Your Alma Mater Wants a Date with You!

May 13 to 15

IT'S HOMECOMING WEEKEND

- an opportunity to visit with old friends
- an opportunity to up-date yourself on the physical plant, the education expansion, and the state of the university
- an opportunity to get a new vision of yourself as a part of this institution of progress, learning, and service.

Compared to the great universities of the land, it may be small in size; but as Webster said of Dartmouth College, "There are those who love it."

DO PLAN TO COME!

Organ Recitals Draw Capacity Audiences

Andrews University's new Casavant pipe organ was dedicated March 12 in a late afternoon service in Pioneer Memorial Church.

Immediately following the dedication ceremony, Dr. C. Warren Becker, professor of music, who holds a doctorate in music performance, presented a recital which was repeated at six o'clock that same evening. A third, more extended recital, was held Sunday afternoon, and the church was filled to capacity at all three recitals. Assisting in the three programs were the University Chorale, under the direction of Mr. Gerald Ferguson, and the University Brass Ensemble under the direction of Mr. Norman Krogstad.

The new organ, purchased from Casavant Freres, Limited, of Quebec, is custom designed and built for its location in the Pioneer Memorial Church. It has approximately 4200 pipes, ranging in length from twenty feet to less than an inch. The console is all electric and includes pedal, three manuals, fifty-five stops, and sixteen couplers. A set of A. Deagan chimes and a cymbalstern have been donated by Dr. Howard O. Stocker of San Bernardino, California.

Dr. C. Warren Becker played to capacity audiences on the new Casavant pipe organ March 12 at Andrews Pioneer Memorial Church. More pictures, page 3.

Japan College Choir To Sing at Homecoming

One of the highlights of Homecoming weekend entertainment and inspiration will be the appearance of the Choral Arts Society from the Japan Missionary College, located near Tokyo.

The choir will be presented at the Sabbath morning church services for the choral anthem, will appear in a sacred concert in the afternoon, and then share the Saturday night program with the Andrews University marimba ensemble concert.

The Choral Art Society is planning a tour of the United States culminating at the Detroit General Conference session.

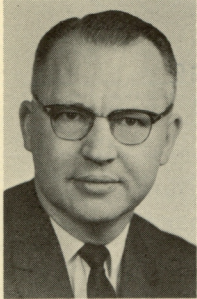

This is no ordinary choir, says Don Roth, associate secretary of the Far Eastern Division, who is arranging for the United States tour. The group sings in six languages, including English; and choir robes, kimonos, and tuxedos lend variety and interest to the performances.

Guest artists will participate in the musical offerings; and, said Mr. Roth, "I guarantee a tremendous program."

Japan Missionary College Choral Arts Society will appear in three concerts at Andrews during the weekend of May 13, 14, and 15.

Above: At the conclusion of the organ dedication, March 12, Dr. C. Warren Becker (seated at the organ) explained the physical properties of the organ.

Over 6,000 persons attended the recitals and the dedicatory service for the new Casavant pipe organ in the Pioneer Memorial Church. (See picture at bottom of page.) A limited number of copies of the program have been reserved for alumni who could not attend and will be mailed upon request directed to the Office of Public Relations.

Campus Construction Progresses Steadily

Construction on the $300,000 swimming pool addition to the physical education building has begun. The 40' x 75' six-lane, olympic swimming pool will be housed in a building that will contrast sharply to the present building. A short hallway will link the two structures in what will amount to two buildings with a landscaped court between them.

The women's locker rooms, showers, and sauna will be constructed on the pool level, while the men's identical facilities will be housed on the next level, according to blue prints approved by the school board.

The second level will also have seating for over 100 spectators, while on the pool level there will be a nine-foot deck around the pool for swimmers and competitors.

The schematic-preliminary drawings submitted by Charles W. Cole and Son, South Bend engineers and architects, show the third level with two handball courts, viewing balconies, and a fitness area for weight-lifting separated from a main gymnastic sports area by a folding partition.

The gymnastic sports area will consist of individual and dual facilities for badminton, volleyball, and tennis. Also on this level will be a new classroom and a teaching station.

The pool will be equipped with one 1 meter and one 3 meter diving boards.

Education Building Addition

Already completed is the eight-classroom education building addition which includes six teachers' offices and a new superintendent's office.

Ad Building

The new administration building is going forward with only a minimum crew of workers, but will probably be ready for occupancy after General Conference this summer, according to V. E. Garber, vice-president for financial affairs.

When completed, this $600,000 building will be a catacomb of nearly 80 offices, with two or three large conference rooms in the basement.

