Kettering SDA Church (17)

Minister of Music

This is one of the few Minister of Music positions in Adventist churches. Jerry Taylor, who has held this position for nearly thirty years, the longest length of service as full-time minister of music at SDA churches, is retiring this summer. During his time at Kettering he has created a vibrant and multi-faceted program that includes comprehensive choral, handbell choir, and instrumental programs.

The church has become an attractive and preferred facility in the community for performances presented by both church and community groups, the giving of lessons by persons on the staff and in the community, with easy access to extensive practice and rehearsal facilities.

The sanctuary has excellent acoustics and was planned and built around the installation of an 89-rank Casavant pipe organ. During Taylor’s tenure, a number of pianos have been added and a tuning and repair fund is maintained. Other instruments including a continuo organ, a set of four timpani, handbell sets, and other quality instruments are owned by the church.

Although it has been a full-time position, the possibility of a reconfiguration of the position is being considered at this time. Interested persons should contact Karl Haffner immediately but no later than July 15.
