FLORIDA CONFERENCE EDUCATION FALL 2013

ENROLLMENT CONTINUES TO INCREASE

Student enrollment in Seventh-day Adventist schools in the Florida Conference has risen to the highest number since 2006 reports Arne Nielsen, Vice President for Integrated Youth Ministries. Total enrollment for students in Pre-kindergarten through 12th grade has topped out at 3,433 according to the latest figures. This year our schools are providing a Christ-centered education for 2,612 kindergarten to 8th grade students, up from 2,527 in the fall of 2012.

Grades 9 - 12 showed a small decrease in enrollment from last year due to the restructuring of the Forest Lake Academy Distance Learning program. Even with this decrease, the opening enrollment number for these grades is still significantly higher than in 2010-2011 with 69 more students than reported in fall 2010.

Frank Runnels, Superintendent of Education, attributes the steady increase in enrollment to the dedicated teachers and staff members at our schools and to the parents who have confidence in the God-centered, quality education our schools provide.
“We should always remember that these are not just numbers, these are children. We are entrusted with the privilege and the responsibility to help equip each one as they prepare for life on this earth and ultimately for eternal life in heaven.”

The announcement of this year's enrollment numbers comes as a result of some big changes in the reporting process. All 29 of our schools successfully rolled up to the North American Division (NAD) Dashboard for the first time. This was accomplished only though many hours of hard work from our school secretaries and administrators. One of the big changes in the new reporting system is that for the first time the NAD will include demographics for students enrolled in our school's Pre-kindergarten programs. Even though the Florida Conference and Southern Union have collected data on these students for a number of years, we are encouraged to see the Pre-kindergarten students included at the higher level. Lori Thieme, Associate Superintendent for Early Childhood Education, states, "It is exciting that our youngest students are being included in the NAD reports. I believe it reflects an understanding of the importance of our Early Childhood Program."

Featured Example: Osceola Adventist Christian School

Just how does such growth happen in the Florida Conference? Osceola Adventist Christian Academy in Kissimmee is just one example of a small school that has experienced significant growth in recent years. The school opened in 1985 with 15 students meeting in the church fellowship hall. For the next two decades, the school remained small, functioning with one or two teachers. In 2010, as a result of a concerted effort on the part of the church, board, administration, and teachers, the school opened with 64 students. The following year, the name of the school was changed to Osceola Adventist Christian School (OACS), and an additional teacher and full-time principal were hired. In the spring of 2012, the school opened with a brand new facility on the property, vacating the former classrooms in the church. Under the leadership of Dr. Michael Cookenmaster and the enthusiasm of the OACS staff, the school embarked upon being a standards-based reporting campus, focusing on the Common Core Standards and using Response to Intervention best practices. Thanks to active recruiting workshops this summer at three of the ten Kissimmee area churches, the 2013-2014 school year opened with 76 PreK-8 students with four classroom teachers, a school bus that runs daily, an active agriculture and physical education program, a full time secretary/treasurer, a Speech and Language Pathology program, a Title I program, and tutoring for Special Education.

"I am praying and cooperating with the Holy Spirit to grow the school to 96 students by 2014-2015," states Dr. Cookenmaster. "Our vision is to add another full time teacher and run grades 5-8 with a middle school block schedule." The principal also envisions the school with a self-contained VPK program next school year, which will necessitate a renovation of the old school building to accommodate a VPK classroom and relocation of the school Internet Media Center. His ultimate goal is to see the school grow the PreK-8 enrollment by 2015-2016 to 120 students, allowing the school to re-establish 9th and then 10th grades, and eventually 11th and 12th. With the help of the Conference Treasurer's Office, OACS wishes to acquire the 2.5 acres next to the school so OACS can continue to grow to do the Lord’s work, says Cookenmaster.

---

Print this article

---

SCHOOLS IN THE NEWS!
Florida schools are making waves in the larger community!
--Orlando Junior Academy received national attention when famous chef, restaurateur, and TV personality Emeril Lagasse came to visit their Edible Schoolyard while taping segments for his TV show. Emeril is best known for his Food Network show Emeril Live. While visiting OJA, Emeril toured the school and served as a guest “teacher” for the school’s kitchen classroom.

