Disappointing audience turnout hears Tunney call for troop exit

A crowd of nearly 100 people heard featured guest speaker, Congressman John V. Tunney, representative for California's 38th district, call for complete American troop withdrawal from South Vietnam in a speech to students, faculty, and community residents in Gentry Gymnasium, Loma Linda campus, last Tuesday. Taking part in the second peace convocation in two months on the campus, Mr. Tunney challenged President Richard M. Nixon to remove all United States armed forces from South Vietnam in the next 12 to 18 months.

Churchill says USSR dominates Middle East

While the attention of the United States is focused on Vietnam the Soviet Union is making "massive gains" in the western arena, according to Winston S. Churchill, III, grandson and namesake of the late prime minister of England.

This warning was sounded by Mr. Churchill Saturday, Nov. 1, in a University Artist and Lecturer series address on the La Sierra campus. Mr. Churchill, a correspondent for the London Times, visited Loma Linda University while on a 23-day speaking tour of the United States.

He said that despite the fact Israel won her Six-Day War with the Arab states in 1967, Russia has gained influence in the Middle East and, in fact, has strengthened her hold in Europe while setting up bases in Northern Africa as far west as Nigeria.

Mr. Churchill was in Israel when the 1967 war broke out and had departed to England the day before a cable in which he predicted that the war, if it came, would be resolved in favor of Israel within the first 10 months.

On a return visit two months ago, Mr. Churchill said that Israel "has lost its mood of hope" that it could win favorable peace terms with the Arab states by trading territorial gains for Arab assurances. He saw little hope of an early settlement on either side of the stalemate.

If a new war were to break out, Mr. Churchill said Israel would likely win again. For one thing, he noted that Israel's bombers were only four and one half minutes from Gaza now, whereas two reasonable demand?" This "reasonable demand" is to "become involved in the decision making of the university by the professors."

This sounds like, and is no different than, the "reasonable demand" Lucifer made to sit in on and participate in the decision making in the creation of this earth. No more logical is it for an immature student to demand a voice in shaping university curriculum and in administering university business than it was for Lucifer to make his demand. Both demands are out of place. May we never forget that there can be no dialogue with this type of student element. If these demands are met, when they mature, they will lose respect for the university administration, not long before. This does not mean that the administration should not listen to and survey the student body for ideas and concerns to fill the students' needs.

The Seventh-day Adventist educational school system cannot afford to be controlled by professors. If they are, then our schools are no different from the world. The government supported schools and universities cannot financially afford this nor can we. All we need to do is to see a graphic illustration of the deprietary of the net product of this philosophy and of some of these "studies of racial or ethnic groups" on a short six year interlude on a government university, or enroll in its classes.

Perhaps most people who read this column, and probably most who read from North America did not have much time to attend the congress and to learn of the ideas that have been used in Europe and America, and that nothing came forth from the congress to the North American youth. But to young people from Indonesia, the Philippines, Japan, Korea, Singapore, Bombay, Vietnam, and Thailand, the congress presented many new ideas and many new challenges for youth today.

Perhaps most people who attended North America did consider the congress a failure, but this was an international youth congress, not one for North America.

The one aspect of this whole thing was the reaction of the national young people to the conference. But this was a truly representative congress rather than one devoted mostly to North American youth.

Where were the people?
The chairs were there, the lights on, the door open, and it had not rained for 30 hours. The people? Oh there were a few, maybe 75 was coming. Nearly 5,000 of last week's issues have disappeared from publicity. No, surely everybody who reads University SCOPE knew he everyone of them proclaimed on page one, the lead story, that Congressman John V. Tunney was speaking November 11 for the audience heard Dr. Jack Provonsha of the University's department of States had been embroiled in such a war, but he supported President Nixon's efforts to find peace in every way he could.

They would have also discovered that the second excused was feeble. The University administration had full knowledge of peace convocation plans. A number of high-ranking administrators attended the meeting, in fact.

Perhaps it was the third reason after all. Apathy. A dirty word in my vocabulary. Mr. Tunney, through his absence, and the University of Loma Linda residents, is a United States congressman. He does represent a number of University employees living in his district.

No, it was probably the fourth reason. He is also intelligent, articulate, and well-informed. As a congressman, he has access to more pertinent information than anyone here in Loma Linda.

So where were the people? They must not have thought too much about the war. They were afraid of hearing both sides of an issue because they might not like one side of it?

'“Mourn not the dead. . .”

But rather mourn the apathetic throng—
The cowed and meek
Who see the world’s great anguish and its wrongs.
And dare not speak.”

Simplicity class offered by SD

Loma Linda University School of Dentistry announces an offering of a course in the series of continuing education courses.

Health Care, October 7-9, 1971, guest lecturer for undergraduate and graduate dental students, will teach a class in “Work Simplification in Dental Practice.”

The course is offered on December 18 and 19 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Enrollment is open to dentists, dental hygienists, and dental assistants.

Included in the course will be an introduction to management, basic motion methods, prepared work systems, coding and indexing of all necessary paperwork, and general guidelines and assistance.

This course will be a two-day speed finishing, pin reinforcements for amalgam, and new sealant technique, and will also be shown. Enrollment fee for dentists is $75; $35 for auxiliary personnel.

This legislative quotation is a mixture of unwarranted generalizations, half-truths, and innuendo. It is an attempt to undermine the apathy of the American people.

Has this nation really, in its articles, “sacrificed its life for nothing” and “lost the cause of its enemies”? Does it say with any degree of responsibility that our nation has really lost the will to defend itself against its internal and external enemies?

It is a fallacy to pontificate that we as a people have lost the desire to help the less fortunate, the less fortunate to live, to the contrary not unwarranting?

University SCOPE is going to get into the realm of political and economic debate, but our concern is with the past. Let us at least present a variety of political views and let the students exercise their God-given right to come to conclusions in light of the relevant ideas and facts.

Strange bedfellows?

By J. D. Chambers

Inhalation therapist, University Hospital

What has happened to Loma Linda University? What has happened to the original plan for our institution to be an educational institution seeking to abide by denominational rules and regulations. Do we, the people of the Seventh-day Adventist church, no longer wish to bear our responsibilities and duties as God requires of church members?

Those who disapprove the use of University property by individuals whose intentions are to influence the actions and opinions of the students are permitted to state their reasons. Those who oppose the indulgence that has been accorded to certain preachers, statesmen, and other political figures.

The people were the people. Those who have charge of our institutions and schools should guard themselves diligently, lest by their words and sentiments they lead the students into false paths. Those who teach their prejudices for or against political men or measures, be doing so, they strike up the minds of the students and create suspicion and distrust of their institution. Such distrust is evidence of sound thinking.

Does the editor not realize that only a minority of our students are taking a course in political science? Is it not right for any student who has a desire to ventilate his opinions on political questions, should be permitted to express them? The truth is, you cannot link a student together with God in winning souls or Chris, or his credence must be taken from him. If he does not change, he will be suspended.

The opinion column is written first we forget that the message from God is important in our lives and today was a past event.
