Groundbreaking Set Sept. 27
For Geodesic Gymnasium

Groundbreaking for the University's new geodesic design gymnasium has been slated for September 27, according to President Godfrey T. Anderson. The gymnasium, planned mall extending from northern end of a planned mall extending from the administration building breezeway to the new Medical Center on the south. This will place the gymnasium just north of the present campus tennis courts, which will then be relocated still farther north.

Plans by Councillors

Plans for the building were developed by the councillors—gymnasium plans committee, chaired by Joseph Henry Lamont, and the University’s Development Offices. Council representatives of the councillors’ plans committees will continue to meet with the University offices responsible for the construction.

Gym Location

The facility will be located at the northern end of a planned mall extending from it through the administration building breezeway to the new Medical Center on the south. This will place the gymnasium just north of the present campus tennis courts, which will then be relocated still farther north.

Plans are already under way to insure the availability of the building process.

The University Councillors’ plans committee will continue searching for business and professional men through the nation who serve as advisors to the president, meeting with him on a quarterly basis.

Floor plans and an architectural rendering of the new gymnasium plans have been completed with the hope that they will be ready for presentation by the University at the next issue of University Scope.

PHILIP H. HICKS, University Church minister of music, tried out the Harvard four-manual Aeolian-Skinner pipe organ to be installed at the University Church late next year.

A 122-rank pipe organ, now at Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, will be transported across country this fall to become a primary medium for musical worship, accompaniment, and sacred performance at University Church.

The four-manual Aeolian Skinner instrument is presently located in the Harvard Medical Church. "It will be replaced there with a European-type mechanical action organ," stated Patrick H. Hicks, University Church minister of music.

"Their decision, however, is not our gain," he said, "for this is a famous instrument, original by Joseph E. Allen, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, chairman of the American Musical Association.

"Imagine the courage and vision of people like former John P. Kellogg and his wife Aner, who, although they had 16 children, gave $500 to start our first health institution in 1866," he said. "This was at a time of great medical institution could survive, he said, and that after a few years of existence, Seventh-Day Adventist medical work would be snuffed out.

SEP. 13 Ceremonies For RT Students

Students in the Division of Radiologic Technology will have their annual presentation ceremony on September 13, in Olive Chapel at the White Memorial Medical Center, Los Angeles. The presentation speaker will be Ernest J. Braun, MD, associate professor of radiology and chairman of the White Memorial Medical Center radiology service.

A reception will follow immediately.

Community Fair Set for October 30

The Loma Linda Home and School Association annual community fair is set for October 30, according to Ernestine Modglin, fair chairman.

The fair will have as its theme "America the Beautiful." Groups, individuals, and organizations are urged to begin planning for parade entries. Other events will include a horse show, exhibits, and food booths.

The fourth annual fair will be held at Loma Linda Union Academy school grounds.

HONORED FORMER NAVY OFFICER

Gives LLU His Estate in Trust

One of the few holders of both the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross has given his $75,000 estate in trust to Loma Linda University.

John H. Balch of 36171 Fountainview Drive, Sun City, has specified that the funds he used to educate physicians for both foreign and domestic areas where medical service is inadequate.

A retired general insurance agent and broker from Waukegan, Illinois, Mr. Balch was honored for World War I service as a US Navy hospital corpsman attached to the Marine Corps. Three European governments also recognized his service with the French Croix de Guerre and its Italian and Portuguese equivalents.

Throughout 10 years of active duty in two wars Mr. Balch, a conscientious objector, never bore arms. Following World War II he remained in the Naval Reserve until 1956 when he retired with the rank of commander.
A Viable Seed, Indeed

One hundred years ago the Seventh-day Adventist Church, having reached the first "seed" of a medical work which today extends to 185 countries, employs 17,517 persons, and treats nearly four million people every year.

We are reminded by a number of recent news events that culture and social structure offer, under the same conditions, a provoking feature is the subtle absurdity of much of its content. There is also the mystery-story type of frustration for the reader attempting to track direct quotations and borrowed material for a series of 13 television shows on the medical missionary work of the Sixth-day Adventist Church. In that medium, recorded sounds of the countries included will make the audience believe music will facilitate understanding.

With these factors in mind, programs will be presented throughout the school year. All programs will be in Burden Hall at 8 p.m. A very limited number of season tickets will be available to all students. RESIDENTS OF PUEBLO NUEVO in Chiapas, Mexico, crowd around a few of the 43 members of the University medical team dispensing medicine during an outbreak of cholera in the remote Indian village. Mexican officials credited the efforts of the medical-dental group with averting a widespread epidemic. Americans (left to right) are Howard C. Smith, MD, director of University Health Service and leader of the clinical field trip, Bill Sherman, mission employee, and Robert L. Roy, SD '67.

FRANKLIN C. ORDELHEIDE, SD '68, works on the teeth of a student at Linda Vista School. At right is dental assistant Shirley Walker, of Rialto.

MANY of the medical problems dealt with by the team were the result of inadequate home hygiene. Typically, families and animals live together in all-too-familiar congeniality, sharing food and filth with complete disregard for the illnesses and infestations that inevitably result.

MARTHA L. SEVERSON, PT '66, found some work in her physical therapy field, but more often doubled as a dental assistant. Here she helps John Kizziar, SD '67, in a restorative procedure utilizing portable air rotor equipment.

LIVING QUARTERS of the University medical team—occupied or not—were the subject of unbridled curiosity on the part of the Sonora Indians. Here, two young women in typical Chamula costume peer through the window of the nurses' sleeping area.

The Loma Linda University School of Dentistry announces availability of continuing courses in radiologic techniques to be offered throughout the year.

James W. Postfield, Jr., dental radiologic technologist, will lecture on radiation hygiene and safety measures, principles of the kynograph, and radiologic technique by the use of X-C-P (cinephotography) equipment, radiographic film, plates, and darkroom procedures.

The continuing education course will be held from 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday evenings for five weeks beginning October 4. Tuition fee for the series is $5. Students must own their own X-C-P instruments (available at the School of Dentistry), and to a kog-cox ray unit.

This course is particularly appropriate for auxiliary personnel such as dental assistants and dental hygienists.

RESERVATIONS MUST BE MADE WITH THE SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY BY SEPTEMBER 27. APPLICATIONS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM THE CONTINUING EDUCATION DIVISION OF LOMA LINDA UNIVERSITY, SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY, LOMA LINDA, CALIFORNIA 92354.

New Public Airport Now Contemplated

Development of a new public airport between Loma Linda and Norton Air Force Base is currently under consideration, according to John J. Creatura, chairman of the San Bernar- dino Regional Economic Develop- ment Council.

Plans call for the airport to be built parallel to the air base, between Tippecanoe Avenue and California Street. There is a possibility that control facili- ties might be built to serve both the air base and the air- port. Heavy, as well as light aircraft may be accommodated. The University-endorsed air- port would include the advan- tages of providing additional light private facilities for mem- bers of the University staff who own or fly airplanes, pri- vate connections to major air- lines for University or hospi- tal business, and the potential for transporting patients from the hospital in the shortest possible time.

The average cost of a pre- scription for medicine in the US is $1.50 per acquisition per person.

Stevenson Motor Sales is now the new addition to Kate Lindsay Hall.
