Personal Message from Charles Wheeling

Hello, Friends:

We make few appeals for funds -- when we do … they are for real.

The economy is hurting and people are hurting financially. Our Ministry is experiencing an especially stressful time right now. We are just now receiving shipment of three re-prints of our titles and we need help! We are invoiced according to the shipping dates. In two weeks we must pay a substantial invoice -- less than two weeks later we must pay two substantial invoices. Meanwhile, our month-end expenses are due … we need $60,000 dollars.

Thank you for being generous with your tithes and offerings! We are here because of God and because of you, now publishing for 31 years!

May God abundantly bless each of you as He has blessed us through these years.

Yours in Christian Service,
Make a Tax-deductible Donation. Click the "Donate" button and enter an amount in the "Item Price" box. PayPal account not necessary -- just use a credit card:

Or simply call our office @ (205) 646-2941.

Stock Up On Canned Food for Stock Market Crash ...

By: John Stone / The Independent.com / August 24, 2015

"Damian McBride said a coming economic crisis would be worse than the 2008 recession.

"A former adviser to Gordon Brown has urged people to stock up on canned goods and bottled water as stock markets around the world slide.

"Damian McBride appeared to suggest that the stock market dip could lead to civil disorder or other situations where it would be unreasonable for someone to leave the house.

"'Advice on the looming crash, No.1: get hard cash in a safe place now; don't assume banks & cashpoints will be open, or bankcards will work,' he tweeted.

"'Crash advice No.2:...."

Click Here To Read It All

Call us during manned office hours

Monday thru Thursday:
8:30 - 5:00 CST

Friday:
8:30 to Noon CST

+1 (205) 646-2941
Stock up on canned food for stock market crash, warns former Gordon Brown adviser

Damian McBride appeared to suggest that the stock market dip could lead to civil disorder or other situations where it would be unreasonable for someone to leave the house.

“Advice on the looming crash, No.1: get hard cash in a safe place now; don't assume banks & cashpoints will be open, or bank cards will work,” he tweeted.

“Crash advice No.2: do you have enough bottled water, tinned goods & other essentials at home to live a month indoors? If not, get shopping.

“Crash advice No.3: agree a rally point with your loved ones in case transport and communication gets cut off; somewhere you can all head to.”

Read more:
China stock market crisis: FTSE 100 sheds billions in single day
Bloodbath for global markets as US markets nosedive
Chinese investors are so angry they have started kidnapping people

Mr McBride credited his former boss Gordon Brown with preventing a cataclysm by nationalising the banking system during the 2008 crash.

“We were close enough in 2008 (if the bank bailout hadn't worked),” he said. “and what's coming is on 20 times that scale”.

Financial markets are unstable and periodically suffer crises which can have devastating consequences for the wider economy.
China's "Black Monday" has plunged the global financial markets into chaos. The Shanghai Composite Index, China's most important stock market index, was down 8.45 per cent, erasing a year's gains in a day's trading.

The FTSE100 fell 4.5 per cent, hoping £60bn off the price of UK shares, and the Dow Jones in the US fell by over a thousand points in its first minute of trading.

Some analysts have suggested that the stock market slide could be the start of a new global financial crisis.

Mr McBride’s suggestions about stocking up on canned goods, setting rally points and stocking up on bottled water were ridiculed by some users on Twitter as over the top, however.

Mr McBride was special adviser to Gordon Brown and head of communications at the Treasury for a period during the last Labour government.