Let's Focus on Mission

Throughout this session, North Pacific Union Conference delegate, Julie Sanders Keymer, has provided video glimpses of this world church gathering. In the last video, she leaves us with encouraging words for the future. Watch now.
Christian Martin's Miracle

Listen and watch Christian Martin's (pastor in the Oregon Conference) incredible journey to San Antonio that took an unexpected turn on Father's Day of this year. God spared his life.

"Many snapshots capture the essence of this global event that bridges the continents in spite of our differences. In such a huge undertaking, even the best efforts sometimes go awry, with rumors that one overseas musical group arrived to check in at the General Conference headquarters in Silver Spring, Maryland, instead of 1,600 miles to the west in San Antonio. When our best efforts aren’t enough. When the process doesn’t work like we hoped. When the results of our discussions spawn even more debate. When our words get heated and hard, it’s time to take a step back and acknowledge our own need of grace. Continue reading on the NPUC Gleaner Facebook page.

PK²: Perspectives of a 20-Something

By: Anthony White

"My mind feels like it's caught in a tornado. I am weighted down and frustrated, trying to make sense of my own thoughts regarding the last few days of General Conference (GC) Session. I am a 26-year-old Seventh-day Adventist, the child of not one, but two parents who have been called by Christ to preach His gospel. My father AND my mother are both Adventist ministers. Being a Pastor's Kid (PK) to one parent is hard enough. Many PKs struggle with unrealistic expectations every day. Some are able make it through mostly unscathed. Others, unfortunately, are not. Being a Double-PK (PK²) is exponentially more difficult. God's grace and the prayers of my parents and so many others have brought me through many questions and challenges. But I still feel overwhelmed at times. My expectations for our local and corporate church family often conflict with what I see." Continue reading on the NPUC Gleaner Facebook page.
