Denomination to Have Services Of All 1966 Nurse Graduates

All members of the 1966 class of the School of Nursing now are, or plan eventually to be, in the employ of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination, according to Maxine Atteberry, dean of the School of Nursing. Eight graduates have accepted appointments to the mission field.

Three of the eight are presently serving overseas. Chesty

Recent No-Time-Loss Totals Over Quarter Million Hours

University Hospital received an award last week for achieving more than 200,000 hours of accident-free time, Gary J. Rood, assistant hospital administrator, announced.

Mr. Rood and Karl C. Fischer, coordinator of environmental health, received the certificate of merit to Mr. Rood and Karl C. Fischer, coordinator of environmental health, in recognition of an exemplary accident-free status. This is the first time that the University Hospital has received such an award. This is, Mr. Fischer says, because records of accident-free time have not been kept until recently.

Time for Decision

A new 22 minute color film, "Time for Decision," marks a change of emphasis by the American Cancer Society from weighting the importance of personal choice in the question of cigarette smoking to a call for community action.

At the film's recent premiere in Jacksonville, Florida, Ashbel C. Williams, MD, society president, declared that cigarette smoking has reached "crisis proportions," said, "What is needed is not only individual determination, vital, necessary, that be, but what is also needed is action by the community — and that requires commitment by the community leaders."

Recognition of the vital role of community action is well placed. The Lenden-Walent study on respiratory disease among Seventh-day Adventists, previously reported in these pages, pointed out that "It should be a matter of considerable scientific interest in itself that cigarette smoking continues almost unabated, except among the members of this group, regardless of the amount of medical evidence of its toxicity. This widely indulged and pernicious habit is still little restricted by government action, public health leadership, or individual responsibility."

Linking this point with another that comes even closer home, Dr. George Lewis, director of the smoking-although not a power habit, "is demonstrably encouraged or discouraged by the attitudes of those around one." He continued, "Of course, the physician himself must accept responsibility for his own attitude toward the habit and the consequences of the harm wrought to the body and the unmissable findings of modern research. Furthermore, his is the advice sought and the example observed when it comes to the promotion of health."

That physicians are becoming even more influenced by the one factor is evidenced by a drop from 60 per cent to 30 per cent in the number who smoke. It is hoped that even this percentage will, in time, be lowered to an irreducible minimum, not only for physicians, but for the entire population.

If it, will, color, verve, cold fact and artistic persuasion have any influence, "Time for Decision" will play its part.

The Wall Street Journal has gone on record to the opinion that cigarette manufacturers are very much worried by the anti-smoking movement and low smoking rates throughout the country. We cannot help but side with a recent editorial comment in the Medical Tribune and Medical News last week which quipped, "We hope their worries turn out to be justified."

The new American Cancer Society film will be another useful tool in its anti-tobacco campaigns. It would encourage opinion leaders of the nation to take responsible action, both personal and legislative, to help reverse the moutainous trend of death caused by cigarette smoking.
Alumni Research Foundation

THE NEUFELD femoral nail plate, designed by Alonzo J. Neufeld, MD, professor of orthopedic surgery, and distributed by Medical Research Specialties of Loma Linda, is one of several types of highly specialized surgical equipment manufactured by the Alumni Research Foundation for the University and other organizations. The surgical plate is designed for use in holding hip fractures in place. The holes in the Neufeld plate take screws which secure the plate to the bone.

USING A newly acquired $9,000 press break, metal up to 3/16 of an inch can be bent to any desired angle. Other uses of the machine include punching and forming metal.

HAROLD K. JOSE, shop foreman, welds a locking device on a portable television set. Over 250 locking devices are being made for installation in the new Medical Center.

WILLIAM H. MACK, machinist, positions a cone-shaped lead instrument on a lathe for precision machining. Used with a medical photo scanner, the tool will be part of the instrumentation for pinpointing brain tumors by radio isotopes.

USING A BOSSI vertical end mill, Mr. Mack bores out a center hole in an adapter used to detect changes in the optical density of solutions that have a total volume of less than 50 microliters, by use of a monochromatic light source. The device was developed by the School of Dentistry dental research group.

ROGER L. SANDERS, machinist, places a Neufeld femoral nail plate in a hydraulic press to be formed. The press, built by the University shops, is capable of exerting 100 tons of pressure per square inch.

A PARTIALLY completed dental unit, manufactured for Dentasist Specialty of Loma Linda, is placed in a sand blasting machine for a “satin finish.” The tank, which holds water, is part of a more complex drive unit used to operate air driven high speed dental drills.
Adventist Health Emphasis
Is Theme of Western Medicine

Almost the entire December issue of Western Medicine Medical Journal was devoted to the 100th anniversary of the Seventh-day Adventist belief and practice that medicine and religion are "An Unbreakable Combination."

Western Medicine has a circulation of 28,000 physicians in 13 western states. However, physicians living outside these states also subscribe. Dr. William F. Quinn, editor, included a complimentary editorial preface to the 30-page story.

The article, prepared by staff members at Loma Linda University, is a chronicle of the entire Seventh-day Adventist medical movement integrated with other significant events in the nation and world. Thirty photographs of persons and places important to the development of this work are included. A photograph of the Western Health Reform Institute, original Seventh-day Adventist medical institution in Battle Creek, Michigan, appears on the front cover.

The University has purchased 500 copies for display in the library, School of Dentistry, and University Medical Center. Copies of this magazine are available at $5.00 each, postpaid, from the University Relations Office, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California 92354.
