Orient Tour Offers Students Three Hours College Credit

Alunno L. Baker, Ph.D., professor of political science at Loma Linda University, will present "The Unreal Tour of the Orient," a 47-day trip through the mysterious peninsula of China, Thailand, the Republic of Korea, and Japan. The trip, which departs on November 17th and concludes on December 26th, offers students the opportunity to earn three college credits.

Participants will leave Los Angeles by Pan American World Airways jetliner June 19 and will return August 4. The tour is sponsored by Loma Linda University and three semester units of college credit will be made available to registered students.

Dr. Baker, a distinguished world traveler and lecturer, only last year took 22 people behind the Iron Curtain to the Soviet Union and her eastern European satellites.

His 1968 tour will swing to the Far East and provide guests with a penetrating view of the major and minor cities of the East.

The students will travel by surface through the Philippines, Borneo, Singapore, Malaya (including Kuchai Lumpur and Penang), and by air-country Thailand, Angor Wat in Cambodia, Indochina, Japan, Hongkong, Formosa, Okinawa and the Ryukyu Islands, and Japan.

From Osaka the Baker group will have stop for a trip through the Takayama (a three-volume set called "God's Great Fates." The third volume, "The Pale Man, the Prince and the Nun," will be released later this year.

The capstone services, listed below, will be held by Pastor Anderson each morning and evening. Meeting times are 8:00 a.m. for morning services, and 6:30-7:15 p.m. as a whole session closing.

On Sunday, November 23, "The Battle for the Mind of Man" and "The Holy Spirit and the Inerrancy of the Bible" will be discussed.

On Wednesday, December 11, "Calvary and the Second Advent" and "Pentecostal Power — Our Greatest Need" will be the focus.

On Thursday, November 27, "Healing the Voice of the Spirit" and "Grace and Christian Maturity" will be explored.

Friday, December 8, "Our Preparation for Today" and "Then Prepare a Table Before Me" (Luke 14:8) will be addressed.

Saturday, December 13, "Who Is a God Like unto Thee?" (8 and 10:55 a.m.) and "Fellowship in the Spirit" (3 p.m.) will be discussed.

William A. Fugel of the Faith for Today television series will conduct the Week of Religious Emphasis on the Loma Linda campus October 27 through November 19.

Pastor Fugel attended Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts, graduating in 1950 with a major in theology in 1950.

After a short term as pastor in Buffalo, New York, Pastor Fugel accepted an appointment to the Washington Avenue Seventh-day Adventist Church in New York City. In addition to his church pastoral duties, he conducted a radio program in the city for seven years.

The Faith for Today television program, at which he is moderator and speaker, is based on real life situations where troubled people seek counsel and guidance. The program is broadcast Monday through Friday from 7:30 to 8:00 p.m. EDT.

First PT Alumni Homecoming Scheduled for October 28-29

Former Loma Linda University students from nearly every state in the nation are expected to return this campus Saturday, October 28 and Sunday, October 29, when physical therapy alumni hold their first Alumni Homecoming.

The two-day event will include a variety of activities, ranging from tours of Loma Linda’s new multimillion dollar Orthopaedic Hospital to guest lectures, films, and a referee course.

According to alumni association president John D. Wheaton, "The Alumni Homecoming is open to all dues-paying members of the alumni association, $3 to non-dues-paying alumni, and $4 to all guests.

Reservations for the banquet and the referee course may be made immediately with the Alumni Relations Office, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California 92354. Each banquet ticket costs $3.50.

Physical Therapy Benefit Program Will Be October 21

Dear Editor:

Today I received the September issue of the University SCOPE which I appreciate. Although the contents are often overshadowed by news of the university, its students, graduates, and schools, I enjoyed reading the first page of theSCOPE.

It does seem, however, with an enrollment of 3000 students, that the School of Arts and Sciences, as well as the La Sierra College and La Sierra campus, should receive more attention than they apparently do at present, according to the SCOPE.

But the purpose of this letter is to comment on a disturbing stylistic policy of the paper—namely, the practice of referring to all students and faculty as "La Sierra students" and "La Sierra faculty." This is the largest of the four schools of the University, according to the SCOPE.

I suggest as a possible alternative that SCOPE identify a student by the school he attends (i.e., School of Arts and Sciences, School of Nursing, School of Medicine) and a faculty member by the higher degree he has earned (B.A., B.S., M.S., Ph.D., etc.) before referring to him, for occasional use when it is relevant to a particular issue or event (i.e., the location of an event).

