipados como discípulos. Para información, comuníquese con Chow al (410) 995-1910, extensión 16.

Nueva iglesia en Ohio

El Pastor Oscar Rodríguez y su familia ayudaron a la Iglesia Parkwood de Toledo en la organización de un nucleo de hispanos para establecer una iglesia en Leipsic, Ohio—la Emmanuel Mission Hispana. Libby H. Dubreuz, padre, director de ministerios multiculturales de la Asociación de Allegheny Oeste y Mikel Moore, pastor de la iglesia de Parkwood, también colaboraron en este esfuerzo.

Los feligreses de la congregación de Leipsic han estado adorando juntos por varios meses. Recientemente, durante un servicio sabático, el Pastor Rodríguez condujo a su nueva gremio en una dedicación especial. El Pastor Moore dirigió una oración por el grupo que hizo voto de alcanzar a otros hispanos del condado.
La Iglesia Hispana de Viena, Va., recientemente realizó su primera iglesia joven mensual con la ayuda del grupo UMinistries de la Iglesia Hispana de Silver Springs, Md. El tema del evento fue “Cuándo se trata de Dios, ¿dónde estás tú?”

Más de 150 jóvenes de la Asociación de Potomac asistieron a tres sesiones generales. El orador invitado Willy Ramos (en la foto), expandió recensado y predicador de la Florida, invitó a los participantes a auto-examinarse y evaluar qué lugar ocupa Dios en sus vidas. Los animó a luchar por lo que creen. Los seminarios de la tarde trataron sobre cómo ser un cristiano tranquilo, cómo tomar buenas decisiones, y el sexo. El Grupo de Alabanza Escape de Michigan, dirigió la música.

Varios adolescentes respondieron al llamado de entregar sus vidas a Dios. Los primeros dos bautismos que resultaron de este evento tomaron lugar recientemente en la Iglesia Hispana de Silver Spring, donde dos adolescentes del grupo de UMinistries de la iglesia fueron bautizados. UMinistries es una iglesia semanal juvenil y un ministerio de alcance que inició hace más de un año, dirigidos por el Pastor Sam Moreno.

Students Wage War on HIV//Aids

Spencerville Adventist Academy’s High School Student Council recently started the Spencerville Penny War, which functioned as both a fund-raiser and a contest between classes. Each class tried to see who could collect the most money in pennies, with each penny worth one point. Quarters, nickels, and dimes canceled out the pennies and added a level of strategy to the game. If a student placed coins other than pennies in the container of another class, it would take points away from the penny points. A class wins the Penny War either by having the most points or by raising the most money.

SAA partnered with Hope For Humanity with funds going to benefit the Maluti Adventist Hospital in the student council’s fund-raiser, a Penny War donation for the Maluti Adventist Hospital. Speakers included Allan Handsides, Maluti’s former medical director, and current Health Ministries director for the Seventh-day Adventist Church; Pastor Richard Nystrom, a Peace Corps volunteer who worked at the hospital; and Maitland DiPinto, director of Hope For Humanity. A video about Maluti, Lesotho, and the Penny War was produced for the school.

The thousands of coins collected for the Penny War were taken to a bank in Burtonsville, Md., for counting. Counting the coins took all day! The results of the Penny War were revealed the next day. The total raised was $1,275.51—including 81,813 pennies!

The first prize was awarded to the class with the most number of pennies after subtracting the value of the other coins that were in their bottle. This distinction went to the senior class. Second prize was awarded to the class with the most pennies plus the value of the other coins in their bottle. This distinction went to the sophomore class.

DiPinto announced to the student body that the money raised would be matched dollar for dollar by SAA, giving the Maluti Adventist Hospital a special new fund to be established to assist impoverished children.

Students, Staff, Volunteers Blessed by Mexico Trip

During spring break, 40 students and seven staff from Shenandoah Valley Academy (SVA) were joined by four Tennessee public school students, their pastor, and 15 adults on an international adventure. The group traveled to the tropical city of Papantla in the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico.

During the eight-day trip, the students assisted the attending health professionals with medical, dental, and chiropractic services. They also joined adults in visiting homes, schools, and prisons to provide personal, educational, and spiritual ministry to the local people.

Other students worked on teams assisted by the local residents to roof two unfinished churches and build another church. Other students helped to build more than 30 pews for area churches.

On both Sabbaths while in Papantla, and on four nights during the week, seniors Sean Smith, Jonathan Bryan, David Ramsdale, and Caleb Norris preached sermons. Other students directed a VBS program for two churches. Children and adults from the local community flooded the events. Everyone was blessed—those served, as well as those who served.

Fulfilling Duties of Sharing Christ

It has been a good year, and soon we will bid farewell to 72 seniors. The greatest desire of the Takoma Academy (TA) staff is for each student to catch a “glimpse” of the Jesus each of us knows, and to make the decision to accept Him totally into their lives. What an awesome responsibility. Satan is busy attacking the divinity of Jesus Christ, and it will only continue to get worse. We need to make sure that Jesus is presented positively, and to encourage students to develop a relationship with Him. Evangelism must begin at home and continue through school. This will assure that our church remains strong and anxious for Jesus to come.

Tae Kwan Do Teaches Respect

TA students are fortunate to have Anthony Medley, co-associate pastor of the Capital Hill church in Washington, D.C., leading out in a very special class every Tuesday, Thursday, and Sunday. Students learn principles of control and respect by learning Tae Kwon Do from a Christian perspective. Students may also receive physical education credit for taking this course.

