Pastor David Asscherick speaks at General Conference Headquarters

"The Kingdom of God in My Life Today," is an uplifting four-part series of presentations by Pastor David Asscherick presented exclusively for employees at the world headquarters of the Seventh-day Adventist Church during their Week of Spiritual Emphasis, March 7 to 10. The series is now available online for Hope Channel viewers by clicking on the blue Media Library button on the right side of the screen.

Asscherick's sermons brought attendees back frequently to The Beatitudes in Matthew 5 for poignant messages about living the belief of righteousness-by-faith without getting caught up in a legalistic lifestyle or mindset.

Excitement and awe in China!

When Billy Liu, Hope Channel China (CHTV) executive director entered the boardroom, he nearly fainted. He was face-to-face with the directors of a large Taiwanese media corporation.

As he stood before a whole row of departmental directors, he mused to himself, "They have departments and personnel coming out their ears, and our little Taipei production unit consists of just four persons. They have a multi-million dollar operation and we do it all with four people...and they like what we're doing. God has blessed!"

They offered suggestions on how CHTV could improve the popular health programs. Then they gave us the best ...

In addition, you can own this same four-part series for $9.95 each. Shipping and handling is five dollars for just one or for all four messages together. Orders can be placed through Hope Channel at 888-4-HOPE-TV (888-446-7388).

Asscherick is an ordained minister of the Seventh-day Adventist Church and the co-founder of ARISE, an evangelism training center in Sonora, California, that exists to equip, educate, and empower effective soul winners. He is a sought after speaker, both nationally and internationally, who is known for his dynamic, clear, and relevant presentations.
Excitement and awe in China!

When Billy Liu, Hope Channel China (CHTV) executive director entered the boardroom, he nearly fainted. He was face-to-face with the directors of a large Taiwanese media corporation.

As he stood before a whole row of departmental directors, he mused to himself, “They have departments and personnel coming out their ears, and our little Taipei production unit consists of just four persons. They have a multi-million dollar operation and we do it all with four people…and they like what we’re doing. God has blessed!”

They offered suggestions on how CHTV could improve the popular health programs. Then they gave us the best time slot in their schedule, right after the news at 7:30 p.m. They continued, “Oh yes, and we want you to broadcast daily.” Liu’s head spun again. Up to then CHTV had produced only one program a week.

Then they hit him a real stunner, offering the prime-time slot for free! Why? “CHTV is the only TV producer producing programs to help society and not trying to sell people a bill of goods.”

Not long after, a major cable channel in northern Taiwan began broadcasting a CHTV-produced health series—a powerful affirmation that CHTV is coming of age.

CHTV has several busy production units adding to the inventory of more than 1500 half-hour programs—a three-month supply of programs to cycle in six-hour blocks. CHTV’s next step is to move beyond using only their numerous websites (see list below) and begin broadcasting via satellite. Contract negotiations for time and space on the preferred satellite are underway.

“We at CHTV are excited and awed. For sure, all of these events are by Divine appointment, and it is a powerful affirmation that God has more exciting things coming in the near future,” says John Ash, Hope Channel China representative.

“Part of our mission is to help Seventh-day Adventist individuals, groups, churches, and institutions to develop their own Internet and video ministries to spread the gospel locally; and then, when their programming reaches a certain quality level, to share with Chinese worldwide on the different CHTV platforms,” adds Ash.

So, what does the future hold for CHTV?

To begin satellite broadcasting, continue developing production units worldwide. With our decentralized system of production, and encourage local “mother” churches to set up their own video ministries consistent with the policies of the government and the Three Self Patriotic Movement,” explains Ash. “And, of course, we are looking for more people to get involved. Funding issues are a persistent challenge. And, there are many, many talented individuals and effective organizations that could easily share their time and the programs they have made with CHTV.

The sky is the limit. If you want to help, contact us. There are 1.4 billion Chinese around the world. And Jesus’ coming is hastening. Pray for us and if you can, join us.

Here are our major websites so far:

www.chinesehope.tv ---> This “Chinese Only” website is CHTV’s live-streaming website. This is where we’re practicing and preparing the program scheduling necessary for satellite broadcasting. This website will eventually be the live feed from the satellite uplink. There are also plenty of video-on-demand (VOD) options on this website and links to other CHTV websites.

CONGRESS PASSES DIRECT IRA ROLLOVER LAW

Feb 28, 2011 16:56

For a very limited time, the U.S. government is giving its citizens a major tax break for donations to charities from their Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs). These opportunities don't come along often, and the time remaining in 2011 is quickly running out.

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

If you are like many individuals, you are tired of watching your IRA account balance go up and down like a roller coaster. Meanwhile, you need to make at least the Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) when you are over age 70 ½.

For a limited time you can support Hope Channel directly from your IRA and count it toward your RMD for 2011 AND get the tax benefit of not having it counted as income.

These tax-free gifts can be $500, $1,000, $5,000 or any amount up to $100,000. Perfect for a major gift or one of any size.

This may well be the best opportunity ever to put those IRA dollars to work while they are still worth something and when you can have the joy of seeing them lead people to Christ.

What to do? Instruct your plan administrator to make your IRA gift check to Hope Channel and mailed to us. If you have questions, talk to your tax advisor or give us a call and we will have our planned giving specialist, Dr. Al Navarro, explain how the IRA Rollover provision can benefit you. You can contact Al on our toll free line at 888-339-PLAN(7526) or directly 480-252-0844.