New Housing

By fall the new Beechwood Court apartments are scheduled to be completed with 84 units added to the Garland Apartment facilities. Beechwood B, C, and D will be open to undergraduate married students in contrast to the Garland and Beechwood A apartments which were built with General Conference funds and supervision for the graduate and seminary married students.

Lamson Hall

Lamson Hall addition, now under way, will nearly double the capacity of the Hall when it is completed sometime early next winter. The worship room will be enlarged, redecorated, and air conditioned to accommodate 625 women. Also to be enlarged is the recreation room in the basement.

The $1,200,000 addition will house 304 women in suites sharing a common lavatory area. Day lounges for both the new and old sections of the dormitory will be added, as well as two apartments to accommodate two new deans necessary to handle the increased housing.

With the completion of the new addition, Lamson Hall, like the new administration building, will have dual entrances.

The physical education building addition now under construction (drawing above) will house the new six-lane olympic swimming pool planned for the physical fitness program of Andrews.

The new addition being added to Lamson Hall (left) will provide suites to accommodate 304 additional women students and will nearly double the present capacity of the women's residence hall.

Quarter System Voted By Board of Trustees

Advised by the faculty Committee on Calendar and Course Revision, under the chairmanship of Dr. Earle Hilgert of the seminary, and voted by the Board of Trustees, Andrews University will adopt the quarter system, to begin in June, 1967.

Under this system, the school year will be divided into four sessions of about ten and a half weeks each. Undergraduates will attend only three quarters a year, unless they desire to accelerate, in which case they may graduate in three years. Graduate and seminary students will attend all four sessions.

Credits, under the new system, will be reckoned for courses in terms of three, four, or five quarter hours, and the elimination of virtually all two-hour courses will reduce the number of student preparations. There will be a break of at least one week at the end of each quarter, with a break of about four weeks at the end of the summer quarter.

Dr. F. E. J. Harder, chairman of the education department, speaking in support of the program, pointed out some of the advantages.

Students engaged in the directed teaching program, he said, will be able to take off a quarter to become full-time faculty members of their laboratory schools without lengthening their stay in college.

The new two-year B.D. program of the seminary will be benefited by the greater scheduling flexibility allowed by quarters.

Staff Delegates Chosen For General Conference

Nine AU faculty and staff members have been appointed by the Board of Trustees as delegates to the June General Conference session at Detroit, Michigan.

Directed by Dr. Horace Shaw, director of development at Andrews, a seminar on religious liberty was held at the Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California, early this year.

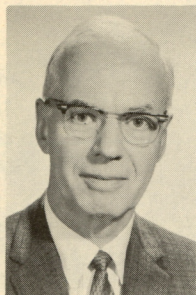

The week long seminar, sponsored by the Religious Liberty Department of Southeastern California Conference, was a program of the Andrews University Extension Division, and it aimed at bringing together pastors, principals, conference officials, and other interested persons to participate in a planned curriculum on current issues of religious liberty.

Participating in the discussions and lectures were faculty and guest speakers familiar with the views of Labor, the Right to Work Movement, Industry, the California State government, the Federal government, the Catholic church, the Seventh-day Adventist church, Americans United, and others dedicated to the principal of church-state separation.

Two hours of graduate credit were permitted to persons eligible.

Department of Music Adds New Summer Staff

The administration of Andrews University has announced the addition of two well-known teachers of music, bringing the music department personnel to a total of twelve for the summer session beginning June 13.

Harold B. Hannum Returning to Andrews will be Professor Harold B. Hannum, serving at present as chairman of the department of music at La Sierra College, Arlington, California.

For fifteen years Hannum was associated with the music department of Emmanuel Missionary College, and for ten years (1934-44) was chairman of the department. During those years he taught organ, theory, and music literature.

Besides giving instruction in organ, Professor Hannum will also teach a course in hymnology and church music during the first five-week term of the summer school.

Hannum is a member of the American Hymn Society, the American Society for Aesthetics, the American Musicological Society, and the American Guild of Organists.

Stanley E. Walker, who will also join the summer school staff, is at the present time chairman of the department of music at Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts. After receiving his Master of Music degree from Northwestern University, Walker completed additional graduate study in organ with Harold Gleason of the Eastman School of Music, Harold Heeremans and Walter Eichinger of the University of Washington, Robert Baker and Vernon de Tar of Union Theological Seminary and George Faxon of Boston University.

During the second session of the summer school, Walker will teach a class in romantic music and give instruction in organ.