Dear Editor:

As a recent graduate of La Sierra College, I would like to express appreciation of the excellent work done by the Guys in the Music Department at La Sierra. I wish to make at least one small suggestion to improve the University SCOPE.

My suggestion is that SCOPE publish "the Associated Alumni and Friends of La Sierra University," and notice list of known alumni of La Sierra campus coverage.

Uncertainties about any student's or faculty's activity becomes more established, both the SCOPE and the Criticere will improve on their news coverage.

Religious Faith Strong

There is a strong current of religious faith among the Rossian people. In fact, even thought the Soviet Union has not been a religious nation strongly for young people except in the remote areas of the Soviet Union.

Religion out of court for the sake of the people. It has been reduced to the routine by the laws of the country. Religion is a factor in the religious and political life of the country. Religion, even though the Soviet government has been a country, is today only a small organization in the Soviet Union.

UNIVERSITY BLOOD BANK

JUNIOR MEDICAL STUDENT Michael W. Carter completes his application to donate blood at the University Blood Bank. He learns from Mrs. Lua Horning, receptionist, that the bank has a need for his blood type which is O positive.

AFTER CHECKING his blood pressure and temperature Mrs. Ella Mae Wallar, registered nurse, inserted a needle to begin the donation process. Seven minutes later the donation of 500 cc. (about one pint) was completed.

FEELING ALMOST AS HEALTHY as before, Mr. Carter drinks orange juice to help replace fluid deficit and to give added strength. Donors, including students, employees, and faculty, also receive $20 for their blood contributions.

MISS LUA LEE HORNING, medical technologist, tests a sample of blood to determine the type. More than 2,200 units of blood are given to patients each year.

WHOLE BLOOD, is often transfused into a patient but sometimes only the liquid portion, excluding the cells, is needed. William P. Thompson, MD, blood bank director, prepares to separate the plasma (liquid portion) from the cells in a high-speed centrifuge.

ONE of the many uses for whole blood is in connection with the artificial kidney. The kidney machine is primed with two pints of blood as it begins to filter and purify the patient's blood. The patient, Mrs. Lubica Morehead, receives assistance from Stewart W. Shabaz, SM'58, assistant professor of medicine, and Mrs. Mildred T. Bridges, registered nurse.

Loma Linda Pastor Awards Two Books
Two books by Loma Linda clergymen R. Allan Anderson have just been published by the Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee.

The books, "Finish That Conquers Fear" and "Love Finds a Way," are the first two volumes of a trilogy called "God's Great Plan," which is the foundation and blueprint for the redemption of mankind.

Anderson, who resides at 1160 Anderson Street, was secretary of the General Conference Ministerial Association, Washington, D.C., during his last year in school.

He also served as chairman of the department of religion on the La Sierra campus of Loma Linda University and pastor and evangelist in England, Australia, and New Zealand.

Loma Linda University
Class Contribution of $25,000
Ups Teaching With Color TV

A $25,000 gift from the 1942 School of Medicine graduating class has provided Loma Linda University with color television equipment to start a medical video library, according to Howard B. Weeks, PhD, vice president for public relations and development.

The equipment delivered this week by Barnes Engineering of San Bernardino included an Ampex color videotape recorder, transistorized television camera, and a color monitor screen.

Other equipment scheduled for arrival early in the school year includes a new model defibrillator camera with zoom lens and either four or six additional monitor sets.

The videotape components will enable the University to record surgical procedures for use in teaching, not only within the University, but for loan to other medical institutions around the world, Dr. Weeks said.

"This is only the beginning!" said Jack G. Scoville, studio director for Barnes, explained that critical processes in research and development can be recorded and replayed rather than repeated.

"Loma Linda is the first local institution to install color tape recording equipment," said Mr. Scoville. He indicated that several schools are using black and white videotape recording equipment.

The closed-circuit television equipment will enable physicians, surgeons, dentists, and psychiatrists to tape significant treatments and delicate operations to preserve for study. A record of new techniques, discoveries, and recoveries can be maintained.

The taped lectures and demonstrations can be replayed to any class group on any television receiver.

University Dean Attends Manpower Shortage Meeting

Deen Icer C. Woodward of the School of Health Related Professions flew to Washington, D.C., Monday, October 9, for a conference on manpower shortages in medical technology. The conference, "Manpower for the Medical Laboratory," began this morning on the University of Maryland campus.