--Tampa Adventist Academy's Merili Wyatte, vice principal, kindergarten teacher, and special needs coordinator was presented the Governor's Shine Award at a recognition ceremony held August 6 during Florida Governor Rick Scott’s Cabinet Meeting. The award was created by the Governor to highlight teachers who go above and beyond the call of duty in pursuit of educational excellence. “I am very proud that Merili Wyatte was the recipient of this prestigious award,” says Glen Baker, TAA principal. “Mrs. Wyatte epitomizes the very best of Adventist education in the classroom where her love for children, commitment to excellence, and caring Christian example touch the lives of many students each day.” Carol Thomas, Ph.D., from the Step Up For Students Program in Tampa, nominated Wyatte for the Shine Award because of her outstanding commitment to elevating the educational experience for each and every child. Wyatte has taught at Tampa Adventist Academy for 13 years with a total of 17 years in education.

--Naples Adventist School was recently the grateful recipient of a $2,000 check from Target. The funds were awarded by the national chain store to be used for the Family Literacy Night being planned by kindergarten teacher Kennedy Nestares.

--Mrs. Risobel Torres, VPK Director at Osceola Adventist Christian School, inspired students and colleagues alike with her participation in the “Iron Girl” on September 29. Cheered on by her husband Javier and sons, Jadriel and Jeziel, Mrs. Torres swam one-quarter mile, cycled 7.5 miles and ran 2.0 miles, finishing 11 out of 35 for her division of women and 43 out of 169 triathlon competitors. In sharing the experience at a school-wide worship, Mrs. Torres advised, “Just remember the 3 Ps-- Preparedness, Patience and Perseverance. It doesn’t matter how fast you go. Just take one mile at a time, growing your trust in God for a strong faith to produce a strong finish.”
Nature Weekend Coming!

Do you take solace and respite in nature? When you feel anxious or life becomes too hurried, do you feel calmer when you can get away to a "wild" untouched place and just listen to God's voice a bit clearer? Do you take delight in observing God's creation.... the animals, plant life, or even bugs, and marvel at God's wise design for his creatures?

Better yet.... would you like to learn how to impart that knowledge to kids, so they too can stand in awe of their Creator?

If you answered YES to any of the above, then you would likely enjoy the Integrated Youth Ministries "Teaching Nature to Kids" weekend that is coming up November 1-3 at Camp Kulaqua. The entire weekend is designed to help parents, teachers, and youth leaders "reconnect" with the natural world that is all around us, and then pass on that awe and love of nature to our children. There will be workshops and seminars presented by nature experts in such topics as nature photography, Project Wet, Project Wild, insects, and many more. (See registration page below for a complete list.)

The best part is..... Florida Conference will sponsor ONE person from each school and cover the cost of registration, lodging, and food for the entire weekend! Soooooo, if you are the nature lover at your school, talk with your principal to see if you can be your school's designated person, and you just might get to attend for free! If not, you can still come for a reasonable fee. Check the Camp Kulaqua website to register today! (And.....leave the kids home for this one!)

www.campkulaqua.com (scroll down to the bottom and look for the orange IYM Nature Leadership link to register on-line.)

TEACHER SYNERGY BUILDS!
With a goal of providing high-level professional development for our teachers, the Florida Conference works hard to offer top-notch study groups, regional inservices, and summer trainings which meet the needs of our varied teaching staff. This year, teachers are enjoying connecting with one another in new and exciting ways. The three teachers pictured here (Kathy Lankston, New Port Richey; Linda Westbrook, High Springs; and Stephanie Estupinian, New Port Richey) have partnered with Barbara Quaile, teacher in Fairbanks, Alaska for their study group. Students in both states have begun their first two collaborative projects: the creation of a K-W-L chart and an introductory presentation, "All About Me." With the K-W-L chart, students record what they KNOW about the other state, what they WANT TO KNOW, and eventually, WHAT THEY LEARN. Students in High Springs have recently begun this activity, with Florida students in Grades 3-8 asking their Alaskan counterparts:

- Is Alaska colder than Canada?
- How do you stay warm when you are cold?
- If it's really, really cold, how do you get to the store to get warm clothes?
- How do you keep yourselves safe from animals, like snakes?
- What do dog mushers eat when they travel with the dogs?
- Is it ever really hot there?
- Are there ever yellow or red leaves?
- If you get sick, is there a doctor there?
- What kind of wild animals can you find in your area?
- Do you have snow wolves and snow leopards?
- Do you make snow cones out of snow?
- What do you have as house pets?
- How many jackets do you need to put on when you go outside?
- Do you have a Walmart?
- Mrs. Quaile, why were you wearing short-sleeves in the picture?

