Deluxe around-the-world tour slated for June 22-August 29

A deluxe 60-day around-the-world tour lasting up to 10 hours of college credit will be offered this summer, according to Wilfred J. Alrey, Ph.D., professor and chairman of the Department of Anthropological Sciences. Members of the tour group will leave New York on June 22. They will visit Ireland, England, France, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy. A special excursion will be made to the United Nations in New York for an analysis of the needs, resources, and prospects for health care, teaching, and research. More than 60 students received diplomas

The inauguration of the School of Education at Loma Linda University in the fall of 1968 was one of the most remarkable events in the history of the university. The School of Education was established to provide a comprehensive program of professional preparation for teachers and administrators in the field of education. The School of Education has grown rapidly, and today it offers a wide range of programs and degrees in education, including a doctoral program in education. The School of Education has played a key role in preparing teachers and administrators for the schools of the future, and it has become a leader in the field of education. The School of Education has been recognized for its excellence, and it has been awarded numerous grants and scholarships to support its programs. The School of Education has also been active in community service, and it has provided numerous service learning opportunities for its students. The School of Education continues to be a leader in the field of education, and it is proud to have played a role in preparing teachers and administrators for the schools of the future.

One of the most remarkable events in the history of the School of Education was the dedication of the new building. The dedication ceremony was held on October 1, 1969, and it was attended by a large crowd of students, faculty, and staff. The new building was named after Willard H. Meier, who served as the first dean of the School of Education. Mr. Meier was a leader in the field of education, and he was a strong advocate for the development of the School of Education. The dedication ceremony included a speech by Mr. Meier, as well as a dedication address by the chancellor of the university. The new building was dedicated to the memory of Mr. Meier, and it was a fitting tribute to his contributions to the field of education. The new building was a symbol of the growth and progress of the School of Education, and it has continued to be a center of excellence for the preparation of teachers and administrators in the field of education. The School of Education continues to be a leader in the field of education, and it is proud to have played a role in preparing teachers and administrators for the schools of the future.

Annual physicians convention activities, offerings listed

An estimated 2,000 physicians from across the country are expected to attend the postgraduate convention of California's largest medical alumni group next month. The 37th annual Alumni Postgraduate Convention is sponsored by the Alumni Association and the faculty of Loma Linda University School of Medicine.

Activities of the February 14-15 convention will include keynote speeches by two distinguished medical authorities with discussions, clinic, and closed-circuit television demonstrations of medical and surgical problems.

A gala convention banquet will be held on Friday evening following the convention. The banquet will feature a keynote address by Dr. J. R. McDonald, dean of the School of Medicine, who will discuss the importance of the convention in the professional development of physicians.

The convention will also include an art exhibit and a silent auction, with proceeds to benefit the School of Medicine. The auction will feature a range of items, including works of art, books, and other items of interest to physicians and medical professionals.

The convention will be held at the Loma Linda University Health Sciences Center, with accommodations available at the Loma Linda University Inn and Conference Center and the Loma Linda University Medical Center. For more information about the convention, please visit the School of Medicine's website or contact the alumni office at 909-550-7700.
Continuing education

Continuing education has become a familiar term to men and women who, to maintain their professional competence in a rapidly changing world, must be in touch with newly discovered modalities and techniques.

The value of "keeping up" is readily recognized by those who have attended classes and made efforts to help personnel cope with various aspects of the knowledge explosion. Even the Internal Revenue Service, by extending tax deductions, recognizes the importance to their administrators who budget time and money in instances, an eminent psychiatrist who derives much satisfaction from using the experience to other areas of interest. We know, for work but finds time to attend night classes in automobile repairing.

Migration mysteries are subject of third Audubon film

The third in a series of five Audubon wildlife films will be shown Thursday, January 24, in Burden Hall on the Loma Linda campus of the University.

Walter J. Breckenridge, PhD, director of the Loma Linda campus of the University, will narrate the film, "Migrant Mysteries," which presents the most dramatic and mysterious aspect of bird life.

Highlights of the film will include a look at the bird anatomy and flight abilities, discussion of birds and problems that cause migrating birds to encounter flight difficulties.

The films are sponsored jointly by the National Audubon Society, San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society, and Loma Linda University.

Fifth in artist-lecture series features Canadian color film

The fifth in a series of nine University Artist and Lecture Programs will be presented Wednesday evening, January 25, in Gentry Gymnasium on the Loma Linda campus. Donald R. Shasky, SM '58, Redlands, California, will present his program titled, "The Canadian West." Shasky is known throughout the West for his films on wildlife, history, and popular Western subjects. His program is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

In conclusion, I think it appropriate to quote a line from J. B. Phillips' little book "God Is Too Small": "God is Too Small." Says Phillips, of arguments similar to those of Mr. Black, "The tragedy of these examples is that they are a result of the false assumption that anything by which we can identify our own age is what it is not. There is a confusion which will probably be with us till the Day of Judgment, but the outcome of folly and dastardly sinning of trying to see the world as if it were our own, a particular point of view."