Board of Trustees Adopts New $6.5 Million Budget

An operating budget of $6,571,492 has been voted by the Board of Trustees of Andrews University for the 1966-67 school year, according to V. E. Garber, vice-president for financial affairs.

The allotment to the instructional areas of the graduate school, seminary, undergraduate school, academy, and elementary school is $2,624,566.

The vocational work-study areas are allotted $2,990,160; and the housing division, which includes single and married students' residences and food service, are allotted $956,766.

The new figure represents an increase of $821,265 over the present operating budget; $412,500 of this increase is in the instructional section, said Garber.

AU Is Chosen to Teach Foreign Students English

A new English Language Institute at Andrews University will serve as one of three clearing centers in Michigan next summer for foreign students.

The eight-week summer school course, sponsored by the Modern Language Association, will also be held during the summer at the University of Michigan and at Michigan State University.

Extensive practical application in conversation, practice, grammar and laboratories with weekly tours on and off campus is designed to promote understanding of American culture.

Dr. Elaine Giddings, chairman of the department of speech at AU, Mrs. Jean Jordan, instructor in English, and Mrs. Robert Wilkins, instructor in speech, will conduct the institute.

Snyder Announces Campus Honors Program

A new on-campus honors program will be instituted next year, announced Dr. Donald Snyder, chairman of a special faculty committee which has been studying the honors program.

The honors program, voted by the undergraduate faculty last spring, is the result of three years of work by faculty committees. It will provide special honors courses for students of unusual ability in both lower and upper biennium levels. Special research and independent study programs will also be provided under the new program.

Interdisciplinary senior honors seminars will also be planned where students and faculty will present and discuss reports on personal independent study.

Any student who has a minimum

GPA of 3.5, who has taken four semester hours of honors courses, including at least one upper biennium honors course, or who has shown outstanding ability and competence in his specialized field may also be recommended for graduation with honors.

Dr. Snyder said that a copy of the new honors program has been sent to the press for publication in the school's bulletin for 1966-67 and will go into effect upon publication.

AU Choir to Sing At General Conference

The University Chorale has been asked to sing at the General Conference session to be held in Detroit, June 16-25, according to Dr. Paul Hamel, chairman of the AU music department.

Hamel and Dr. C. Warren Becker, professor of music at Andrews, are members of the General Conference Music Committee which is headed by Elder Charles Keymer.

Becker has been asked to be head organist and chairman of the organists committee for the session; and a concert band will be under the direction of Norman Krogstad, associate professor of music at Andrews. Frank Foote, alumnus of Andrews and director of the Battle Creek Tabernacle choir, will lead the massed choir at the Detroit session.

Announcement

Dr. Horace Shaw has been appointed by the Board of Trustees to the office of Executive Secretary of Alumni Activities.

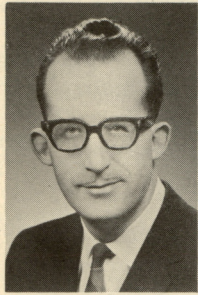

Alumni communications should be directed to Dr. Horace Shaw, Office of Public Relations, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan 49104.

Dr. Shaw is also acting director of public relations while Donald Lee is on leave of absence for graduate study.

Summer Study Tours Scheduled by Departments

Vienna

Under the direction of Dr. Hans-Jorgen Holman, professor of music, the Department of Music at AU is sponsoring a 1966 summer session in Vienna, Austria. Associated with Dr. Holman will be Vera Stoeger, professor of harpsichord at the Vienna Musikakademie. Mrs. Stoeger is the wife of the Missionary Volunteer secretary for Austria and one of Austria's outstanding harpsichordists and musicologists.

Applied music studies will be conducted by professors of the University of Vienna, the Vienna Musikakademie, and members of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra.

The nine weeks of study will emphasize six weeks in Vienna studying Viennese classical and romantic music and culture. During this period regular class schedules will be followed, and courses listed in the academic bulletins of Andrews University will be taught. Three weeks will be spent in travel and study in Germany, Italy, France, Switzerland, and England.

British Isles

Another European study tour will be sponsored this summer by the English Department of Andrews. The tour will be directed by Drs. Merlene Ogden, assistant professor of English, and Frank Knittel, dean of students and associate professor of English. According to Miss Ogden, the group will sail June 10 from Montreal, Canada, on Cunard Line's Carinthia to spend 12 weeks in Europe, returning to Montreal August 31.

Plans for the tour, says Miss Ogden, include 4 weeks in the British Isles,

Accrediting Adviser Visits Seminary

Dr. Jesse H. Zeigler, associate secretary of the American Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada, visited Andrews University recently to acquaint himself with the seminary and to advise on requirements for accreditation with the association.

