President Discloses Plans For Ten-Year Expansion

Loma Linda University plans an 80 per cent increase in enrollment by 1974 and substantial additions to its Graduate School offerings in the near future, President Godfrey T. Anderson announced Monday evening. A special campus program commemorating the founding of Loma Linda University 60 years ago, Dr. Anderson turned from the past to the future by unveiling plans for expanded academic programs and enlarged physical facilities.

Added to the University's academic and professional programs within five years will be an expanded career major in social work, chaperonages and seminars, and clinical supervision. Detailed plans for these new curricula are being worked out, making their introduction imminent, Dr. Anderson told a crowd at the University Church.

More Construction

In addition to the $20-million in building construction now under way on the campus at Loma Linda, the president said, actual construction will begin within a few months on:

- An addition to the women's residence hall to accommodate 200 more students.
- A journalism center, being added to the building, including new classrooms.
- A new building to house the School of Dentistry.

The Trustees have approved the projected cost of $11 million to support and certain other factors.

Further campus construction planned to be done in the near future includes:

- A new men's residence hall.
- A new building to house the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, internationally known and recognized for its contributions to world medicine.
- A new classroom building.

Funders Had Vision

I was involved in this optimistic and hopeful world of the School of Medicine. Conscionably, I was entitled to a meaningful position in the School of Medicine. The general public is sometimes unaware of the fact that the School of Medicine has more than just one division. The School of Medicine has a number of different programs, each with its own unique mission and focus. The Division of Clinical Medicine, for example, is responsible for the education and training of medical students and residents. The School of Medicine also has a Division of Basic Sciences, which focuses on the teaching and research of the biological and physical sciences as they relate to medicine. The School of Medicine also has a Division of Health Policy and Management, which is concerned with the policy and management of health care delivery systems. Finally, the School of Medicine has a Division of Community Medicine, which is concerned with the health of the community and the provision of health care services. Each of these divisions is fully accredited by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME), which is the organization that accredits medical schools in the United States. The School of Medicine is proud of its high standards and has a strong commitment to providing the best possible education and training for its students and residents. The School of Medicine is also committed to conducting high-quality research and to serving the community through its clinical activities. The School of Medicine has a long history of success and has produced many outstanding graduates who have gone on to lead successful careers in medicine. The School of Medicine is proud of its heritage and is committed to maintaining its high standards of excellence in the future.
Class of 1964 Successful In State Board Exam

All 28 members of the School of Physical Therapy class of 1964 who took the California State Board Examination in Physical Therapy passed the test, according to Edward J. Henley, educational director of the School.

Most states require that physical therapy graduates pass the California State Board Examination in order to practice. The examination is divided into two sections and is given in three parts: basic sciences, medical sciences, and administration and practice.

EXTRA OBJECTIVE:

A university is more than its buildings, its libraries, laboratories, and classrooms, more than its faculty or student body. It is more than its traditions from the past, however rich and impressive. It is all of these as they are today, its continued development. It never exists as a simple place or as a present or past conceived in time. It is the sum of all the years of its existence. It has an existence in the present and a future,
The School of Nursing Alumni Association receives many letters in response to the gifts which were sent. Here are a few of these letters.

BETTY HAHN, 891, Casilla 305, Portoviejo, Ecuador, writes, "Thank you for the money and the other gifts. We had just voted to start medical work in La Paz when your letter came.

"After praying about what I should do, I decided to use the money. I was impressed with an idea. I gave the students the loan money, and they have bought two stretchers and a malaria net for the sick and injured. The money also provided for the prenatal and postnatal care of the mothers.

"I had two mattresses, towels, sheets, and curtains. After making some "toilles" and "tulas" with the help of the school's nurses, I gave them to the mothers.

"A bit of cold cream was on hand, and so we were ready for business right at home. We are well fortified with light and heat, and also, this is distributed very freely. We live in a doctor's home and have a lot of money but I do not know how much money the people have and the satisfactions they gain from their work.

"We were thrilled to receive the $50 from Loma Linda and continued the return trip to our home."

"1965 marks the sixtieth anniversary of the School of Nurs- ing, and I am glad for the oncoming on June 3.

"MARIAN KLEIN CLARIDGE, RN 50 (nursing), is now on her way to her family in Loma Linda. She has left her husband, Elder Ypho, for missions there. Mrs. Bennett has the responsi- bility of teaching Turkish, her granddaughter, grade five, serving as chief executive officer, and assisting in establishing the clinic.

"JEANNE MIDDLETON, 30, second cousin of the Man of the Century, Bir Winston Churchill, recalls with interest her ex- periences to Sir Winston.

"MELVIN RICH, 36, has recently been to a medical conference there. He and his wife, Mary Jerome Hinkcock, and Churchill's maternal grandfather, Leonard W. Jerome, were brother and sister. The family has many connections and photographs of Lady Randolph Churchill (Dame Jeanne) Winston's American mother. With pride they watched him climb to fame as a statesman.

"FLORENCE OSS DOSS, 46, who has served in a mission field for 10 years, was in Loma Linda recently on furlough visit- ing her sister Myrtle and her aunt, Mrs. James Oat.

"Her husband, Pastor Norman Doss, is president of the Southwestern Africa Union Mission. Their son Gordon, 14, experi- enced his first semester in an American school as his sister attended Loma Linda University. They left February 6 to fly to Malawi. On the way they will stop in Sweden to visit El- liott Tandberg, 47, Florence's roommate during nurse's training."

The Alumni Association appreciates the support of the membership who contributed so generously to raising the needed $30,000 for the construction of the School of Nursing Building. The success of the campaign is due to the efforts of all those who gave generously.

The Alumni Association is able to send these gifts as a res- ult of the rummage sales which are held periodically. Another sale is planned for March. Your support is needed if more of these needed and desirable merchandise will be appre- ciated.
