Spiritus, Mens, Corpus

These three Latin words are found on the Andrews University seal, and historically on the diplomas and degrees awarded by the school. In the Latin language, “spiritus” means spiritual, “mens” means intellectual and “corpus” means physical. These three words capture the essence of what it means to be a well-rounded education. At Andrews University, we believe that education should be holistic, addressing the spiritual, intellectual and physical aspects of life.

While these words have historical significance, they also have practical implications. In our daily lives, we often focus on one aspect of education at the expense of the others. For example, we might prioritize intellectual growth over physical health, or spiritual development over academic achievement. However, a true education should integrate these three aspects.

Spiritual growth is essential for a fulfilling life. It allows us to connect with our deepest values and find meaning in our lives. Intellectual growth, on the other hand, is important for critical thinking and problem-solving abilities. Physical health is crucial for overall well-being and productivity.

In conclusion, the Latin words on our university seal remind us of the importance of balancing all three aspects of education. Let us strive to live a life that is spiritus, mens, and corpus, and let us beAndrews scholars who are well-rounded and fulfilled.

Memories of Sacrifice, Reasons for Hope

Brockway is in charge of! Aimed at the campus community, "Memories of Sacrifice, Reasons for Hope" shares the stories of World Trade Center survivors and the experiences of their families, friends, and the city. On Monday, September 10, 2012, Andrews celebrated this exhibit by holding a special dinner and address. The event featured a keynote address by Professor Andrew Delbanco, a World Trade Center survivor himself. The event ended with a reception for the "Post-9/11 Reflections" exhibit in the Art & Design Gallery.

Sociology Department

The Sociology Department will be focusing on the campus community by holding a panel discussion on Tuesday, September 6, in the Art & Design Gallery. The panel will be moderated by Professor Andrew Delbanco and will feature a World Trade Center survivor, a family member of a victim, and a first responder. The panel will discuss the impact of 9/11 on society and the ways in which our understanding of the event has evolved over time.

Fall board report contains key vote

The Board of Trustees also voted to affirm pursuing the establishment of a School of Health Professions. This new school will initially be comprised of five currently existing successful academic departments: Nursing, Physical Therapy, and Health Sciences. These funds will be used for scholarships and endowed chairs.

English holds 4th annual lectureship

English holds 4th annual lectureship. The English Department held its 4th annual lectureship on Monday, May 7, in honor of Dr. John O. Waller, who chaired the Andrews University Department of English from 1963–1979. The event featured a keynote address by Dr. Waller and a panel discussion on his work and contributions to the field of English literature.

Emotions, Andrews awarded at SAC

Emotions, Andrews awarded at SAC. The Society of Adventist Communicators (SAC) awarded Andrews University with the Reger Smith Jr. Cutting Edge Award. The award recognizes Andrews for its commitment to excellence in communication and its role as a leader in the field. Andrews University's efforts to promote and support communication and information initiatives were highlighted by the award.

Southeast Asia Tour

Southeast Asia Tour. Andrews University is hosting a Southeast Asia Tour in April 2013. The tour will feature stops in Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, and Indonesia. The tour is designed to provide Andrews students and faculty with the opportunity to experience the rich culture and history of Southeast Asia firsthand. The tour will include visits to cultural sites, museums, and universities, as well as opportunities to engage with local communities and learn about the region's unique challenges and opportunities.
James White Library receives generous grant

The Howard University School of Divinity recently received a generous grant of $250,000 from the Howard Foundation to support the Howard University Andrews Study Bible project. The grant funds will be used to develop a digital edition of the Andrews Study Bible, which is a comprehensive commentary on the New Testament that is designed to help students understand the text and its historical and cultural context. The grant also includes a provision for the creation of a website and mobile app that will provide access to the Andrews Study Bible project and other resources for students.

The Andrews Study Bible project is currently being developed by a team of scholars and researchers at Andrews University, a Seventh-day Adventist institution located in Berrien Springs, Michigan. The project is led by Gary Burdick, a research professor of religion and science, who is the managing editor of the Andrews Study Bible product line. "We’re particularly pleased with how the foundational knowledge of the relationship between religion and science informs our work," said Burdick. "This grant will help us to continue our research and to develop new tools and resources for students and scholars."
New principal for Andrews Academy

Dr. Paul A. Overstreet has joined Andrews Academy as its new principal. He previously served as associate principal at Andrews Academy. Overstreet has worked as an educator for 22 years and has held several administrative positions at Andrews.