The Seminary at Andrews is currently an associate member of the American Association of Theological Schools, which means it is recognized as a bona fide theological school, but has not yet met all accreditation requirements.

During his visit, Dr. Zeigler met the Seminary Committee on Curriculum and discussed with the seminary faculty current trends in American theological education. He had lunch with the administration officers of the university and the Seminary Curriculum Committee, and he counseled with the administration officers.

Dr. Earle Hilgert, acting dean of the seminary, was host to Zeigler during his visit.

ation is the Biblical city of Tappuah on the border of Ephraim and Manasseh.

Dr. Horn seeks the voluntary services of a photographer, surveyor, architect, draftsman, and persons interested in history and the related fields of anthropology and geology. The program will involve eight weeks of work at the site of the excavation, and graduate credit of four hours will be allowed those persons with adequate academic background.

With the Faculty

Tobiassen Readies Book On Access to United Nations

Dr. Leif Kr. Tobiassen, professor of history and political science, is putting finishing touches on his book, The Reluctant Door.

The book deals with a phase of international law that so far has not been dealt with, says Tobiassen. It is concerned with the problems of access to United Nations headquarters in New York for foreigners who for political reasons are not regularly admissible under the visa rules made by Congress.

Tobiassen became interested in this problem because of the concern which Adventists have in freedom of trans-frontier movement. In doing research for the book, Tobiassen made some twenty-five or thirty trips to the United Nations as well as to Washington, D.C., where he received assistance from members of Congress, the FBI, and the State Department.

Tobiassen was awarded the presidential citation at commencement exercises last summer for distinguished service to Andrews University in heading a committee for a working policy code of administrative and organizational procedures governing Andrews University.

Dr. Thiele Honored At Club Seminar

A portrait of Dr. Edwin R. Thiele was recently unveiled in a ministerial seminar meeting in the Little Auditorium. The portrait, painted by Nick Rivera, now hangs in the little chapel in Griggs Hall. A commemorative service was scheduled by the club to acquaint students with the contributions made by Dr. Thiele to Andrews University and to the scholarly world.

Dr. Thiele's book, The Mysterious Numbers of the Hebrew Kings, was the first work to successfully organize the confusing chronologies found in the Old Testament. As a result, he has become recognized throughout the world as a leading authority on Old Testament chronology.

Last year Dr. Thiele was honored with a doctor of divinity degree granted by the faculty of Andrews University "in recognition of his salient contribution to Andrews University." Dr. Thiele is now professor emeritus of religion and philosophy at the university.

Bible Research Elects Horn Vice-President

Biblical scholars elected Dr. Siegfried H. Horn, professor of archaeology at AU, to be vice-president of the Chicago Society of Biblical Research.

The Society of Old and New Testament Scholars held its meeting at the Evangelical Theological Seminary in Naperville, Illinois.

Two Staff Members Accept Foreign Posts

Dr. Daniel A. Augsburg, professor of French language and literature, and Dr. Siegfried Schwantes, associate professor of religion, will be leaving the faculty this fall.

Augsburger, who has taught both French and religion courses at AU for 19 years, will be taking a one-year leave-of-absence to study at the University of Strasbourg in France.

Schwantes will be leaving to take a mission appointment to the Middle East College in Beirut, Lebanon.

Professors of Physics Present Papers At Physical Society

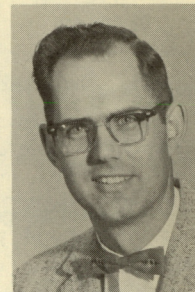

Andrews University's professional science affiliation was marked by three papers presented to the American Physical Society at its January meeting in New York City. Research reports were presented in two papers by Dr. James Van Hise, assistant professor of chemistry and physics, on work done at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory during his post-doctoral fellowship.

Dr. Donald Snyder, chairman of the A.U. physics department, reported to the sectional meeting considering imperfections in lattice vibrations the "Isotopic Effect on Phase Transformation Temperature for Lithium."

Dr. Snyder's study was begun in June of 1961, under a grant given by the United States Atomic Energy Commission to elucidate the effect isotopic mass has on the physical and mechanical properties of metals. The research work has been continued for five years with sustaining grants from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Kubo Publishes Book On Textual Criticism

The University of Utah Press has recently released a book written by Dr. Sakae Kubo, associate professor of New Testament at Andrews University.