Scientific program of exercise presented by Air Force major

A scientific program of exercise for overall fitness and bodily health was presented by Major Kenneth H. Cooper at Loma Linda University's Gentry Gymnasium last night. An offer in the United States Air Force Medical Corps, Major Cooper explained the new exercise program and point system discussed in his recent best-selling book, Aerobics.

The Loma Linda University lecture series and the School of Public Health jointly sponsored Major Cooper's appearance.

On the matter of exercise, Major Cooper says the question uppermost in people's minds is "How much is enough?" He formulated the answer when, after entering the United States Air Force, he was assigned to determine the effects of exercise on the human body, especially as it affected airplane pilots and astronautics.

"The key to the health of the heart, the lungs, and the cardiovascular system is oxygen," says Major Cooper, who is also a medical doctor. The relationship between exercise and the body's use of oxygen is the basis of his exercise program and point system.

Major Cooper explained how the exercise program he worked out for Air Force personnel may be adapted for use by the student, the factory worker, the office employee, the housewife, and others interested in launching out on a personal physical fitness program.

Vietnamese returns home following open-heart surgery at LLU hospital

An eggbeater, a muffin pan, plans, needles, toothbrushes, a potato peeler, a screwdriver full of remnants, and a repaired heart are what Nguyen Thi Sen took from America back to her home in South Vietnam.

One of 11 children of a farmer near Saigon, Sen, 19, traveled nearly 10,000 miles last October to have her heart repaired without charge by Loma Linda University Hospital surgeons.

Hospital facilities were donated by the University.

Doctors at Saigon Adventist Hospital who first diagnosed her problem tried to arrange for Sen's trip to America for a year before she was able to embark.

Saigon Adventist Hospital business manager Charles F. Harris contacted the local office of the American Loma Linda mission to find a way to arrange for Sen's transportation to Los Angeles.

After a cable to Pan Am's home office in New York, Mr. Harris was told that Sen would be able to fly to America as a guest of Pan American.

December 16 Pan Am completed the part of the trip and flew Sen back to Saigon.

University Hospital officials say that Sen will be able to live a nearly normal life with her repaired heart. The only thing that she won't be able to do is fly to America as a guest of Pan American.

Over a century of "Battle Creek" experience proves that proper diet, specialized hydrotherapy, a personal physical fitness program, and the "San" experience proves that exercise can be a pleasant way.

Over a century of "Battle Creek" experience proves that proper diet, specialized hydrotherapy and professionally supervised exercise — all in a serene atmosphere — work wonders in restoring body, mind and spirit. friends, Dr. Bube attempts to show that efforts and inconvenience are required to reestablish the original relationship. God has certainly exerted much effort to communicate with man, but what the depth of Christ on the cross contributes is not clear from the line of reasoning presented.

The stress on explanatory material can be a temptation to over-emphasize one's discipline rather than contributing to the Christianity-science encounter. The author of the chapter on geology succumbed to this temptation. Out of a total of 34 pages, 30 are devoted to a history of the theory of evolution and development and a scant four pages are left for relating the findings of geology and paleontology to the Biblical record. There is room for little more than a statement of the author's position, namely that science is so clear about the evolutionary origin of man that the first chapters of Genesis must not be taken literally. Theological and scientific problems associated with this position are almost completely ignored.

The combination of Christianity and the social issues produces many challenging and difficult questions; the author of the final essay responds with a sparkling chapter. Subject, ranging from free will vs. determinism, to social behaviorism are discussed with great skill. The central thrust is the same as that of the entire book: Christianity and science both must contribute to man's understanding and efforts. The following statement is typical of the author's constructive approach: "When solidly established findings of the behavioral sciences are correlated with supernatural Christian values and motivations, the church can attain its objective much more effectively than is currently the case when tradition, speculation, and guesswork dominate."

After reading The Encounter Between Christianity and Science the reviewer is left with three nagging disappointments, not with Dr. Bube's book, but because an equally clear and constructive presentation is not available from the scientists in his own denomination. Such a presentation, if logically written, would encourage more communication with scientists, a group toward whom the church is at present exerting little benefit. Benefits to the church itself would also result from a cooperative effort to resolve the objectives in a consistent viewpoint. A church that from its very beginning has emphasized the importance of both the written and natural revelations of the nature of God should be able to make some positive contributions to a constructive encounter between these revelations.