Overstreet comes to Andrews from Andrews University, where he served as an assistant professor of education. He also served as a dean of students and a director of off-campus activities. Overstreet earned his Ph.D. in education from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

In his new role, Overstreet will be responsible for overseeing the school’s academic programs and facilities, as well as for developing and implementing strategic plans.

“Mr. Overstreet is a proven leader with a passion for education,” said Andrews University President David Emberton. “He brings a wealth of experience to his new position and we are excited to welcome him to the Andrews family.”

Overstreet and his family have recently moved to Andrews.

Virginia Nachreiner retires

Virginia Nachreiner has retired from Andrews University after a career of nearly 50 years in education. Nachreiner has served as a teacher, administrator, and principal at Andrews.

Nachreiner began her career at Andrews in 1968, and over the years, she has held positions in both the undergraduate and graduate schools. She has also served as a dean of students and a director of off-campus activities.

“Ms. Nachreiner is a beloved member of the Andrews community,” said Andrews University President David Emberton. “Her dedication and commitment to education have been an inspiration to generations of students.”

Nachreiner plans to stay involved in the Andrews community as a member of the university’s Board of Visitors.

Dominique Wakefield receives national recognition

Dominique Wakefield, a faculty member at Andrews University School of Nursing, has been named a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing. Wakefield is one of 200 nurses who were selected to receive this honor in 2011.

Wakefield has been recognized for her contributions to the field of nursing education and leadership. She has served as the dean of the School of Nursing at Andrews since 2006.

“I am honored to be named a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing,” said Wakefield. “This recognition is a testament to the important work that nurses do every day.”

Waus hears Itzhak Perlman at Ravinia Festival

Itzhak Perlman, one of the world’s greatest violinists, performed at the Ravinia Festival in 2011. Perlman’s performance included a world premiere of a piece written for him by Mahler.

Perlman has been a regular performer at Ravinia since the early 1970s. He has played with many of the world’s leading orchestras and conductors.

“The Ravinia Festival is thrilled to have Itzhak Perlman perform again this summer,” said festival director Richard Belcher. “He is a beloved member of the Ravinia family and his music is always a highlight of the festival.”

Perlman’s performance was dedicated to the memory of his late wife, Roberta.

Reflections on the 20th Anniversary Celebration of New Life Fellowship

By Newton W. Hoilette

Thursday, September 29

As the weekend ended, participants began to ask, “Is this going to become an annual thing? Because that was a powerful weekend.” Many attendees expressed the blessings they received from seeing how the Lord had led over the past two decades. “Our Celebration of New Life Fellowship Undergraduate Learning Center, encompassing the new Buller Hall and remodeled Nethery Hall.

Reflections on the 20th Annual Alumni Homecoming Weekend

By Newton W. Hoilette

Thursday, September 29

As I sat through the weekend, I reminisced with deep appreciation of the late Ken Mulzac, the first pastor, who made an impact on my life. I wanted that type of worship to endure in this Church. To that end, the “Black Worship Symposium” was created with the intent of “bringing hope, recognition, recovery and finding Christ for the first time. This value is essential to New Life Fellowship.”

The evidence is clear, and I am assured that New Life is Divinely Directed by the Lord. We have had the opportunity to serve as the pulpit pastor, serve as the senior pastor of New Life, and as the coordinator of the New Life Fellowship. As pioneers and founders along with David Rand, Walter Douglas, Norman Miles, James North, Doug Kilcher, and others, we have seen the Lord lead in ways that would best guarantee longevity. We launched the service in October 1991, meeting every other week as a test to see whether the reunion was largely student-planned.

New Life regularly hosts more than 400 worshippers each Sabbath, and they no longer have to worry about space. But more people keep coming. We had about 820 people attending on Sabbath, on a Fall Break weekend, which was amazing,” says Townsend, and David Franklin all got their anniversary celebration on Oct. 7 and 8, 2011. Past leaders, attendees, musicians and friends flew in from across the country to celebrate, reunite and worship with friends. 770 attendees packed into the Howard University, giving the sermon during the Divine Service. Saturday afternoon featured a “Conversation with the Founders,” including James North, Newton Hoilette and David Rand, as well as current leaders R. Clifford Jones, associate dean of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, and Timothy Nixon, campus chaplain for inreach.