CHRIST IN THE CLASSROOM
The Office of Education always enjoys receiving emails from our schools with heart lifting and inspiring stories. Here are two of the latest for our readers to enjoy.

From Adele Jennings in Port Charlotte: You know I pray with most of the parents when they come into my class each morning. There is one set of parents who are not interested in prayer. Especially the dad; he wants NOTHING to do with religion. They only walk their child as far as my classroom door...they wave to me and then head out. It has made me think that they were afraid I was going to pray with them!
Their little boy who is in my class, has migraines...he has had them about a year...Now when he has migraines it affects his eyes. The doctor told them about two weeks ago that their son may have a brain tumor. The very next day, the dad walked into my classroom, with his hands out, and asked me if I'd pray with him and ask God to help his son....Of course I did...so every day for the next two weeks, either the mom or dad, would come into my classroom, and ask for prayer. This week, their little boy had a brain scan....and there was NO tumor!!!

Today at church...who should come to church...but the mother, the little boy, and his sister. After church, the mom came over to hug me. She said that she hasn't been to any church in years...but after all the prayers said in my kindergarten class...she just had to come to see what our church is all about! She said she wants to come every week!

From Sherril Davis in Fort Pierce: So who knows what will happen? The one thing I do know...is that God is walking with me every day in my classroom. Yesterday to end worship we sang, "Into My Heart." We sang two verses. At the end of singing, "Out of my heart," one of my kindergartners said, "This is so sad." I asked, "What's sad, Gabrielle?" She replied, "We just asked God to come into our heart and now we are asking him to get out of our heart." So, we had a discussion on what it means for us to ask God to "shine out of our heart." That was the best one for the week!
Student enrollment in Seventh-day Adventist schools in the Florida Conference has risen to the highest number since 2006 reports Arne Nielsen, Vice President for Integrated Youth Ministries. Total enrollment for students in Pre-kindergarten through 12th grade has topped out at 3,433 according to the latest figures. This year our schools are providing a Christ-centered education for 2,612 kindergarten to 8th grade students, up from 2,527 in the fall of 2012.

Grades 9 - 12 showed a small decrease in enrollment from last year due to the restructuring of the Forest Lake Academy Distance Learning program. Even with this decrease, the opening enrollment number for these grades is still significantly higher than in 2010-2011 with 69 more students than reported in fall 2010.

Frank Runnels, Superintendent of Education, attributes the steady increase in enrollment to the dedicated teachers and staff members at our schools and to the parents who have confidence in the God-centered, quality education our schools provide. "We should always remember that these are not just numbers, these are children. We are entrusted with the privilege and the responsibility to help equip each one as they prepare for life on this earth and ultimately for eternal life in heaven."

The announcement of this year's enrollment numbers comes as a result of some big changes in the reporting process. All 29 of our schools successfully rolled up to the North American Division (NAD) Dashboard for the first time. This was accomplished only through many hours of hard work from our school secretaries and administrators. One of the big changes in the new reporting system is that for the first time the NAD will include demographics for students enrolled in our school's Pre-kindergarten programs. Even though the Florida Conference and Southern Union have collected data on these students for a number of years, we are encouraged to see the Pre-kindergarten students included at the higher level. Lori Thieme, Associate Superintendent for Early Childhood Education, states, "It is exciting that our youngest students are being included in the NAD reports. I believe it reflects an understanding of the importance of our Early Childhood Program."