According to conference chairman Robert W. Coon, MD, the U. S. Public Health Service brought together 200 of the nation's leading pathologists, medical technologists, public health and hospital authorities, and educators in those fields to consider how a potentially crippling manpower shortage among medical technologists can be averted.

The conference, ending Friday, is Dean Woodward's second national meeting in as many weeks. On September 27 he discussed "Medical Technology Curriculum — 1972?" at a meeting of pathologists and medical technologists in Chicago. The program was a part of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists' annual meeting.

Computer Analyzes Patients Heart Murmur; Lessens Risk

Computer analyzes patients heart murmurs to cause possible risk, more painful procedures for some to be spared. The computer application was described to a group of heart physicians at a recent meeting of Loma Linda University School of Medicine cardiologists. He said the procedure is still in the experimental stage at Loma Linda University, but that initial results "definitely show promise," indicating that cardiac diagnosis certain heart disorders will be easier.

Physicians attending a conference in clinical cardiology on the campus of Loma Linda University were told that a new computer technique is expected to ease the diagnosis of the patient's abnormal heart sound, or "murmur," by allowing medical doctors to convert into a computer which analyzes the recorded sound of two factors — its frequency, or pitch, and its intensity, or loudness.

The procedure involves some doctors being able to personalize patient prior to the occurrence of cardiac catheterization, or heart surgery. Catheterization is a procedure involving some risk and pain, in which an operational device is injected into the heart; physicians are able to determine the condition of the heart by examining radiographically the speed and pattern of flow of the heart's bloodstream through the heart valves.

Reliable Guidelines

The aim of the study is development of reliable guidelines to tell the layman, and certain members of the medical profession, the degree of severity of the heart's deficiency. This computer technique was estimated with greater assurance than the previous methods, to be given patient prior to the occurrence of any cardiac procedure, or for the follow-up of patients prior to cardiac surgery.

What could be shown by the computer analyzer that a patient's condition is not severe, he was told at the three-day conference, is that a patient might be comforted, and the risk of the unnecessary operation might be scheduled without the patient being subjected to the patient risk involved.

Research on the new program, begun two years ago, was attended at a week-long course in clinical cardiology which was held recently at the American College of Physicians, to explore the relative small number of patients treated so far because it is taken as conclusive, according to the cardiologist, in presenting the report. However, the study is continuing with encouraging results.

About 120 persons are attending the conference, 100 of whom are physicians from the United States and Canada.

Academy Teachers Language Workshop Set for Sunday

An all day foreign language workshop will be held next Sunday, October 25, according to Margaret A. Blake, director of foreign language and world civilization, and world languages, and spokesperson for文化旅游.

Teachern from eleventh grade of all the schools in the south central and southwest areas of Southern California, and Southwestern Texas, will attend the seventh day Adventist event to present an overview of the conference. "We, in the United States, where the places have schools that focus on the training of teachers in the United States, the United States, and the United States, to the students and to the students, in the United States, will be the topic of the conference," she said.

Dr. Blake, in speaking to the students, said that the students and their families have been invited to the conference, which is open to the public.

The students and their families have been invited to the conference, which is open to the public, and is scheduled to be held on Sunday, October 25.

Deferral Mission Plan Helps Dental, Medical Students
The deferred mission appointment plan, operated by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists since 1956, aids st udents in the Schools of Medicine and Dentistry with their educational costs, according to Claude P. Randolph, MD, associate secretary of the General Conference Medical Depart ment.

Students who obtain a defer red appointment status are eligible to borrow money to help cover expenses during the junior and senior years of medicine and dentistry.

"Beginning this year," Dr. Randolph states, "students may apply for deferred appointment status during the latter part of their freshman year or early in their sophomore year. If accepted, they will receive instructions according to the program policies beginning with the second semester of the sophomore year."

Further information may be obtained from the General Conference Medical Department offices in Denver, Colorado or by phone extension 2650.

A new house was completed one year ago and awaits the arrival of another doctor. If one could come now, he could have plenty of time off to study the local language if he desired; for we have available to us a retired doctor who is an excellent teacher.

We have good relationships with Loma Linda University Medical School. We have a good spiritual program. We have excellent opportunities for experience in all areas of general practice and surgery. The obstetrical cases are most interesting. The midwife handles uncomplicated deliveries, but 50 percent of all that do come to our hospital to have their children have one complication or another. We have a good expansion program. We have a good spiritual program. We have excellent opportunities for experience in all areas of general practice and surgery.