The assessment determined that “the worship options on campus were not meeting the diverse spiritual needs for a vast number of students.” The students had expressed their desire for worship in a particular manner for a significant amount of time. The assessment also determined that “the worship options on campus were not meeting the diverse spiritual needs for a vast number of students.” The students had expressed their desire for worship in a particular manner for a significant amount of time.

The weekend closed with a Deliverance Mass Choir concert, and the choir members invited to join in. At the end of the concert, Langdon made a spontaneous appreciation of the late Ken Mulzac, the first pastor, who made an impact on my life. The Lord led in ways that would best guarantee longevity. We launched the service in October 1991, meeting every other week as a test to see whether the reunion was largely student-planned.

As I sat in the Divine Service in the packed-to-capacity Howard Performing Arts Center, I was absolutely moved! I looked around and saw people in my row crying together with others on stage standing alongside University Chaplain Timothy Nixon, whom I had left in charge of inreach. It was a powerful weekend, and I am excited to see what New Life Fellowship will do in the future.

The Lord has been faithful in leading New Life Fellowship in the past 20 years, and I am excited to see what He will do in the future. New Life Fellowship has been a venue for students to get involved in a ministry, and it has been a platform for fellowship. New Life Fellowship has been a place where young ministerial aspirants have opportunities to practice ministry. New Life is where worship through the Word, prayer and praise takes place. New Life is where fellowship is kept in a strong sense, and New Life is where New Life is Divinely Directed by the Lord.
International Flag Raising

A number of international students who had signed up to participate in the parade and raise their flags at the flag raising ceremony showed up in full costume, ready to exhibit their national pride. Unfortunately, inclement weather caused the cancellation of both events, but they’re still smiling.

2011 HONORED ALUMNI

Gary L. Case

From Mentor, Ohio, Jeff Case received the Bachelor of Science in Physics from Andrews in 1991. He then received a master's in physics at the University of Arkansas, Little Rock. After graduation, he joined the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory as a post-doctoral research associate. Case was later promoted to senior research physicist and then manager of the Energy Multiplier Mechanism (EMM) Program. He was also involved in the design, construction, and operation of an instrument to measure charge and energy profiles in a plasma. The research conducted here tested the EMM in the laboratory. Case returned to Andrews to join the Science Department as a professor. His research focuses on advanced particle detectors and he has received several awards for his work. Case is married to Deanna Wickersheim. He is an active member of AdventSource, a deacon, elder, and as a member of the Arkansas-Louisiana Conference K-12 Board. He says, “The friends I made at Andrews University are not just students and staff, but also family.”

Gary is married to Deanna Wickersheim. He is an active member of AdventSource, a deacon, elder, leader of young adults, adult Sabbath School teacher and religious liberty advisor to CBP on trade and fiscal matters. With a staff of 28, the ACC serves an agency of over 50,000 employees, handling all bankruptcy matters, claims in receiverships, and legal matters pertaining to the Continuing Dumping and Subsidy Offset Act.

Jeffrey Sajdak

Jeffrey Sajdak received 3 degrees from Andrew University: a BS in Electrical Engineering in 1991, an MS in Electrical Engineering in 1992, and a JD from the Indiana University School of Law in 1994, after serving as a law clerk for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court. He then joined the Attorney General's Office in Ohio, where he served as the Assistant Attorney General for Consumer Protection. After four years in private practice, he joined the Department of Homeland Security as General Counsel. He was promoted to Associate General Counsel and then to Assistant General Counsel. Since graduating from Andrews, Sajdak has been a prosecutor for the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Michigan. He has held medical director positions for the Orchard Grove Specialty Hospital, the Berrien County Jail and Planned Pregnancy Center. He has served as a commissioner on the drug task force and as a consultant to the Department of Energy.

Jeffrey is married to Deborah (Dowdell) Gray. He earned an MD in 1975 from the University of Michigan Medical School and a MPH from Loma Linda University's School of Public Health in Hindsale, Ill., in 1994. His residency was at the Grand Rapids Area Specialty Hospital. Recently, he accepted a part-time position as medical director of Andrews University in Puerto Rico and Canadian University College in Lacombe, Alberta, Canada. Participants attended workshops and sessions during the three-day event. A live finale was held at Johnson Gym featuring performances by 24 of the participating teams.