Featured Example: Osceola Adventist Christian School

Just how does such growth happen in the Florida Conference? Osceola Adventist Christian Academy in Kissimmee is just one example of a small school that has experienced significant growth in recent years. The school opened in 1985 with 15 students meeting in the church fellowship hall. For the next two decades, the school remained small, functioning with one or two teachers. In 2010, as a result of a concerted effort on the part of the church, board, administration, and teachers, the school opened with 64 students. The following year, the name of the school was changed to Osceola Adventist Christian School (OACS), and an additional teacher and full-time principal were hired. In the spring of 2012, the school opened with a brand new facility on the property, vacating the former classrooms in the church.
Under the leadership of Dr. Michael Cookenmaster and the enthusiasm of the OACS staff, the school embarked upon being a standards-based reporting campus, focusing on the Common Core Standards and using Response to Intervention best practices. Thanks to active recruiting workshops this summer at three of the ten Kissimmee area churches, the 2013-2014 school year opened with 76 PreK-8 students with four classroom teachers, a school bus that runs daily, an active agriculture and physical education program, a full time secretary/treasurer, a Speech and Language Pathology program, a Title I program, and tutoring for Special Education.

“I am praying and cooperating with the Holy Spirit to grow the school to 96 students by 2014-2015,” states Dr. Cookenmaster. “Our vision is to add another full time teacher and run grades 5-8 with a middle school block schedule.” The principal also envisions the school with a self-contained VPK program next school year, which will necessitate a renovation of the old school building to accommodate a VPK classroom and relocation of the school Internet Media Center. His ultimate goal is to see the school grow the PreK-8 enrollment by 2015-2016 to 120 students, allowing the school to re-establish 9th and then 10th grades, and eventually 11th and 12th. With the help of the Conference Treasurer’s Office, OACS wishes to acquire the 2.5 acres next to the school so OACS can continue to grow to do the Lord’s work, says Cookenmaster.
SCHOOLS IN THE NEWS!
Florida schools are making waves in the larger community!

--Orlando Junior Academy received national attention when famous chef, restaurateur, and TV personality Emeril Lagasse came to visit their Edible Schoolyard while taping segments for his TV show. Emeril is best known for his Food Network show Emeril Live. While visiting OJA, Emeril toured the school and served as a guest "teacher" for the school’s kitchen classroom.

--Tampa Adventist Academy's Merili Wyatte, vice principal, kindergarten teacher, and special needs coordinator was presented the Governor's Shine Award at a recognition ceremony held August 6 during Florida Governor Rick Scott’s Cabinet Meeting. The award was created by the Governor to highlight teachers who go above and beyond the call of duty in pursuit of educational excellence. “I am very proud that Merili Wyatte was the recipient of this prestigious award,” says Glen Baker, TAA principal. “Mrs. Wyatte epitomizes the very best of Adventist education in the classroom where her love for children, commitment to excellence, and caring Christian example touch the lives of many students each day." Carol Thomas, Ph.D., from the Step Up For Students Program in Tampa, nominated Wyatte for the Shine Award because of her outstanding commitment to elevating the educational experience for each and every child. Wyatte has taught at Tampa Adventist Academy for 13 years with a total of 17 years in education.

--Naples Adventist School was recently the grateful recipient of a $2,000 check from Target. The funds were awarded by the national chain store to be used for the Family Literacy Night being planned by kindergarten teacher Kennedy Nestares.

--Mrs. Risobel Torres, VPK Director at Osceola Adventist Christian School, inspired students and colleagues alike with her participation in the "Iron Girl" on September 29. Cheered on by her husband Javier and sons, Jadriel and Jeziel, Mrs. Torres swam one-quarter mile, cycled 7.5 miles and ran 2.0 miles, finishing 11 out of 35 for her division of women and 43 out of 169 triathlon competitors. In sharing the experience at a school-wide worship, Mrs. Torres advised, “Just remember the 3 Ps-- Preparedness, Patience and Perseverance. It doesn't matter how fast you go. Just take one mile at a time, growing your trust in God for a strong faith to produce a strong finish.”
Nature Weekend Coming!

Do you take solace and respite in nature? When you feel anxious or life becomes too hurried, do you feel calmer when you can get away to a "wild" untouched place and just listen to God's voice a bit clearer? Do you take delight in observing God's creation.... the animals, plant life, or even bugs, and marvel at God's wise design for his creatures?