Graduation Lineup Planned

Graduation weekend this year will be full of blessings. The Consecration Service on June 1 will start at 7 p.m. at Sligo church in Takoma Park, Md. Senior class pastor Josh Limerick will consecrate the class to the glory of God. A dedication to the parents will follow. The Baccalaureate Service will be held on Sabbath, June 2, at Sligo church. This year’s speaker will be the outgoing president of Columbia Union College, Randal Wisbey, PhD (right). Wisbey’s tenure at CUC includes serving as the school’s chaplain and associate pastor of Sligo. Wisbey and his wife, Deanna, are the parents of graduating senior Alexander Wisbey.

On June 3, at 10 a.m. in the J.P. Laurence Auditorium, is the Commencement Service. Guest speaker will be Charles D. Brooks (left), speaker emeritus and former speaker/director for the Breath of Life television ministry, and retired field secretary for the worldwide Seventh-day Adventist Church. Brooks has baptized more than 14,000 souls, with thousands more dedicating their lives to Christ as he spoke. Brooks has two children, and his two grandchildren are TA graduates: Bradley ('98) and Brandon Tramel ('02).

Experience
The Bible
as you
never have before...

Inspired By... The Bible Experience is the most ambitious undertaking in recent recording history. The Bible is brought to life by a collection of distinguished artists and personalities (Deniece Washington, Angela Basset, Cuba Gooding Jr. and many more), in a complete and fully dramatic audio recording of the New Testament.

The character portrayals are further accentuated by a compelling and inspirational musical soundtrack, composed by Grammy award-winning producer. And, the recording is truly contemporary, using the accessible and trusted Today's New International Version (TNIV) of the Bible.

I\'m teaching an exciting experience... The Bible Experience helps you hear the words of Scripture as if for the first time.

Package includes: 18 Audio CDs, 1 DVD (The making of The Bible Experience) and a Leather Case (Cost $45.95)

JOHN NEVINS ANDREWS SCHOOL is announcing plans for its 100th Anniversary Celebration the week-end of October 27. John Nevins Andrews School (JNA) is seeking contact information for all alumni, attendees, faculty, staff, and friends of the school. The anniversary celebration will take place both at the Takoma Park Seventh-day Adventist Church and at JNA School. Please email or mail the following contact information: Current name, name used during school years or address, email, phone number, date of graduation, and years and dates of attendance at JNA. Email alumni@jna.org or write: John Nevins Andrews School, 117 Elm Avenue, Takoma Park, MD 20912.

FORMER STUDENTS OF RAY HERBEL AND LEAHN (ROBEY) HERBEL are invited to help them celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary June 2. They would like to hear from their former students, telling them of their lives since leaving the Herbel classroom. Some of the students would have known Mrs. Herbel as Miss Rodie. They have been members of the Sagen, Gobles, and Niles Mich. churches for 30 years. Miss Rodie was a member of the Shiffer, Hutchinson, and Wichita, churches in Kansas. Ray Robey and Lavon Rodie were married June 2, 1967, in Appleton, Kan. by Pastor Harold Hampton. Ray has been a principal and teacher, retiring in 1995. Lavon also has been a teacher, retiring in 1997. The Herbal family includes Kathy Herb of Illinois, Mich., Brent and Connie Herb of Huntingtonville, Mo.; and two grandchildren. You may contact the Herbels by email (theherbies@qtm.net) or write: John Nevins Andrews School, 117 Elm Avenue, Takoma Park, MD 20912.

HOMECOMING WEEKEND. For more information on either the concert or the "someone should …," I challenge you to listen to God's voice speaking to you, accept the assignment, and see what God will do through you. Trust me, it's exciting and rewarding to discover that the "someone" is really you.

WHAT ARE YOU PASSIONATE ABOUT?

Monte Sahlin, who wrote this column for years, is passionate about urban ministry. Just ask him about a big city in our union, and he can pull out charts and tables to tell you about their needs. Our union president, Dave Weigley, is passionate about public evangelism. He still loves to conduct meetings and just finished one in West Virginia.

I have come to believe that one’s passion could be discovered by the words “I think someone should ….” Let me explain: For years I felt that more Adventists should be involved in community organizations. I found a website that lists the volunteer organizations in Howard County, Maryland (where I live), and discovered scores of them were looking for help. I am now that “someone” and serve on the board of the Howard County Community Action Council.

Some members of the Spencerville church in Silver Spring, Md., felt that “someone should” help the homeless in Washington, D.C. so they have two nights a week when they now serve sack lunches on Sabbath. While delivering lunches, one of the volunteer teenagers noticed the need for warm clothing and felt that “someone” should make scarves and caps to give the homeless during the winter. She decided that “someone” could be her, so she invited the word in the church to attend knitting sessions and the “Keep in Stitches” program was born.

It is amazing to see what happens when a person thinks “someone should ….” catches the vision, and discovers their passion. I believe the Holy Spirit plants those “someone should …” ideas into the minds of those He is calling to do that very assignment. Of course, our first thought is that “someone else” should do the task. But the next time you think “someone should …,” I challenge you to listen to God’s voice speaking to you, accept the assignment, and see what God will do through you. Trust me, it’s exciting and rewarding to discover that the “someone” is really you.