20TH ANNUAL ACROFEST MEETS AT ANDREWS
Andrew Moll

Andrew Moll is a Physical Therapy student at Andrews University. He grew up in Midland, Michigan, where his father and grandfather both attended Andrews University. His younger brother is also currently in the physical therapy program. It’s in the family. Moll credits his love for physical therapy to his father's encouragement.

Moll is treasurer of the Andrews University Student Association (AUSA) and president of the University's chapter of the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA). Moll was encouraged by his friends to run for president this year, but he enjoys being behind the scenes more than being up front. He believes his role in AUSA is to represent the students and their interests. Moll is planning to attend physical therapy school after graduation.

Moll's involvement in both AUSA and the APTA provides him with opportunities to make a difference in the lives of others. His passion for physical therapy and his commitment to helping others are evident in his work at Andrews University.

Moll encourages his fellow students to get involved with AUSA and the APTA. He believes that by being active in these organizations, students can make a positive impact on the university and its community.

More than 20 of Specht’s former students at Andrews University have pursued doctorates in mathematics. Dr. Specht’s foresight and leadership proved critical in the development of the resources for, and the establishment of the computer center and computer science instruction at Andrews University. He established the Andrews University Computer Science Institute in 1969.

Edward John Specht, a formative person in the development of science education and research on the Andrews campus. In the 1960s and 70s he guided the conduct of a large number of institutes for secondary school mathematics teachers, funded by the National Science Foundation. Dr. Specht also served as the director of the Mathematics Program at Andrews University from 1969 to 1979.

In 1979 Specht was named the inaugural director of the Andrews University Interdisciplinary Program in Science. He was the principal moving force in the establishment of a cooperative engineering program with the University of California, Santa Cruz.

In 1980 Specht was named the first director of the Andrews University Computer Science Institute. He served as the chair of the Andrews University Department of Mathematics from 1981 to 1985.

His publications include his PhD thesis on conformal mapping and his book “Conformal Mapping and Applications.” He also served as editor of the journal “Complex Variables and Applications.”

Dr. Specht was a member (since 1949) of the Mathematical Association of America, the American Mathematical Society, and the American Statistical Association. He was a founding member of the American Mathematical Society and a member of the Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics.

Dean Muniz truly was hope, inspiration and joy to all those who knew her.

They married in 1937 and lived with Betty Jo’s parents in Indianapolis, Ind., a time and place for the Battle Creek Tabernacle from 1955–65, and then for the Detroit Metropolitan Church from 1965–71, when he died.

Hale served as a professor at Oakwood Colleage, where he completed the first two of his three retirement attempts. After Marion passed away in 1984, she asked God to show her what His will was. Her future husband would read her Joshua 1:9. Paul and Esperanza began to grow their friendship, and in 2000, they married. She was an avid genealogist and received an honorable mention in the quest for Andrews’ 100 most influential women. Her musicianship and wise counsel are greatly missed.

Esperanza said the Lord had confirmed that they were to be husband and wife.

While there, he was active in the Downtown Lincoln Chapter of Kiwanis International and served twice as their president.

Mary, in 1995. He is survived by a son, Steven E. Robinson of Loma Linda, Calif., and three grandchildren, Jamison, Jocelyn, and Autumn.

He completed his PhD in business administration and accounting at La Sierra College. He worked as a student dean at Lamson Hall.

In May 2008, Esperanza married Paul Smith in Reno, Nev. She was an active member of Battle Creek Church and worked as a private pilot and church camp counselor. Her passion was always for young people. She held Expirences with other girls and connected Betty Jo and Marlene at school. Betty Jo was amazed at the beauty of life and was inspired to pursue a career in drama. During the summer months, she was a camp counselor and played the piano for church choirs. Betty Jo later became a nurse and worked as a nurse in the hospital. She was active in the Battle Creek Tabernacle and Detroit Metropolitan Church, where she served as a volunteer and church camp counselor. Betty Jo was a frequent speaker at church retreats and conferences.