Better yet.... would you like to learn how to impart that knowledge to kids, so they too can stand in awe of their Creator?

If you answered YES to any of the above, then you would likely enjoy the Integrated Youth Ministries "Teaching Nature to Kids" weekend that is coming up November 1-3 at Camp Kulaqua. The entire weekend is designed to help parents, teachers, and youth leaders "reconnect" with the natural world that is all around us, and then pass on that awe and love of nature to our children. There will be workshops and seminars presented by nature experts in such topics as nature photography, Project Wet, Project Wild, insects, and many more. (See registration page below for a complete list.)

The best part is..... Florida Conference will sponsor ONE person from each school and cover the cost of registration, lodging, and food for the entire weekend! Sooo, if you are the nature lover at your school, talk with your principal to see if you can be your school's designated person, and you just might get to attend for free! If not, you can still come for a reasonable fee. Check the Camp Kulaqua website to register today!

(And.....leave the kids home for this one!)

www.campkulaqua.com (scroll down to the bottom and look for the orange IYM Nature Leadership link to register on-line.)
With a goal of providing high-level professional development for our teachers, the Florida Conference works hard to offer top-notch study groups, regional inservices, and summer trainings which meet the needs of our varied teaching staff. This year, teachers are enjoying connecting with one another in new and exciting ways. The three teachers pictured here (Kathy Lankston, New Port Richey; Linda Westbrook, High Springs; and Stephanie Estupinian, New Port Richey) have partnered with Barbara Quaile, teacher in Fairbanks, Alaska for their study group. Students in both states have begun their first two collaborative projects: the creation of a K-W-L chart and an introductory presentation, “All About Me.”

With the K-W-L chart, students record what they KNOW about the other state, what they WANT TO KNOW, and eventually, WHAT THEY LEARN. Students in High Springs have recently begun this activity, with Florida students in Grades 3-8 asking their Alaskan counterparts:

Is Alaska colder than Canada?
How do you stay warm when you are cold?
If it's really, really cold, how do you get to the store to get warm clothes?
How do you keep yourselves safe from animals, like snakes?
What do dog mushers eat when they travel with the dogs?
Is it ever really hot there?
Are there ever yellow or red leaves?
If you get sick, is there a doctor there?
What kind of wild animals can you find in your area?
Do you have snow wolves and snow leopards?
Do you make snow cones out of snow?
What do you have as house pets?
How many jackets do you need to put on when you go outside?
Do you have a Walmart?
Mrs. Quaile, why were you wearing short-sleeves in the picture?
The Office of Education always enjoys receiving emails from our schools with heart lifting and inspiring stories. Here are two of the latest for our readers to enjoy.

From Adele Jennings in Port Charlotte: You know I pray with most of the parents when they come into my class each morning. There is one set of parents who are not interested in prayer. Especially the dad; he wants NOTHING to do with religion. They only walk their child as far as my classroom door...they wave to me and then head out. It has made me think that they were afraid I was going to pray with them!

Their little boy who is in my class, has migraines...he has had them about a year...Now when he has migraines it affects his eyes. The doctor told them about two weeks ago that their son may have a brain tumor. The very next day, the dad walked into my classroom, with his hands out, and asked me if I'd pray with him and ask God to help his son....Of course I did...so every day for the next two weeks, either the mom or dad, would come into my classroom, and ask for prayer. This week, their little boy had a brain scan....and there was NO tumor!!!

Today at church...who should come to church...but the mother, the little boy, and his sister. After church, the mom came over to hug me. She said that she hasn't been to any church in years...but after all the prayers said in my kindergarten class...she just had to come to see what our church is all about! She said she wants to come every week!

From Sherril Davis in Fort Pierce: So who knows what will happen? The one thing I do know...is that God is walking with me every day in my classroom. Yesterday to end worship we sang, "Into My Heart." We sang two verses. At the end of singing, "Out of my heart," one of my kindergartners said, "This is so sad." I asked, "What's sad, Gabrielle?" She replied, "We just asked God to come into our heart and now we are asking him to get out of our heart." So, we had a discussion on what it means for us to ask God to "shine out of our heart."

That was the best one for the week!