Your life-purpose statement

Most successful companies and organizations have clarity when it comes to their reason for being. There is clarity in their mission statement, and more importantly, they live by their statement of purpose. If it’s important in the life of an organization, could it be that it’s even more important for your life and mine? In amongst a hundred and one activities that fill your life, is there a thread that binds, and a magnet that draws them to their hub of purpose?

As a Christian, it's important to know what drives your life. Apostle Paul’s purpose for living was clear: “For to me to live is Christ…and death is gain. Phil. 1:21.

So if you define life through Christ, then even death is gain. It seems that no matter what happened to Paul, he experienced more freedom because his life’s purpose was to live to bring glory to God. No matter the imprisonment and chains, no matter the hunger, no matter even death - that's why a Christian is invincible.

“The eyes of the Lord search the whole earth in order to strengthen those whose hearts are fully committed to him.” 2 Ch 16:9. God has committed himself and all his resources to you. A personal mission statement is likewise your commitment to God, and a compass to guide your life.