Bob took a sabbatical from school to work as an announcer and air traffic controller in the media industry. He also served as a temporary police officer in the city of Battle Creek, Mich., and was active in the local Kiwanis Club. In 1947, he became a full-time police officer for the Battle Creek Police Department. He served as a police officer for 39 years and retired in 1986. After retirement, he served as a police officer for the Battle Creek Fire Department for 21 years. He was a member of the Battle Creek Police and Fire Department Charter Commission and served as a member of the Battle Creek Water Commission.

In 1948, Bob began his teaching career at Oakwood College, where he taught mathematics and computer science. He served as president of Oakwood College from 1966 to 1971. During his tenure, he oversaw the expansion of the campus and the establishment of new programs in business administration and accounting. The President's Report
The words "Andrew University" inspire a feeling of inspiration and excitement among students, alumni and friends. It is a place where students are challenged to think deeply, to explore their faith and to be transformed by the Word of God. It is a place where faculty and staff are passionate about their work and dedicated to the education of students. It is a place where the community is united and where the spirit of love and service is evident.

Providing a legacy of learning
Andrew University’s commitment to providing a legacy of learning is evident in the success of our students. They are prepared for the challenges of the 21st century, and they are ready to make a difference in the world.

New endowments & named scholarships
The James Smith and Carolyn Hall Russell Endowed Scholarship was established by the Russells in their memory to honor their late husband and father, Sam Smith, a biochemistry major with an emphasis in science or mathematics. The scholarship is awarded annually to students who plan to attend schools of medicine at Loma Linda University.

The Ronk Award
For the past 20 years, retired English faculty Bruce Ronk has been a guiding light on the Andrews University campus. He has inspired students to pursue their dreams and has helped them to grow as individuals. In honor of his many years of service, the Ronk Award was established.

God provides
Andrew Brummett is a recipient of the Ryden Scholarship. Upon graduation, Brummett plans to attend Loma Linda's School of Dentistry.

Caring about education
Andrew University is committed to providing a quality education for all students. We are grateful for your support of this good Christian university.

The Daniel Augsburger Society

The Daniel Augsburger Society was established in 2007 to honor those that have remembered Andrews University in their estate plan through charitable bequests. The following are members of the society as of Oct. 31, 2011. Information about the society can be obtained from the Office of Planning and Giving at 269-471-3124. E-mail: dcogdell@andrews.edu

The Daniel Augsburger Society includes the following members:

- Joseph A. and Marilyn E. Altman
- David and Brenda Alto
- Robert L. and Delores Andreasen
- Thomas A. and Louise Andrews
- Daniel J. and Joyce Andrews
- E. Lawrence and Betty A. Andrews
- David and Elizabeth Andrews
- William and Sandy Andrews
- John and Mary Ann Andre
- Thomas and Laura Antipas
- Donald and Janet Appel
- John M. and Jo-Ann Appleyard

- Erling B. and Jeanette A. Snorrason
- Chris J. Robinson
- Reger C. and Katherine B. Smith
- Stephen * & Bonnie Young
- Richard T. & Sharon L. Orrison
- J H Tarbell*

When you’re juggling jobs, school, homework, activities and a new home like Chris and Janelle Randall are, it can be difficult to find extra time and resources to make significant charitable contributions. By planning ahead and remembering Andrews University in their estate plan, the Randalls will make a lasting difference at their alma mater while continuing to meet today’s many responsibilities and commitments.

On Sunday, Sept. 11, 2011, the campus and local community gathered in the Howard Performing Arts Center for the Remember 9/11 Commemorative Concert. The Andrews University Wind Symphony, Symphony Orchestra and Chorale performed pieces written in memory of the September 11 attacks. The Wind Symphony performed "A Hymn for the Lost and the Living," by composer Eric Ewazen, while pictures of the September attacks played on a screen above them. The Orchestra and Chorale performed René Clausen’s "Memorial," a four-part reflection on September 11. Congressman Fred Upton of Michigan's 6th District was a special guest at the event. He shared that he was in Washington, D.C., when the planes hit. Berrien Springs President Milt Richter also shared his reflections on 9/11, and remembered being in the military when President Kennedy was assassinated. Both speakers encouraged those gathered to never forget the courage and sacrifice of those who died and the first responders. The concert closed with a benediction led by Pastor Dwight A. Nelson, the Andrews University Singers and the audience.
