ENGL 4304 English to Thai Translation Class Organizes Academic Service at Ban Subprik School

Acharn Nakhon Kitjaroonchai, Faculty of Arts & Humanities

On Monday, August 8, 2011, at 8 am, the ENGL 4304 English to Thai Translation class comprising 29 students and two advisors from the Faculty of Arts and Humanities left the University for their Community Service project at Ban Subprik School.

When the group arrived, the primary students of the Ban Subprik School were lined up to greet the team which was led by Ajarns Nakhon and Anita. After the class introduced the objectives of the project, the children were divided into six different groups. Each group was led by 4 or 5 AIU students.

The children learnt various lessons, games, and other fun activities appropriate to their age levels. Grades 1 and 2 learned the English alphabets, alphabet songs, color songs, a rainbow song, and the names of Thai fruits accompanied by illustrations. The team found the kinesthetic teaching approach effective. Grades 3 and 4 were taught body parts with action songs, a simple conversation on how to greet each other, and short stories followed by vocabulary games. These classes also learned a children’s song entitled ‘Look at Me’ in which the message of the song proclaims God created us.

Apisit stated, “It was a great opportunity for us to share the story of God with children at a non-Christian school. We don’t only teach them English, but also share with them our values and beliefs.”

Grades 5 and 6 students learnt simple conversations, action verbs with demonstrations, and a game called ‘Hunting for Treasures’ was introduced as well as action songs. Thongchai commented that using all these different activities help students to retain vocabulary. “I personally learned how to solve problems when students get bored. I also learnt techniques on how to teach children through this project,” added Thongchai.

At the closing remarks, Ajarn Prasit Phasook, the director of Ban Subprik School, expressed his gratitude and deeply appreciated the service that the translation class provided for his young students. He noted that English has become an important means in communication and students at all ages need to understand English, or else they will not be able to compete with other ASEAN countries when education consortium is merged into one diagonal in 2015. Ajarn Prasit suggested the ENGL 4304 class provide this academic service as an ongoing event.

Former FAH Dean Conducts Seminars

Academic Advising” and “Teaching and Managing Big Classrooms” were the two topics covered by Dr Beulah Manuel in a seminar organized by the Faculty of Arts and Humanities and the Faculty of Education and Psychology. This seminar was held on Thursday, July 28, 2011. The attendees included faculty members and some graduate students. The 2-hour professional development event was the third of three seminars given by Dr Beulah within a span of eight days. The first one was for the Faculty of Arts and Humanities teachers, and the second was for students.

Dr Beulah is currently the Associate Director of the Center for Student Success at Washington Adventist University in Maryland, the USA. She previously served as Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities here at AIU.