Have you saved $10,000?

Take a look around your office. That $10,000 may be tying up capital with the value going down and down everyday. The equipment, of course, is essential, but the investment isn't.

For example, 1) An equipment purchase and lease-back agreement turns your investment into cash; 2) Your lease payments are on the equipment you own. Risk of obsolescence is reduced; 3) You can upgrade equipment with the purchase of options; 4) A paid off loan is a paid off investment; 5) The interest on a lease is tax deductible.

Greetings to you from Saigon, South Vietnam; otherwise known as the land of the Viet Cong. Many want to know how things are here. Well, if you want to know the truth, I’ll tell you. The fact is that I am really learning to love Saigon. I had had such problems; but neither have I had such interesting experiences.

If my instructors in the School of Nursing had taken a poll voting for the person in the 1967 class least likely to be a future nursing school director, I doubt I would have been given a very great majority. I was probably one of the most quiet and unobtrusive, perhaps even the most unassuming member of that class, yet neither is it terribly complicated. We live in a Saigon neighborhood that the Vietnamese call the New Town, and our part of town was only overrun by the Viet Cong. Many want to know how things are here. Well, if you want to know the truth, I’ll tell you. The fact is that I am really learning to love Saigon. I had had such problems; but neither have I had such interesting experiences.

Editor’s note: The following letter is from Martha F. Bennett, ’47, who is currently directing the school of nursing at Saigon Adventist Hospital.

...and they could not escape. We have a choir in which each student participates heartily. They are quite a good one. I am proud of them. We have performed several times in the presence of the military chapels around Saigon and one of the Viet Cong prison camps at Bien Hoa.

Our Saigon Adventist Hospital is a bee-hive of activity. We see about 5,000 outpatients a month and our 3.8-bed capacity is most often swarming with patients. Our doctors are wonderful. One would have to see our crowded hospital to believe the truth. The hospital is located on the corner of two of the busiest streets in Saigon. All the military convoys from Tan San Nhat Airbase converge to Long Bien Post (the world’s largest army post) chug past the hospital singing the praises of the Vietnamese government as well as many common folk. We do the best we can with what we have. Right now the blood, IV’s, and catheter bags. ‘Tis quite a lively room. When the operating room is in use the patient is wheeled on a stretcher protected by the surgeons, and the other doctors, and the nurses. The Vietnamese and some American civilians find this hospital in preference to either the military or government hospitals. We try to do the best we can with what we have. Right now we have heavy bombing and shelling around the hospital, and we are trying to get more flying lessons.

One would have to see our crowded hospital to believe the truth. The hospital is located on the corner of two of the busiest streets in Saigon. All the military convoys from Tan San Nhat Airbase converge to Long Bien Post (the world’s largest army post) chug past the hospital singing the praises of the Vietnamese government as well as many common folk. We do the best we can with what we have. Right now the blood, IV’s, and catheter bags. ‘Tis quite a lively room. When the operating room is in use the patient is wheeled on a stretcher protected by the surgeons, and the other doctors, and the nurses. The Vietnamese and some American civilians find this hospital in preference to either the military or government hospitals. We try to do the best we can with what we have. Right now we have heavy bombing and shelling around the hospital, and we are trying to get more flying lessons.

The students come from various parts of Vietnam. They are some of the most adorable girls I have ever known. I honestly love them with all my heart. They are so eager to learn and are cooperative noon of the time, even when I have had to punish them at times. A couple of them were late starting school last February, because their villages were under attack by the Viet Cong.
Fifteen members of the 17-member medical record administration class of 1968 were reunited in Loma Linda last month to take their registration examination. The other 1968 class members, S. Janette Wagner and Melissa A. Anderson, took their examinations in Washington and Michigan, respectively. The 15 Loma Linda members and all local alumni held a meeting December 6 to elect officers for 1969. The new alumni president is H. Stiller, ’66, and secretary-treasurer is Janet C. Roy, ’66. Both are employed at University Hospital.

Op—traditional art shown in February

An exhibition of art ranging from up to the traditional forms will be featured in a one-man show by Herschel Hughes, assistant professor of art, February 3 to 27 in the Loma Linda University Art Gallery on the La Sierra campus at Riverside. Large oil paintings, pen and ink drawings, and watercolors will be shown in the exhibit. Their subjects will vary from figative to mechanical.

As an artist, Mr. Hughes has had numerous one-man art shows and has had a number of paintings exhibited by invitation. One is currently on display in the state capital building, Salem, Oregon.

The gallery, located on Campus Drive, is open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.
