Middle East College Affiliates
With Loma Linda University

Loma Linda University will begin an active affiliation with Middle East College, Beirut, Lebanon, next September.

Arrangements for the relationship between the two institutions have been approved by the University Administration and Middle East College's Board of Trustees. The proposed agreement calls for the University, in effect, to validate or grant degrees granted by the Lebanese school, Dr. Anderson says.

This week's trip to Beirut by Loma Linda's Vice President for Academic Affairs, William M. Landeen, has indicated the feasibility of affiliation to La Sierra College, President Anderson says. Dr. Anderson says that La Sierra College has expressed interest in affiliating with Loma Linda University, whose Division of Seventh-day Adventist Dental Education faculty will cooperate in the visiting professors' programs, Dr. Anderson says.

Although some La Sierra faculty members argue that affiliating with Loma Linda University is preferable to affiliating with a non-Adventist school, it has been decided that affiliating with a non-Adventist school is a possibility.

Helping to Break the Ground

Loma Linda University will be responsible for the ground breaking of two major construction projects this fall. The first is for the new Biochemistry-Chemistry building, and the second is for the new School of Medicine building.

The Biochemistry-Chemistry building, which will be left unfinished except for two floors, will be the first permanent home for biochemistry faculty. Biochemistry faculty members have been occupying temporary space.

The School of Medicine building will be left unfinished, except for its basement and ground floor, which will be left unfinished, except for its basement and first floor. This building is expected to be ready for use in May or June, the University hopes.

A Prayer for Thanksgiving

"Let Us Complete"

A year ago this Sunday, the United States was rudely shocked into a period of soul searching by the sudden loss of its Chief Executive through an assassin’s bullet. The tragedy hurled the nation into the fearful years of the Second World War. The Twenty-Fourth Century. We at Loma Linda University, and the reader of SCOPF shared that loss.

Yet the nation has much to view with thanks. The transfer of leadership to President Lyndon Johnson went smoothly. The world at large enjoys a period of peace from the conflict that American soldiers are facing. Americans is at all time high. Universitites everywhere are riding a crest of national attention to their need. Loma Linda University has broken ground on numerous projects with the hope of furthering education and to value other peoples. Both these men were undeniably involved in the successful building of higher education.

In his inaugural address President Kennedy challenged the nation. President Kennedy has challenged, "Let us continue."

As a Seventh-day Adventist university perhaps our prayer of petition and thanksgiving should be, "Let us continue."

Let us complete the commission of God to this generation.

Horace Walsh to be New York Pastor

After serving as chaplain of Loma Linda University Hospital since June, 1954, Horace E. Walsh has left Loma Linda to become the pastor of the Rochester (New York) Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

In addition to his work at the hospital he was an instructor in the Division of Religion at Loma Linda University and was associated pastor of the Loma Linda Hills Church.

Mr. Walsh graduated from Columbia Union College in 1944 and received his Master of Arts and Bachelor of Divinity degrees from the SDA Theological Seminary in 1951 and 1953. After finishing his graduate work he was commissioned first lieutenant in the United States Army and was a chaplain for three years.

Mr. Walsh enjoys singing and studied at the Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Maryland. As an amateur photographer, he has a large collection of color slides of Europe, Africa and the Near East.

Mr. Walsh and his wife, Patricia, will live at 445 Hurstbourne Road, Rochester, New York.

ProvonshaSpeaks at Redlands U.

Jack W. Provonsha, M.D., associate professor of Christian ethics in the Division of Religion, participated in Redlands (California) University’s Religious Emphasis Week. The week was the culmination of a year’s consideration of science and religion.

Dr. Provonsha presented a paper Tuesday, November 11 entitled “Medicine and Morality,” in which he explored the relevances of religious and moral values to medical science. In the afternoon, he took part in an informal discussion of the issues raised by his presentation.

Five-Day Plan Conducted Here

Twenty individuals started the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking on November 1, said F. Stanley Kanneberg, re- search assistant in public health, who directed the recent program.

“Although a few dropped out, 13 were able to break the habit,” Mr. Kanneberg stated. “Boxers around the country who want to break the tobacco habit can follow the Five-Day Plan an effective aid.”

Lecturers for the sessions included Bernard Strohm, president of the Division of Religion and assistant in anatomy in the School of Medicine; Richard R. Adkins, M.D.; and Walter E. Chad- mason, M.D., instructor in family practice.

The participants were reminded of the harmful physical effects of smoking and were given “tricks” to help them break their habit and report re- ports of individual progress.

However, information available on those who have finished earlier series shows a high percentage of success, even heavy smokers of long standing, he added.

Morgan and Mary Homers are the proud owners of $1,880 in bedroom furnishings and carpeting which they won October 27 on the NBC telecast, “Let’s Make a Deal.” Their son, Kevin, is one and one-half years old. They live at 10670 Colletti Ave., in La Sierra.

Luminaries on the West Coast, began about 30 chaplains, hospital administrators and dietetic experts to break the tobacco habit on the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking recently sponsored by the administration of Loma Linda University Hospital.

The association, composed of Seventh-Day Adventist chap- lain on the West Coast, began its sessions on October 27 and ended at noon October 29.

Participants included a college president, two chaplains, a hospital administrator, min- isters and a physician.