Dr. Sakae Kubo

The aim of Dr. Kubo's study was a comparison of the Third Century Greek Manuscript P<sup>72</sup>, containing I and II Peter and Jude, with the Fourth Century Greek manuscript Codex Vaticanus to determine which had the better Greek text in Peter and Jude. As a result of his study, Dr. Kubo concluded that the earlier text, P<sup>72</sup>, is closer to the original than the Vaticanus text.

Before joining the staff of the Theological Seminary at Andrews, Kubo spent three years in Hawaii as a pastor and teacher. From 1950 to 1952 he served as pastor of the Los Angeles Seventh-day Adventist Japanese church. After three years of study at the seminary, Dr. Kubo received a B.D. degree and taught at Andrews from 1955 to 1960. Since then he has been with the department of New Testament at the seminary.

The book is the 27th in a series entitled "Studies and Documents" edited by Dr. Jacob Geerlings, professor of classics at the University of Utah.

Two Staff Members Granted Doctorates

Edward Banks

Michigan State University recently conferred a doctorate degree in rhetoric and public address on AU staff member Edward Banks.

Banks, whose real interest is homiletics, wrote a thesis entitled "Rhetorical and Homiletical Theory and Practice of Bishop Gerald Kennedy." Kennedy, a leading spokesman for the Methodist church, is rated among the four or five best preachers in the United States today. While writing his thesis, Banks had three interviews with Bishop Kennedy.

Banks was graduated from Emmanuel Missionary College in 1934.

He obtained his master's degree in 1948 and his bachelor of divinity degree in 1956 — both from Potomac University.

Steven Vitrano

Dr. Steven Vitrano, chairman of the department of religion at Andrews University, received his doctorate degree in rhetoric and public address from Michigan State University in January.

Dr. Vitrano's thesis was on the Chicago Sunday Evening Club: "A Study in Contemporary Preaching." The club, according to Vitrano, is an institution which began in 1908 with a group of Chicago businessmen and merchants under the leadership of Clifford Webster Barnes, an original staff member of the University of Chicago. These businessmen and merchants were interested in the social work and spiritual needs in the downtown Chicago area, and conducted a non-denominational Christian religious service in Chicago. The best-known preachers in the English speaking world are invited as speakers at the club.

Vitrano's thesis was a historical-analytical study. He wrote a biography of Barnes and history of the club; and he considered whether the preaching had a form of communication and fulfilled its objective.

Recent Program Highlights At Andrews University

● The Norwegian Festival Orchestra under the royal patronage of King Olav V visited Andrews on its 200th anniversary year with a debut tour of North America. The orchestra, known throughout Europe by its Norwegian title, Musikskabet "Harmonien," was founded by Edvard Grieg's father 200 years ago, five years before the birth of Beethoven, and is the only symphonic group in the world that has performed consecutively for 200 years. A work of Edvard Grieg, who was once the conductor of the orchestra, was included in the program under the baton of Oivin Fjeldstad at the AU concert.

● John Howard Griffin, famous author and lecturer, spoke to a standing-room-only crowd in Andrews gymnasium. Author of the book, Black Like Me, story of his experience in the deep South as a Negro after having darkened his skin chemically, Mr. Griffin said to his audience: "We must realize to the depth of our beings that there is no 'other'—the 'other' is me."

● Mr. Rau Khac Pham, acting South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States from 1963-65, presented a one-hour lecture at Andrews as first speaker in the J. N. Andrews Lectures for this year, a series of programs sponsored by the Student Association.

In Mr. Pham's opinion, "the government must be turned over to civilians again before any real peace can be achieved in Vietnam. We must have time to rally political forces and build up enough popular support to conduct genuine elections. Until this time," said Pham, "we need United States help to keep the Viet Cong from taking over completely."

● Stuart Wesson Rockwell, diplomat, visited Andrews in February and addressed three classes: International Relations, American Government, and Twentieth Century History.

The Norwegian Festival Orchestra plays at Andrews on its debut tour of North America. Founded by Edvard Grieg's father, the organization has performed consecutively for 200 years.

Rockwell served in Army Intelligence during World War II and has represented the United States in the embassies in Panama, Ankara, Madrid, and Teheran. He served as a U.S. envoy in Jerusalem in 1948 during the Arab-Israeli war. He has also worked in the Department of State in Washington, until 1960 director of the Office of Near Eastern Affairs.

Mr. Rockwell has been deputy chief of the embassy to Iran for the past five years. Dr. Leif Kr. Tobiassen, professor of history and political science, negotiated Rockwell's visit through Ambassador-at-Large Averell Harriman and Senator Philip Hart. Rockwell answered questions from students and guests concerning U.S. policies in Viet Nam.
